HITCH-HIKE

by ELLIS PARKER BUTLER

A Black Chiffon Hat (Model 1895), the Telephone, Innumerable Motorists, a Police Escort Figure in This Escapade of Aunt Luce, Who Wasn't Far From a Hundred.

MRS. JONATHAN EDWARDS ENNIS came out of her kitchen and walked down the walk to the edge of the lane to see what John Winthrop Smith, carrier of R. F. D. 2, had put in the mail box. She found it was only a circular from the Economy store in village, and she stood a moment looking up the lane toward the main road. There was nothing new or exciting in sight, and she was about to go back to the kitchen when she saw Mrs. Roger Williams Pinney coming out of her front door across the lane.

Mrs. Pinney, who was Lucilla to Mrs. Ennis and "Grandma" to nearly every one in the little community except to those to whom she was "Auntie" or "Cousin Luce," was evidently going to make a call, for she had on her good hat. Mrs. Pinney had bought her good hat in 1895 and she kept it in a hat box she had bought from the New Lebanon Shakers in 1888. It was a black chiffon hat, built on the general architectural plan of the hat box itself but as light as a feather. Mrs. Pinney pinned it to her thinning hair with one of the few twelve inch shat pins still remaining in Berkshire county. When Mrs. Pinney goes calling in the lane or on the nearby people of the main road she always wears her good hat and carries her lace parasol.

On this afternoon just after the blueberries were ripe Mrs. Pinney meant to make two calls. One was on her own niece, Nancy Stryker, in the house just above her own, and the other was on Mrs. August Blenheim, fully an eighth of a mile up the main road, possibly stopping on the way home to see Addie Branch or Mrs Fergus. She felt fully equal to the walk to Mrs. Blenheim's and back. It was a considerable walk for a little old lady of eighty, but Mrs. Pinney greatly desired to consult Mrs. Blenheim on a matter of considerable importance. Mrs. Blenheim had been down to New York less than a year before, and she should be an authority on style. Mrs. Pinney, who was nothing if not eagerly alive, had turned up the skirt of her black dress, and she was a little afraid she had turned it too high. She was sure she remembered hearing Mrs. Blenheim say that skirts now showed the knees—and Mrs. Pinney's did—but the skirt showed so very much of her knees that Mrs. Pinney was afraid something was wrong. She had allowed a good hem, and if Mrs. Blenheim thought the skirt was too short she would lengthen it.

HAVING so little hair now, it was not easy for Mrs. Pinney to keep her big chiffon hat balanced on her head, and she had to hold herself stiffly erect. She kept the hand that held her beaded bag ready to reach for the hat if it began to slip, and as the parasol was white and easily soiled, she held that well away from her, too, so that she walked with both arms extended in front of her. As she was wearing her best soft black kid shoes, which scuffed easily, and could not look down at the road without causing her hat to slip forward over her eyes, and as there might always be a rough stone in the road, she stepped high. Being such a little woman her steps were never very long, but how she gave an impression of making no progress at all. She seemed to be a very erect little old lady with a look of pleased satisfaction and two arms extended, with a skirt to her knees, treading up and down on one spot and balancing something large and black on the extreme top of her head.

"Good morning, Luce!" Mrs. Ennis called across the lane, and Mrs. Pinney came toward her.

"Well!" she exclaimed. "Well! I must say you are almost strangers, Amanda Ennis! How long has it been since you've been across to see me?"

"Well—I know!" said Mrs. Ennis, admitting the justice of the accusation. "It does seem as if I just never did get over. I say I will and then I don't. It's not that I don't mean to, Lucilla."

"I don't know when any one's come to see me," said Mrs. Pinney.

"Everybody's so busy nowadays," said Mrs. Ennis, "it just seems as if I don't know where days go. They're just gone, it seems as if. Not that it's so far over to your house, Luce, that I mightn't run over."

As the two cottages were hardly a hundred feet apart this was a reasonable statement.

"Well, I aim to see somebody now and then even if nobody sees me," Mrs. Pinney declared, and she snapped her eyes as she dared not nod her head. "I don't know what's the matter with folks these days. Folks don't care for folks like they used to, seems. My land, Amanda, when I was young folks took some interest. Goodness! I might as well be dead for all they know I'm alive."

"Yes, it seems as if, sometimes," agreed Mrs. Ennis.

"Time was," said Mrs. Pinney, "when the whole community took interest in everybody else. Well, I dare say times change. They don't think of anybody but themselves now. How's your cough?"

"It's just the same, seems as if, Luce. It bothers me dreadful at night. Seems as if I didn't sleep a minute last night."

"There!" exclaimed Mrs. Pinney. "I knew I forgot something! I told you I'd write to Jessie to send up a bottle of that cough medicine from New York! Well, I'm getting like the rest—all for myself and forget the rest. I'll write to Jessie—I'll write the minute I get back home. I'm going up to see Mrs. Blenheim. How do you like the way I shortened my skirt?"

"It's short, anyway, seems as if," said Mrs. Ennis.

"That's what I shortened it to be," said Mrs. Pinney. "I'm going to see what Mrs. Blenheim thinks about it."

"Going to stop and see Nancy?" asked Amanda.

"Yes, I thought to," admitted Mrs. Pinney.

"Don't fret—she'll tell you what she thinks about it!" Mrs. Ennis said. "Well, I've got some water on boiling——"

MRS. PINNEY continued on up the Lane. In the brief geography of Hillvale the Lane deserves a capital letter, as do all the other of the physical manifestations of the little community, so important are they to those who live there. The main road runs north and south There are five or six cottages on it. From the main road the Lane, grass bordered, runs down to the Little river, and ends at a Foot bridge there, and to the east and west are the mountains, making the valley. On the Lane are five cottages and a farmhouse, and there is a little red brick schoolhouse with one room where the Lane joins the main road.

In the summer some of the cottages take boarders, and one or two are owned by city folks. Not a few automobiles rush by on the main road—far more in summer, of course—but every one looks out of the window when an automobile comes down the Lane, every one immediately supposing it must be a stranger who has mistaken the Lane for the cross road half a mile further along, which leads to the village. Thus Hillvale is a little community all by itself.

Crossing the Lane, Mrs. Pinney walked on until she came to Nancy Stryker's cottage. She reached up to the knocker and rapped, and then opened the door and sniffed the air. Blueberry jam in the making!

"Who is it?" Nancy Stryker called in her robust voice. "I'm making blueberry jam."

"It's Aunt Luce," Mrs. Pinney answered, raising her voice.

"Come on out in the kitchen," called Nancy.

"I've got on my good hat," Mrs. Pinney called back, knowing that when Nancy made jam the kitchen was a wild place indeed. "I shortened my black skirt and I'm going up to ask Mrs. Blenheim about it."

"You sit down; I want to see it," called Nancy. "I'll be through in a minute. Sit down and look at the magazines till I'm done."

Mrs. Pinney for a moment was undecided. An advertised minute of Nancy Stryker's was apt to be a half hour. On the other hand, Nancy always did have a lot of magazines, and Mrs. Pinney liked to turn new pages and look at pictures as much as the next person, and she seated herself cautiously on the chair nearest the table and took up a magazine. Twenty minutes later she felt in her beaded bag for her spectacles. Her eyes were getting better every year, but she had to have spectacles for print reading.

IN the kitchen Nancy was apparently throwing pans at the wall. She was a fine large woman, unmarried but happy, with cheerful frank eyes and the hearty voice of a man. She did her housework as a man would have done it, too, but in spite of that she seemed to make better bread than any other woman in Hillvale, and her blueberry jam actually drew her boarders back year after year. She called them "my jam crowd," with a laugh. Presently—it was forty minutes after Mrs. Pinney's arrival—she came into the living room reasonably free from jam, having discarded the huge apron she had worn, and dropped into a chair.

"Gee whiz, but I'm tired!" she exclaimed, stretching out her legs, and throwing her arms above her head. "It's going to be swell jam, Aunt Luce. Best ever. Well, you did get that skirt short enough!"

But Mrs. Pinney did not look up.

"In a minute, Nancy," she said, following the finger that was tracing the lines of print on the magazine page, and Nancy was glad to have a minute or two in which to let her muscles rest. She looked at Aunt Lucilla's knees and smiled. Mrs. Pinney's skirt was not so much shorter than Nancy Stryker's, but even an inch makes a difference, and Aunt Lucilla's knees were not as Nancy's knees.

"Well!" exclaimed Mrs. Pinney suddenly, closing the magazine and reaching for her hat, which had slid over one ear. "What won't they do next?"

"That airplane at the north pole article?" asked Nancy lazily.

"Not but what I dare say it's all right, modern times and all," said Mrs. Pinney. "Goodness knows, I never expected to have skirts as short as this, when you come to it. And I must say they seemed to get along all right."

"Who?" asked Nancy.

"Why, these hitch-hike girls it tells about in this magazine," said Mrs. Pinney, sitting straight. "All the way to California, if you'll believe it! The thumb——"

With the right hand Mrs. Pinney experimented, trying the signal that has become as common in America as tipping the hat. Commoner!

"I expect that's the way," said Mrs. Pinney, beaming with pleasure at having conquered the thumb symbol for "Give me a lift!" so easily. "You jab it in the direction you want to go, Nance. It says it's surprising how willing folks are to pick up a person and how nice they are to them. These two girls——"

SHE stopped short and took off her spectacles.

"How far is it to New York, Nan?" she asked.

"My lands, Aunt Luce! You're not thinking of hitch-hiking to New York, are you?" Nancy demanded, but she knew well enough by the eager gleam in Mrs. Pinney's eye that the little old lady was thinking of just that.

"It's no matter what I'm thinking of; I'm old enough to take care of myself, and I'm old enough to do what I want to do, if I want to do it," Mrs. Pinney said. "All I asked you, Nancy, was how long it takes to get to New York by automobile."

"Four hours—five hours—seven hours," said Nancy. "It all depends on one thing or another. But, Aunt Luce, don't you try anything so foolish! It isn't all as easy as that article makes it seem. What if you got to a place and nobody came along to take you on from there? What if night came? Those two girls—well, of course they were pretty and they were nervy——"

"I wouldn't want to go automobile riding looking like a fool," Mrs. Pinney said, apparently ignoring Nancy's advice, as was her custom. "No gentleman likes to have company that looks ridiculous. I guess I'll go up and see Mrs. Blenheim, Nancy."

"Aunt Lucilla, you're not going to do anything so foolish as try to hitch-hike to New York!"

"I mustn't forget I told Amanda Ennis I'd get her a bottle of that cough medicine from Jessie," said Mrs. Pinney. Her thoughts seemed to return suddenly to Nancy. "Your hair looks real nice bobbed that way, Nancy," she said. "What kind of bob do you call it?"

"Boyish," said Nancy. "Aunt Luce, don't try to hitch-hike. You can write to Jessie. You can get a boyish bob in the village."

"Well, I'll be going along; glad your jam turned out so well."

"Listen, Aunt Luce!" pleaded Nancy. "You know you can't wear that hat if you get your hair bobbed."

"It ain't the only hat in the world," said Mrs. Pinney independently. "If you want to give me a jar of that jam I'll stop for it on my way back, maybe day after tomorrow."

Nancy went to the door with her and saw her turn out of the lane in the direction of Mrs. Blenheim's. About an hour later Mrs. Pinney stood at the side of the road at the end of the lane. A large closed car came by and Mrs. Pinney raised her hand to the level of her face, and motioned toward the south with her extended thumb. The seats of the car were all filled and the car went by without pausing.

"And did you see that!" exclaimed one of the ladies in the car. "Did you see that old woman? She must have been a hundred and actually trying to hitch-hike! I don't know what people can be like, letting an old woman like that do such things. That's how callous people in these country districts get."

Mrs. Pinney, little thinking what was being said about her, looked after the car a moment, and then looked up the road. Another car was coming and she stepped forward a little, her hand raised, and her thumb ready for the signal. She felt her hat slipping, but one hand held her beaded bag and her parasol, and she let the hat slip. The hat could be straightened when she got in the car. Otherwise she felt well. Mrs. Blenheim had lengthened the seam an inch, and had put a sandwich in the beaded bag. The car came rapidly down the road, and the driver saw Mrs. Pinney's signal and stopped in front of her.

"Well, hello, Aunt Luce!" he said. "What's the big idea? Want a lift? Going to the village? Who told you that you could go to the village alone?"

"Now, Fremont, don't you go being smarty," said Mrs. Pinney. "I dare say I'm able to do what I want. The village as far as you're going?"

He was helping her into the car.

"Going to Great Barrington, Aunty," he said.

"Well, I'll go that far with you, anyway, Fremont," Mrs. Pinney said. "I'm hitch-hiking down to New York, Fremont. Going down to see Jessie, I thought I would."

"Well, I don't know any law against it," said Fremont carelessly. "Going to hitch-hike back?"

"I certainly am," said Mrs. Pinney. "If flappers can do it I can do it. Sometimes Nancy Stryker almost makes me mad at her."

"Tried to stop you, did she?"

"Trying to tell me this and that!" exclaimed Mrs. Pinney.

"She gets that way sometimes," said Fremont, steering around a truck.

In her cottage Nancy Stryker was standing before her telephone—86, ring 4 and 2—and she had just got Will Trent of the real estate firm of Trent & Wallace, Great Barrington, on the wire.

"Yes, I heard you tell Will," Joe Wallace said. "I'll go down and be on the lookout for them. G'by!"

As Nancy hung up she heard a spitting and sputtering in the lane outside her cottage and she went to the door. Young August Blenheim was there on his motorcycle. He sat in the saddle with one foot on the ground, and he grinned at Miss Nancy.

"Say, ma got thinking," he said, "and she was worried because maybe Mrs. Pinney might not get hitches as easy as she thought she would, so she wants I should follow along down and see that she don't get hung up anywhere. She was gone when I got to the end of the lane—do you know has she started yet, or did she go home for something?"

"She started, Aug," Nancy told him. "Fremont picked her up and is taking her to Barrington, and Joe Wallace is going to pick her up in front of the bank there. You can catch them, I guess."

"You bet I can catch them!" August said. "Say, with this machine? You bet I can catch them!"

HE swung in a half circle and was off up the lane to the racket of noisy explosions, and Miss Nancy went inside to quiet the telephone, which was insistently ringing 4 and 2.

"That you, Nancy?" Will Trent's voice asked. "I just wanted to tell you I think Aunt Luce will be all right. Ed Brent just phoned in from Canaan, and he's got a friend in the Connecticut motor cop headquarters, and the whole gang is going to keep an eye on Aunt Luce, and see that she gets along all right as far as the New York line, and this cop fellow has lined up the New York state police crowd. They'll look after her down there. I guess she'll be all right."

"I guess she will," said Nancy.

At Canaan Mrs. Pinney thanked Joe Wallace, and he helped her out of his car. She put up her hand to straighten her hat and a car drew up beside her.

"Only going as far as Pawling, lady," said the driver.

"What say?" asked Mrs. Pinney, and a young man on a motorcycle and a cop on another motorcycle halted nearby.

"I thought you gave me the thumb sign, lady," said the motorist. "I said I was only going as far as Pawling—toward New York."

"It's on your way," said Joe Wallace, as Mrs. Pinney hesitated.

"Well——" Mrs. Pinney hesitated. "How fast do you drive, mister?"

"O, not too fast—fast enough," said Ed Brent. "How fast do you like to go?"

"I got to get to New York before dark," said Mrs. Pinney. "Your car don't look as if it could go very fast."

"It can, though," Ed Brent told her, but Mrs. Pinney was undecided. She looked up the road and saw a huge blue car coming, and she lifted her hand and joggled her thumb in the direction of New York. The big car hesitated and stopped. It was empty except for the chauffeur in uniform, and he leaned out and opened a door.

"New York?" he asked Mrs. Pinney. "Or anywhere down that way? Hop in, lady."

"Here! Wait a minute, Aunt Luce!" Joe Wallace said. "This other gentleman offered to take you——"

"Well, this one's going further, and I like the looks of his car better, and I'm going with him, Joseph. Thank you just the same," she said to Ed Brent, "but I guess this man can go faster."

"You said it, lady!" the chauffeur of the big car said. "Hop in."

Mrs. Pinney did not hop in, but she climbed in and, before she was quite seated, the car started with a jerk that threw her head back against the soft cushions and sent her hat over her eyes. Joe Wallace looked after the car a moment, and then put his hand on Ed Brent's arm.

"Look here, Ed," he said. "Hate to trouble you, but you'll have to chase after that car and find M. P. Dillman at Pawling and tell him the old lady hitched into another car. If you don't he'll wait there all night as like as not."

"Sure he will; he's a faithful guy," said Brent.

"And wait a minute!" Joe Wallace said. "Tell Dillman he'll have to find Ross Wilmerding at Brewster and tell him the old lady has got a through pick up. And—wait, can't you?—have him tell Wilmerding he's got to go on down to Armonk and find a fellow along there by the big vegetable stand——"

"Great Scott!" Ed Brent said. "There are always about a thousand cars along there by that stand."

"No matter; Ross'll have to find him. His name's Carson—S. O. Carson—and he's red headed. He's Aunt Lucilla's niece's husband——"

"S. O. Carson—red headed Armonk," repeated Ed Brent. "I got you, Joe!"

"Yes, and be sure Ross finds him," Joe insisted. "He'll never leave there if Ross don't! he'll have the whole state police and the United States army and I don't know what else out combing the roads for Aunt Luce if Ross don't. He's terrible that way."

"I'll tell M. P. to tell Ross," Ed Brent assured him, and started his own car down the road toward Pawling.

He presently caught the big car. He would not have caught it had the chauffeur of the big car not looked back to see a motorcycle cop in uniform closely following him and the motorcycle who looked suspiciously like another cop in plain clothes. The car's chauffeur ran at the exact limit of speed.

"Seems to me you ain't going very fast," Aunt Luce said.

"I can't go no faster here," the chauffeur said. "There's a cop hanging onto me; you'll get all the speed you want when he drops me."

BUT the motorcycle cop did not drop him. He hung so close that his front tire almost touched the spare tire on the rear of the car, and they arrived in Pawling in a string, the big car, the motorcycle cop, Fremont Fellows, and Ed Brent. There Ed Brent found M. P. Dillman and gave his message and turned back, and the man speeded up and was presently in the rear of Aunt Luce's procession. From time to time, as they met a fresh motorcycle cop or a state policeman who had been trailing the car, would drop out and the fresh one would take his place.

"I guess that other car could have gone faster than this," Aunt Luce said to her driver.

"Say, I got more speed in this car than any of them guys has got in a thousand years," her chauffeur said disgustedly. "Only I had a bad start going up day before yesterday, and let her out up there by Sheffield and a cop give me a bawling out, see? Them cops is all like hands in glove, lady, and they're passing the word along, see? They're waiting for me to make a bad break, see? Then they give me fifty bucks fine. I got to watch my step till I shake them; then I'll show you some speed, lady."

By the time they reached Amenia they were holding up traffic. The drivers of cars from New York filled one side of the road and the drivers of the cars following Mrs. Pinney's chauffeur, looking out, saw the motorcycle cops ahead of them and risked no time getting out of line to speed ahead. Ahead of Mrs. Pinney was nothing but open road, on her side of the highway, but the cars up behind her were at first twenty cars and trucks, and buses, then fifty, then a hundred. The chauffeur groaned. How many miles Mrs. Pinney had been asking him about how she had come to hitch-hike to New York—she had gone over it ten times, adding details she had forgotten to tell before—and it was no longer finding it interesting.

"Yeh?" he said, looking back at the long line of cars he was holding up. "I bet them guys is cursing me plenty. What kind of jam you say this one was making?"

"It wasn't Jessie," Mrs. Pinney told him patiently. "Jessie's the one I'm going to see."

"Yeh, sure—the one that knows about the cough medicine; don't tell me; I know that already, lady."

"Nancy," said Mrs. Pinney, "Nancy Stryker. She's the one that was making jam. Blueberry jam."

"Yeh? Blueberry jam? What do you know about that! Blueberry jam!"

BACK at Armonk Aunt Lucilla's niece Jessie's husband was listening to Ross Wilmerding explain that Aunt Lucilla was in a car that had gone by five minutes earlier. It had taken him that long to find Sam Carson, who had been ready to give car draw up and discharge Aunt Lucilla and to explain that he had happened to drive up that way and "was good luck that he happened to be there?" Sam Carson crowded into the line of cars—he was the one hundred and sixteenth back of Aunt Lucilla—and Ross Wilmerding turned homeward. He stopped for gas and telephoned M. P. Dillman, and M. P. Dillman telephoned Ed Brent, and Ed Brent telephoned Trent & Wallace and Joe Wallace telephoned Nancy Stryker that Aunt Lucilla was all right as far as Armonk. Nancy telephoned every one in the lane and Mrs. Blenheim. An hour and a half later Fremont Fellows telephoned Nancy that Aunt Luce was safe at Sam Carson's, and Nancy telephoned Mrs. Blenheim and every one in the lane, and about half an hour after that Sam Carson himself telephoned.

"I thought you'd like to know that Aunt Luce got here all right," he told Nancy. "She's fine—not tired at all. We're going to keep her a week or two now that we've got her here. Wait a minute—she wants to ask you something."

Mrs. Pinney's voice came to Nancy over the many intervening miles, but though it was thinned by the distance it carried a distinct note of exultation.

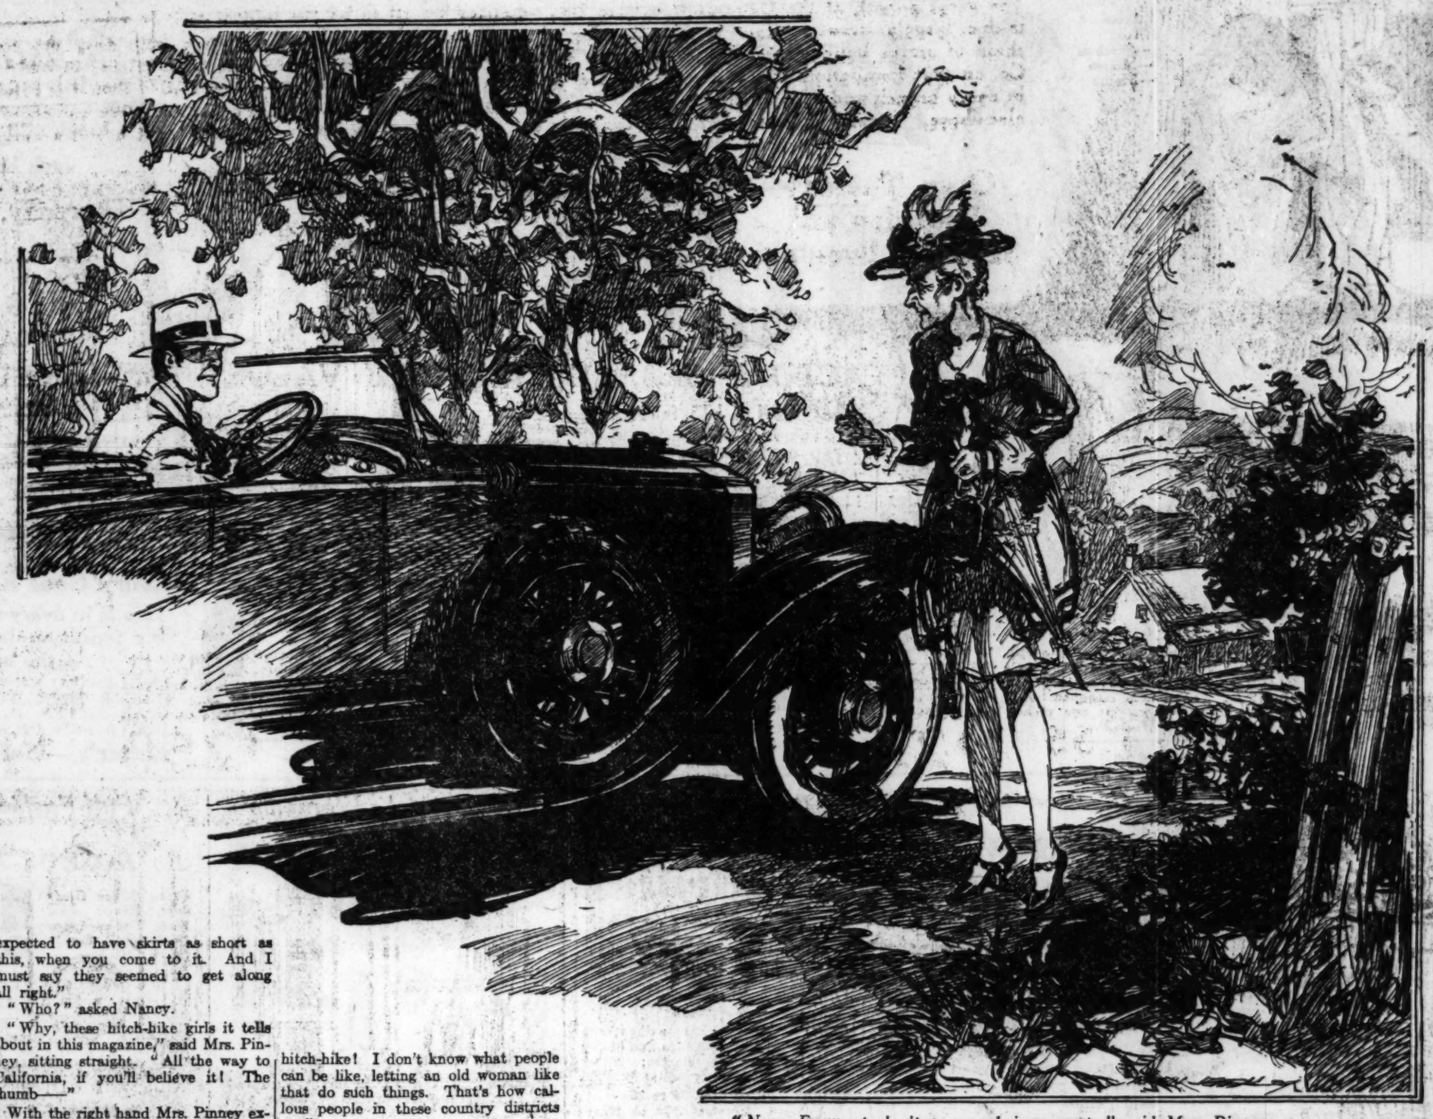
"Well, I got here!" Aunt Lucilla crowed. "I guess that'll show you, Nancy Stryker, that I can hitch-hike if I've a mind to, and no help needed!"

"That's fine, Aunt Luce," Nancy told her. "Give my love to Jessie, have a good time."

"I'm going to," said Mrs. Pinney.

Nancy turned back to her work of carrying her jam down to the shelves in the cellar. She was tired, but she was happy—her jam was a success—and she had done well the little community's self-imposed task of subtly perintending Aunt Luce's hitch-hike. Then she tried to read the county paper and found herself nodding over it, and she went to bed. It was midnight when some one rapped sharply on the door, and Nancy got out of bed and hurried into her bathrobe. She opened the door to see standing there a man in the uniform of a motorcycle policeman, the motorcycle palpitating at the edge of the lane.

"This Stryker's?" he asked, pulling his cap from his head. "You Miss Nancy Stryker? Yeah? Well, I got to tell you the old lady in the car I got to where she was going to, safe and all. She got there. Yeah! Good night."



"Now, Fremont, don't you go being smarty," said Mrs. Pinney.

"I bet them guys is cursing me plenty."

Ambition

Persistently Pursuing a Definite Purpose and Relentlessly Rendering the Highest Possible Service

The great growth of the General Furniture Co., admitted by all to be the largest strictly retail furniture concern in Chicago, is due, largely, if not entirely, to the following bf a definite purpose. From the very beginning the founders of this mighty chain of stores believed in service. Service was almost a religion with them and they set out to build the General Furniture Co. on that foundation. This idea of service has been so persistently pursued since 1892 that it is reflected by every employe in every branch and department to the end that our customers shop with a feeling of confidence and security that is hardly found elsewhere. Service is just another reason why the General enjoys the patronage of over a half a million satisfied customers.

by LUTHER FORD

Hitherto:

TONY GILMORE, scenario writer, lives a gay life in Hollywood. Among old flames are Dolly Brownrigg, now richly married, and Mrs. Ida Hunter, a movie extra. One more recent is Selma Saranoff, screen siren. With Gilmore live his young sister, Aileen, and their aunt, Mrs. Harriet Barnett. His best friend is Arthur Raneleigh, novelist. His closest neighbor is Holkar, a Hindu scholar. His most trusted employé is Ling, a Chinese servant. Gilmore quarrels with Selma and her suitor, Gerald Hartley, during a party at the Brownriggs', but leaves that place with them. He is shot and killed after arriving with them at his home. John B. Logan, chief of detectives, and Kent, district attorney's investigator, begin inquiry into the case. Black, a plain clothes man, assists them. Raneleigh, calling on Aileen, is surprised to see her apparently glowing with health.

INSTALLMENT V.

Deepened Mystery.

RANELEIGH crossed the room and took Aileen's hand.

"You're better my dear?"

"Yes, Ran."

Her tone belied her words and now, at close range, he saw that her bloom was rouge. She had even touched her lashes with mascara and accentuated the lovely curves of her mouth. Her dark hair, her eyebrows clipped to little crescents, showed the same solicitude. Was vanity her ruling passion? But he felt only pity as he searched her eyes. Their animation, their gay questioning of life, was gone. They burned with a feverish fire and no art could hide their shadows. Beyond doubt she had suffered. Yet she was trying to carry on. This, surely, was the meaning of her pathetic camouflage. It was her challenge to fate. He wanted to fold her in his arms and comfort her.

But one did not indulge such impulses before Mrs. Barnett. Instead, he voiced commonplaces and, getting no response from either, at last resorted desperately to the weather.

"This crisp air will brace you. There's even snow on the range. Perhaps tomorrow you'll let me drive you out along the foothills?"

"Aileen," her aunt answered for her, "is under the care of a nurse. Dr. Chirpman thought it best."

"He might approve of the drive. There will be room for the nurse. And, of course," he added, "for you."

"I have not time for scenery, Arthur."

"I'm sorry. But don't you think Aileen needs a change?"

"She will soon have a change. I'm taking her home."

"Home?" he repeated blankly. "Do you mean Iowa?"

"Certainly I mean Iowa. I know no better place for her to recover."

"But how can you leave before Tony's estate is settled?"

"My lawyer sees no reason why we should delay for that. The will has been found. Its terms are explicit. Aileen gets everything."

Raneleigh turned to the girl.

"I don't wish to be intrusive, Aileen, but are you willing to leave matters in this lawyer's hands?"

"No," she replied. "It's you who——"

"I was about to come to that," cut in Mrs. Barnett. "It seems, Arthur, that you were named sole executor."

"Tony made me his executor!"

"Yes. Without bond."

He was touched to the depths.

"I knew nothing of this. I hope that I shall prove equal to the trust."

"So do I," said Mrs. Barnett without conviction. "Anthony accumulated more property than I suspected. He also carried a large amount of insurance. It is no light responsibility that you will assume. I feel that you should seek the best advice."

THE situation plainly called for tact.

"I shall need to consult with you often," he returned promptly. "For that reason, if no other, I wish you would not hurry away."

"Anthony showed what he thought of my judgment. As for Aileen, she will give you power of attorney."

He again glanced at the girl.

"Is that what you plan to do?"

"I haven't any plans," she replied listlessly.

"And she shouldn't be bothered," said Mrs. Barnett. "Her health is the first consideration. Dr. Chirpman agrees with me entirely. It is by his orders that I am taking her away."

"Wouldn't some California resort benefit her as much as Iowa?"

"Not in my opinion."

"But you might have to return soon. If Gerald Hartley is brought to trial you both may be needed as witnesses."

"Aileen will not be needed. What does she know that is of any importance? As for me, my deposition will be all that is required."

"Are you sure of that?"

"My legal adviser is sure of it. I'd rather you wouldn't argue the matter, Arthur. It's all arranged. Our train reservations are for Monday."

"I haven't meant to annoy you," he assured her earnestly. "I'm thinking only of your best interests. Frankly, I hate to see you go."

To this she made no reply.

"Where is the will?" he asked.

"The lawyer who drew it has the original. His name is John Willis. Do you know him?"

"Slightly. We belong to the same club." He perceived that she was eager to be rid of him, but he had his own perplexities. "There's this house," he said. "What am I to do with it? And the furnishings? Will you think it over, Aileen, before you go? I shall be guided by your wishes."

The girl started up wildly.

"I don't want to go!" she cried. "I don't want to go back home! I'll die there! Don't let her make me go, Ran!"

"Aileen!" Mrs. Barnett launched the one word in a tone of such imperious authority as he had never heard from her lips. It rang like the trump of doom and her niece wilted before it.

Raneleigh, bewildered both by the frantic outburst and its swift repression, gazed from one to the other. He concluded that his knowledge of women was not profound.

"But, Mrs. Barnett," he protested, "if you're thinking of her health and she doesn't want to go——"

"She does. Before you came she hadn't a word to say against it. Can't you see the state she's in? I know what's best for her." All decision, she went quickly to the hall. "Nurse! Isn't that woman done stuffing herself? Nurse! Your patient needs you."

THE woman he had seen at the cemetery, now in white uniform, came rustling from the kitchen, and her look, no less than Mrs. Barnett's, said unmistakably that this was no place for a man. He left at once, but the girl's haunted eyes followed him, and her hysterical outcry continued to echo in his ears. Poor Aileen! Iowa, after Hollywood, would of course seem exile and exile anywhere with Aunt Harriet was a dismal prospect. Yet she was, he told himself, the only mother Aileen had known and, if there was any love in her cold, angular make-up, it surely centered on her niece. But was love which must dominate worthy of the name? Tony had not thought so. His boyish mutinies against her rule crowded Raneleigh's memories of those early days. He could not recall that Aileen, seven years the younger, ever shared these rebellions. Her nature was more pliant. She had, as a child, appeared even happy under the yoke. Well, she was far from happy now. From a city which boasted itself a metropolis she was bound for small town stagnation, to dragging days and nights, to futile brooding over Tony's tragic end and her blasted hopes. His heart ached for her. It ached for himself. He'd miss her blithe spirit, her joyous zest in life. Why must she go? Why, as the custodian of her fortune, hadn't he the power to bid her stay?

His thoughts drifted to the will. Mrs. Barnett, it was clear, had no stomach for the provision that made him executor. Yet, how could she have expected that Tony, whose ideas had clashed at all points with hers, would hand over his estate to her control? No light responsibility this, as she had austerely said. It would enmesh him in coils of red tape, involve him in business details for which he had little taste. It had its brighter side, though. He could keep in touch with Aileen and perhaps in time see his way to free her from bondage. But the will: ought he to call at once on the lawyer who had it in his keeping? Assuredly not on the very day of Tony's funeral. The man would notify him tomorrow. Or they might meet casually at the club. He headed his car toward downtown Los Angeles, but the nearer he came to his club the less was he inclined for the gossip of the lounge and coffee room, and as he issued from the Third street tunnel he turned toward the Civic center. He had decided to drop in on Kent.

The special investigator appeared, smiling, from some inner lair of the district attorney's office, led him into a vacant consulting room, pulled up chairs, and sociably offered a cigar.

"Thanks," said Raneleigh. "I prefer a pipe."

"Like Sherlock Holmes? Wasn't that one of his trademarks?"

"I believe so. However, I'm not a pipe smoker for that reason. This is a good time to explain, also, that I don't consider myself a brilliant amateur detective."

"Not your brand of fiction, eh?"

"No. I say this because you may have felt the other night that I was a bit presumptuous."

"You're wrong. I appreciated your suggestions and I'm glad you've called. I hope it means that you're going to stick around until the case is cleaned up."

"I certainly want to see it cleaned up. Tony Gilmore was my best friend. And, of course, I want to help if I can. I had thought of going to a private agency, but if you're willing I'd rather work with you. I have some acquaintance with the district attorney and will talk to him if you like, but I dare say you have the authority to decide whether I'll be in the way."

KENT threw him a keen look.

"You won't be in my way, Mr. Raneleigh. But just why did you think of going to a private agency?"

"Because I'm not convinced that Hartley is guilty. I had my doubts the night of the shooting, and as for the inquest—well, what did it prove?"

"That Saranoff is an actress, that Knowlton Boggs is an actor."

"Yes," agreed Raneligh. "And nothing else."

"I wouldn't go that far," said the investigator. "But I'll admit that we aren't quite ready to face the court. In a case of this sort we have to dig into the records of all concerned. Where there's a crime there's a motive, and the motive is usually hidden in the past. It's also a safe bet that you'll find a woman mixed up in it somewhere. The Frenchies have the right idea. At any rate, I've been getting a line on the Hunter dame, whose rent Gilmore paid for half a year."

"That was over long ago."

"I know. She got the gate when he fell for Saranoff."

"But the Saranoff affair was merely a flash in the pan. Tony has been indifferent to her for weeks."

"I know that, too. But the point is he dropped the extra girl when he took on the star. In fact," Kent added with a grin, "he seemed to be strictly monogamous."

Raneleigh smiled with him.

"Old fashioned, very."

"Quite so. Influence of Iowa, no doubt. Well, we traced Ida Hunter to a cheap hotel in Hollywood. She admitted that she'd been Gilmore's mistress, but insisted that they split by mutual consent last August and that he did the generous thing by her. She said that on the night of the murder she went to a movie with another girl and was back in her hotel at 11 o'clock. She and the girl friend gassed with the switchboard operator before she went to her room. A little after 12 she phoned the office and asked the night clerk to get her some aspirin from the drug store next door. We've checked up her story and her alibi looks watertight."

"Then can't her name be left out of the case? For the sake of the family I hope that no more scandal will be raked up than is necessary. The papers have gone the limit. I can't read them."

"No? You're missing some swell reporting. They gave us a good play this morning—a fine layout with photographs of all the principals and new diagrams showing the position of Gilmore's car and the shrubbery and hedge. Great stuff!"

"I suppose they'll exploit it for weeks."

"Till after the trial," said Kent with frank satisfaction. "That is, unless another nifty murder should break. But it would have to be a pippin to throw the Gilmore case in the shade. Yes, you'll see plenty of headlines till after the trial."

"I can't believe that Gerald will be brought to trial. I can't believe he's guilty."

"YOU'RE still from Missouri, eh! I'm afraid you're letting friendship blind your judgment, Mr. Raneleigh. If ever a man looked guilty, your Gerald did at the inquest. Even Boggs couldn't prop him up. We have a good case now and we'll soon have a better one. It will all come out in the wash. We're following up every lead."

"Including mine?"

"O, that silver flask, you mean? I hadn't forgotten it. You may have noticed at the inquest that I had Darlton ask Saranoff if she had seen it. She said no."

"But you have my word for it that Tony took it with him as well as the revolver."

Kent pulled at his cigar.

"You insist on coupling the two?"

"I know what I saw. And yet, when you searched his rooms after he was shot the flask was on his desk. How did it get there? I feel that a serious attempt should be made to find out."

"Why?"

"Because, if the flask got back, the revolver could."

The investigator eyed him a moment.

"You've done quite a job of thinking about that booze container, haven't you? Well, I'll give you my theory. Let's assume that you're not mistaken as to Gilmore's having it with him. That word 'assume' won't get your goat, I trust? Frankness is essential if we're to work together. All right. As I figure it out, there was nothing to prevent Hartley or Saranoff, acting singly or together, from planting the flask in the study after the shooting. One or the other may have taken it from Gilmore's pocket for that purpose. One or the other may have had a drink from it on the drive from the Brownrigg house. That's not impossible. You want to remember Hartley stated that after Gilmore fell to the ground he tried to give him whisky. He said it was from his own flask, but that might not be true."

"Gerald had a flask."

"Yes. But it was empty when I got a look at it. Put yourself in the place of that pair. After they saw that they had done for Gilmore they'd naturally fall into a panic. It's no joke in this state to shoot a man in cold blood. Hartley would lose his head. That's self-evident. It's also plain he'd never have had the wits to fix up a story for Saranoff to tell. But she doesn't lack nerve. As I size her up, she's as cunning as they make 'em. Couldn't she have hidden the flask and slipped it to Gilmore's desk? I wouldn't put it beyond that jane."

"It would seem more to the point to plant the revolver there."

"So it would. But the gun went into the hedge. Then the Hindu pops out and is Johnny-on-the-spot by the body, at the door, and all over the place. Saranoff could have acted on her idea as to the flask, but it wasn't possible for her to plant the gun."

"Yes. That's clear."

"And as it happens," continued Kent, "there is some evidence to sustain this theory of mine."

"Evidence?" Raneleigh was on the alert.

"Do you recall that we found the key to Gilmore's study in the outside of the door?"

"Yes."

"Well, that's where it was when Black, the first officer on the scene, entered the house. Didn't you say that Gilmore locked his door when he left with you that night?"

"That's my recollection."

"Then who put it back? I leave it to you."

"Of course you imply that it was either Saranoff or Hartley."

"Sure. Now, does that get the silver flask out of your craw?"

"Then you think that one of them could have taken the key from Tony's pocket and, in the first excitement, have gone into the house and put the flask on the desk?"

"Such things have happened."

RANELEIGH mulled this over.

"The flask was empty, you'll remember. And there was a strong odor of whisky or brandy in the ashes of the fireplace."

"The odor doesn't bother me," said Kent. "Except that, like Black, I deplore the waste of good liquor. Mightn't some one have taken a hasty drink and thrown what was left in the glass into the ashes? There was a glass handy."

"It's possible."

"I tell you it's probable. And it brings the crime straight back to those two. Here's how I reconstruct it: Gilmore ran his machine into the driveway; after a minute or two he got out and walked toward the house; he turned and said something to Saranoff, and she shot him with the gun she had snitched from his pocket and hadn't had the guts to use before."

"You think it was Saranoff—not Hartley—who did it?"

"Yes."

"Then why let her go and hold him?"

"We want to see what she'll do. Free, she'll tell a different story from what she would in jail. We may have her charged later the same as Hartley. In that case we'll get another story. If she didn't fire the shot she'll peach. Such women are yellow to the marrow."

RANELEIGH plumbed new depths in Investigator Kent. He had not thought that genial front concealed so much cold astuteness. But before he left he was to have a more startling glimpse into the chilly mechanism of his mind.

"So you are Gilmore's executor," he said.

"Yes. I was taken off my feet when I heard the news. How did you know?"

"I was with Lieutenant Emery when he found a copy of the will in Gilmore's safe deposit box at the bank. Pretty soft for the little sister, eh?"

"It makes her independent."

"She'll like that, I suppose."

"Any one would." Raneleigh hated to discuss Aileen with him.

"Was she on good terms with her brother?"

"Of course. Why do you ask?"

"I showed that copy of the will to Miss Gilmore and her aunt," said Kent slowly. "I wanted to get their reaction. Mrs. Barnett remarked that it was just what she would have expected. What the girl had expected I don't know. She went into hysterics."

Raneleigh's face burned.

"Is that so strange? She's under the doctor's care. Her aunt has even called in a nurse."

"Yes, I know. Nervous prostration or something of that sort. Did you see her when you called today?"

"Who told you I called?"

"We keep ourselves informed. Part of our routine, you understand. How did you find Miss Gilmore?"

"She seemed——" Raneleigh broke off with an incredulous stare. "Good God, man, surely you don't suspect Aileen!"

Kent dropped a fatherly hand on his shoulder.

"Don't you go in for nerves, Mr. Raneleigh," he said suavely. "Down here we look at things from a more impersonal angle. We consider all factors. If the case against Hartley and Saranoff should fall down, we'd have to seek farther. But don't disturb yourself. No doubt Miss Gilmore is all that you see in her."

Raneleigh told himself that Kent's advice was sound. By no means must he go in for nerves. He would have to accept the cold blooded point of view of a bureau for criminal investigation. But he found that he could not share this detachment. It was impossible for him to regard Aileen simply as a "factor" in a sinister puzzle, and the assumption that she was such a factor plagued him like a thorn in his flesh. It was futile to try to shrug it off. The thorn stuck. It hurt. And when, the following afternoon, Wednesday, he hurried to the Gilmore house at Kent's request, his heart was in his throat.

The investigator was pacing the veranda.

"Well, Mr. Raneleigh," he said, "things begin to look damned queer."

"Here at the house, you mean?"

"Yes. You seem winded. Did you come on the run?"

"I walked fast."

"And thought fast, too?"

"I did not know what to make of your phone call. What's happened?"

"Plenty. In the first place, the Chink has disappeared. No one has seen hide or hair of him since the morning of the inquest."

"But I can't believe Ling is crooked. Perhaps the inquest summons frightened him."

"Maybe. At any rate, he's pulled a vanishing act. We've scoured the usual haunts, but it's like hunting a pea in a bin of wheat when one of those yellow boys gets back to Chinatown. They all look alike."

"I think I'd know him in a thousand."

"Yes? Well, Mrs. Barnett, who's lived under the same roof with him, says she could never pick him out from a bunch. The old lady is terribly upset. It seems that another Chink showed up in his place yesterday afternoon with the story that he'd been sent by an agency. She refused to keep him. None of that tribe looks good to her. Not even Ling. She thinks he had a hand in the murder."

"I can't believe it."

KENT smiled.

"You're too charitable for this work. If we rule out all the people you don't suspect, we'll have to lay Gilmore's death to Providence. By the way, did I tell you that Ling said he could not remember that Gilmore took his revolver and flask that night? But let that pass. There's more doing here than the Chinaman's fade-out. The letters are gone."

"Gone!" exclaimed Raneleigh. "With the rooms locked?"

"And sealed. What's more—and worse—the door seals weren't broken."

"Were the windows sealed?"

"No. But they were all locked. They're still locked."

"But how in the name of destiny do you account for it?"

"I don't. I'm just telling you. The letters are gone. Some of them were from the Hunter girl, some from Saranoff. You saw the collection. It may have contained evidence that would blast the reputation of a woman we haven't even suspected. Perhaps a rich society dame had fallen for him."

"I doubt it. Tony was bored by people who were merely rich."

"But you don't really know. You told me he was close-mouthed about his love affairs. However, the letters are gone and the fact opens up a new line that may lead somewhere. It may give us the very clew that will solve the case."

"Have you questioned Mrs. Barnett as to the people who have been in or about the house?"

"Yes. I did not mention the theft of the letters, however."

"That was considerate of you. She has worries enough."

"I thought so," rejoined Kent blandly. "Well, Mrs. Barnett informed me that on the morning of the inquest a Jap came to wash windows. She first noticed him after he had finished with the kitchen and begun in the dining room. He told her that he had been sent by a window cleaning concern in answer to a phone call, and that Ling put him to work before he left, as he said, for the inquest. She didn't like the look of it—washing windows with Gilmore not yet buried and all that—so she dismissed him with pay for half a day. Quite a stickler for the proprieties, isn't she?"

"Always. But if you've had the house under constant surveillance, as you intimated yesterday, Mr. Kent, you must have known about this man."

"O, yes. But through some slip his story was not verified at once. We know now that no regular window cleaning company sent him."

"Could it have been Saranoff?"

"Your guess is as good as mine. Call her Madame X. At any rate, it was probably some one who wanted those letters. Black will get action on the Jap clew as soon as he's at liberty. Come inside."

RANELEIGH glanced toward the living room as they entered.

"Nobody home," said Kent laconically.

"They're all out?"

"Yes. The nurse, too. Darlton summoned the ladies to his office this afternoon."

"Why did he do that?" Raneleigh was taken aback.

"Because I asked him to do it," said the investigator. "I wanted the house cleared for a thorough search. The sergeant's been at work for an hour. Good man, Black."

The good man at that moment popped his head out of a door at the rear of the hall.

"Look here, Chief! I've got something to show you that will make your hair curl."

"The hell you have," said Kent.

Black ushered them into a large kitchen, its white enamel bearing gleaming witness to Aunt Harriet's high standards as a housekeeper, and brought up before a door.

"Here," he announced with a flourish, "is where the party that pinched the letters went through."

Kent followed the sergeant, and Raneleigh, trailing after, lost sight of both. He groped his way into a closet, quite windowless, that ran half the length of the kitchen.

"O, Raneleigh!" came Kent's muffled voice. "This is worth the price of admission."

A narrow door, two feet wide at most, swung before him and he emerged in Gilmore's bedroom. He wheeled, bewildered, but Black had shut the door behind him and he saw only the panel painting of the Chinese woman which he had always disliked.

"Pretty good, eh!" exulted the sergeant, as pleased as a child over a conjuror's trick. "The picture was put there to hide the door, and I'll say they made a neat job of it. The frame overlaps all round and goes to the floor. If I hadn't nosed to the end of that musty den, I'd have missed it."

"Let me have your flash." Kent stepped into the closet. "The door was nailed on this side, eh? And the nails were recently drawn and then replaced. You can see it with half an eye. Notice this one." He turned the powerful light on the wall. "It splintered the wood. And look at the paper. That shows."

"It didn't get by me," said Black with pardonable pride.

The walls were lined with large sheets of wrapping paper, but the sheet which had covered the door had been carefully caught back.

"Good work, Sergeant," said Kent, returning to the bedroom. "Let's hear what you did."

BLACK complied with gusto.

"I was going through the premises, according to your order, Chief, and when I struck that kitchen closet and found how deep it was, I realized that I was next to this room where Gilmore slept. I ran my hands along the wall this-a-way, hardly expecting to find anything. I guess I must have had a hunch without knowing it. Anyhow, I felt the panels of the door."

"Through the wrapping paper?"

"Yes. Those big sheets, you'll notice, cover the whole wall on the bedroom side. The wall toward the kitchen is lined with old fashioned wall paper." He turned his light into the closet. "The sheets were tacked at the edges, you see. Well, I pulled the tacks of the center sheet and there was the door. It was fastened with six tenpenny nails." He fished in his pocket and produced an envelope. "Here they are."

They examined the nails.

"Look innocent enough, don't they?" said Kent. "Go ahead, Sergeant."

"When I examined the center sheet of paper, Chief, I discovered that it had been lately taken off and put back. There's a faded mark at each edge of the paper that it overlapped. Let me show you." The three huddled in the closet while he proudly demonstrated his acuteness. "You can see that it doesn't extend by an eighth of an inch as far over as it did when it was first tacked. I haven't touched this end of the sheet. It's just as I found it."

"Good work," said Kent again, retreating to the less stuffy atmosphere of the bedroom. "Beyond a doubt the door was opened recently and the person who opened it stole the letters."

Raneleigh was clutched by a vague yet terrifying apprehension. These revelations—the disappearance of the letters, Aileen and her aunt decoyed elsewhere, the intensive search of the house, the discovery of the hidden door—what did they all mean?

Sergt. Black suggested one interpretation.

"An inside job," he pronounced with finality and satisfaction. "And if you ask me, it was the Chink who pulled it off. It stands to reason. He was Gilmore's valet and took care of his room. That Chinese picture probably means a lot more to him than it does to us. He'd look it over as he dusted it and he'd find the door behind. Then, when somebody made it worth his while, he sneaked in from the kitchen, stripped the letters, passed them over, got his money, and hit the trail for God knows where."

"That's plausible," said Kent. "Yet, on the other hand, the person who wanted those letters might have been afraid to trust a Chink. It isn't beyond the bounds of possibility that some one on the outside did the trick."

RANELEIGH saw a knowing glance pass between them and it flashed over him that these hardboiled realists suspected that one of their own guard might have taken a bribe to look the other way. But Kent was instantly off on a fresh lead.

"Mr. Raneleigh," he said, with an eager glint in his eye, "could Saranoff have known of this door?"

"I doubt it."

"She came here, didn't she?"

"Only a few times. Tony put his foot down and made her stop it. I can speak positively, because he told her in my presence to cut it out."

"Where did this occur?"

"On Hollywood boulevard. We ran across her suddenly and he snapped it out."

"He was sore?"

"Yes. Tony's sister, you see, had caught a glimpse of Saranoff as she left here the day before and was excited over it."

"Why did Saranoff's call excite Miss Gilmore?"

"She wanted to get acquainted with her. Like most girls, she's keen on movie stars."

"Isn't she a little keener than most girls?"

"Very likely. She's played a few minor parts and hoped to make a name for herself in the films."

"She's a good looker. Why didn't Gilmore push her? He must have had the pull."

"O, yes; he had the pull. But he wanted her to avoid certain associations. He hoped to launch her with the right people."

"Who wouldn't expect her to play the game, as the saying goes in Hollywood?"

"That was, no doubt, one of his reasons for caution."

"And so the launching never came off! How did she feel about it?"

"Disappointed, naturally." Raneleigh was again made aware that, in this man's eyes, Aileen was a factor to be studied. "But she thoroughly understood Tony's point of view. She knew that he'd do all he could for her when the chance came. They were devoted to each other."

KENT abandoned this digression.

"The fact remains that Saranoff did come here. And now, how about Hartley? He was in and out of the house like yourself?"

"Yes. He came often."

"Slept here now and then, perhaps after a big night?"

"Probably. He and Tony were intimate."

"Then he may have known of this door," said Kent. "And he may have told Saranoff about it."

"Since the murder? How could he?"

"Easily enough. She hasn't called at the jail, but she's seen Boggs and Boggs sees Hartley. Guard or no guard, he could slip that information to the learned counsel for the defense and believe me, the oily old shyster wouldn't stick at passing it along. I wouldn't put anything by him. Some time I'll take a day off and give you my unexpurgated opinion of criminal lawyers. Yes, she could have heard about this door, either before or since the killing. If there was anything incriminating in her letters, she'd be desperate. She'd use any means, bleed any amount, to get hold of them."

"Sure," chimed in Black. "And I'll bet my wad she hired the Chink to do it."

Kent, with a dry smile of self-criticism, dropped from the clouds of theory to the solid ground of fact.

"I'm not so reckless, Sergeant," he drawled. "But I want the Chink, and you're the man to find him."

Black nodded.

"I'll head for Chinatown as soon as I fix things as they were. Hadn't we all better vamose? It might make the ladies nervous to find us here."

"They won't even start for home until I phone," said Kent in his impotent way. "I left word to have them detained until I gave the word. I'll call the office after I date up the charming Saranoff. Better go with me, Raneleigh, and see that I don't lose my heart and head."

"I'll be outside."

Waiting on the veranda, he filled his lungs with fresh air. He had felt stifled in that house, so charged with mysteries, so ominous of ill to come. Then Kent appeared, with his lips pursed and his eyes thoughtful.

"Well, Raneleigh," he exclaimed, at once showing excitement, "they had a juicy piece of news for me at the office. Saranoff's been trying to get me on the phone. They wouldn't tell her what I was, of course, and finally she spilled her story to Darlton. It seems she had a surprise in her fan mail today. The letters to Gilmore were returned."

Art Moderne in Living Room

Distinctive Notes May Be Introduced in a Pleasing and Gratifying Manner.

By WillElla de Campi.

ACCEPTING interiors done in the "moderne" or "twentieth century" manner as pleasing and practicable does not mean that we must go the whole way and have every room in the house and every article in each room strictly carried out in this mode. It is true that moderne rooms present a distinct departure from the styles of other periods, and many of us are loath to part with the long cherished and comforting interiors to which we are accustomed. Nevertheless we wish to give our homes the necessary touches which will bring them up to the present day idea of smart distinction.

In order to obtain this end a few moderne notes may be introduced into a room of traditional character in a pleasing and most gratifying manner.

Today's first illustration shows one corner of a living room in which art moderne has been successfully used in connection with old pieces. The decorations and accessories lend a distinctly modern flavor to this ensemble, which would otherwise be very plain. Walls are done in a modern paper showing fine silver lines on a soft beige ground, so that the finished effect is of moire with a dull metallic tone. Curtains at the windows, hung in a moderne manner to produce effective cross lines, are of sheer yellow voile.

Upholstery fabrics in the room are interesting and peacefully colorful. The comfortable sofa, with its down filled cushions, is done in finely ribbed velvet in a rich plum purple. Two arm chairs are upholstered in a new mohair, with green, mauve, and several shades of tan forming a moderne pattern. A third upholstered chair is covered with heavy peach colored damask, in an irregular weave, with a satin design. Plain deep pile chenille, in a deep gray-green, covers the floor. Several small pieces of furniture and decorative accessories help to further the moderne idea. Beside the chair in the first illustration there is a delightful little moderne table, with an especially fine curve in its aluminum support. The top of black composition holds a set of jade green smoking accessories.

Figure 2 shows a group of moderne accessories which might be used for enlivening almost any room. Number 1 is a mirrored vase which holds a modern rubber plant made of lacquered tin. A pair of these on a mantel shelf or on a console table in the entrance hall would furnish a pleasing note of modernism.

Plants on the dining room window sill or in the sun room hold an added attraction when entrenched in a moderne flower box, number 2. This may be had in a choice of modern metals, with overlays and drip pan of copper and brass. It is properly constructed for growth of flowers in that the earth box has drain holes.

An ingenious metal desk lamp, which is useful as well as decorative, is shown in number 3. This is of gleaming chromium plated metal and is designed to throw plenty of light on the desk without glaring.

Mirrors of many shapes and sizes reflect the moderne atmosphere. The one in number 4 is intended for use on a dressing table, but it would be equally attractive on a console, mantel, or wall bracket. As a contrast to the gleam of the mirror the base is of black onyx.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

PERHAPS you have hesitated making a frock with circular tiers, fearing it might be too difficult. But if you won't try to hurry too much, and will handle the ruffles carefully you won't have any trouble. Pattern No. 550 is one of the smartest and prettiest frocks among the new designs, and is suitable for so many of the lovely dress materials.

The dress is cut in two pieces, front and back. Then there are the full length sleeves, the ruffles and the sash and bow at the neck. The main part of the dress should be carefully fitted, then the seams finished and pressed. As you will see, there are sunburst plaits or tucks in the center back of the neck, and also at the bottom of the neck in the front. Perforations on the pattern show exactly where these tucks are put, and they should be stitched on the wrong side, threads carefully fastened, and then well pressed. If you are using ribbon for the neck bow and tie belt of some contrasting color, you should make the rever facings of the same color. The cutting line is marked by a basting, then the facing is laid over the basting, so that the center of the facing lies on the basting thread—right side to right side. Baste right through the facing and dress on the basting line, then stitch each side of this basting, starting the seam about one-eighth of an inch from the basting, and finishing in a point just below the end. Cut on the basting line and turn the facing to the wrong side. You should baste where the turning comes so as to keep the seam exactly at the edge, then press it flat.

After the circular ruffles are seamed and pressed, pin the lower one to the edge of the dress, pinning the center back and front to the dress at the center back and front, and then pin at each side. Baste the ruffle to the dress in a right side seam, holding the ruffle towards you so as to be able to ease in any slight fullness. Baste a bias binding the color of the dress in place and stitch exactly on the edge of it. This will stitch the ruffle to the dress and at the same time stitch the binding in place on the bottom. Remove all bastings, then holding your left hand underneath the dress, lay the binding up towards the dress and baste down. Stitch on the upper edge. The upper edge of the upper tier should be clipped at close intervals and then turned in evenly. Then it should be pinned to the dress in the same way as the lower, basted and stitched once on the edge.

Black crêpe satin, used for the entire dress, and using the shiny side for the bow, sash and revers will make up smartly for every day occasions, while Canton crêpe, and crêpe Elizabeth will make up beautifully for more dressy times.

Pattern No. 3462 is for a dainty, chic frock for young girls who like sophisticated fashions. The skirt and waist are cut separately and the skirt is finished at the top with several rows of shirring. This shirred edge is set on to a hip yoke that fits quite perfectly. Capes, collars, berthas, etc., are much in vogue just now, so that the collar on this dress emphasizes the fact of its being up to the minute. The collar is irregular in shape, taking a diagonal line at the front, where it finishes with a pert bow. The pattern provides for long or short sleeves, and is suitable for wool crêpe, crêpe de Chine, voile and challis. This last named material is especially nice as it provides a little warmth and launders perfectly. Cashmere, wool crêpe, crêpe de Chine, velveteen and printed sateen and linen are smart.

Pattern No. 2641 expresses slender, straight lines in a most becoming way, with the pretty collar of a contrasting color, the manner of closing, the jabot frill, and the tucks at each front shoulder. Grouped plaits in the skirt lengthen its line and add flare when in motion, otherwise the dress hangs perfectly straight. The long, dart fitted sleeves are finished with cuffs matching the material used in the collar. The dress shouldn't be at all difficult to cut and make, particularly for those who are willing to go slowly and carefully. This really is much easier than hurrying and making mistakes and ripping out your work.

Navy blue silk crêpe flecked with white dots, with white silk crêpe contrast, wool jersey in flattering beige shade with matching faille silk crêpe, and tiny checked sheer tweed in wood tones are pleasing suggestions.

3462—Junior girl's dress. Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 8 requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material.

2641—Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 40 inch material with ½ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

A STORY IN SKELETON FORM

Only a doctor knows what a laxative should be

YOU don't want to use a laxative every day. Nor once a week. This should not be necessary. And it never would be required if all of us would learn the danger that lies in a careless selection of laxatives.

By taking the first thing that comes to mind when bad breath, headaches, dizziness, nausea, biliousness, gas on stomach or bowels, feverishness, lack of appetite or energy warns of sluggish bowels, we risk forming an unhealthful habit.

Rely on a doctor's judgment in choosing your laxative. Here's one made from the prescription of a specialist in bowel and stomach disorders. Its originator tried it in thousands of cases. He found it safe for women, children and old folks; yet thoroughly effective for the most robust man. There were so many calls for this prescription and its fame spread so rapidly that druggists began to fill it in quantities; kept it ready for calls. Now Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is prepared from the freshest herbs and other pure ingredients under ideal laboratory conditions. You can get a generous bottle from any drug store.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a real corrective of constipation. This has been proved by millions. That's why it is the world's most popular laxative, today!

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Tempting Menus for the Week

By Jane Eddington

Throughout the Ages Pomegranates Have Been Famed Both as a Healing Fruit and Source of Beverages

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

THE pomegranate has had decorative value since Solomon made the temple. You can read about the fact that the pillars were decorated with network and pomegranates in the story of the fall of the temple, which is given in II Kings 25:17, but just read the whole chapter for your entertainment, if for nothing else, and to learn that the Chaldeans when they destroyed the temple and carried its brasses to Babylon took along the pots and shovels and spoons and fire pans and basins, the latter of gold. In the Middle Ages the decorations in the highly illuminated manuscripts were of pomegranate and probably we can find the pomegranate in the oldest purely decorative forms existent. And lingering in that period for a little we find that the "hide" or rind, of this apple, because it was as hard as leather, was called Sidium from the fields of Sidon, where formerly the pomegranate grew in great abundance. We usually hear of Tyre and Sidon in some less flowery sense than is involved here.

Grenadine.

It is quite a jump from Tyre, and Sidon, and Solomon, up to modern French cookery, but in its practices with the pomegranate there have been some entertaining facts. In their use the French dropped off the "pome," which means apple—the pomegranate is often called a "seeded apple"—and by a perfectly legitimate law of the language used d instead of t to get the name "grenades" for this fruit, and then we have the well known sirup called grenadine, a sirup made of the pomegranate juice, as perhaps you have not guessed. Every old time barkeeper had his bottle of grenadine at hand.

It may be a guess, but it seems from a collection of facts to be true, that the hand grenade of war time, from which originated the grenadiers, whom today we know more about by seeing them in light opera than anywhere else, was made on the model of the pomegranate. It had its shape and the hide, as it were, was full of explosives corresponding in size, we guess, to the seed of the pomegranate. A famous French cook made a sort of culinary satire on the grenade in the way of a sweet croquette served with cherry sauce. And this is not all that we could dig out about this subject in French uses.

As for the grenadine sirup, most people think it insipid, and undoubtedly its main use has been to color drinks, but in making it we may judge from the old recipe a little cochineal coloring is often used to intensify its shades.

Pomegranate Sirup.

A recipe for pomegranate sirup by a tavern chef of 1833 in London reads: "Take five very ripe large pomegranates, extract the seeds which must be very red; crush and put them into a skillet with half a pint of water; set them on the fire till soft, and then squeeze through a new coarse cloth, clarify one and one-half pounds of sugar and boil it to souffé; then add the juice, boil them together to the usual consistence of syrup. It must not be bottled until quite cold. This number of pomegranates will yield a quart of syrup."

This is a perfectly good recipe, as you see. The "souffé" interpreted meant the seventh degree of sugar, but the test was one we do not endorse today, with our candy thermometers serving us. In fact, blowing on any kind of food when we are cooking it, or on the utensil we are to use further in the business has sometime since been discredited. The point called souffié was discovered by taking some of the cooking sugar up on a skimmer, blowing through it and having what were called small sparks of sugar fly from it.

This old cook gave also a recipe for pomegranate jelly and for a cake of dried fruit, or a confection, which is a long recipe about combining this juice with apples and an orange and a lemon, coloring the whole with cochineal, ultimately getting a sort of Turkish paste.

Pomegranate Juice.

There are any number of references we might find in different books which show that people have eaten pomegranates out of hand, just as they eat an apple, and I have seen people in Hebrew markets where, at this season you may literally see a cartload of pomegranates, buy them and eat them in this fashion.

An Englishman writing of pomegranates, just two or three years ago, said: "Pomegranates are picturesque in growth, and quench one's thirst rather messily on a hot dusty day in the south with a profusion of sticky juice tasting like pear drops." Being a high and mighty Englishman, this one does not care for many things, discredits the tomato, for instance, entirely, and says of the pomegranate it is not worth eating. However, many other people speak of it as having great succulence, but from what we can find out we imagine this depends upon whether it's truly ripe or what the species is. An old book says there are three kinds and a childish description of this fruit, or one prepared for children it would be better to say, which has an illuminating picture of how to serve it, says: "The pulp is sweet, delicate and very cooling." In the picture there is a whole pomegranate, one cut in half from the blossom end to the stem end, but the really suggestive part of the picture is a crosswise slice. To serve it in this fashion in crosswise slices is unusual, and the most attractive to our mind of any way it can be served.

Pomegranate Punch.

The learned Lemery, in "A Treatise of all Sorts of Foods, also of Drink," etc., has some wonderfully illuminating remarks about pomegranates. Lemery wrote this book over two hundred years ago. One paragraph begins: "Pomegranates are Fruits well known and made use of more for Pleasure and to create an Appetite than for Food; the Difference of Taste we find between the three Kinds of Pomegranates, arises in those that are sweet from the oily Parts, being they are in greater Plenty than the salt ones, from which last they take away all their Acidity . . ."

erence to the different qualities and the third sort is described as vinous with a sweet and pungent taste, enough to "tickle the little nervous fibers of the tongue with their subtler uses."

Some people maintain that the pomegranate has a sort of claret flavor or that their juice is at any rate reminiscent of that flavor, and says: "An old way of preparing them was to remove the outside skin, carefully take out all the seeds, rejecting all the skin that divides the sections, then heaping the seeds in a dish mixed with finely chopped ice."

Pomegranate Seeds on Salad.

Since California has given us such a renaissance of pomegranates, as it were, the rosy seeds of this fruit have been exceedingly popular as a garnish for a fruit salad, which, if we know the history of it, is consistent with the fact that the pomegranate has been used in no end of decorative ways beginning at least with Solomon. It is possible to follow the fact that it has been considered an "edible bouquet" since almost the time of Aristotle.

California Pomegranates.

California has done a great deal to produce a pomegranate renaissance, and some of the professors of the fruit products laboratory of the University of California have prepared interesting items in reference to the uses of its juices in cookery and in confections. It is entertaining to find that they recommend it to fruit dealers as attracting attention to fruit displays. The fruit dealers, perhaps without any coaching, recognize its attractiveness even as Solomon did, and at this season there is hardly a fruit display in which we will not find some pomegranates.

Pomegranate Cookery.

In the Encyclopedia of Cookery the compote of pomgranates is described as follows: "Cut a small circle out of the skins of five or six pomegranates, and with the point of a sharp knife, cut them down to size, take out the pips without injuring them, put them into a compote dish, pour over some syrup flavored with maraschino or orange juice, and serve."

Other recipes given in this encyclopedia are pomegranate comfits [this is the old recipe mentioned above, which is a compound of apples, oranges and lemons], pomegranate jelly, pomegranate syrup, pomegranate water, pomegranate water ice, stewed pomegranates.

It has always been entertaining to me that the little prince in Kipling's novel, "The Naulahka," wanted pomegranate sherbet and his nurse made him this drink, mixing sugar and milk and sirup "with the plump red seeds."

In the introduction to the recipes in the encyclopedia it says: "The name signifies an apple with many grains, in consequence of the interior of the fruit being made up of a quantity of grains or seeds, packed closely and embedded in a very delicious red pulp. The rind is tough and leathery, of a golden brown color, tinged with red; and as it contains a very large proportion of tannin is used for curing skins, especially those known as Morocco leather."

Medical Uses of Pomegranates.

The pomegranate was anciently used for other sorts of curing, as the following description and many others show. This description is about one hundred years old: "A fruit common in most southern countries, about the size of an orange, but with a hard shell. The juice of the pomegranate has a very pleasant flavor between acid and sweet, and is used diluted with water as a refreshing beverage. The grated rind of the pomegranate is said to have been found a soverign remedy for diarrhoea and dysentery when all other things have failed."

But all the stringy part of the pomegranate is astringent, which is one objection to eating it, and I am glad to mention this fact of the grating of the rind because people have written to me about this very thing, its curative value.

In the Lemery—Lemery was a great fashion of his day—there are listed a great number of curative uses for pomegranates. It claims that its stops coughs, hinders vomiting and diarrhoea, creates an appetite—this justifies its use at the beginning of the meal. It keeps down the quality which makes people angry, allays fever and at the end of the list it says: "Sick persons are ordered to suck the grains of them." But the sweet ones are ordered and it tells why the acid ones are injurious. There is a great deal more of the ancient medical technique, but the final statement is that the sweet and vinous pomegranates are suited to every age and constitution, provided they are moderately used. The sharp ones, however, are wholesome in hot weather "for young bilious People"; but they are "hateful to old Folks, because they bind up and prick the Breast and make those Persons to breathe more difficultly, who do it only with Pain enough."

Lemery gives his general descriptions first and then he goes over all the points again under the subject of "remarks," and gives most entertaining Latin words connected with them and mentions how they grow in great plenty in the kingdom of Granada, in Spain, which makes us wonder if Granada was not named for the pomegranate. One encyclopedia says it is but the Britannica thinks it doubtful although this fruit grows in perfusion round about.

Paradisical Pomegranates.

In some ancient Arabic literature it is claimed that the pomegranate was from paradise and that one Hosein was cured of his disease by the odor alone, rising up immediately, recovered and in full strength. This fact has been put into ancient verse in which "the healing fruit" is merely mentioned, and the note reads: "When Hosein, the son of Ali, was sick of a grevious disorder, he longed for a pomegranate, though that fruit was not then in season. All went out, and diligently inquiring, found a single one in the possession of a Jew. As he returned with it, a sick man met him and begged half the pomegranate, saying it would restore his health. Ali gave him half, and when he had eaten it, the man requested he would give him the other half, the sooner to complete his recovery. Ali benignantly complied, returned to his son, and told him what had happened, and Hosein approved of what his father had done.

"Immediately behold a miracle! as they were talking together, the door was gently knocked at. He ordered the woman servant to go there, and she found a man, of all men the most beautiful, who had a plate in his hand, covered with green silk, in which were ten pomegranates. The woman was astonished at the beauty of the man and of the pomegranates, and she took one of them and hid it, and carried the other nine to Ali, who kissed the present. When he had counted them, he found that one was wanting, and said so to the servant; she confessed that she had taken it on account of its excellence, and Ali gave her her liberty. The pomegranates were from paradise; Hosein was cured of his disease only by their odor, and rose up immediately, recovered, and in full strength."—Maracci.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde

If You Are Accustomed to Sewing Make Husband or Brother Six Shirts for Christmas

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly of making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

HAVE you ever thought of making a Christmas gift of six shirts of your own handiwork for your husband or brother? If you are accustomed to sewing you will find it fascinating work and not too difficult. Also, if you begin on this work now you won't feel hurried. White mercerized cotton broadcloth is nice for this purpose, but colors are also used, so it will be a matter of choosing which will be best liked.

Besides the broadcloth you will need about one-half yard of coarse muslin for the strips down each front inside the hems, and some Indian Head muslin for the cuff interlining. Both these muslins should be thoroughly shrunken and smoothly ironed before being cut into. Also shrink the shirt material that is used for the cuffs. The neckbands can be bought ready to put on, but if the shirts are to have collars attached you will doubtless find a collar pattern included in the shirt pattern.

Either rip up an old shirt that is right or compare the measurements of a perfect garment with the pattern you propose to use. It will be wise to buy enough material for extra cuffs for each shirt, as they give out first.

Go slowly with the cutting and be sure to follow directions as to how each piece is to be laid on the material.

Tear a piece of muslin about three inches wide and fold down the center so that the raw edges come together. It should be about seventeen inches long. Turn in the bottom edge and lay on the right side of the right front so that the raw edge comes to the line where the front of the shirt is to be turned to the wrong side in a hem. Stitch in a narrow seam, overcast and turn to the wrong side. Stitch close to the edge and leave the fold edge alone. Continue with a narrow hem down the front, around the bottom and up to the notch in the side, showing where the underarm seam is to end.

Where this hem goes around curves, hem by hand instead of basting, using the point of the needle to make the curved hem smooth. Then the stitching can be done right through the hemming at these points. Hem both fronts, first laying the box plait down the right side of the left front, and hem the sides across the back and up the sides to the notches. Men's shirts button from left to right.

Next the under yoke section is basted and stitched to the back. Put together according to the notches, gathering the slight fullness in the shirt at either side. Lay the shirt on a board or table, and turning in the other yoke section across the bottom lay it in place on the other yoke piece, baste down across the bottom and stitch twice across the lower edge.

The shoulder seams are put together next, first taking a right side seam, and stitching the front to the under yoke section. Then, turning in the shoulder seam of the outer yoke piece, baste and stitch this down over the under seam, stitching first close to the edge, and the second time about one-quarter inch above.

Pin the armholes of the shirt together and clip the edges all around, making them not deeper than one scant quarter inch. The clipped edges are then in towards the wrong side just beyond the clips.

The next step is to finish the opening in each sleeve, following the pattern directions carefully. Crease or trace a line around the top of each sleeve about three-quarters of an inch from the edge; then pin the armhole of the shirt in place on the sleeve, pinning first at each end and then in the center, and then pin carefully in between. The turned in edge of the armhole is pinned so it comes to the traced line on the sleeve. The shirt is then turned to the wrong side and the sleeve edge turned in and basted. The sleeve is stitched to the shirt, stitching on both turned in edges.

Baste and stitch the under arm and sleeve seams together, and finish with a felled seam. Then a gusset should be set in at the bottom of each underarm seam. Putting the cuffs and neckband or collar on should not be difficult.

The addition of a monogram or three small initials on the outside of the left sleeve, midway between the elbow and cuff will add much to each shirt.

AS THE CLOCK STRUCK TWELVE

This is lovely Marion Lee, now delighting Broadway theatre-goers in "My Girl Friday." She is wearing the PLAIN BOB. A few minutes of daily care keeps her hair soft, lovely, abundant.

The easy way to have soft, wavy, gleaming hair . . .

THE modern sculptured bobs do wonders to bring out your personality. But, like other present-day modes of arranging the hair, they call attention to it. That's why it's so important nowadays to keep your hair soft, lustrous, abundant.

The easiest and quickest way to give new lustre and color to hair, which has begun to look dull and lifeless, is with Danderine. And it makes the hair softer, easier to arrange; holds it in place. Here's all you do! Each time you use your brush just put a little Danderine on it. It removes the oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color; gives it more gloss than brilliantine. Waves "set" with it stay in longer.

Danderine dissolves the crust of dandruff; puts the scalp in the pink of condition. It stops falling hair. A small bottle is enough to show its merit. Start on it tonight.

Best Parties

Tell us about the nicest party you ever attended and we'll pay $1 for each letter printed. Address Parties, Chicago Tribune.

When Girls Were Boys.

Perhaps it shouldn't be called a party, but before the evening was over we decided we had had more fun than any party ever afforded. It was leap year and it seemed only sportsmanlike to "throw" a party for our regular boy friends. We casually mentioned it when the whole crowd was together one night, and the fellows stumped us to take them out just for an ordinary date, so the wager was on.

We each called our respectives a couple of days ahead to find out if they would be busy Wednesday night, and when the evening came we called them again to make sure they hadn't forgotten. To mimic them as closely as possible, we arrived at their homes about half an hour late, and allowed ourselves to be entertained in the living room by the rest of the family until "the loved one" had finished primping. We each had the "family's" car, and met downtown and decided which was the largest and used that one.

After driving around town awhile, buying them coca colas and cigarettes, and telling them how lovely they looked that evening, we took them to a show. This all sounds serious when I write it, but you can imagine how funny the fellows felt when people watched girls buying tickets for their B.F.'s, and all the jokes that passed between us. After the show we proceeded to a chop suey house and, of course, the fellows tried to worry us out of our shoes ordering the biggest things on the menu, but after a little (shall I call it) psychological strategy, we tamed down their appetites and amidst a lot of good natured banter our supper was hilariously enjoyed. The fellows said they wished the years took a leap more often.

Sad to relate, girls will be girls; we didn't finish the evening as planned—we had to break down and let the fellows take us home. L. L.

A Bowery Party.

The best and most thrilling party that I ever attended was a bowery party. Every one arrived looking exceedingly handsome in their bowery outfits. The room where we were to dance was decorated to resemble an old saloon. At one end of the room there was an old bar with two aproned bartenders serving punch.

The party was in full swing when the police wagon drew up to the door and stopped. Six husky policemen and a plain clothed detective entered. They immediately forbade any one to leave the house. They walked up to the bar, smelled and tasted the punch. Amid wild protest they threw out a bowl of punch and seized the two bartenders.

Excitement ran high after they drove away, and the party continued to a successful end. It was not until the next day that we learned that the police had been coaxed to pull this little stunt. M. M. M.

Going Indian for a Night.

The most interesting party I ever attended was given by a friend in late October when she used autumn leaves and columbine for decoration, and invited us all to come in Indian costumes.

A wigwam stood in the center of the room, in front of which an old chief sat to welcome us. We sat around in a circle, smoked the peace pipe and performed several interesting Indian rites. After this we danced, led by the chief and his family, around a mock fire.

The latter part of the evening was spent in playing competitive games between the Pueblos and Navajos into which groups the company was divided. Refreshments were served Indian fashion and each guest was given a tiny totem pole as a favor.

A Balloon Full of Knocks.

It was held at mother Johnson's, whose chicken dinners were known for miles around. The long table was decorated with our class colors and over the center hung one of those long green melon balloons which was painted to look like a dirigible, with red numerals on it and red cords holding a basket filled with what looked like small sandbags. A long red cord was tied to each bag and extended over the edge of the basket to the places at the table where they ended at the place cards.

During the dinner the hostess rose and announced that before they could launch the new dirigible and speed it on its way, they must cast off its ballast, so in turn each guest was told to pull out his or her own bag. This was found to contain some "knock," a pet fault, represented by some funny little gift. J. L.

A Sleighing Party.

In 1898 we were given a sleighing party by the senior members of our club. Twenty young couples occupied two long sleighs driven by six white horses. The snow had newly fallen and was deep and soft. The moon did its share and came out clear and beautiful. We washed each others' faces in the snow and pelted snowballs at every passerby, who only joined in our merriment. At the end of our journey we were ushered into a prettily lighted dining room where a luxurious repast was awaiting us, after which we repaired to the dance hall and enjoyed ourselves to the wee small hours of the morning. The home journey was quite as delightful and I often speak of the incident to my young friends and wish they had the opportunity to add such an experience to their many pleasures. F. R.

My Greatest Thrill

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

A Floating Bridge.

We were on our way to a business women's convention at New Orleans. We had lost time, so instead of stopping off at Hammond, La., we decided to get on to the convention city that night, despite the fact that we had been warned to be careful, as the summer rains had swollen the streams and bridges were out in some places.

What a ride! It was the darkest night of the year—so it seemed. Not a car did we meet. On we went over that strange, spooky road, bordered on one side by an evil smelling swamp, in which the frogs croaked monotonously, on the other by a tangle of trees, bush, and vines.

In one place the streams had backed up and deep water covered either side of the road for a distance of about half a mile. Our nerves were on edge. The darkness, the loneliness was beginning to take effect. Suddenly, out of the night loomed two red lights. A sign read: "Danger. Bridge out. Travel over floating bridge at your own risk."

We were too frightened to turn back. It was nearly 1 o'clock, and heaven only knows what we'd meet on the road to Hammond. So, gathering up our courage, we decided to push on. Slowly we drove down the bank on to the floating bridge. The front wheels were on, then the whole car, and we could feel the bridge sway and sink! Our driver stepped on the gas, we shot over the bridge, up on the opposite bank. The worst scare, the greatest thrill I ever had was over. A. B.

A Lake Thrill.

It was on our honeymoon. We were camping on a chain of lakes in northern Wisconsin. My husband had arisen at dawn to go fishing so when I awoke a few hours later I decided to take a little dip before preparing breakfast.

Upon reaching the beach I discovered that my husband was fishing about a half a mile out in the lake so I conceived the bright idea of swimming out to him.

It was early in the season and I had not been swimming many times so when I reached about half way I began to tire. I turned over on my back to rest myself so I could go on. I looked in front of me and in back of me and it seemed a long way to the boat, a long way back to shore and there was not another soul on the lake. I began to get panicky and simply couldn't breathe. I shouted for my husband to come and meet me. It seemed to me that it took many minutes for him to set his poles in the boat and pull up his anchor. I shouted "hurry!" and he set out full speed ahead.

When he reached me I knew by the look on his face that it had been as great a thrill for him as it had been for me. N. D. B.

A Hitch-Hiking Thrill.

My greatest thrill was a hitch-hike I took with three other girls from Chicago to New York City via Niagara Falls and Canada and return to Chicago via Philadelphia, Washington, and Baltimore. The uncertainty of that expedition, which consumed two weeks' time, during which period none of us spent a penny on transportation, kept us thrilled, as did also the beautiful scenery all along the way. On the same highway we were helped along our way by lifts from judges and rum runners; collegians driving speed cars and staid, conservative grandfathers who never drove any faster than fifteen miles an hour; natives of the state and fellow travelers; drivers on business and drivers pleasure bent—our companions kept changing almost as much as did the landscape scenery. What impressed us most, perhaps, was the generosity of the people we encountered. These two weeks was judged by all of us to be the most thrilling, the happiest, and the most educational vacation we had ever had. J. S.

Reflected Glory.

My grandfather was a sea captain and we grandchildren had many a thrill listening to the tales of the shipwrecks that he went through. At one time he commanded a vessel from a distant port and was sailing near his home port when a terrific storm arose. Seven ships tried to make the harbor and were dashed to pieces on the rocks.

The coast guards were burning signals for the vessels to stand out to sea when they saw a strange vessel coming in. They could not understand why their signals were disregarded, but knew that the captain must know the harbor by the way that the ship tacked around the buoys. She reached the pier, but the ice coated line snapped like glass as she was tying up and she swung up on to the sands, unharmed. What a thrill, then, to know that our grandfather was the only captain who brought his ship in safely in that terrible storm! A. M. G.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

A Mistaken Idea.

My gentleman friend was teaching in a high school in a small town some distance from my home. When the annual party of the school took place, I was invited to attend as his guest, which invitation I accepted. As I arrived in the afternoon of the appointed day, and since I was a stranger there, we spent most of the remaining time until the party should begin in each other's company.

The evening was a very enjoyable one, and we were all urged to join in one more game before leaving. Every one was requested to join hands and walk around in a circle, and the persons touched by the one who had been appointed "it" were to step into the center of the circle. I had expected some sort of prank before the evening was over, but my embarrassment can easily be imagined when my friend and I stepped into the ring and were immediately showered with rice, and some others of the party came in from another room beating on pans with the usual charivari procedure. They had somehow gotten the mistaken idea that we had been married that afternoon, and my friend had a most embarrassing time explaining that it was a mistake. H. M.

Peaceful Chicago.

A friend of mine, a farmer's wife, who was visiting me recently and we were sitting one morning discussing Chicago's gangsters and Chicago's reputation in other cities, etc. I was belittling the crime situation and was saying that peaceable citizens living in good neighborhoods were as far removed from the criminals as she was on her farm. I hadn't finished my speech when I heard a commotion outside and across the street. A large crowd was milling around and showing signs of great excitement. I then noticed three touring cars. This meant nothing to my friend, but much to me. Briefly, we were witnessing the capture of one of Chicago's premier gunmen, who for some time had been occupying a flat across the street from us.

Two nights later we were awakened by six sharp shots fired directly under our window. Investigation revealed four detectives, as the shooters. We saw the criminal run down the alley. We never found out what it was all about. My friend was thrilled. She had the time of her life, but she couldn't resist a parting shot at me when she was leaving for home, about the relative peace of our neighborhood and her farm home. H. M. W.

The Dress Did It.

I was invited to a wedding in the country, and as it was August and quite warm, I wore a peach colored sleeveless dress and white georgette coat. Arriving at the home, I found that the bride and her attendant, anticipating fall, wore gowns of blue silk. All the guests were garbed in dark colors. I felt out of place, but the worst was to come.

After the big breakfast we were gathered in the parlor, talking. The groom's cousin from out west, who arrived too late for the wedding, came into the room. He looked us all over, then, without waiting for introductions, said in a great, booming voice: "Isn't there an old custom about kissing the bride?"

And without further ado, he walked right over to me, kissed me loudly and forcefully. My cheeks still burn when I think of the look the bride gave me. A. C. B.

Answers to Love Queries - - - - - By Doris Blake

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Mark Time for a While.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a fellow but I can't go out with him because my parents won't let me. What shall I do? BABY FACE."

Ask him to wait until you have your parents' consent to go out with boys, Baby Face.

Give Him Time.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend and I have had a spat and he won't listen to an explanation. Please advise. CHRISTINA."

Give him time to get over his "mad" and then offer your explanation.

Must Have Confidence.

"Dear Miss Blake: The fellow I love told me he didn't trust me and never would. Please advise. JEAN."

Unless he has perfect confidence in you it would be advisable to discontinue your friendship.

Let Them Go.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I've been going with doesn't speak to me. What should I do? "BROKENHEARTED."

When they stop speaking without a reason, it's advisable to let them go their way. There are others to take his place.

It's Stubbornness.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a certain young lady with whom I would like to go out. We had an argument and broke off. I have too much pride to ask her to go out again. SID."

It's not pride so much as stubbornness that keeps you from going to her.

Don't Feel Flattered.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm sure my boy friend likes me, but he calls me names and makes fun of me. Please advise. MILDRED."

I shouldn't be flattered with such attention. It's not the customary way of showing fondness for a girl.

Don't Be Too Good-Natured.

"Dear Miss Blake: My boy friend and I always quarrel and I'm the one to give in. Please tell me what to do? ANNA."

There's such a thing as being too good natured. He should be man enough to admit his faults.

Just Ask Her.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have a girl friend in night school whom I should like to take out, but I don't know how to go about asking her. JOHN."

Ask if you may see her home from school, and then before leaving extend your invitation.

Better Not.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would it be right to give a monogrammed handkerchief to an old boy friend of mine if I am engaged to another fellow? "THELMA."

If you are engaged, save your gifts for your fiancé.

Make Another Effort.

"Dear Miss Blake: I can't find any work and the girl I love seems to be losing interest in me. What shall I do? DAN."

You can hardly blame the girl. Make an extra effort or you'll lose her.

By May Tinee.

GOOD morning!

YOU: "HOW do you like Lenore Ulric in the movies?"

ME (I): "A lot. BUT—I don't think the rôle she has in 'Frozen Justice' suits her right down to the ground. You may, perhaps, get a different impression."

"Frozen Justice" is a melodrama of the frozen north. It starts in an Eskimo village, carries its characters to Nome (the Nome of '99), and ends in the cold white wastes that stretch between.

Heroine Is Half 'n' Half.

The heroine (Miss Ulric) is a half breed—mother Eskimo, father white. She, Talu, wife of a stalwart young Eskimo chief, is very unhappy, for the blood of her father causes her to recoil from her husband's people and customs. She spends the long days while he is away on hunting trips admiring her beautiful body, reminiscing wistfully over the stories told her by a traveling painter's wife about the glories of the land of her father and the loveliness of its gently bred girls and dreaming of a time when perhaps she may dress and dance and laugh as white women do.

You meet her thus—dreaming—enveloped in a swath of black lace given her by the painter's wife, through which her white body gleams softly. Her husband has been away a long time and she is very lonely.

"You are beautiful!" a little handmaiden crouching nearby says, shyly.

"What is the use of being beautiful when there is no man to see you?" queries, sadly, the chieftain's wife. (No, I have no idea where she, her husband, and all the Eskimos hereabout learned to speak English as well as they do. Let's not be too critical and suppose it was a gift.)

Shortly after Lanak and his followers return from the trip just mentioned a boat comes to anchor.

Traders! White traders.

Traders are a disrupting element. They bamboozle and seduce the women of the village, who give them valuable furs in exchange for beads and soap, mosquito netting, and kisses. No use to argue with the ladies. They slip away to the white men while their lords are busy laying down laws about what shall happen to their fair ones if the fair ones do even as their masters think (and rightly) they are going so do. Slip away and make large and expensive whoopee.

Hoping to See Her Father.

The chieftain's wife, hearing of the boat's arrival, hurries down to see captain and crew. She's always hoping her father will come for her some day.

The captain of this trading vessel is a scoundrel deep and dark-dyed. He means right by no woman. Like master, like crew. The lot of them stage a party on the boat that night for the young femmes of the village—the latter to make a getaway while the men are busy in the—salt house, I believe it is—making some sort of a manifestation to their gods with the object of keeping away the storm that is in the offing.

The party ends in disaster and death. Talu, whipped by her husband, hisses out at him the one word, "Eskimo" and appeals to the captain, who, with his mate, Duke, has escaped being crushed by the ice that has demolished the ship, to take her with him to the white man's land.

His obligee, after shooting Lanak and leaving him dead, as he supposes, and we next meet Talu in Nome, where she sings in a dance hall and shrinks from the avid pawings of the captain, whom she loathes.

A Hard Life.

The men of the post are crazy for her, but the dance hall girls hate her fiercely. She "spoils business" and then, besides, she is a half-breed!

Poor Talu! So this is the land of her father! Never in the igloo with her adoring chieftain had she experienced such unhappiness as this . . . ! There seems no place in the world for her. . . .

Duke, the mate, is her only friend. He manages the joint where she is incarcerated. He loves her truly and begs her to leave the horrid captain and become his. But by this time Talu has only one idea—to get back to the Eskimo village and Lanak—if he lives.

"All right, I'll take you," Duke says with a deep sigh, looking twice as sad as ugly—which is an accomplishment for Mr. Wolheim. But he has reckoned without the demon captain. . . .

Ends in Tragedy.

I'm going to tell you that the picture ends in tragedy, but neither how, when nor where. I guess, though, after all, that's the only way the piece could have ended happily . . . for poor Talu.

The picture's big wallops are its snow, ice and storm stuff and the

THE MYSTERIES OF RADIO - - - -

By Robert Benchley

Illustrations by John T. McCutcheon

Thought of Air Full of Sounds Haunts Author

I WOULDN'T be surprised if I knew less about radio than any one in the world, and that is no faint praise. There may be some things, like horseshoeing and putting little slips in bottles, which are also closed books to me, but I have a feeling that if some one were to be very patient and explain the principles to me I might be able to get the hang of it. But I don't have any such feeling about radio. A radio expert could come and live with me for two years, and be just as kind and gentle and explicit as a radio expert could be, and yet it would do no good. I simply never could understand it; so there is no good in teasing me to try.

As a matter of fact, I was still wrestling with the principle of the telephone when radio came along, and was still a long way from having mastered it. I knew that I could go to a mouthpiece and say a number into it and get another number, but I was not privy to the means by which this miracle was accomplished. Finally I gave up trying to figure it out, as the telephone company seemed to be getting along all right with it, and it was evident from the condition my own affairs were getting in that there were other things about which I had much better be worrying. And then came radio to confuse me further.

Of course, I know all about the fact that if you toss a stone into a pond it will send out concentric circles which reach to the shores. Everybody pulls that one when you ask them how sound is transmitted through the air. If I have been told about tossing a stone in a pond once I have been told it five hundred times. I have even gone out and done it myself, but I guess that I didn't have the knack, for the concentric circles ran for only about two feet and then disappeared.

But the stone in pond explanation is really no explanation at all, for there you have at least the stone and the pond to work with, whereas in radio you have nothing, absolutely nothing. If people tell me about the stone in the pond once again I shall begin to think that it is a gag worked up by those who don't understand the thing either. They have got to be more explicit if they want me to understand. Perhaps they don't care. I almost think that nobody cares whether I am enlightened or not. Certainly nobody seems to be putting himself out to help me. (I am sorry if I sound bitter about the thing, but I have stood it just about as long as I can.)

It simply makes a mockery of privacy, that's all it does.

He got another load of that for half an hour, but by this time the rest of the family had tiptoed out of the room.

Somebody once did say something which made a great impression on me, but which I can hardly believe. He said that the air had always been full of these sounds, and that all the radio did was to give us some means of catching them. This is a horrible thought. To think that the room in which the Declaration of Independence was signed would have, by the mere installation of radio, been echoing with the strains of something corresponding to "I Kiss Your Hand, Madame," or that Robert and Elizabeth Browning held hands in a chamber which was at that very moment teeming with unheard syllables explaining how to make bran muffins! Reason totters at the thought, and I mention the supposition here only to show how absurd the whole thing is.

But the suggestion is a haunting one, even though you, as I have done, discard it as impractical. If the air has always been full of music and voices which we have only just recently learned to make audible, what else might it not be full of right now which, perhaps in a hundred years, will also be dragged out into the light? If by the installation of a microphone at the other end and a receiving set at my end I learn that my room has all the time been full of noises made by the Little Gypsy Robber Sponge quartet over in Newark or a man employed by some slipper concern in Michigan, why isn't it possible that it is also full of things I don't know about, such as the spirits of the men who murdered the little princes in the tower, or perhaps a couple of Borgias? It simply makes a mockery of privacy, that's all it does. A man ought to have some place where he can go and be alone without feeling that he may be breathing in a lot of strangers and what nots.

I will even concede that the air of out of doors may be full of sound waves, but you can't make me believe that they can get through the walls of great big houses. They might get through the walls of a summer hotel, or even come through an open front door and work their way upstairs. I will even go so far as to recognize the possibility of something erected on a roof catching them and bringing them down into the living room to disturb daddy when he is trying to take a nap. But to ask me to believe that a box which has no connection at all with the outside can be carried about a house which is securely locked, and still keep on playing sounds which have pushed their way through stone walls, is just a little too much. For this reason I have refused to turn on my portable radio set which was given to me on my birthday. I will not allow myself to be made a party to any such chicanery.

My biggest argument that the whole thing is a fake is the quality of the stuff that comes out of the air. It is the same thing which makes me distrust spiritualism—the quality of the material offered us from the spirit world. I am really a very simple minded man at heart and will believe most anything as long as the person who tells me has a pleasant face. I might very easily be won over to spiritualism, just as I have in the past been won over to Buddhism, osteopathy, and Swedish bread. But when I go into a darkened room with the expectation of hearing something out of the great unknown which will help clear up this mystery of life and death and find out merely that the uncle of some person in the room is still having that trouble with his hip which he had before he died, or that those old gray gloves which I thought I had lost are in my winter overcoat hanging in the hall closet, it all seems hardly worth the trouble.

It is much the same with radio. Scientists have gone to all the trouble of rigging up apparatus which will pull out of the air sounds which we were never able to hear before, the whole ether is thrown into a turmoil, the south pole is placed in connection with Greenland and modern life is revolutionized by the utilization of these mysterious sound waves. And with what result? We in New York hear Miss Ellen Drangle in Chicago singing "Mighty Lak a Rose." The mountain which brought forth a mouse did a good day's work in comparison.

All of this, however, is probably none of my business. I had better not sit here criticising others for something which I couldn't possibly do myself. Probably that is what upsets me so—that I don't understand how it works. I have seen other people make it work and that has more or less discouraged me. They get so unpleasant about it. It would seem as if contact with such cosmic natural elements as electricity and sound waves and WJZ would have a tendency to make a man broadminded and gentle, but it doesn't work out that way. It just makes them nasty.

I had a cousin once who built a radio. It seemed to me to be a foolhardy thing to do in the first place, monkeying around with electricity and tubes and things, but I said nothing. He read books on the subject and bought a lot of truck and sat around trying to fit things together for weeks and weeks, not speaking to his family except to tell them to get away from there and, in general, behaving in a very boorish manner.

Finally he got the thing so that it would work and picked up some kind of concert which was being broadcast from a station about half a mile away. The selection was a marimba band playing "Moonlight Waves," and he was tickled to death. Every one had to come in and listen and congratulate him. "You certainly are a wonder, Ed," they exclaimed, and he said nothing to dispute it. Then he tried another station and broke in on the middle of another marimba band playing "Moonlight Waves." He was so pleased at being able to get another station, however, that he let it finish. That happened to be the end of that program; so he tried what he called "Cleveland, Ohio." Well, it seemed that "Cleveland, Ohio," was specializing that day on marimba band selections of "Moonlight Waves" and Ed got another load of that for half an hour. By this time the rest of the family had tiptoed out of the room.

The upshot of it was that Ed never moved away from that radio set for ten days and nights, always turning little knobs and looking up charts, always hoping against hope, but always getting a marimba band playing "Moonlight Waves." He refused food that was brought to him, but somehow had some whisky smuggled in, which he consumed in great gulps to keep his courage up. Pretty soon this began to tell on him, and he grew emaciated and trembly and nobody dared go near him. His wife got the doctor to come, but he wouldn't let any one come into the room, simply showing his teeth and growling like an old fox terrier every time the threshold was crossed. And all the time the moaning strains of "Moonlight Waves" dragged through the room, from Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Boston, until finally his family had to move over to the grandmother's and leave him to his ultimate breakdown, which took the form of crawling into the cabinet himself and singing "Moonlight Waves" until he collapsed and could be carried out.

They never found out quite what had been the matter. Some people said that he had built a gramophone by mistake, and that the marimba band number was a record which kept on playing and playing. Others said that he had stumbled on some new form of sound reproduction and had isolated a certain number of sound waves so that they never could get free. Articles were written about it in scientific journals and he was hailed as an inventor, but it didn't do him any good, as no one would want to buy a lot of sound waves which did nothing but play "Moonlight Waves" over and over again. The whole thing was very tragic.

It only goes to show, however, that even the people who know a lot about radio and electricity really don't know an awful lot, and makes me all the more contented to stick to my old banjo. I don't know many chords on it, but I do know where they come from.

This and That Thing About the Theater

And This Means 'About the Actors, Too.

By Frederick Donaghey.

TAKING an opportunity to read "Thunder in the Air" after it was bulletined for Chicago performance by the Dramatic League, I was puzzled that Mr. Belasco, who for a while held the stage-rights for this country, should have turned it back to the author's agent. Seeing the play as acted in the Princess, I understood—or, at least, thought that I understood. Mr. Millar's fine piece would have been spoiled by necromancy: that is, by Mr. Belasco's indulgence of those talents of his that have made him seem to the multitude a very magician of back-stage. His tricks of lighting and his ample bag of hoakums are among the things not required for a good performance of this especial play, which is all I wrote of it in praise for last Tuesday's issue. "Thunder in the Air" is a work of high imagination; and it has the merit of being a play dealing, as I said, with a topic easily within the common experience of all mankind, and dealing with it in terms of practical stage-craft.

I have a foreboding that, when the Dramatic League shall have passed into its second and its third periods, I shall have my nerves torn and frayed by those numerous persons who, as always when they fail to attend something especially good, will ask me what is wrong with Chicago that a work like "Thunder in the Air" should have been held here only four weeks. There are hundreds and hundreds and hundreds of such persons: most of their playgoing is accomplished by conversation. Many of them write windy, stupid letters to me about the Theater, of which they know nothing. I encountered one of them Friday afternoon in the foyer of Orchestra Hall: he includes music among the arts he affects; and he said to me: "I immensely enjoyed your report on 'Thunder in the Air,' and must try to run in and see it. I read the novel, you know. Christopher Morley is certainly a droll chap!" When the homicidal impulse had gone from me, I remembered that Morley has a tale named "Thunder on the Left."

From the "popular" point-of-view, the Dramatic League would unquestionably have preferred to start its first season with the play originally announced—"The First Mrs. Fraser"; less, of course, because that comedy is a current success in London than because of the presence in the principal rôle of so good and so well-known a player as Miss Grace George; but shifting her and the new comedy into the second period of the League's five was made necessary, as I think I have explained, by the death of Leslie Faber, whom she had engaged for the rôle to be acted here by A. E. Matthews, and her lost weeks in London in search of another actor. But the League is not likely soon to uncover a play more nearly unique than "Thunder in the Air," nor one so deserving of the support of all who regard themselves as included when one speaks of intelligent theater-goers. And I should hate myself if any of my readers were to take from what I have written about "Thunder in the Air" the notion that it is what used to be called "highbrow," or that it requires for complete understanding a special intellect. Not all who see the play may like it: one diligent playgoer told me the other day that she regarded "Journey's End" and "Show-Boat" as first-rate reasons for abstention from theaters; but I should say that the appropriate diversion for anybody who doesn't understand "Thunder in the Air" would be a revival of the Keystone and Fatty Arbuckle reels of an earlier era in movies.

Miscellany.

Cheyne Walk, who occasionally writes in to say something, writes in now to say this: "I read that you and your colleagues in what you call 'play-reporting' were hidden away in the rear of the boxes or placed contemptuously in the Blackstone's back-row seats when you went to see 'Wings Over Europe'; and I'm wondering if you would have liked the play more than you say you did if you had been greeted by the Theater Guild with greater dignity, as befits your occupation." . . . For myself, I sat in the fourth row at "Wings Over Europe." (I may as well add that, as a guest, I should have no quarrel with the Guild or any other management regardless of where I might be placed.) I was reasonably familiar, through having read it, with the play before I saw it acted by the Guild. I am not of the belief that my reactions to the play were influenced by my place in the auditorium. I am glad that I saw the play; and I should, doubtless, have seen it regardless of my occupation: the sum of my playgoing, season in and season out, is not greater than it was when I was not what I call a play-reporter. And I have the feeling that I have covered all the implications of Cheyne Walk's courtly little communication.

Word from New-York on the activities of the Guild are that Rolland's "The Game of Love and Death" is being prepared in the belief that "Karl and Anna," the institution's first new play of the season, will not

Fans in Dixie Fall Hard for Movie Rackets

Shysters Have Easy Time Playing Tricks.

By Tom Pettey.

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—[Special.]—The south is the Utopia of the movie racketeer. Even here in the Queen city they have fallen for the "home town reel," the "key racket," and the "movie school," with its expensive screen tests.

Each season the itinerant motion picture men, with their business promoters, are received with open arms in the cities and larger villages of the southern states, and each season they depart with well filled pocketbooks.

They seldom leave satisfied customers behind, but all is forgotten and forgiven before they call again, for the folks down here like to have their pictures taken. In the north the pocket motion picture camera has more or less gratified the urge to see one's self parading on the screen, but in the southern towns they still wait for the traveling camera man.

The "home town reel" game met with success throughout the smaller Carolina and Georgia towns this summer. The "key racket" plays larger towns, but the "movie school" thrives only in the larger cities. Of the three byproducts of the film world, the "home town reel" probably is the most popular. As yet no effort to introduce the talking film to home talent actors has been made down here.

"Home Town Reel."

The promoter arrives in town and immediately advertises for "society boys and girls to appear in a locally made motion picture." His next step is to canvass the merchants of the town.

"How would you like to have your store in a motion picture?" he asks the owner. "We can write the story so that most of the action in the film will take place right outside your door. That big sign you have hanging there will show up great on the screen."

The promoter usually gets the dough and moves right on down the business street selling a dozen shopkeepers with the same line. Then he finds a theater man who will agree to run the film.

His next move is to select his cast from the crowd of townfolk who have responded to his advertisements. Nobody is left out, for the more faces he can get in the film the more people he can get in the theater.

The picture is shot in a couple of days. There always is one night scene, made on the stage of the theater. Then the picture is ready to run and the promoter usually already has run. The home folks turn out in grand style to see a flickering, poorly lighted picture with barely recognizable actors. Everybody says it is awful, but everybody is ready to try

Critic Says Grand Opera Is in Anomalous Position

By Edward Moore.

EARLIER in the week a letter was made public in the column unofficially but popularly known as Vox Pop, wherein Percy Graham bared an accumulation of thoughts about our favorite source of uplift and culture, the opera. It would seem as though he were not fully convinced of the virtues of opera as an evening's entertainment, for in a noticeably pained tone he inquires:

"Will somebody tell me why any one having a little surplus money on hand with which he might help worthy charities should donate money to pay the deficit on grand opera? Wouldn't it be just as ethical for the movie picture owners to pass the hat around when they're in financial difficulty?"

After describing the arguments used by a solicitor of opera and his own announcement that he would hate to think he was going to a show on charity, Mr. Graham concludes:

"And another thing, as Andy Gump says, enough grand opera for any one to hear can be witnessed very often in high class movie houses, and afterwards a good screen picture can be seen to recompense for having had to see any grand opera."

Poking Fun at Opera.

One fears, as Josh Billings used to say, that those words were writ sarkastik. There is only a limited reason to believe that Mr. Graham will be among those present when the new Civic Opera house discloses its splendors of red and gold for the first time next month and "Aida" adds one more tally to the hundreds of times it has opened a new operatic season. He would probably agree with one part of the verses that the lamented B. L. T. once printed in the Line O'Type:

Now when I read old Doctor Hackett
Upon the operatic racket,
I murmur as I 'tear my hair,
"O, gee; I wish that I'd been there."

"But when I turn to Doctor Gunn
And read of what was sung and done,
I rearrange my hair and say,
"O, gosh; I'm glad I stayed away."

An Anomalous Position.

Opera is in a somewhat anomalous position, it is true. It does not pay, it never has paid. Some of the officials of the delightful American Opera company, now starting again on its wanderings hither and yon, believe that with careful management it will just about come out even by the end of the season, and if that happens they will rightly regard it as a moral triumph and a historic event.

Otherwise, ever since Claudio Monteverde wrote "Ariana" in 1607, the history of opera has been a continuous accumulation of portly debts. Sometimes European rulers paid them, sometimes states or cities contributed, sometimes they just were not paid. When opera came across the Atlantic and tried the extremely difficult experiment of making a home for itself in this country, its deficits came with it. The directors of the New York Metropolitan say nothing about deficits, though they do not say anything about profits, either. But Mr. Eckstein made public a loss of over $200,000 for ten weeks at Ravinia this summer, and the guarantees of the Civic opera, which Mr. Graham would seem to have successfully evaded so far, are well known.

Grand opera as we know it is scaled on too lavish a plan ever to pay its way. Its expenses are always too high for its possible intake. There is a limit to what people will pay for entertainment, except perhaps for a world series of baseball or a championship fight, and there is a limit on the size of a hall wherein opera can be effectively presented, which does not apply to these other forms of entertainment.

Filled Two Rôles.

But the anomaly or opera is not alone in its necessary deficits. It is also that it holds itself out as an educational and cultural institution part of the time and an entertainment the rest. That is, it used to hold itself out as an educational institution, though I personally am still waiting to be convinced that there is anything greatly educational about attendance upon an operatic season or many of them. At any rate, solicitors began to discover that at times the well known tired business man resented being uplifted, and resented it so earnestly that he put up a furious and frequently successful sales resistance. So opera is gradually getting itself out of the educational idea and putting itself on a basis with the other blithe and colorful arts. When the public comes to the conclusion that there is better and saner entertainment in being able to understand the words of operatic drama than in hearing them in a language that not one in twenty understands, another long step forward will have been taken.

Mr. Insull says that after a term of years the Civic Opera company will be able to function without calling upon its guarantors. That, however, will be due to an enormous building exploit and not to any conceivable operatic management. For the length of time that opera chants its melodies, so long will it run at a loss.

In the meantime, Mr. Graham would

'June Moon' Is Well Received by Gotham Fans

Enjoy Satirical Flings at Tin Pan Alley.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Two smart New York boys, one of them hailing from Chicago and the other from Pittsburgh, scored the play success of this week with a piece called "June Moon." It was fashioned by George Kaufman and Ring Lardner from Mr. Lardner's short story, "Some Like 'Em Cold."

The first night crowd fairly purred its pleasure the night "June Moon" was produced. Every bit of Broadway wit, every shaft of Times Square wisdom was cheered and chortled over. Every satirical fling at the song writing trade, which is the play's target was almost violently approved.

I am assailed by the usual suspicion that the comedy is entirely too local in appeal to do well as a touring attraction. But as there are practical no touring attractions any more this cannot be regarded as a serious handicap.

"June Moon" invades Tin Pan alley, where this nation's songs are written, in company with a young lyric writer from Schenectady. He has been one of the General Electric company's most absent minded young men because his real ambition is to write songs.

On his way to the big city he meets Edna Baker ("Eddy" to her pals) in the chair car and with this spur to romance looks out upon the October landscape and thinks up "June Moon" as the title for a song. He might have used October but it wouldn't rhyme with moon.

In town he meets one of the journeyman melodists of the alley, sells him the idea of the lyric and is successfully launched when a music publisher, for reason of his own, buys the song. Thereupon his head is turned slightly and swollen considerably. He takes up with his composer's sister-in-law and learns about night clubs from her. He forgets his Edna of the train seem to have hit upon an important idea. In fact, it is bigger and better than he states. It would be quite as ethical to pass the hat for embarrassed movies as incumbered opera. It would be quite as ethical to pass the hat for any form of entertainment you want to name. The idea has limitless and persuasive possibilities. But try and get the money!

First Week of Opera.

The Civic Opera company sends word of its first week's repertoire in the new opera house. "Aïda" as opening bill for Monday, Nov. 4, has already been announced. It will be sung by Rosa Raisa, Cyrena van Gordon, Charles Marshall, Cesare Formichi, Virgilio Lazzari, and Chase Baromeo, Giorgio Polacco conducting.

Mascagni's "Iris," the first novelty of the season, will be sung on Tuesday night by Edith Mason, Antonio Cortis, Giacomo Rimini, and Mr. Lazzari, Mr. Polacco at the stand.

"La Traviata" is the Wednesday night attraction, in which Claudia Muzio will return to the company after a year's absence, with Charles Hackett and Richard Bonelli as the father and son in the tuberculous romance. Roberto Moranzoni will conduct.

"Romeo and Juliet" is up for Thursday night. Hallie Etties will make her first American appearance as Juliet, and René Maison will sing Romeo for the first time hereabouts. Mr. Formichi, Desiré Defrère, Edouard Cotreuil, and Maria Claessens will be others in the cast, and Emil Cooper, the Russian conductor, will appear for the first time on what lovers of two dollar words are coming to call the podium.

Debut in Matinée.

According to custom, at least during the first part of the season, the house will be dark on Friday night, relighting Saturday afternoon with a revival of "Tristan and Isolde." Here Theodore Strack will make his American debut in the part of Tristan and Egon Pollak will return to the conductor's stand after an absence of many years. Frida Leider will be the Isolde, Maria Olszewska the Brangaene, Mr. Bonelli the Kurvenal, and Alexander Kipnis the Mark. No obvious play on words is intended in a music announcement.

"Il Trovatore" on Saturday night classifies among the popular priced performances. Its program contains the names of Miss Muzio, Mr. Cortis, Mr. Rimini, and Mr. Lazzari, with Mr. Cooper at the baton.

Turning to the first Sunday matinée, it will be "Norma," with Miss Raisa, Coe Glade, Mr. Marshall, and Mr. Baromeo.

Explanation of "Iris."

And this seems the best available time and place to reproduce the historical, statistical, and dramatic foreword of the company on the subject of the season's first novelty.

"Mascagni's 'Iris' was first produced at the Costanzi in Rome on Nov. 22, 1898. It had its first American performance in Philadelphia Oct. 14, 1902, during the tour of Mascagni's own company. It was given in New York two days later and was included in the répertoire of the Metropolitan in 1908, with Caruso, Eames, Scotti, and Journet in principal rôles.

"The scene of 'Iris' is laid in Japan and it is the story of an innocent Japanese maiden who is stolen from her blind father and taken to the home of a rich and degenerate young man who has admired her from afar. Her innocence palls on him, however, and she is turned over for sale at the Yoshivara. Iris does not understand what is being done and as her blind father is led to her, she rejoices and calls to him, but the father misunderstands and thinks she has gone willingly—he regards her as a fallen woman and throws mud in her face. Overcome with grief, Iris runs to the open window and throws herself into a precipice.

"There she is found by rag pickers who flee when they learn she is alive. Consciousness returns to Iris and she remembers her terrible dreams. The first rays of the morning sun soothe her and appear to give her new life, but only for a moment. She dies and a phantasy of flowers appears under the warmth of the sunshine that surrounds the body. The barren rocks of the chasm disappear and Iris is surrounded by an immensity of flowers and light."

One hour of the opening performance in the new opera house will be broadcast over the network of the National Broadcasting company. The hour chosen is 10 to 11, central standard time, or 11 to 12, eastern standard, and 9 to 10, mountain time. The regular weekly broadcast is to occur on Saturday nights from 9 to 10, central standard time, this season. The National Broadcasting company is making this a feature over their nation-wide hook-up.

Orchestra Goes to Milwaukee.

Mr. Stock will celebrate the second week of his twenty-fifth anniversary season as conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra by going with the organization to the first of its ten concerts in Milwaukee tomorrow night; starting the Tuesday afternoon series next day; opening the popular series Thursday night, and continuing with the regular Friday afternoon-Saturday night pair the end of the week. No soloists are announced for any of these concerts, but next week Friday and Saturday, Ennio Bolognini, the new first cellist, will make his bow to Chicago audiences in that capacity.

For Tuesday afternoon Mr. Stock has included "Le Carnaval Romain" by Berlioz, Tschaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, Strauss' "Don Juan," and "Siegfried Ascending Brunnehilde's Rock" and the finale from "Siegfried."

The popular program contains Glazounow's "Carnaval" Overture, Dvorak's "New World" Symphony, Bizet's "L'Arlésienne" Suite, and Sibelius' "Finlandia."

The end of the week identical programs will begin with George Schumann's "Liebesfruehling" Overture, continuing with the Franck Symphony, Debussy's "Iberia," and the suite from Stravinsky's "L'Oiseau de Feu."

Contest for Pianists.

The Society of American Musicians announces its annual contest for pianists with a grand piano as prize, the gift of the Cable Piano company. Contestants, say the rules, must be American citizens or children of naturalized American parents, and pupils in a senior high school, public, parochial or private. They also must, at the time of entering the contest and through its course, be studying with a teacher who is a member of the Society of American Musicians. Membership in this organization, by the way, is open to all persons actively engaged in the musical profession and American by birth or naturalization, whose standards of achievement are compatible with the aims of the society.

Contestants in the preliminaries and finals must be prepared to play the Czerny Etude, opus 740, No. 1; the Gigue from Bach's Fifth French Suite; Haydn's Seventh Sonata in D; and the Chopin-Liszt "Maiden's Wish." Entrance to the contest will close March 1, 1930.

The Society of American Musicians has as president, Edoardo Sacerdote; vice president, Harold B. Maryott; secretary treasurer, Edwin J. Gemmer, and director of contests, Marx E. Oberndorfer. Its board of directors consists of Howard Wells, Mary Peek Thomson, Florence R. Magnus, Marx E. Oberndorfer and Howard Preston.

Travel Talk on South America.

"Around South America" is the title of the course upon which E. M. Newman will conduct his fellow voyagers in his travel talk at Orchestra hall next Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon. It is announced as a view of the high spots of the continent. Beginning with a trip through the Panama canal, it goes down the west coast with visits to Peru, Bolivia and Chile, through the Straits of Magellan and up the east coast to the Amazon, and 1,000 miles up this river. There will be mountains and falls, the highest capital, the greatest river, wilderness, savage life, tropical beauty, strange animals, gayly plumaged birds, man-eating fish, and curious insects among the details of the trip.

Those who wander about through Europe next year will find festivals running in full activity. Bayreuth will resume its Wagner season after a year's silence, running four weeks from July 22 to Aug. 21. Arturo Toscanini will conduct "Tristan and Isolde," Dr. Muck, "Parsifal," and other conductors will take up the "Ring."

Oberammergau will again take up the "Passion Play" after eight years, running from May 6 to Sept. 28. There will be Mozart and Wagner in Munich for four weeks beginning the middle of July, more Mozart and some new spectacles at Salzburg during August. Shakespeare will be played in English at Stratford-on-Avon from April to September and in German at Heidelberg during the summer. There will be opera during the summer at the Théâtre de la Monnaie in Brussels, and there is the promise of some special musical and dramatic productions at Berlin, Vienna and Dresden.

Musical Notes.

Ennio Bolognini, the new first cellist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, has been added to the faculty of the Chicago Musical college, replacing Alfred Wallenstein, who has gone to New York to seek the favor of eastern audiences and who in his first appearance with the Philharmonic orchestra there would seem to have made a start on the undertaking.

The Musicians Club of Women will hold its first concert at Curtiss hall tomorrow afternoon. The program, arranged by the board of directors, will be presented by a trio consisting of Emma Menke, Lillian Pringle, and Elsa Becker, also Clara M. Schevill, Marie Hoover Ellis, and Belle Forbes Cutter.

Two Hungarian musicians are listed in the week's music. Charles Mathes, pianist, will give a sonata recital at Kimball hall. He is a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music, Budapest, and a former pupil of Dohnanyi. He made his debut in that city in 1918, toured central and eastern Europe, and in 1922 became Roumanian court pianist. The latter part of the same year he came to America and settled in South Bend.

Elsie Patay will make her first American appearance at the same hall on Tuesday evening. The announcements say that she is a virtuoso of the Hungarian cymbalom, that instrument which looks like a harpsichord with its top taken off and is played by padded sticks in the hands of the performer. She will play both Hungarian and non-Hungarian music, and the final number, Liszt's Sixth Rhapsody, will be played by a trio of herself, Alex Pevsner, violinist, and Dr. William Schnefuss, pianist.

A SINGLE VISIT

AMELITA GALLI-CURCI
[Strauss-Peyton Photo.]

SHE will be here this afternoon at Orchestra hall, but she is an active traveller these days, and so it is told that it will be her only Chicago recital of the present season. As is her custom on the concert stage, her program will consist of the piquant display of coloratura singing, interpersed with songs of a more genial melody, the whole making a combination as dear as she herself to the hearts of her followers.

"'Thunder in the Air' is splendid stage. The Dramatic League of Chicago deserves applause for its first."
Gail Borden—Times.
"It is a most comedy and well acted drama. Easily within all considerably suited."

This and That Thing About the Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

ast beyond the subscription-period of six weeks. Rolland's play, it may be remembered, was shown here three years ago in the Goodman. . . . A recent paragraph in THE TRIBUNE implied that an act was dropped from "Earl and Anna" between the Sunday dress-rehearsal and the Monday première; and it seems that what happened was that two acts were run together, and merely an intermission was lost.

"Die Fledermaus," about to be revived in New-York, is to be called "A Wonderful Night," and not "Ladies and Gentleman," as was recently announced. . . . Well, although it is world-famous among musicians by its original title, there is no question but, for box-office purposes, it ought to be called something else than "Die Fledermaus." For reasons that must be clear to all theater-goers in this day and land, "The Bat" would be no good. A famous London revival called it "The Night-Birds." That version was known in New-York as "The Merry Countess."

Ticket-brokers are reported to have arranged to take 650 seats nightly for twenty weeks for the New-York run of Noël Coward's operetta called "Bitter-Sweet," although the American première of the piece will not be until Monday, when it will be sung in Boston. . . . And the brokers are said to have been so impressed with the try-out performances of "The Channel Road" that they have taken 400 seats nightly for eight weeks, although the play—which is by Alexander Woollcott and George S. Kaufman—was not made known in New-York until Thursday night of last week.

George Arliss says by cable that he has no intention of retiring from the stage—an intention credited to him by rumors that followed Winthrop Ames' recent announcement of withdrawal from play-producing. What seems to be so is that Mr. Arliss will resume acting if he obtains what he would regard as a suitable play, and that, in such case, Mr. Ames will not be out of touch with the actor, whose manager he has been since 1920.

"The Roof" is the name of a new play by John Galsworthy, who calls it "a modern comedy of character." . . . His "Exiled" was a failure in London; and his "The Escape," given two years ago in New-York with Leslie Howard in the principal rôle, was not enough of a success to warrant the title of a tour.

Leslie Howard has been succeeded in "Candlelight," current in New-York, by Ernest Glendinning; and the former is now vis-à-vis with Miss Marie Gilmore in "Berkeley Square," in which he has acted in London.

Frank Craven, who was to have been in a Chicago cast of "Sweet Adeline," is to go into "Salt Water," a play by Dan Jarrett. The Chicago venture with "Sweet Adeline" is off—for the present, at least—because of a dispute between the producer and the union of men who paint stage-scenery.

And, speaking of Chicago casts for New-York successes, one is being assembled for "Subway Express," for which the Manhattan populace betrays a fondness at the box-office. The piece is to be submitted here in December, it is stated.

BEEN AWAY A LONG TIME

MISS TEXAS GUINAN

SHE'S due tonight in the Majestic in "Broadway Nights," which was named without expectation that she would ever be among its performers. 'Tis a long, long time, as time goes, since Miss Guinan was last in Chicago as a performer. Some remember her as a handsome young woman in the first of the series called the Passing Show, and others for her participation in a song-and-dance farce called "The Little Cafe." She returns as a famous person—a celebrity of first-page news-interest. Nobody else in recent years has done so much as she to prove that Broadway after dark is the Via Dolorosa of the boob, the come-on, and the jay.

NEW IN MANHATTAN

SEVEN new plays are listed for the week in the theaters of New-York, where there isn't nearly as much activity at the box-office as the producers and managers would like. Twenty of what classify as "Broadway houses" were "dark" last week. The ticket-brokers say that the real songless successes are "June Moon," "It's a Wise Child," and "Strictly Dishonorable," with "Journey's End" and "Street-Scene," holdovers, doing well. "Jenny," in which Miss Jane Cowl is acting, also classes as a hit.

The seven new pieces are:

"Maggie the Magnificent," by George Kelly, with Miss Shirley Warde in the principal rôle.

"Ladies of the Jury," by Fred Ballard, with Mrs. Fiske and Wilton Lackaye.

"Week-End," by Austin Parker, with Miss Vivienne Osborne.

"Button! Button!" by Maurice Clark, with Lynne Overman.

"Stripped," by Jane Murfin, with Lionel Atwill and Miss Jessie Royce Landis.

"The Silver Tassie," by Sean O'Casey, with "group" actors.

"The Booster," said to be of Vienna origin, with Miss Jean Newcombe.

Other "events," as they are termed down there, will be a revival of "Abraham Lincoln," with Frank McGlinn; one of "A Tailor-Made Man," with Grant Mitchell; and one of "Naughty Marietta," with Miss Ilse Marvenga and Roy Cropper. And a trustful management will restore "Harlem" to Broadway, where pieces with and about Negroes seem to be thriving.

Many, many performers are announced to take part this afternoon, in the Erlanger, for the annual benefit for the American Theatrical Hospital. Leon Errol is bulletined to serve as master of ceremonies.

Ten Old-Timers Easily Identified by Veteran

SIR: This is the first time in my life, and I am sixty-one years old, I have ever addressed a letter to a newspaper; but the questionnaire submitted by James A. McAllister in THE TRIBUNE of September 30 took my interest. All ten of the old-timers are fresh in my memory. I saw them all when I was a resident of Chicago. Here are the answers:

Joseph Polk was a comedian, and famous in "Mixed Pickles"; Roland Reed was a comedian, and known well in many plays, including "Humbug" and "Cheek"; John Howson was a comedian, and starred in "Putting On Style"; Richard Golden was a comedian, and starred in "Jed Prouty" and other plays; M. B. Curtis was a comedian, and starred in "Sam'l of Posen" and "Spot-Cash"; Hortense Rhea was a Belgian actress, and starred in "Josephine, Empress of the French"; John W. Kelly was a monologue-man in the varieties, and was known as the Rolling-Mill Man; John T. Kelly was an Irish-dialect actor, and was with Weber and Fields when they had their famous company of burlesquers; Frank McNish was an acrobatic dancer, and had a "turn" called "Silence and Fun"; William Hoey was co-star with Charles E. Evans in "A Parlor Match," in which he played Old Hoss.

JOHN I. PEARCE.

HELPING TO MAKE IT GOOD

MISS EVA PUCK

SHE'S in "Show-Boat," wherein she originated the part of the bright little song-and-dance woman; and she is so good in the part as to be a distinct asset in the entertainment. Miss Puck has for some years been one of the better soubrettes of the American stage; and she is known well as the team-mate of Sammy White, also of "Show-Boat." Some Chicago theater-goers may recall how good an actress she was when, back in 1924, she appeared with Lew Fields in the La Salle in a foolish little comedy named "Henky."

Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comments on plays and shows printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of October 19, 1919—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Those who have searched for the Happy Isles and found them not among the dramas present may cruise further this week and hope for better luck. Three news entertainments will appear upon the chart—two hailing from New-York City and a third from somewhere in the Union Loop. They are known as "The Velvet Lady," "Daddies," and "The Dream-Song." . . . "The Velvet Lady," which follows "The Canary" at the Colonial tonight, has verse by the late Henry Blossom and music by Victor Herbert. Miss Georgia O'Ramey, late of "Leave It to Jane!" is in it; and so is Miss Florrie Millership, a pet of the varieties.

"The Velvet Lady" was just a so-so sort of show: not so good, and not bad.

"Daddies" is one of Mr. Belasco's progeny. It is clean and joyous, according to the prospectus; and it treats of five misogynous bachelors who reluctantly adopt a war-orphan thinking it is a babe. But it turns out to be a lovely English ingénue, under whose gentle ministrations they grow sweet and Belascoan. Some one named John Hobbie wrote "Daddies." At Powers' tomorrow.

"Daddies" was a dose; but it was successful in this country. When it was given in London, London raspberried it.

"The Dream-Song" comes on Thursday night to Central Music-Hall under the auspices of local cherubim. It is a slice of grand-opera life, full of love, ambition, and music, with an old composer and his daughter, a songstress, as its principal figures. She loves Ivan, son of her parent's ancient Polish enemy; and he drives her from his door. Victor Herbert composed the aria upon which she swims back to her father's favor; and Edward Locke, who is intimate with the habits of the warblers, wrote the plot and incidental conversation.

"The Dream-Song" (a new title for the piece mentioned here last week as "The Call") was just an obvious attempt to write something else like "The Climax." Those who went to see it called it awful.

"The Five Million," one of the returned-soldier series is heading in to the Princess. Because of the actors' strike, its schedule became disarranged in New-York; and it was shifted from theater to theater until finally it found itself without a home. It is about one of our dreamy crusaders who returns heroic from the war and discovers the village flatfoot in possession of his sweetheart and his job. Ralph Morgan, the chap who was redeemed so neatly in "Turn to the Right!" will be the noble sufferer in "The Five Million," which is by Guy Bolton and Frank Mandel.

The native dramatists were busy in 1919 trying to cash in on the war; and "The Five Million" was just one of numerous ventures in general kind.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files to twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1909, the interests of theater-goers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of October 17 by the paragraphs that follow:

Robert Hilliard will arrive at the Illinois Theater tomorrow evening in Frederic Thompson's production of "A Fool There Was," a dramatic elaboration of Porter Emerson Browne of the idea expressed in Kipling's poem of the vampire woman who, stripped of her hypnotic allurement, was only "a rag, a bone and a hank of hair." In Mr. Hilliard's support are William Courtleigh, Miss Katherine Kaelred and Miss Nanette Comstock.

"A Fool There Was" was held to be great stuff in those days, and was liked by the multitude. Not only that: those who liked the play had the notion that Hilliard was a great actor.

Attractions on the horizon include Miss Eleanor Robson, who—succeeding her mother, Mrs. Madge Carr Cook, at the Grand next week—will play Mrs. Burnett's "The Dawn of a Tomorrow"; Miss Maxine Elliott, who will come to the Garrick on the same evening in "The Chaperon"; Ezra Kendall, who will arrive at the Great Northern in "The Vinegar-Buyer"; "The Thief," scheduled for McVicker's a week from this evening; "The Kissing Girl," which will open the new Cort Theater, in Dearborn Street; and "Ben-Hur," announced for a month's engagement at the Auditorium soon.

Miss Robson retired that season, and so did Mrs. Cook, also. Miss Elliott was then at the height of her vogue as a star, although unlucky in the matter of plays. Mr. Kendall, an amusing cuss, died not long after his revival of "The Vinegar-Buyer." "The Thief" had had its vogue by then. "The Kissing Girl" is remembered as nothing with which to open a theater.

. . . And the movies long ago put "Ben-Hur" out of business as an audible play.

"Never before in the history of art in this country," says Mr. Neumann, "has so unique a combination been presented—a symphony orchestra with a dancer as soloist instead of the conventional pianist or singer." What will the conventional pianist or singer say at sight of the program arranged for the unique combination, the same being Miss Isadora Duncan and the New-York Symphony Orchestra, Walter Damrosch conducting? This is scheduled for October 21, at Orchestra Hall.

Miss Duncan didn't quite click in her native land; but "so unique a combination" won a measure of Chicago's attention on this occasion.

Success Indicated for the Piece Called "June Moon"

By Burns Mantle.

and is in a fair way to become a social irritant when circumstances check him and he is temporarily saved for Edna and matrimony.

"Wise-cracking" Pleases New Yorkers.

It isn't the plot, however, that has sold "June Moon" to this village. It is the characters and the snappy dialogue. The song composer's wife, for example, is a disillusioned cynic who is full sister to the similarly hard-boiled wife of the theatrical promoter in "The Butter and Egg Man."

"I'll buy you all the dresses you want when I write my next hit," promises the young optimist who is her husband. "By that time I'll be wearing a shawl," says she.

A favorite part is that of a Hebrew tune fixer and piano player, named Maxie. Harry Rosenthal, pianist and bandmaster and a Friars' club favorite, makes his debut as an actor in this part. He is a bit conscious, but immensely funny to Broadway.

Another part caricatures the excitable song writer who is always bursting with inspirations. His newest number is one in which a kind word is at last spoken for children born out of wedlock—

"Should a father's carnal sin
Blight the life of babykins,
Give the child a name—I mean

runs the refrain. Of course Broadway howls at that.

Norman Foster, who came into prominence in the eastern company playing "The Barker," is the lad from Schenectady, Linda Watkins the Edna, Jean Dixon the disillusioned wife, and, with Rosenthal, the comedy hit of the piece.

"Karl and Anna" May Die Early.

The Theater guild has begun its New York season at the Home theater with a play that will probably not run much past the six weeks allowed the subscription list. This is Leonhard Frank's "Karl and Anna," in which Alice Brady is introduced to guild audiences as a member of the acting company.

Put into play form by the author and translated by Ruth Langner, "Karl and Anna" is amazingly uninteresting. Why it is uninteresting is puzzling to the audience because the story, from guild standards, is promising.

Karl and Richard are fellow war prisoners in a Russian camp. For three years Richard keeps alive a memory of Anna, the young wife he left in Berlin, by talking to Karl about her, telling him all the intimate ways of her and of her beauty, describing her charms with particularity and great frankness, even to the location of such minor blemishes as moles. Anna finally gets into the very blood of the listener.

One day Karl saves Richard's life by attacking a brutal guard and escapes from prison. He makes straight for Berlin and Anna's apartment. There he tries first to convince the girl that he really is her husband, changed by the war. She knows this to be untrue, but being lonesome and romantic and falling quickly in love with Karl, she lets him stay on and take Richard's place.

A year later Richard returns. He finds not only that his friend has taken his place in his home but that his wife loves his friend and is to bear him a child. At first his impulse is to murder Karl, but he thinks better of that and lets Karl and Anna go their way unharmed, while he settles into an Enoch Arden martyrdom.

Miss Brady makes as much dramatically as any emotional actress could of Anna's problem. Otto Kruger is the Karl and Frank Conroy the Richard. But nothing they can do can save the play from being strained and unnatural.

Jane Cowl May Save This One.

Jane Cowl has a new comedy called "Jenny" that is quite as unconvincing as "Karl and Anna," so far as its story goes, but because it permits this favorite actress to revel in romance and exercise to the fullest the charm that is hers when she plays romantic heroines, it seems quite likely to serve her profitably.

There has not been much romance in the theater of late. None at least to stir the imagination of our middle aged children. And I have a suspicion they are hungry for it.

In "Jenny," the lady of the title is a beautiful actress who wanders into a corporation lawyer's rose garden one moonlit night and finds the owner beset with domestic problems. His family, consisting of a shallow and flirtatious wife and two or three children, is riding him unmercifully, being interested exclusively in his earning capacity.

Jenny decides that something should be done about it and what she does is practically to kidnap the lawyer, take him to her camp on an island in the center of a Maine lake and then tell him they are there alone.

The lawyer protests conventionally and would return immediately to New York, but Jenny has taken the precaution to punch a hole in the bottom of the only canoe available. So the lawyer stays on for a month.

Then Jenny comes back home with him, tells his family what she has done and why and leaves them. The lawyer, recovering his courage, follows after. The pieces is so well played by Miss Cowl and Sir Guy Standing that its flimsiness is not seriously resented.

Faversham Finds New Vehicle.

William Faversham also has acquired a romantic rôle that permits him to be pleasantly entertaining. "Her Friend the King" is the play, made by Harrison Rhodes and A. E. Thomas from a story by Mr. Rhodes. The Faversham part is that of an exiled monarch of the mythical Balkans who meets and loves a rich American widow. The widow devotes a part of her fortune to getting him restored to his throne and he repays her by stipulating that if he again becomes king the American lady shall be his queen.

Nothing much to get excited about, this one, but it is rather satisfying to find Mr. Faversham making use again of the mind and manner of a gentleman. He strides springily through the play, is courtly and gracious and quite the perfect lover. Ara Gerald plays prettily opposite him.

NED WAYBURN

Reduce or Gain Weight
This Easy Pleasant Way!

OF all the methods of beautifying the human body—either removing or adding weight—none is so pleasant, easy and fascinating as the program being followed by pupils of Ned Wayburn at his newly-opened Chicago studio.

During his many years of stage direction, when he was winning fame as the producer of the best editions of Ziegfeld Follies and 600 other musical shows, Ned Wayburn had as his responsibility the physical condition of many of the leading stage stars. As a result, he developed a program which he has put into effect in his New York and Chicago studios with astonishing success.

Mr. Wayburn's Health and Beauty Method is entirely unlike the dieting and violent gymnastic methods ordinarily followed. First comes a series of easy limbering movements, set to inspiring music, which are real fun instead of work. Then follows instruction in dancing, which not only quickly brings the figure back to normal, but also makes the pupil an accomplished and popular exponent of musical comedy and tap dancing, modern ballroom steps—or a wide variety of dancing forms subject to the patron's own choosing.

Why not visit Mr. Wayburn for a consultation without obligation? If you have a delicate, bashful child, see for yourself the results of Mr. Wayburn's methods of developing rugged little bodies and self confidence through dancing. His studio is open every day (except Sunday) 9:00 A. M. to 10:00 P. M. (6:00 P. M. Saturday). If you can't come in person, write for booklet TR-20. Also special "learn at home" method for out of town pupils.

Facts About Ned Wayburn Training

1. Morning, afternoon and evening classes.
2. Special afternoon classes for high school girls; evening classes for business girls; children's classes Saturday morning and afternoon only.
3. Free tryouts. Open 9:00 A. M. to 10:00 P. M. (except Sunday). Close Saturday at 6:00 P. M.
4. Class or private instruction. Boys and men taught only in private lessons.

Theological School Will Celebrate Its 100th Anniversary

By the Rev. John Evans.

THE Presbyterian Theological seminary, formerly known as the McCormick seminary, is 100 years old. It is characteristic of most institutions when they reach their centennial year to look back over the years and be content to "point with pride." Few institutions over the country have a firmer right to be proud of their contributions, and yet the long look among the leaders of the Presbyterian seminary is forward.

Under the leadership of Dr. John Timothy Stone, president elect of the seminary, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church and former moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States, a $6,000,000 building program for the seminary has been launched. Two units of the ultimate building program are now nearly completed. However, Dr. Stone states that the material development, vital as it is, is completely secondary to the intricate task of training religious leaders for the present and coming days.

"The seminary celebrates its centennial by beginning a new era of training leaders for the church," said Dr. Stone. "Never has there been such a demand for highly trained, talented and consecrated ministers and religious teachers. Only such highly trained men can meet the problems of the modern age."

On Oct. 27, hundreds of thousands of Presbyterians in more than 2,000 churches will have their attention focused on the Chicago theological institution. On the Tuesday following, the centennial exercises will begin and will come to a climax on Thursday, Oct. 31, in the inauguration of Dr. Stone as president, to succeed Dr. James G. K. McClure, who has become president emeritus and resides in Lake Forest.

The centenary program will include addresses by nationally known men. Among them will be Dr. William H. Foulkes, Newark, N. J.; Dr. A. P. Higley, Cleveland; former Gov. James P. Goodrich of Indiana; Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, Philadelphia; President J. C. Denise of the Omaha Theological seminary; Dr. R. A. Montgomery, president of Lane Theological seminary, President J. Ross Stevenson of Princeton Theological seminary; Moderator Cleland B. McAfee of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church; President John Grier Hibben of Princeton university, and Dr. Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, Evanston.

According to figures given out by Dr. Stone, the seminary has graduated 2,349 men into the Christian ministry, of whom 1,700 are living. They are ministering in every section of the world as pastors, evangelists, missionaries and teachers.

The Presbyterian Theological seminary, which occupies a twenty acre campus on North Halsted street, between Belden and Fullerton avenues, is one of Chicago's oldest institutions, having been located here since 1859, or nearly three-fourths of its existence. It is one of the two largest seminaries in the Presbyterian church.

For most of its history it has been known as McCormick seminary and by that name it has become known throughout the world. It was named after Cyrus H. McCormick, inventor of the reaper. Mr. McCormick made the seminary one of his principal beneficiaries, but at the request of the McCormick family in 1928 the seminary was given its present name. The McCormick family has pledged more than $1,000,000 for the construction of the plant which is now being developed under Dr. Stone's leadership.

Today is Brotherhood Sunday at the Sharon Evangelical Lutheran church, 2908 Shakespeare avenue. The day has been set apart for special recognition by all the Lutheran churches of the Augustana synod of the United States and Canada. The guest speaker at Sharon church is Dr. Julius Lincoln, former secretary of the Augustana Brotherhood of America.

Dr. Paul Hutchinson, managing editor of the Christian Century, and Dr. S. J. Duncan-Clark of the Chicago Daily News will be the speakers at the 353d meeting of the Chicago Congregational club at the Union League club tomorrow night. The subject to be discussed is: "Public Opinion and the Press." Dr. Ernest B. Allen will preside at the meeting.

A study of sixty-five leading churches in the city of Chicago shows that fifty-six of them produced about 200 plays last year. Of these fifty-six churches twelve were Methodist, eleven were Congregational, eleven were Presbyterian, nine were Baptist, five were Evangelical, five were Episcopal, and three were Community. Of the 200 plays 51 per cent were classified as nonbiblical but religious, 36 per cent were biblical, and 13 per cent were nonreligious. Most of the plays were produced in parish houses. The churches producing these plays assign as their motives: First, the inspiration of the audience; second, the education of the actors, and, third, the need to raise money.

This study was made by the department of religious drama of the Chicago Theological seminary under the direction of Prof. Fred Eastman.

The Rev. Spence Burton, superior of the Episcopal order of St. John the Evangelist, will preach this morning at the Church of Our Saviour, 530 Fullerton parkway. Father Burton is conducting a mission at the Church of Our Saviour. This was announced by the rector, the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot.

Al Jolson Puts It Straight to Radio Audience

Then a Week Later He's Sorry About It.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—A tense audience which included many of those "in the know" in Hollywood waited to hear Al Jolson's remarks on the night of the local premier of his picture, "Say It with Songs."

Jolson is by way of being in the midst of an argument with the Warner brothers, for whom he works, and everybody expected that another round of shots would be fired when Jolson mounted the platform. They were not disappointed.

Jolson began by making something of an apology for the fact that he had spoken over a loud speaker in a slightly sarcastic manner the week before at the opening of "The Gold Diggers of Broadway" at the new Warners' downtown theater and then had walked out before he could be introduced as master of ceremonies.

Following that incident Jolson had talked over the radio broadcasting station of Warner brothers, where it was announced by Irving Berlin that he would sing "When My Dreams Come True." At that time Jolson followed Berlin's words by saying, "No, I won't sing. Why should I? I don't get paid for this as I would be if I were expected to sing at any other radio station. 'When My Dreams Come True' I will be working for Fox."

The Price of Seats.

As Jolson warmed up to his subject before the "Say It with Songs" audience, he continued:

"I am just a plain person and I say just what is in my mind. I am sick and fed up with openings and I think $5 is too much to pay for a seat when all you see is a motion picture.

"Five dollar seats are all right for all you motion picture people. It's business for you. I am thinking of the young fellow who wants to take his girl. He can't take a dollar seat in the balcony. He wants to show her that he's a hot cat so he has to buy the $5 seat. Then there's $5 or $6 for a corsage. Then a taxi to and from and there is $30 shot to perdition. Then his girl tells him good night at the door. I tell you it ain't fair."

scenes and "business" in Norma Talmadge's picture, "The Woman Disputed," but the director has managed to capture the "atmosphere" that was completely satisfying to me. Looks like the real thing. I mean I THINK it looks like the real thing. I was not in Alaska in '99.

Miss Ulric is appealing, speaks and sings for you in a musical voice, and now and again shows flashes of the fire that have made her stage portrayals world sensations. Talu, however, is much more overshadowed by circumstances than were the other creatures impersonated by the fickle star.

Robert Frazer is—Robert Frazer. I did not find him a convincing Northerner. Mr. Wolheim does well with rôle and dialogue that hadn't much to offer him. Other acting is fairly satisfactory and photography and production is excellent.

You have guessed by now—correctly—that, while "Frozen Justice" is far from being a world beater it is pretty good entertainment.

See you tomorrow.

More than a Vamp.

Every time I read this column I am urged to write how much I liked and appreciated "Through Different Eyes." This picture, an all talkie, is in my mind every time I attend any other movie, especially any other talkie, and I never fail to draw a comparison.

I never fail also to rate "Through Different Eyes" the higher of the two, because, presenting the same players in three different characterizations in three different twistings of the plot, this picture attains a novelty of presentation not to be found in many pictures of today.

I would like to write here a word of appreciation of Mary Duncan because of her work in this picture. She is usually classed as a "vamp," but to judge her acting ability today one has to see her play a "frumpy" wife, a vampire, and a clever, modern woman in the same picture with versatility that has drawn unbounded applause for her. La Argentina Gets a Royal Reception at Gotham Concert

By Joan King.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—[Special Correspondence.]—The incomparable La Argentina has come again to America. She has been received in royal style, too, by the first "all evening attire" audience of the new season. Moreover, she has proved to possible doubters that during her five months' absence, she has lost nothing of that amazing art with which she completely captivated the musical and eurythmic world on her first visit. Indeed, if it be admitted that such artistic ability as that demonstrated last year could be enhanced, then, it may certainly be stated, with no fear of contradiction, that this has occurred.

The art of La Argentina is something that must be seen to be wholly appreciated and judging from the proportions of the audience which greeted the danseuse at Town Hall, Monday evening, that is a fact fully comprehended by her Gotham admirers. That certain something, which she imparts to the castanets, making of them a vital musical organ of interpretation, is enough, alone, to set her apart in the world of the dance but she has much besides that is unique.

Programs Cover Wide Range.

Not the least of her amazing talent is the art which she possesses of program making. There never is a dull moment in La Argentina's programs. Each number is different from its predecessor in every respect, from costume to spirit and rhythm. Monday evening, there were five dances brand new to America. "Goyescas," from the Granados opera, the inspiration of the dance being chosen from the intermezzo, the costume created by Nestor and inspired by the period of Goya, the Spanish painter, was first.

"Danse des Yeux Verts," another new number, was especially written by Granados for Mme. Argentina and dedicated to her. It is the last word of the composer. The music has not been published, and the manuscript is the property of the dancer. The dance music from De Falla's "La Vida Breve" provided Mme. Argentina with another effective creation. Then there was a lively "Jota" in which the dancer gives a stirring example of the regional dance contributed by the province of Aragon.

A native dance of the Philippine Islands, "Cariñosa," was the final new offering. The music and choreography of this dance show the Spanish influence. La Argentina had an opportunity to study the native dances of the islands during her recent tour of the orient.

Of the other numbers of the evening, the Andalusian tango, to a popular melody, called for the first encore. Then there was the peasant dance of the province of Toledo, to music by J. Guerrero; "Cordova" to I. Albeniz's music; "Cielo de Cuba," to a popular melody, and "La Corrida" [impressions of a bull fight], to Q. Valverdé's music. "Cielo de Cuba," which was one of the most popular of Mme. Argentina's répertoiré last year again brought down the house and was repeated.

This season Mme. Argentina is accompanied on her American tour by a fellow countryman, Miguel Berdion, who appeared several times in solo numbers Monday night. It is a cause for regret that the dancer lacks the perfect support of Mme. Perez at the piano this season.

A Brilliant Debut.

Another occasion of brilliance—socially speaking, at least—was that of the debut of one youthful Cuban coloratura, Emma Otero, at Carnegie hall. This was a gala occasion for the girl is a musical protégé of President Machado and the Cuban government. Cuban officials, many of whom came from Havana, were present. Boxes were draped with Cuban and American flags and floral tributes added to the brilliancy of the young singer's setting. Among dignitaries noted in the boxes were: Mayor Walker, the wife of President Machado and their daughters; the Cuban ambassador and his wife; the Cuban consul and his wife; the present ambassador to Cuba and the former ambassador to Cuba.

Miss Otero, who is reported to be but 19 years of age, disclosed a fresh, youthful voice of the distinctly coloratura type with required brilliance and fluency and the ability to manage bravura passages with ease. But it was a promising talent rather than a finished voice, with some immaturity, most noticeable in the high register.

Her program included:

"The Shadow Song" from "Dinorah"; a vocal arrangement of the Strauss "Beautiful Blue Danube"; two Schumann airs by Donaudy and Giannini; two Spanish songs and a "Pastorale" by Frank La Forge, who accompanied. Arthur Lora played flute obbligati to several numbers.

Iowa for Her.

Dear Miss Tinée: The contents of a clever little verse, entitled "Barter," appearing in the "Voice of the Movie Fan," in the Sept. 1 issue of THE TRIBUNE, provoked from me the following attempt at poetry:

Dear Grace of Iowa Wesleyan—
I'll neither sell on trads;
But thought perhaps by buying,
I might come unto your aid.

For if your heart is centered
On yon mountain peaks and streams,
And if some fairy princess
Makes true your yearning dreams—

I'll buy your dreams, your sunsets,
Your maples and your hills,
For His almighty splendor
Is guised in all these thrills.

In compensation—only
My sympathies to you,
For seeing not the grandeur
Of my Iowa's heav'nly blue.

So you can sing the praises
Of your Colorado trees;
But back in good old Iowa,
'Tis the "Corn Song" for me.

AN IOWA ADMIRER.

[Of both your column and her state.]

Editor's Note—And I subscribe myself an admirer of YOUR poetry!

American Opera Leaders Delighted with Results Here

THE American Opera company, finished for the present with its Chicago appearances, is now on its touring way with St. Paul as the next stop. Its president, Howard L. Taylor, its artistic director, Vladimir Rosing, and Mrs. Waller Borden, all have some pleasant things to say about its performances and its effect upon the musical public of Chicago.

"Chicago has shown us in no uncertain terms," Mr. Taylor is quoted as saying, "that America wants its own music in its own language and that it will support native artists singing native compositions produced in the best modern theatrical tradition. Five of the six operas produced by the company in Chicago were standard classics, translated into English with the long familiar music, but staged in the modern mode. Each of these works found great support, but the sixth opera in the répertoire, 'Yolanda of Cyprus,' a new work by Clarence Loomis of Chicago, written to a dramatic poem by Cale Young Rice of Louisville, Ky., was a sell-out days in advance of every performance.

"This was the criterion. It is a good opera, serious, highly dramatic and interesting. That proved conclusively that good native music wins popular support and assured the permanence of our policy of producing native works. That means work for American artists and an outlet for American composers."

Grateful for Results.

Mr. Rosing was both cheerful and grateful over the prospects. "It was wonderful," he said, "to watch the people flock to hear American opera. And it was inspiring to know that our work is so well appreciated, because that is one of the principal rewards of theatrical effort."

He is still on the search for good American operas for production. What he will be able to do will depend upon the amount of money that can be assigned for production costs. He says that he has examined ten or twelve so far and that two were "pretty good." The number of singers to be added to the cast will also depend upon financial considerations. He has given about 150 auditions in Chicago and he says he has found many fine voices.

Mr. Taylor and Mr. Rosing say that the present outlook justifies plans for expansion. Cities which underwrote a three or four days' engagement last year are taking the company back for a week or two weeks. The organization visited fifteen cities last year; the present tour will take it to forty. It is going as far west as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, and possibly other coast cities.

Best Season Ever.

Mrs. Borden also expressed gratification over the attitude of the public. "Our society has been working for more than nine years for opera in our native tongue," she said, "in the belief that understandable performances at reasonable prices would attract a much wider section of the public than grand opera had ever previously drawn. This would react most favorably on our native music. But it was not until the American Opera company came into being that we were able to expand our efforts to reach a greater public. And now that we have done so, it has been thrilling to watch its success. This is the best season we have ever had and it is certainly full of promise for the future."

E. M.

ERNEST LAWFORD

He's in "Wings Over Europe," wherein he acts the Prime Minister of the British Empire. Mr. Lawford has acted many rôles since first he appeared here with Miss Mary Mannering in a silly-ass character in "The Stubborness of Geraldine." He was with Miss Grace George in her revival of "The Liars," acting John Drew's old rôle, and with Miss Mary Boland in "Meet the Wife!" And, not so long ago, Winthrop Ames set Mr. Lawford to singing as the Lord-Chancellor in "Iolanthe," although that was in New York—not Chicago.

Movie Racketeers Go Over in Big Way with Dixie Fans

By Tom Pettey.

again next time the movie man comes to town.

"Key Racket."

The "key racket" is more complicated. The promoter comes to town and sells the idea to at least ten merchants, sometimes more if the place of operation is fairly large and prosperous. This is the idea:

Ten "treasure chests" are placed on exhibition at a local film house. They contain anything from a box of candy to a diamond ring. The merchants buy as many "keys" as they care to, but only one "key" sold to each store will open a "treasure chest." Then the storemen give away a "key" with each dollar purchase. A short film showing the fronts of the stores taking part in the scheme on a busy Saturday afternoon is made.

After all "keys" have been disposed of and the contest has been puffed to its last puff the picture is run off and "key" holders march upon the stage to try their luck with the "treasure chests."

Movie Schools.

The southern city "movie school," however, is the real money getter. All the big camera and film man needs to start his academy is an office, a reception room, and a loaded camera.

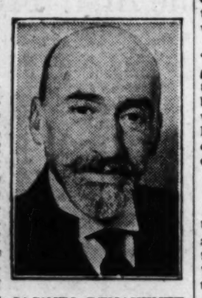
Ambitious boys and girls, and sometimes matrons and business men, pay as high as $50 for a "screen test." Then, if they show further interest, they are enrolled for a month's course in "film acting." The "movie school" has not been active in Charlotte in two seasons, but still is going strong a bit farther south.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

IN NEW YORK.

"Bonds of Interest" by Jacinto Benavente, with which Walter Hampden opened his season on Monday evening, may be attended vicariously by armchair playgoers if they choose to read (if not run). It is to be found in the first of the four volumes of Benavente's plays translated by John Garrett Underhill. The other plays in the volume are "His Widow's Husband," "Evildoers of Good," and "La Malquerida" (which armchair playgoers already know).



JACINTO BENAVENTE.

And speaking of Mr. Underhill reminds me that he called attention to the fact that I made a mistake when I said that "The Cradle Song," by Martinez Sierra, may be read only in libraries because it is out of print. The popularity of Eva LeGallienne's production was the cause of reprinting the play, which was issued in the spring in a book called "The Cradle Song and Other Plays," too late to be in the regular reference catalogs which are our only means of digging out such facts as whether a book is in print or not—which isn't an excuse, merely an explanation.

IN PARIS.

Eugene O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape" has been produced in a French translation in Paris, not, so correspondents seem to feel, with any great success. The symbolism of it rather bewilders the French audiences, mostly because there is simply no French equivalent to much of the vernacular, and partly because the whole mood of the play is as removed from a French attitude toward the subject as it is possible to be.

IN LONDON.

Two revivals in London remind armchair playgoers that they may read Sir James Barrie's "Dear Brutus" if they want to imagine themselves in a London playhouse audience, and if they want really to feel as if they were in dear old Lunnon, they should get a few of their friends to sit around and blow smoke in their faces, and pretend that they are the dowager duchess of whichwhich, the young Lady howhow and her sister the honorable Gwen whowho. Some of the young men have given up smoking in London theaters, so one of them told me, because to add to the fog produced by the ladies would be to say the least, inhuman.

The other revival, Strindberg's "The Father," reminds armchair playgoers that there was a time not more than a generation ago when Strindberg with all his morbid psychoses was—probably on account of them—looked upon with awe by the yearners. It is interesting to read him today. He is very dated.

PUBLISHED.

"Daisy Mayme," by George Kelly, has been published in that excellent and useful little paper covered edition, the French Standard library. "Daisy Mayme" is, to the mind of this armchair playgoer, the least good of Mr. Kelly's dramatic output, although it pleased many critics and was considered by Burns Mantle important enough to be among the ten best plays of 1926-'27.

"Broadway," by Philip Dunning and George Abbott, also has just been published in the French paper covered edition. It is the best melodrama this theatergoer ever saw, and it retains in cold print that zest and thrill that have made it one of the most successful plays of all American theatrical history. It also is included in "The Best Plays of 1926-'27."

Both "Broadway" and "Daisy Mayme" were published, immediately after their success, as books, but this is their first appearance in the French acting versions.

Exhibit of Bibles.

BUDAPEST. — (AP) — To mark the 400th anniversary of the birth of Jasper Karoli, who was first to translate the Bible into Hungarian, Protestants of Transylvania gathered an exhibition of old Bibles. The most ancient was a Karoli edition of 1592.

THE Service club began its rehearsals for its annual musical show, "Let's Go," to be presented on Nov. 15 at the new Civic Opera house during the last week. The young women who are to step, kick, and warble for the benefit include Miss Frances Wood, Miss Anne Small, Miss Phoebe Logan, Miss Janet Kirk, Miss Narcissa Swift, Miss Rosemary Baur, Miss Henrietta Countiss, Miss Rosemary Lytton and Mrs. Lytton Benello. All save Mrs. Benello in this group are this year's debutantes.

Hoovers Place People Above Rote and Rubric

Washington Awaits Some Surprises.

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Washington, waiting for the December congressional gavel to sound the call to social as well as political battles, is anticipating some sprightly innovations in this winter's season. It expects, also, a few surprises from the White House itself, where, heretofore, entertaining has been monotonously careful to rote and rubric.

But the Hoovers are independent of set tape, particularly when it winds around a blue book. Already the President has shattered the tradition that the chief executive must not attend state dinners in a private home, save the ten official dinners given, in season, by his cabinet. He smashed this taboo when he went to the unofficial dinner which Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson gave for Great Britain's prime minister.

Royal Mandate Killed.

And Mrs. Hoover loves people but hates rules. So there is every indication that she will expand and humanize the present official schedule which is now as routine as the multiplication table. Actually, of course, the season doesn't start until the first week in December, but social prophets are beginning to know just how far this family flexibility of rules will go when the game really starts.

Right now, for instance, when Mrs. Hoover bids her intimate friends to Sunday supper it is known she urges them not to regard it as a royal mandate. Tradition has firmly decreed that a White House invitation may be declined for but two reasons: illness or mourning. Tradition has even said that if you have already invited a house company to your home for dinner and receive an invitation to dine at the White House you must appoint a deputy hostess and leave your party to be a guest at the President's table.

But this rule began to totter at the very beginning of the Hoover administration, when close friends were advised not to upset their own programs to accept a White House bid. More recently, at the now famous dinner party the Hoovers gave to Great Britain's prime minister, Chicago's Robert Alexander Legge telephoned a few hours before the dinner and begged off on the grounds that his desk was piled high with work. These grounds were held to be legitimate and Mr. Legge was excused.

Another Matter.

But it is rumored that the White House found somewhat less legitimate "the absence from town" regrets which Speaker and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth sent and which was followed by the unexpected arrival in town of Mrs. Longworth just as Mrs. Dolly Gann was making a triumphant departure from the dinner at which she ranked every American lady.

There won't be any opportunity for a repetition of this crisis unless some visiting celebrity tarries in Washington long enough for the President to give a dinner.

In the natural course of official etiquette, the Vice President and the speaker will not meet at the White House dining table this year. There are four state dinners which the Hoovers will give.

The first, which comes early in December, is to the cabinet. To it will come the Vice President and his aides.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Chicago, January 19, 1857.

Letters from Martha Freeman to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York:

Dear Friend Julia:

It has been a long time since I wrote you. First, I want to thank you for the lovely cross-stitch pincushion you sent me for Christmas. It is perfectly beautiful and is admired by all who see it.

We had a delightful Christmas. Will gave me a handsome toilet case, imported from France, which he ordered through T. B. Carter's especially for me. It contains a dozen glass receptacles with silver tops, each having my monogram on it. There are scissors, nail file, and so forth. The case has a secret drawer for one's jewels, too. I gave Will some bedroom slippers which I had worked myself, and he seems delighted with them. I wish you could know Will. I am sure you would admire him.

By the way, I must tell you of another person I have lately met, connected with Pittsfield days, though I never knew him there. This is a young man named Marshall Field, who tells me he used to clerk in Deacon Davis' store on North street in Pittsfield. Do you remember seeing him there? He went to work for Deacon Davis in 1851, he tells me, so he was in the store in our time, but we were allowed to go downtown so little, it is small wonder we never saw him. He is a fine, hard working young man, and seems to have every qualification for success. He is clerking in Cooley-Wadsworths'.

Father is thinking of moving a little farther out. The Blairs have built a handsome house on Michigan avenue, near Harrison street, into which they have recently moved, and we feel their leaving the neighborhood very much. Yet it is quite a distance out there and father hardly likes to go so far.

The price of real estate in Chicago has been going up the last few years and the universal belief has been that it is too high, but father is beginning to think there is a basis for such valuation. He

Benefit Fashion Show on Tuesday Is Stellar Event

By Mildred Jaklon.

THE social program for this week is a formidable one, and several of the events will mark the garnering in of the fruits of some pretty strenuous activity on the part of society women and some equally strenuous contributing on the part of men. The St. Luke's benefit fashion show on Tuesday afternoon and evening will culminate a tremendous and businesslike drive on the part of the women's board of the hospital.

There is more than usual interest in the fashion show this year due to the radical change in styles, and the proceeds of the affair will undoubtedly be prodigious. The best looking and smartest matrons and debutantes are to serve as mannequins, and the boxholders list includes most of the best known names in town.

Airport Opened.

Other events engaging the interests of society people include the official opening and dedication of the new Curtiss 3 million dollar airport out near Glenview, this afternoon. Mrs. John Elliott Jenkins has been helping with the inviting of a large group of the air-minded of society to be present at the first annual "pageant of aerial progress" and the arrival of the 1929 National Air Tour, from 1 to 6 o'clock this afternoon.

The Church club of Chicago is to give a dinner and reception tomorrow evening at the Hotel La Salle for the Right Rev. Frank Theodore Woods, D. D., Lord Bishop of Winchester, England, and later in the week, on Thursday afternoon, there is the annual reception of the Art institute, always an interesting occasion.

Tea Will be Served.

Besides the annual exhibition of American paintings and sculpture, there is the series of tea tables, presided over by members of various of the city's women's clubs, in the different galleries of the institute to intrigue interest.

The Chicago Historical society is having a significant meeting on Friday evening, called especially by Charles B. Pike, president, to discuss the plans for the new historical museum and library building to be erected in Lincoln.

Casino Begins Its Program of a Gay Winter Season

By Mme. X.

THE Casino, that center and heart of Chicago's gayest life, is started on its winter program, dinners and luncheons for visiting notabilities being daily occurrences there. Since it closed last June it has done quite a little in the way of improvements to meet its growing social responsibilities. It has added three private dining rooms. They are not quite finished yet, but enough so to realize that they are going to be in perfect accord with the rest of the building, which is one of the most attractive and exquisite of its kind in the country. In fact, this chronicler has never seen anything to touch it for gay elegance and charming originality. It is largely the creation of two important social leaders, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and Mrs. John A. Carpenter.

These two women make a great team. Mrs. Coleman has been president of the club ever since it started in 1912. It was in Mrs. Carpenter's drawing room on Rush street that the Casino was born, and her taste has directed its esthetic activities ever since, creating for it a background that has given it a distinction and beauty not excelled in any other similar enterprise anywhere else.

Small Group Sponsored It.

The idea of the Casino, however, really emanated from the fertile brain of the then Miss Lucy Blair [now Mrs. Howard Linn], who suggested it to a small group of well known Chicagoans of that era. I can't remember all of those on hand at Mrs. Carpenter's that day the plan was presented, but among them were the Arthur Meekers [Mr. Meeker is vice president] and Howard Gillatts, who has been chairman of the house committee since the club started.

Others also there were, if I'm not mistaken, Eames MacVeagh, the Harold C. Howards, the John H. Winterbothams, the late Mrs. James Keeley, Colin Fyffe [since the beginning the legal counsellor and member of the board] and, of course, Miss Blair, now Mrs. Linn.

The two original promoters, Mesdames Coleman and Carpenter, the former in California, the latter in Vermont, have both been alarmingly ill this summer, but both are on the road to recovery now. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will soon return to their house on Rush street which their daughter, Miss "Ginnie" Carpenter, and her cousin, Mrs. Shreve Badger, have been putting in order for their home coming. Mrs. Coleman, who has been at her son's house in Montecito, Santa Barbara's famous suburb, will also, it is hoped by her family, be able to come home by November.

An Able Director.

Without Mrs. Coleman's intelligent and able direction and Mrs. Carpenter's genius in designing and equipping the club's interior, the Casino would not be what it is today, a unique and brilliant enterprise. Mrs. Carpenter has done more to give a chic and exquisite background to Chicago's social life than any other directing force. She was the author of the Arts club's charming interior, [she is president of this influential organization] and she also created the charming new adornment and furnishing for Chicago's oldest women's club, the Fortnightly, on Bellevue place.

In spite of Puritan prejudices and preachings, outer appearance counts for much in this mundane world, whether it be in dress or in the backgrounds for life's daily activities. A torn, ragged and unsightly frock depletes self confidence; an untidy, tasteless, shabby room or office undermines self respect. When both clothes and setting are chic, neat, trim and attractive, self esteem is strengthened and ideals unconsciously rise in quality.

Mrs. Carpenter, who touches many circles and groups, has done more to develop keen interest and taste in interior decoration than any other force in our life. As this has not been for gain on her part, but because of an innate urge towards this form of art it can be mentioned in this p. p. p. Hers is an original talent that verges on genius. She helps make her contemporary fellow citizens sophisticated and "choosey" in the matter of daily life's backgrounds.

English Guests.

Lake Forest's gay younger set has been interested the last week in the visit there of an English couple, the Gerard Leighs, who are on their way to England after a sojourn with Mrs. Leigh's relatives, the Malcolm Moncrieffes, and the earl and countess of Portsmouth, who have ranches out in the Big Horn region of Wyoming. Mrs. Leigh is a descendant of Two well known old Chicago families, her paternal grandfather having been the late William C. Goudy, while her mother's father was the late Samuel J. Walker.

She and her husband are the guests of the third generation of Samuel J. Walkers at Lake Forest. Mrs. Leigh's mother, Mrs. William J. Goudy, died last winter after a protracted illness in her London home, so the Leighs are not accepting invitations to large or formal functions.

The former Helen Goudy is a belle and beauty, blonde in type and charming in manner. She and her husband belong to London's smartest set and are devoted to outdoor sports, especially hunting and cross country riding. Among their Lake Forest friends giving small and informal entertainments for them were the Donald M Ryersons, who were hosts at a dinner for them on Thursday evening.

The Portsmouths, Mrs. Leigh's uncle and aunt, will be passing through Chicago in a fortnight or so on their way to England for the winter. When the arctic regions descend on that part of Wyoming near the Big Horn range, where they have their ranch, life becomes a thing to be endured only if it cannot be evaded. The snows are deep and the winds are fierce. When, thirty odd years ago, the earl, then the Hon. Oliver Henry Wallop, first settled fourteen miles from Sheridan, he had herds of cattle and horses that had to be tended during the cold season. But, as is the way with thousands of acres of former grazing land, his large fields are now largely devoted to agriculture. He and his wife [formerly Miss Marguerite Walker of Chicago] spend their winters in England.

Lingering on North Shore.

Apropos of winter, I don't know if it's the same with my readers, but the X family finds the cold of October in the country colder than that of December, even though the family furnace is burning up the supply of oil at a great rate. I suppose that the body gets toned up to a greater endurance later on at the approach of winter. This susceptibility to autumn's chill sends many a country dweller back to the city's warm bright lights sooner than was the intention when first the reds and golds of the season came to give false warmth to mankind on the threshold of the polar days to come.

However, still lingering in the popular region north of Chicago and along the lake shore are quite a number of well known folk. The A. A. Carpenters, who have with them in Lake Forest their son-in-law and daughter, the Stuart Otises, are not coming in town until November. The Otises are building a house near that of the Carpenters on Woodbine road. The Carpenters son and daughter-in-law, the Keith Carpenters, also live close by in an attractive abode completed last year. Mrs. Keith Carpenter was Miss Anita Dunn, a daughter of the Morrill Dunns who used to live in Chicago but now are Detroiters.

The Samuel Insulls are others who also are sojourning in the country. They returned ten days ago to their beautiful estate near Libertyville and will not become townsfolk until Nov. 1. Four days later will be the date for what promises to be the winter's highest high spot, the opening in its new home of the Chicago Civic Opera company. This will be one of those brilliant occasions which will be lettered in red and long remembered. Tickets for the occasion are at a premium and years hence the descendants and those who come after us of today will be told, as in a legend, of the opening of the new opera house.

A Beautiful Setting.

It is a thing of great beauty, a rich and glowing setting for one of the city's most brilliant institutions. A glimpse of it last Monday was enchanting. The interior is soft gold and a lovely pink, "Egyptian pink," in tone. On entering from the street the visitor finds him or her self in a stately foyer, whose decorations have an oriental quality, suggesting Egypt or some such splendid past civilization, and yet with more than a touch of the ultra modern in the hanging chandeliers whose lights glow through alabaster panels.

The lighting of the great auditorium is indirect and softly glowing and should be most becoming to fair ladies and their jewels and frocks. There is no trying glare, just a well diffused radiance such as might come at or just before dawn in Egypt or Arizona. It is quite indescribable and lovely. From the stage looking out into the auditorium it is as if the great empty space leapt gently up to the distant upper gallery, a mighty jewel case, fit setting for grand opera.

It is particularly urged that every one be prompt on the opening night; O, but really prompt and on time! Those who are not will miss a simple ceremony all the more impressive because it will so simple. So, hosts and hostesses, speed up your dinners that night, or cut them short lest you disturb this rite with which the new opera house will start out on what it is safe to prophesy will be a brilliant career.

One last assurance: there was not a little sorrow on the part of habitues of the old Auditorium lest, in leaving that shrine of melody, we were leaving what many people consider the best hall, acoustically speaking, that was ever built for music. Reports say, however, that the new opera house was recently tested by one of the great artists of the company and pronounced to be perfect. Of course, it was not filled with a large audience which sometimes makes a difference, but usually an empty hall reverberates and destroys sound when a full one brings out the full beauty of a voice. So here's hoping for the best.

Today's Social Event.

An interesting social event today is the luncheon which Harold Swift, chairman of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago, is giving for the university's president and Mrs. Robert Maynard Hutchins. This young couple [and the youth is much dwelt on by Chicagoans] is in the process of making what in the vernacular would be called "a great hit" here. Chicago is a young and vigorous city, and when it comes to it young and vigorous people in whatever capacity they come. The first president of the university, the late William Rainey Harper, was only 35, three years older than Mr. Hutchins, when he came and laid the foundations for the present imposing institution.

A charming affair was the musicale given Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson in the Lake Forest mansion to inaugurate the completion of their beautiful new organ. Herbert E. Moore gave a program of fine music on the organ, assisted by George Morgan, the well known tenor. Society was there in full force.

Every one is interested in meeting these latest additions to Chicago

CLUB ETHICS . . . . By Maude Swaim Evans.

SEVERAL new presidents and an ex-president met at the lunch table after the morning meeting of their district organization.

"I was much interested in the speaker who warned the newly elected to go easy about making radical changes in the established order of things," commented the president of the Parko club. "It's been quite a problem in my club—the nice adjustment between the established and the new."

"I guess it is in every club, at times," observed the president of the East End club. "Sometimes it's a new chairman or officer who wants to sweep aside the old without reservations, and again it's some over-conservative members who think we should go on year after year doing the same old things in the same old way just because we have been doing them that way."

"Our old friends, precedent and initiative, and their everlasting struggle for the control of our actions," smiled the ex-president.

"I don't care what you call them," came back the Parko president, "they cause a lot of trouble. My house chairman wanted to change our place of meeting even if the rooms she'd set her heart on did cost more than we could afford, and our program chairman was bound she was going to substitute one frolic for our usual reciprocity day and another for our spring musical. We finally compromised by adding another room to our old quarters, and planning to entertain our reciprocity day visitors with a frolic."

"I consider that an extremely nice adjustment of precedent and initiative," reflected the Hill club president, "building the new on the old. The old represents the foundation of our work; the new represents progress."

"In other words, if you want to feel safe and snug, follow precedent, but if you want to get a thrill out of your work, try initiative," advised the East End president.

Question.

"How long should an introduction speech be?"—Mary P.

Reply.

Just long enough to tell the audience the things about the speaker they should know to appreciate his or her talk properly.

Ganna Walska Hostess at Her French Chateau

Buys a Beautiful Estate Near Paris.

By May Birkhead.
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The most recent American to acquire a French chateau within striking distance of Paris is Mme. Ganna Walska. Last spring she bought the Chateau de Galluis, about thirty miles from the capital, an ancient chateau which is in such good condition and furnished with such excellent taste that little preparation is necessary for immediate occupancy. It is a property of exceptional charm. Architecturally it belongs to the time of Louis XIII.

It is situated slightly northwest of Mont l'Amaury, almost on the northern edge of the forest at Rambouillet. In going from Paris the road passes through Versailles. Early in the eighteenth century it came into possession of the Boutret family, and the last notable owner was a baron of that name. A wooded avenue of approach is kept in the best of old tradition. The chateau is ivy covered, has an extensive garden and is fronted with old stepping stones across the basis.

Gives Housewarming.

In the interior a large Louis XV. salon shows some handsome woodwork, an old fashioned painted piano, a long low bench before the fireplace and an attractive Louis XV. chandelier.

Madame Walska opened the chateau de Galluis recently for a housewarming and had many distinguished guests from the musical world. The American screen star, Adolphe Menjou, and his wife, Kathryn Carver, were also present.

Mr. and Mrs. Menjou are arranging to appear in three films, the first talkies ever made in France, and will begin work with Pathe Nov. 1. Mr. Menjou, who speaks several languages, referred to the difference between the French and American attitudes toward the latest development of the art of the screen. He was struck by the fact that the French are inclined to confuse the sound pictures with the talkies, known also as the squawkies. While the American audience is not adverse to an occasional French phrase, the audiences over here rather resent having any words used except their native speech.

Talkies in Three Tongues.

Mr. Menjou remarked that his own contract calls for three pictures, two of which are being done both in English and French, while the third also includes Italian. He deplored the reports of his exaggerated American salary, saying that he had not reached what he considered exorbitant, the figure of $7,500 per week.

The Menjous have taken a Paris apartment on the Rue Copernic near the Arch of Triumph.

Also among Madame Walska's guests was the Maharajah of Indore and his wife, the former Nancy Miller, known as the Maharanee Sharmista who, despite her American birth, wears a red mark on her forehead indicating royal rank and the sovereign's consort.

asks me to send this clipping with the suggestion that you show it to your father and ask what he thinks of the reasoning.

"A lot was sold last spring in Boston, on State street, where the most valuable property is (23x56) for $90,000, or $3,913 per front foot. This is at least three times as high as the best property in Chicago. Chicago population is 100,000; Boston, 160,000. If Chicago property, at present valuation, were doubled, it would then be only on a par with Boston. In addition, Chicago has a future, which Boston has not, and which no other city has."

I must not bore you with real estate news, however, and I must close, as Will is coming this evening.

Your loving friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN.

FOOT NOTES

T. B. Carter's dry goods store was one of the finest in Chicago in the fifties. A daughter of Mr. Carter, Mrs. Nitchie, lived until recently in Evanston, but the name has died out.

The connection of the first Marshall Field with Pittsfield, where he made his advent in the mercantile world in Deacon Davis' store, may be noted in the Pittsfield buildingn recently erected at Wabash avenue and Washington street, in Chicago. Marshall Field in his will left a handsome legacy to the daughters of his old employer, Deacon Davis. The present Mrs. Marshall Field lives in Washington, D. C., where she entertains handsomely, as she did in Chicago.

Marshall Field III., heir to the great estate which his grandfather founded when he came to work for Cooley, Wadsworth & Co. in 1857, lives in New York. Stanley Field is a nephew of the first Marshall Field. Mrs. A. A. Sprague is a niece.

The Blair house, mentioned as being built on Michigan avenue, was torn down to make way for an addition to the Congress hotel in 1906.

Here is the way to get more for your money

Get Clicquot Club Pale Dry. It comes in full 16-ounce pints, ⅓ more than you get in any other nationally known dry ginger ale.

This glass shows how much more you get in every bottle

SURPRISING as it may seem, Clicquot Club Pale Dry is the only nationally known dry ginger ale that comes in full size pint bottles. Most dry ginger ales are put up in little 12-ounce bottles, 4 ounces less than a pint.

This one fact alone is bringing new users to Clicquot Club every day. And once they try this ginger ale . . . once they taste its delicate flavor . . . no other ginger ale will ever do.

The ingredients we use are fine Jamaica ginger, pure table sugar, mellow syrup of ripe fruit juices, and pure rock spring water with a double charge of carbonation.

The Flavor Secret

There's a secret behind this Clicquot Club flavor. A secret known to Clicquot Club alone.

Our ingredients are skillfully blended and carefully aged by our own exclusive process.

Clicquot long ago discovered that ageing gives ginger ale a riper and more mellow flavor. That is why you'll never find another ginger ale to equal Clicquot Club Pale Dry.

More Economical

And in addition, you'll find that Clicquot Club in full 16-ounce pints is the most economical way of buying ginger ale. There's never quite enough in a skimpy little 12-ounce bottle. And those near-quarts may "go flat" before you can use them up.

So when you buy ginger ale again, compare a bottle of Clicquot Club Pale Dry with a so-called "pint" of any other nationally known dry ginger ale. Note how much more Clicquot gives you for your money.

Then compare these ginger ales for flavor. Note the sparkling zest and mellowness of Clicquot Club Pale Dry. Try it today at your dealer's. It comes in clean new bottles.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

heirarchy, the folk who give us our distinction and shape our destinies.

To all but a few of his intimate friends, the news of the marriage of Eames MacVeagh to Miss Zelie Barthelmy came as a huge surprise. He has so long been one of Chicago's most conspicuous, most unmitigated bachelors that to think of him as a Benedick is not easy for the majority of those who knew him. But a handful of his friends were aware of his admiration and friendship for the gentle, shy, intelligent young French woman, daughter of Antonin Barthelmy, formerly French consul to Chicago. To those friends his quiet marriage was not unanticipated.

The bride comes of a fine old French family. Her grandfather, Antonin Barthelmy, was minister of arts and there are extant of him two portraits by Manet, a bust by Rodin, two etchings by Zorn, and a painting in the Pantheon by Joseph Le Blanc in which he is depicted as standing with Pasteur, Gambetta, and other celebrities. Miss Barthelmy herself is known in France because of her work during the war. She was decorated by Albert, king of the Belgians [the proper way to speak of him], with the cross of the order of King Leopold for her services as a war nurse.

Married in Peterboro.

She has made for herself a real place here by her quiet and charming personality. The marriage ceremony took place in All Saints Episcopal church at Peterboro, N. H. The church is a quaint and exquisite piece of architecture of granite and is early 13th century Gothic in style. It is situated at the foot of a steep hill against a background of pines, spruce and hemlocks and is the goal of many tourists in that region because of its picturesque quality and lovely site.

The wedding journey of the MacVeaghs is well under way and will include England [Mrs. MacVeagh's mother is English] and France [where her father is living] and Italy. They will probably live in Mr. MacVeagh's handsome apartment at 900 North Michigan avenue when they return, at least for a time. He has there many of the treasures that his mother, the late Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh, collected in her travels abroad, including a wonderful carved wood screen which she brought back from India and which is set high over the mantel in Eames MacVeagh's two storied drawing room. Through its openwork carvings the light from a silver papered room upstairs shines down on the panelled space below in a lovely fashion. There are also fine bronzes and handsome furniture from the MacVeagh mansions in Chicago and Washington.

The fashion show which will be held at the Stevens hotel on Tuesday afternoon and evening is occupying much attention and promises to be one of the best of its kind ever held here. Never has there been a keener desire to study the new fashions than is manifested this year by my ex. Parisian dressmakers are sending us a line of garments of quite a new shape and cut from any they've offered us for years. I expressed my sentiments about these strange modes last Sunday, so will only urge all who can to attend this fashion affair and to help make it a brilliant occasion.

The proceeds from this show will go toward the funds annually collected by the Woman's Board of St. Luke's hospital and spent by them for the hospital and spent by them for the hospital's social service work and other kindred causes.

St. Luke's is the city's oldest free bed hospital and is linked with Chicago's early history. The list of those who helped found it reads like a roster of the prominent men and women of the sixties and seventies. It was started in 1864 by a body of women who had been in hospital work in the civil war. Dr. Clinton Locke, a famous divine of that day, was its moving spirit. There was only one other hospital in the city and that was a pay institution. The names given me by Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the woman's board, of those who were among the founders of St. Luke's includes those of Mr. and Mrs. N. K. Fairbank, J. W. Doane, Leslie Carter, W. K. Ackerman, William G. Hibbard, George M. Pullman, Perry Smith, John de Koven, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. H. O. Stone, Mrs. Charles W. Brega, Mrs. Henry M. Shepard and J. P. Tilden.

Mrs. Gary also sent me a quaint old card invitation to a ball given for "St. Luke's Free Hospital," in October, 1867, at Mrs. Johnson's Music hall. Tickets were $5 each, with $13 charged for "gentleman and two ladies."

The names of the committee on the invitation recall so much to those who hark back to other days. I. N. Arnold, Dr. C. G. Smith, C. Fleetwood, P. Wadsworth, Ira Bowen, R. Lincoln, A. C. Badger, George L. Dunlap—all these were men who stood high in the city's esteem of that time, yet who now remembers them or casts a thought on their works?

Art in the Schools.

Mrs. Shreve Badger, the wife of a grandson of one of those on this ball committee, asks me to call your attention to a tea to be given next Friday at the Chester Johnson gallery to raise money for the Public School Art society. This organization started in 1900 and undertakes to buy and present to our public schools copies of the world's best pictures, in order to help educate the children in what is good art.

There will be an exhibit at the gallery of an unusually interesting collection of paintings of what can be called the best that modern art has produced. Represented there will be Picasso, Matisse, Gauguin, Redon, Renoir, Van Gogh, and many other leading artists. Serving at the tea tables will be the Mesdames R. H. McCormick, Duncan Hodges, Philip Maher, Clay Judson, Charles H. Chadwick, Robert Maynard Hutchins, William Nitze, W. J. Jarratt, Weber Linn, Dallas B. Phemister, Princess Michael Cantacuzene, and Miss Katherine Dudley.

The visit here last week of the maharaja of Kapurthala was made the occasion of much entertaining. Mrs. Frank Fuller, who had met and known him in Paris and in India, gave a dinner and musical for him at the Onwentsia club Sunday evening, while Col. and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis entertained him at luncheon that same day at the Casino.

The Hindoo potentate is a genial mortal and given to asking many questions, intelligent ones that show his interest in matters outside his own land. He is the absolute ruler over 650,000 people. He has four wives. He is considered one of the most enlightened native rulers in India.

He wore here the customary garb of the European. There are, however, some Chicagoans old enough to remember his visit to us during the World's Fair of 1893, when he usually appeared in flowing robes and a gorgeous golden turban fastened near the crest with a huge and splendid emerald. Times change and we with them.

MRS. WALTER J. STEVENS was, before her marriage on Oct. 3, Miss Eloise Kresse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Robert Kresse of 6800 Jeffery avenue.

MISS PHOEBE F. HIRSHEY.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hirshey of 1311 Elmdale avenue of the engagement of their daughter, Phoebe Frances, to William R. Dutcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew James Dutcher of 1538 Fargo avenue.

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Hoovers Put People Above Rote and Rubric

ter-hostess. The second dinner is for the diplomatic corps, and Lady Isabella Howard, doyenne of the corps, will be the ranking guest. The third dinner, to the Supreme court, will find Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the chief justice, to the right of the President. And the fourth dinner is in honor of the speaker of the house, and Mrs. Longworth will have the seat of honor.

Roosevelt Started It.

Theodore Roosevelt's characteristic daughter can really thank her father that she and Mrs. Gann are not asked to the same state dinner. Up until the Roosevelt regime, the speaker of the house was included in the cabinet dinner list. But Uncle Joe Cannon, amiable but proud, refused to go to a dinner where he would have to look up the table. So Roosevelt added the speaker's dinner to the official list, and it has been retained ever since. Washington gossip is busy, of course, wondering if the Ramsay MacDonald dinner affair will cause the speaker's dinner to be changed this year.

In addition to these four state dinners there are four official receptions, which also start in December. The first and most brilliant is in honor of the diplomatic corps. This year it will be particularly interesting, for it will be the last one which Sir Esme Howard, dean of the corps, will attend. He retires Feb. 2, and, according to the law of rotation by date of residence here, the new dean will be Dr. Hernan Velarde, ambassador from Cuba.

Following the diplomatic reception comes one to the judiciary, then the congressional reception, and, last, one in honor of the army and the navy.

Will There Be Food?

A practical question mark which is being thrust up just now is, "Will there be food at these receptions?"

The Roosevelts always bid some sixty or seventy intimates upstairs for a supper of chicken salad, coffee, and cakes. The genial Taft insisted that everybody who came to the White House be fed. During the Coolidge administration guests were refreshed from a large vat marked "ice water."

This double quartet of dinners and receptions, together with the New Year's open house to the public, constitute the minimum of entertaining to which the Hoovers may reduce their coming winter's program. They may and probably will add the customary four spring musicals and four garden parties.

Where Details Count.

From there the way is theirs. And, paradoxically, it is this incidental entertaining which is likely to be the most important. Possessed of a social prestige that antedates the counting of the ballots last November, theirs is a catholic circle of friends.

Washington, ever eager to learn the tiny trivialities of White House life, is wondering if the Hoovers will serve refreshments, if Mrs. Hoover will wear a train, and if they will establish new precedents by breaking old ones.

BETROTHED

MISS RAE MAGILL.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Magill of Athens, Ala., announce the engagement of their daughter, Rae, to Jack Goldberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Goldberg of 711 South Kenneth avenue.

Newport's Not Yet a Deserted Village

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Villas and cottages continue to be closed as the autumn swings into its stride. There are, however, many homes that will remain open some time longer.

One of the events of the week was the birth of a son to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Shaw Safe in Providence. Mrs. Safe is the former Louise King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Thorn King of Tuxedo Park.

Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard closed her villa and sailed for New York with Mr. Ledyard and Mr. and Mrs. George F. Baker Jr., who were aboard the yacht Viking. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paris have also gone to New York for the winter. Mr. and Mrs. William Greenough, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland F. Bacon, and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Fristow have also gone to New York.

American Artists Hold Annual Show

Exhibit to Open This Week at Art Institute

Students Have Chance at Several Prizes.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THURSDAY will see the opening of the most important exhibition held each year at the Art institute. This will be the forty-second annual showing of American paintings and sculpture in the east wing galleries. Last Tuesday the jury met at the Art institute to select works of art to be shown; the New York jury met on Oct. 4 and passed upon the work submitted by the artists living east of the Allegheny mountains. These various pieces have now arrived at the museum. They show broadening tendencies toward simplification, strength of design and composition. Individual expression, striking technique, and unusual color forms are much in evidence.

A number of interesting canvases have been received from the west, and the New Mexico happy hunting grounds for painters, around Taos, will be well represented. Chicago artists will also be present as exhibitors when the galleries open. The prize awards, amounting to $7,100, are the largest sums awarded at any annual art exhibition in America.

Chief among them are the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and $2,500 as a purchase or an award to an American artist for the best work in painting or sculpture which has not previously received a cash award, not to be given to the same artist two years in succession, and the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $1,500 (to be given for similar reasons), and the Potter Palmer gold medal and $1,000 for painting or sculpture.

Committees of Award.

The awarding of these three principal prizes has been the food of keen discussion and keener disgust for several years. We approach the discovery Thursday of what the jury has done with all the anticipation of a Christmas stocking. What a wonderful shock of delight it will be if the public approves of the jury's decisions. Last year no one was satisfied except the successful artists and the men who gave the prizes, and these last, it was rumored, were not satisfied in every case so much as resigned. A modernist plurality in the jurors foretold the results.

This year the makeup of the juries is as follows: The jury of acceptance, Ernest L. Blumenschein, Robert Brackman, Alexander Brook, Claude Buck, Edmund Giesbert, Alfred Hamill, and Mahonri Young, painters; John David Brcin, Olga Chassaing, Heinz Warneke, and Mahonri Young, sculptors; the committee of painting and sculpture of the Art institute (and this committee, I believe, is responsible for the awarding of the prizes) consists of Charles H. Worcester, Cyrus McCormick Jr., Chauncey McCormick, Arthur T. Aldis, Percy B. Eckhart, John A. Holabird, Alfred E. Hamill, and Frederic C. Bartlett.

Art Institute Classes.

The evening school of the Art institute is under way again. These evening classes supply instruction to all kinds and types of students. A man who is being sent abroad by a jewelry firm has enrolled for drawing, for, though he knows nothing of it, he feels he will meet with greater success on his mission if he knows the fundamentals of correct drawing. For all reasons, and none, this evening school is the goal of an ever increasing number of students.

To accomodate students in the Saturday school who could not be taken care of in the morning classes, a course in life drawing and one in still life painting will be given on Saturday afternoons.

The Swedish Arts and Crafts company, 161 East Ohio street, announces its fall exhibition of handicrafts. Prof. Carl Milles, the great Swedish sculptor whose fountain is to be another magnificent testimonial to the artistic strength of Chicago, was present at the opening last Monday.

Two exhibitions, one by the faculty and the other by the students of the National Academy of Art, opened last Monday in the galleries of Alexander H. Revell & Co. Among the faculty exhibiting are Hubert Ropp, William P. Welsh, Katherine Patton, R. Fayerweather Babcock, Peter Charles Diem, Emile J. Grumieaux, Viola Norman, and Ferd Johnson.

"FRESH-AIR TAXI," by Carl Hallsthammar, one of the amusing pieces of wood carving in his current exhibit in the Marshall Field galleries. Mr. Hallsthammar's one-man show has created much amusement and interest in those who have spared a few minutes to investigate it. The artist is represented in a number of private collections, including the Children's museum at the Art institute.

Coming Exhibits.

The Palette and Chisel club announces the first exhibition for the year to be held in November. It will be the annual sketch and small picture exhibit and sale.

The current show at the Chicago galleries will be followed early in November by an exhibit of paintings by Charles Kilgore and landscapes by Frank C. Peyraud, and water colors by Thomas Hall. The annual members' show of the association will be held in December.

Opening last Wednesday and running to Oct. 26 there is at Spaulding's on Michigan avenue at Van Buren, an exhibit of bronzes by well known American sculptors. Such artists as Harriet Frishmuth, Allan Clark and Edith Parsons are among the exhibitors.

At the Knoedler galleries there is current an exhibition of etchings by Jean Louis Forain. It will continue to Nov. 2.

The Barnes foundation announces the second edition of "The Aesthetic Experience," by Laurence Buermeyer, assistant professor of philosophy, Washington Square college, New York university. The Barnes foundation is also publishing a book entitled "Art and Education," by Dewey, Barnes, Buermeyer, Munro, etc.

Word comes from Miss Grace Hammill that the Austrian Werkbund is becoming more and more strongly established and that it seems possible a comprehensive exhibit will be shown here in November, or December at the latest. Part of the exhibit will be displayed in Kroch's new gallery; the other exhibit of the handicrafts will be at the Art institute.

Prizes for Art Students.

The students of the National Academy of Art, 230 East Ohio street, will receive the stimulus of five new prizes for good work done during the year. Four of these will be given by Alexander H. Revell & Co. Two will be awarded at the end of the winter term and two at the end of the spring term.

The George L. Dickson prize, which is given each year for the best sculptural composition produced in the first year classes, will be renamed, by Mr. Dickson's request, the Reynolds Bennett prize. The other new award offered this year will also be given in the name of this promising young student of the academy, who died last month.

It is not often that as young an artist as Reynolds Bennett (he would have been 21 his next birthday) should leave behind him such pleasant memories that two donors wish to have his name permanently remembered in this way. Both donors feel that the spirit Mr. Bennett showed toward his work, his ability, and his gay, lovable personality should have permanent recognition.

The Ackermann galleries announce the publication of an aquatint engraving in colors of Chicago in 1831. The engraving presents a view of Fort Dearborn and John Kinzie's house. This is published in a limited edition of 125 signed proofs. Chicago in 1831 consisted apparently of the fort with a flag flying, a stockade, sloping open land to the river, on which floated a skiff and a sailing boat; several clumps of tall trees, and a few sturdy houses dotted about. The engraving is extremely interesting. It is by R. Varin, who has already published a set of twelve views of Chicago in the 1850s and a set of four "Chicago from the River" in the years 1833, 1865, 1871, and 1928.

The National Academy of Art opened its gallery last Monday with an exhibition of work by Emile J. Grumieaux. The paintings are representative of the artist's work during the last few years and include the painting which was shown in the American artists' exhibition at the Art institute. Water colors and oils make up the exhibit.

Albright in Carnegie Exhibit.

The Arts club opened its galleries for the first time this season last Friday with the annual exhibition of plans and drawings by students of the Foundation for Architecture and Landscape Architecture, whose session has just closed at Lake Forest. The exhibit will run through the month.

Word comes that Ivan Le Lorraine Albright is represented in this year's twenty-eighth international Carnegie exhibition by two canvases: "Paper Flowers" and "The Man with a Mallet." The international opened Oct. 16, with a private view.

Sargent Work in Today's Supplement

WITH THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE today you will find, as a supplement, a beautiful reproduction of "The Parisian Beggar Girl," by Sargent. Some authorities say the painting is called "The Spanish Beggar Girl." Paul Schulze of Chicago, who owns the painting, bought it in Paris, and, realizing how much time the artist had spent in Paris during the period in which this canvas was produced, he insists on titling it "The Parisian Beggar Girl."

Work of an American.

John Singer Sargent was, of course, an American painter. He was born in Florence, Italy, in 1856, and he studied art under Carolus Duran. His life was highly successful. In England, in 1897, he was elected a member of the Royal academy, and in the same year he was elected a member of the National Academy of Design in New York.

Sargent is famous for both his figure pieces and his portraits—he painted Theodore Roosevelt and a number of other celebrated Americans—and for his murals.

Known for His Murals.

Possibly his mural decorations for the Boston Public library are as well known as anything he ever did. He was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

He died April 15, 1925. E. J.

German Describes Seasickness Cure He Has Used 2 Years

BERLIN.—(AP)—For the first time the therapeutic results of the treatment of seasickness with vasano have been published by Dr. F. Metzler, ship's physician on the liner Hamburg, who has described his experiences with the drug in cases running over a period of two years.

Dr. Metzler found that if vasano was administered early enough it invariably prevented mal-de-mer even in passengers who had suffered from the disease for years. In the milder form of seasickness, he says, tablets of vasano did the trick, whereas in persistent and more aggravated cases vasano suppositories were indicated, the curative effects setting in within half an hour and continuing, if not leading to a radical cure, at least 12 hours.

Vasano administered in conjunction with a soporific Dr. Metzler also found highly efficacious. He considers hypodermic injections the ideal form for administering the drug.

Baron and Baroness Entertain at Bridge

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Baron and Baroness Rosenkrantz, who are among the noted colonists here, gave a bridge and luncheon this week at their home, Rosellos. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Philip Kip Rhinelander, Mrs. Henry Martyn Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Charlton, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Waller, Miss Mary Alice Waller, Mr. and Mrs. George Batchellor, Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Le Roy Dow, Mr. and Mrs. George Sanford, and Marchese Giovanni Carignani. Also France Miller, Francesca McKenny, Claire Kellogg, Frances Gillmore, Eleanor McKnight, and Florence Michel.

New York Nears Social High Tide

By Nancy Randolph.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—[Special.]—If there is one man in New York who ever manages to be before the public eye, it is Preston Gibson. Not only does Preston, at present, I believe, in Paris, keep interest by his actions, but if he himself is quiescent, then one of his numerous ex-wives manages some little affair that brings a thought of the tall Mr. Gibson before all of us.

Since long before the war Preston Gibson has been more or less in hot water. When he wasn't quarreling with a wife, or getting a divorce, he was quarreling with some one else. One of the cause célèbrès of some eight or nine years ago was the fisticuffs encountered between Preston and Norman Trevor, the ill-fated moving picture actor.

This time, however, it isn't Preston himself who has caused the tea tables to twitter this last week, but his No. 4 wife, the erstwhile Evelyn Spaulding, daughter of the Harris Spauldings of Haverhill, Mass., and a truly stunning brunette.

Former Mrs. Preston Gibson Marries.

Preston and Mrs. Gibson No. 4 were frightfully happy during their short married life, most of which was spent in Paris. Yet last year Mrs. Gibson No. 4 returned to this country and made tracks almost immediately for Reno, whence came news to her friends that she was seeking her freedom. She insisted, though, that despite the attentions of Rob Roy Converse, she had no intentions of marrying again. Need I say that this week saw the former Mrs. Gibson become Mrs. Rob Roy Converse at East Parsonfield, Me.?

Converse is a war veteran and a Yale graduate and the couple are coming to New York and a Park avenue apartment later this month and will sail for Europe during the winter—not, I suppose, to visit Preston.

The Plaza is going to miss Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer. For ages the Tailers had a huge suite at the hostelry, where the late Mr. Tailer gave dozens of dinner parties, not only for his contemporaries but for the friends of his daughter, Betty, and his son, Tommy Tailer Jr.

Since the lamented passing of Mr. Tailer, whose gold mashie tournament on Ocean links at Newport was a bright spot in summer sports, Mrs. Tailer has been most inactive. At Newport this year she refused all invitations to go out, and seemed willing to let Tommy Jr. carry on the traditions of his genial father. Mrs. Tailer has taken an apartment far up the avenue and will spend little time in town.

Debutante Luncheon at Pierre's.

The debutantes naturally are busy these days. One meets them along the avenue scurrying to keep their appointments. The hospitable Pierre gave a luncheon at his restaurant this week for all the buds who are aiding the dance to be given at his place on the 26th for the benefit of the New York City committee for the control of cancer.

Among the girls at the luncheon were Mary Delafield, Kathleen Curtis, Theresa Townsend, Frances Auchincloss, Colette O'Connor, Eleanor Gray, Helena Gales, Mildred Davis, Florence Riker, Rosalind Kress, Janet Stone, Eugenia Morris, Alice Morris III., Ruth Quakenbush, Mary Pell, Marleigh Kramer, Frances Robbins, Grace Millburn, Mary Du Bois, Margery Stoddard, Louise Vietor, Christine Fish, Lois Barstow, Gertrude Vander Poel, Cornelia Kip and June Blossom.

Also Josephine Phillips, Constance Bruen, Rose Davis, Barbara Bender, Katrinka Suydam, Louise Boone, Susan Hall, Jessica Van Beuren, Nathalie Lee Laimbeer, and Genevieve Kellogg.

"My Skin Nearly Drove Me Mad"
"I had blemishes and blackheads so badly, and used to fuss with them so much that my face looked red and raw. On the advice of a nurse friend I got a jar of Rowles Mentho Sulphur and used it faithfully for ten days. In 3 days' time there was a big difference in my skin and today it is as soft and clear as my ten year old sister's."
The sulphur in Rowles Mentho Sulphur clears the skin while the Menthol heals the sore, broken tissue. That's the twofold action you want for skin troubles. Try Rowles Mentho Sulphur not only for pimples and blackheads, but for dry, scaly skin, rash, and itching eczema. IT WORKS! All druggists sell it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

WHEN THE SMILE OF YOUTH Steals Beauty
GLANCE at your face in the mirror when you smile. What a lot of little lines it takes to make a smile or any of the other expressions that constantly play over charming faces. And how soon these expressions etch permanent wrinkles into the skin.
How can you stop this thieving of beauty? Marie Earle, the famous specialist who for nineteen years has cared for the skins of society's most beautiful women in her Paris and New York salons, now offers you her Basic Beauty Treatment for the silken unlined skin of youth.
A few minute's care each day in your own home keeps the skin so smooth and supple that expression lines cease to leave their wrinkle traces. Marie Earle's treatment is so simple you need only her Essential Cream, Cucumber Emulsion and the lotion prepared for your type of skin.

"Just a Few Friends"
A Homelike, "Chummy" Dinner at Chicago's

Morrison Hotel

Tallest Hotel in the World
Most Central in Chicago

A PRIVATE DINNER, MORRISON HOTEL

The New Morrison, the world's tallest hotel, 46 stories high, will be, when completed, the largest and tallest, with 3,500 rooms.

THE expert, polished smoothness with which a private dinner is served at the Morrison Hotel, and the rare delicacy of the choice menus, show quite a contrast to the "folksy," homelike tone that prevails throughout the evening.

Just Like Your Own Dining Room

The success of these affairs reflects the long experience of the management in taking care of the smallest and largest parties. Those who entertain their guests here usually feel even more at home than under their own roof.

Why Rates Are Only $2.50 Up

The central location, so convenient for banquets and receptions, is also the main factor in the singularly low rate scale throughout the hotel. The subleases here return an income that defrays all the ground rent, and the saving is enjoyed by the guests, who pay lower figures than are charged elsewhere for similar rooms.

Every Room With Bath

All rooms are outside, with bath, running ice water, bed-head lamp, telephone and Servidor. Every floor has its housekeeper. Radio sets are being installed in every room throughout the building.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

To some, the ocean voyage is the one drawback to a European Trip.

But others look forward to the voyage with as much anticipation as they look forward to Europe itself. Such are the travellers who have crossed with the Hamburg-American Line.

There are reasons—among them, the solid comfort of Hamburg-American Line ships, the refined atmosphere, congeniality and good fellowship, a world-famous cuisine, and a service developed to the point of perfection through over eighty years of experience.

NORTHMINSTER CHURCH PLANS ITS DEDICATION

Dr. McAfee to Speak at Main Service.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

THE REV. W. H. CARVER.

The new Northminster Presbyterian church, Central Park avenue and Harrison street, Evanston, will be dedicated next Sunday. Dr. Cleiland B. McAfee, moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church of the U. S. A., will preach at the morning service. At 4 p. m. the mother memorial organ will be dedicated with a sermon by Dr. Roy E. Vale, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Oak Park.

Dedicatory services will be held throughout the week. Monday night will be Evanston night when church leaders of the community will bring greetings. Wednesday night will be given over to the dedication of the new educational plant when Dr. Asa A. Ferry will be the speaker. Ernest S. Merlanti, Italian aviator, will be feted at the young people's dinner Friday night. On the following Sunday the first communion services in the new church will be conducted by the pastor. A week from Tuesday comes Chicago Presbyterian night.

The splendid new structure provides a complete church plant, threefold in character. In it are found a place of worship, a place for religious education, and a place for social fellowship. The project was designed, after much thought, to meet the needs of North Evanston's rapid growth of recent years.

Maximum Capacity of 500.

In general, the building is L shaped with the main axis line of the auditorium paralleling Central Park avenue, and with the Sunday school building running in an easterly direction at the north end of the auditorium. The normal seating capacity of the auditorium is 304 and there are 30 seats provided in the choir space. A wide center aisle and two subsidiary aisles are provided, one on each side of the auditorium. In front of the seating a liberal space is provided for the communion table and chairs for the session. When occasion demands, the total seating can be increased to approximately 500.

The choir space is recessed behind the pulpit platform and the organ console is in the front and center of the choir. The pulpit and reading desk are placed on either side of the pulpit platform.

The assembly room in the basement is suitable for many uses, including Sunday school assembly, church dinners and other social functions. Adjacent to it a kitchen of liberal dimensions is provided. North of the auditorium is the room provided for the Women's guild.

The building is designed in the style of the later period of English Gothic, and is of brick with stone trimming.

Church Founded in 1922.

The church organization dates back to 1922. After canvasses of the growing community had been made, a meeting was held in Lincolnwood school, at which it was decided to begin Bible school classes. By Easter, 1923, the work had so developed that it was decided to continue. In the following November the hour was changed to 10 a. m., and an adult service was added.

In January, 1923, a meeting was held which resulted in a petition to the presbytery of Chicago to organize the Northminster Presbyterian church of Evanston. The petition was granted and the church was organized on Jan. 21 with 57 charter members.

The Rev. Robert Lee Sawyier, B. D., who had been in charge of the work from the first, was called as the first pastor and installed March 4, 1923. The women of the church were organized into the Northminster guild the following June. The young people were organized into Fireside groups to meet Sunday evenings in the homes of members. A Boy Scout troop, No. 24, was organized in the spring of 1923.

During 1926 a lot was purchased in a choice location in North Evanston for the site of a church edifice.

Dr. Weir Temporary Minister.

The Rev. Mr. Sawyier asked, in the summer of 1926, to be relieved that he might accept the presidency of the Presbyterian Training school of Chicago, and the church was without a pastor until Feb. 4, 1927. During this period it had as pulpit supply the Rev. William F. Weir, D. D., director of men's work in the Presbyterian church.

The present pastor, the Rev. Walton Harper Carver, was installed Feb. 21, 1927. A graduate of Princeton university and of Princeton Theological seminary, he came from a ten-year pastorate at Rahway, N. J.

On Sunday, May 15, 1927, at a congregational meeting, a building committee was elected to institute and carry out a program for erecting a building. The committee was composed of John S. Small, chairman; David L. Williams, William C. Eberle, Alfred E. Yauger, Edgar K. Collins, Loyal J. Petrie, treasurer; James R. Cranna, president of the board of trustees, and the pastor.

On February, 1928, Northminster celebrated its fifth birthday and the first anniversary of the coming of the new pastor by clearing off the balance of the indebtedness on the church site. Miss Winifred Hull was selected as director of music and splendid programs of dancing choruses.

Kilgobbin Becomes Little Hell Then It's Named Goose Island

This article is the nineteenth of a series on names of streets, districts, and suburbs of the north side.

From geese and gas house to factory and railroad and from Kilgobbin to Goose island via Little Hell is the history in miniature of the 160 acre section that is surrounded completely by the waters of the north branch of the Chicago river and the Ogden, or north branch, canal.

When three Irish lords of the land evicted hundreds of their tenants and railroaded them to the United States, a carload reached Chicago and settled on the island that stretches crookedly from Chicago to North avenue between Halsted street and Racine avenue. Ogden's island it had been called when it was called anything and there were tanneries and small soap factories even then at the northern end.

But when the Irish came, they brought the name of Kilgobbin to it. Little Hell was added because of the nearby gas house with its nightly flames and smoke. And Goose Island it became and remained because of the geese they raised in the river channels.

Squatters Driven Out.

The southern end of the island was grassy and pleasant and, although the houses that were put up were little more than shacks, it was considered for a time a good place to live. But P. D. Armour put up his 2,500,000 bushel grain elevator and more and more railroads came through; docks were built into the channel and factories began to wipe out everything else. A son of one of the squatters who persisted in staying on the island was killed and with that as impetus the rest were forced out.

Before that, however, at least one factory had left the island and under rather unusual circumstances. Charles Cleaver had a soap works there in 1835. Some time later he moved it to the south side. He had recently built several houses for his workmen and conceived the bright idea of floating them down the river. There was a bridge, only one, in the way so, he writes: "I notified the city authorities that the bridge was obstructing public traffic and after a delay of a few days it was duly removed."

Mayor Ogden an Early Owner.

Goose island has changed hands many times in its existence. William B. Ogden, first mayor of Chicago, owned most of it at one time. At the time the canal was dug the Illinois Land company was the owner, and in 1855 it was entered as Elston's addition to Chicago. It was not until after the digging of the canal that the island was called that with propriety.

Before that time the north branch curved around to make two sides of the triangle and the third side was part swamp, part rivulet, and part pond.

Now there is no through street across it and, though streets are laid out on it, they run at angles different from the ones leading up to it. Ogden avenue leads up to it from the southwest and then jumps it to pick up again on the other side. Plans to build a bridge across the two channels and over the railroad tracks to connect the two links are still hanging fire.

AUTHOR TO TELL PATRIOTIC BODY OF NEWEST BOOK

Edwin Marshall Hadley, author and lecturer, will tell of his newest book, "Sinister Shadows," at a meeting of the National Patriotic association Friday afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Preceding the lecture, Mr. Hadley will present an autographed copy of his book to the Officers club of Lake View High school.

Harry A. Jung, a member of the advisory council of the association, will introduce the speaker. Mrs. Charles W. Holmes, president of the association, will be chairman of the meeting. The Chicago chapter of the National Patriotic association was organized one year ago.

Another speaker on Friday's program will be Mrs. Samuel W. Earle, honorary regent of the Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and recently made Illinois state regent of the National Wakefield society, which is conducting a campaign for funds to preserve George Washington's birthplace.

DEMPSTER CLUB PLAYERS TO GIVE MUSICAL COMEDY

The Dempster Terminal Community club players of Niles Center will present a three act musical comedy, "Circus Solly," in the auditorium of St. Peter's parochial school, Niles Center road, tomorrow and Tuesday evening. Half the proceeds from the performance will go toward a community house fund recently launched in this suburban community, it is announced by Robert S. Throop, president of the club.

This is the second theatrical offering of the Niles Center organization, a vaudeville show having been presented last spring. As a result of the large attendance at this initial offering, it was decided to present "Circus Solly" for two nights. The house already has been sold out for the first performance, it is said.

The leading rôles in the play will be taken by Mrs. Edward R. Egger, Mrs. J. J. Mussil, Edward Hardy Jr., Mrs. Donald McClintock, Howard J. Garner, Earle Cooke, Mrs. Bart J. Ryan, Robert S. Throop, Kenneth Mullins and Mrs. Harold Graham. In addition a large number of young women and men will take part in the performances as members of the singing and dancing chorus.

EVANSTON SERVICE CLUBS TO UNITE IN FATHER-SON DINNER

Heralded as the biggest affair of its kind in Evanston, a fathers' and sons' dinner will be held next Friday at the Evanston Township High school under the auspices of the high school and the city's four service clubs — Kiwanis, Optimists, Rotary and Lions.

J. A. KAPPELMAN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Arrangements will be made for at least 800, according to John A. Kappelman, chairman of the committee in charge of the dinner, and all Evanston fathers are invited with their sons of high school age, whether they attend school or not.

A similar dinner was held last year in the Evanston hotel with more persons in attendance than the room could hold, and with the larger accommodations of the high school lunch room, a large increase in attendance is expected.

Following dinner a program will be held in the auditorium.

A. J. [Dad] Elliott, Y. M. C. A. talker of long experience, will give the main address, and Francis L. Bacon, principal of the school, is expected to speak.

Junior Church for Children Is Organized

A novel experiment with children and young people in religious activities, a junior church managed entirely by youth, with its own rector, parish organizations, and departments, as in the adult parish organization, will be tried out at St. Matthew's Episcopal church in Evanston. Announcement has just been made by the rector, the Rev. J. Jr Stevens.

The junior church will have as its rector John Higgins, student in the Western Theological seminary in Evanston. He will direct the work of the junior church in the same way as the rector of the parish directs parochial activities.

Will Have All Activities.

The junior choir, junior acolytes, junior vestry, auxiliary, and altar guild will all be organized into its activities, and the new organization will have its own budget to maintain, raising funds to meet it, and having a secretary and a treasurer to manage the details.

"The junior church," said the Rev. Mr. Steffens, discussing the plan, "will take the place of what we formerly have termed the Sunday school, the church school, or the Bible school. Class instruction will continue in it the same as before, but with more interest and enthusiasm.

"The outcome of using such names as Sunday or church school has been that the church has become less important in the minds of the boys and girls. We can see this when we hear children telling about going to Sunday school without connecting that with membership with the church itself.

Church to Be Emphasized.

"In order to obviate this misleading impression we are emphasizing the church first. All our boys and girls belong to the junior church and are members of the church, which is the school."

Should the experiment of a junior church prove successful in Evanston, it is expected that it will be adopted in other parishes.

PETERSON AVE. GETS 125 NEW STREET LIGHTS

The final step in the completion of the Peterson avenue improvement will be made this week with the installation of 125 new street lights, Ald. Curtis F. Mellin [50th] announced last week. The light standards are being installed along the new wide thoroughfare between Ridge avenue and the north shore channel. Each will be of 100 candlepower.

Property owners are now taking steps to obtain the improvement of the Peterson avenue bridge over the channel. The bridge is under the jurisdiction of the sanitary district.

Ferry Hall to Celebrate Its 60th Birthday

Sixty years ago a seminary for young ladies, "a spacious and elegant edifice just completed and furnished at a cost of more than $60,000," according to its first catalogue, opened its doors in Lake Forest under the direction of the Trustees of Lake Forest university.

Next Friday, Saturday and Sunday the school, now known as Ferry Hall, will celebrate its 60th anniversary and dedicate two new buildings added to its wide spreading campus. Alumnae, friends and guests from all parts of the country will return to attend the three day program.

Reception Friday Night.

On Friday night there will be a reception during which students of the school costumed to represent the sixty years of its history will serve as guides for the inspection of the new buildings. Saturday morning an alumni meeting will be held and in the afternoon students will present two plays.

Dr. George Roberts, pastor of the Lake Forest Presbyterian church and a trustee of the school will be toastmaster at the anniversary dinner and speeches of congratulation will be made by Mrs. Walter B. Nelson of Evanston, president of the alumnae association; John Wayne Richards, headmaster of Lake Forest academy; Perry Dunlap Smith, headmaster of the North Shore Country Day school; and Dean C. S. Boucher of the University of Chicago. Dr. James G. K. McClure will preach the anniversary sermon Sunday.

School Opened in 1869.

Ferry Hall was opened on Wednesday, Sept. 22, 1869, made possible by the gift of the Rev. William M. Ferry, for whom the school is known. In its prospectus published that first year is stated that: "The place is especially adapted by its rural quiet and cultivated society to be the seat of an institution for the education of young ladies."

"Intellectual discipline and physical training and social, esthetic and religious culture will be combined in the education here pursued."

Miss Emily M. Noyes was "lady principal" at the time and also instructor in morals and rhetoric.

Since 1925 the academy has been conducted separately from Lake Forest college with its own board of trustees. Miss Eloise R. Tremain is principal, Clayton Mark is president of the board of trustees which includes Alfred E. Hamill as treasurer, Miss Tremain as secretary, Charles H. Schweppe as assistant secretary; Albert B. Dick, Miss Gwethalyn Jones, Cyrus H. McCormick, George A. McKinlock, Donald R. McLennan, the Rev. George Roberts, D. D., and Louis F. Swift.

Dormitories Latest Additions.

The growth of the campus was started with additions to the original building. A Gothic chapel was added in 1888 and Smith hall for office and recitation purposes was opened in 1902.

The trustees undertook a campaign for $600,000 in gifts to the school last year and the response was sufficient to warrant the construction of the two new dormitories.

The new buildings are of Georgian architecture, red brick with white stone facings. Both are fireproof and equipped with elevators, and will house thirty of the faculty and ninety-eight students. Recreation rooms and kitchenettes on each floor for the use of the students are included. The north dormitory will also contain a dining room large enough to seat the whole school, the principal's suite, and an infirmary with a sun porch and diet kitchen.

A general high school and college preparatory course as well as junior college and special work are given at the school.

HAENISCH OUT FOR ANOTHER TWIN VICTORY

Thinks He Can Again Beat Thompson.

State Senator Herman J. Haenisch who topped the rout of the Thompson-Crowe-Galpin forces in the Republican primary of last year by trouncing Mayor Thompson for the party committeeship of his own ward, the 46th, is out to attempt the same thing if the mayor ventures to run again.

HERMAN J. HAENISCH.

In less belligerent but no less determined phraseology he made this statement yesterday as his answer to rumore that efforts already are being made to squeeze him out of the committeeship fight by warning him gently that he'd better not run for two offices next April—that if he treasures the renomination for senator he may well concentrate his attention on that one post exclusively.

Out for Both Again.

"Four years ago," he said, "my election as state senator was almost unanimous. So I'll run for that office again. Two years ago my victory for membership on the county committee was decisive. I don't intend to surrender my right to run again for that place. There is nothing incompatible in the two offices. The ward committeeship is strictly a party matter. It's nonofficial and pays no compensation. Therefore, I shall run for both."

This is one specific, clear example of how the county committeeship election in conjunction with the primaries for the United States senatorship, for congress, for several state offices, for the legislature and for county and sanitary district places, probably will tangle the wires more than it did last year, the first time the 1927 primary law was in operation. Without the momentum of the presidential and governorship fights to determine the general direction, the strain for organization control is expected to develop an increased number of cross currents.

Office Candidates Neglected.

In April of last year, it was suspected later from the returns, the local leaders of the Crowe-city hall organization neglected office candidates to further their individual candidacies for ward committeeships. Most of them won but their candidates went down with a flop, ascribed at least to some extent to their being sacrificed to individual desires for patronage by means of ward recognition. The Deneen forces concentrated more on winning the offices and they won them.

Next year, it is said, the hostility over control of the organization will be doubled because of the anomalous situation created when the Crowe-Thompson office seekers were repudiated by the voters but managed to take over the ownership of the party machinery that the other fellows had lost sight of.

Haenisch won what was considered as remarkable victory without the sponsorship of any of the three big Republican factions, winning by the strength of his own organization in his ward and in his senatorial district, the Thirty-first. The Deneen folks did pull down their candidate in order to give him a clearer field, but it was said he might have topped the field any way as he defeated Thompson by a vote of 7,157 to 5,346, a lead of 1,811.

Goes Along on His Own.

Since that time he has continued to operate almost exclusively on his own. He has retained the friendship of the old Lundin wing of the Thompson machine, has managed to coöperate to some extent with the Deneen group, has held his own against the Brundage forces, and he has gone along with Emmerson.

But it is said that his aloofness hasn't been entirely to the satisfaction of any of these units and that the Thompson, Deneen and Brundage outfits all may be expected to have a close eye on the committeeship of the Forty-sixth.

There is considerable doubt that Thompson, in view of his recent lack of interest in matters political and what is considered his reluctance even to get near the edges of the fracas, will consider running again in a ward race. But in the event that he holds off it is reported he may put in Ald. Oscar Nelson, a former Democrat, now his council leader, or some one else as his proxy.

Brundage Also Mentioned.

There also has been considerable comment centering about the fact that Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, once more is a "full time" resident of the ward, has taken another plunge into the controversy as to who is to run Cook county politics, and, according to his friends, would not be loath again to gain control of his home bailiwick. But here, again there are complications. Mr. Brundage has been urged to announce himself as a third Republican candidate in the United States senatorship battle. The practical ones say he wouldn't run for ward committeeman and that high office on the same day.

He also, it is said, might back some other candidate of his own against Haenisch, and there is a suspicion that the Deneen leaders might like to do the same—that is, with the same reservation that it wouldn't interfere with the senator's own campaign operations or other maneuvers linked with them.

Immense importance is attached to what Gov. Emmerson does with the

PUBLIC RALLIES TO BEACH SITE FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Plan Indorsed by North Side Associations.

Opposition to the proposed sale of the Clarendon bathing beach and indorsement of the plan to build a high school on the tract, now the property of the city, was voiced by civic leaders of the north side at a meeting recently held in the Sheridan bank building, Broadway and Lawrence avenue. The meeting brought forth, for the first time, considerable public opinion in favor of the movement to construct a school on the land, which was initiated more than a year ago by Ald. John A. Massen [48th].

The meeting was attended by representatives of ten organizations in the Uptown district and was held immediately following the circulation of a report that the city was contemplating the sale of the land. The property, located along the lake front between Montrose and Lawrence avenues, will be abandoned as a beach with the completion of the new beach being built out in the lake by the Lincoln park commissioners.

Only Site Available.

The north side leaders, supporting the school idea, pointed out that the beach property is the only public land available for that purpose on the entire north side. Ald. Massen, who eventually hopes for the establishment of a municipal college on the Clarendon property, declared that he is going to line up forces to fight for the school project.

The alderman seeks to relieve the present seat shortage in north side high schools with the construction of a school on the lake front to accommodate the students in Uptown Chicago. He recommends an exchange of the beach property for land owned by the school board adjacent to the municipal airport, to facilitate the plan, inasmuch as additional room is needed at the air field.

Profitable for Schools.

V. J. Curto of the Central Uptown association pointed out that, although members of the school board look unfavorably on the exchange, the schools will eventually benefit, because the north side property will have a greater increase in value within the next few years. The two tracts are of equal value at present, he said, but the extension of Lincoln park will boost the value of the lake front land.

Among those concurring with Ald. Massen are Eugene Taylor, manager of the Chicago Plan commission, and of the Chicago Plan commission, and public works. Northsiders who attended the meeting and spoke favorably of the project were: John Bowers, Edwin L. Read, Emmerson C. Hart, H. C. Dix and Edward C. Hicks, representing the Central Uptown association; Alfred E. Holmes, president of the Argyle Improvement association; William C. Haupt and Karl Eitel of the Sheridan Center association; Manas Torcom, president of the North Shore Kiwanis club; Frank Haggerty, W. J. Vivans, George Millinger and E. C. Carleton, representing the Uptown Lions club, and Carl J. Johnson of the Uptown Clark Business Men's association.

Calls It Ideal Site.

Although school officials are opposed to the Clarendon property as a school site, because of its location, Ald. Massen asserted that from a transportation standpoint the land would make an ideal school site. Located adjacent to the Lincoln park extension, he said, first class recreational facilities also will be provided.

With the development of the north side and the vacating of the tract now occupied by the Montrose avenue pumping station, which he says is inevitable, additional land can be added for the establishment of a four year municipal college similar to the city colleges in New York City, Cincinnati, O.; Louisville, Ky.; Charleston, W. Va., and Toledo, O.

DR. A. W. PALMER TO TALK BEFORE EVANSTON CLUB

To Tell of Recent Tour of Mediterranean.

Serving an audience of 1,850 which would be even larger were the hall larger, the Evanston Sunday Afternoon club opened its season last Sunday at the Varsity theater with a "Parliament of Religions" with speakers on Christianity, Confucianism, and Buddhism.

DR. A. W. PALMER.

The Rev. Hugh Elmer Brown, pastor of the First Congregational chuch of Evanston, is the director of the organization which was started nine years ago by a committee representing the Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, and Baptist churches and the Y. M. C. A.

Other Groups Drawn In.

Since the programs have been given in the Varsity theater its scope has increased and members of other religious groups not included in the first roster have become interested in the project, making it entirely nonsectarian.

Today's speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Albert W. Palmer, pastor of the First Congregational church of Oak Park, newly appointed president of the Chicago Theological seminary. Dr. Palmer has been on a four months tour of the Eastern Mediterranean countries and has chosen for his subject "Thrills and Disappointments of the Eastern Mediterranean." He was in Palestine at the time of the recent struggles there and will include a discussion of Zionism in his talk which will be illustrated.

Cossack Singers Next.

Next Sunday the Russian Cossack singers, who have been round the world many times, will give the entire program.

Other artists who have been engaged for this season are: The Fisk Jubilee Singers, Branson De Cou and his Dream Pictures; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Alexander Meiklejohn, head of the new experimental college at the University of Wisconsin; Margaret Slattery, J. Hugh Edwards, Welsh member of the British Parliament; Arthur C. Little Albert came home one evening with his clothes full of holes. When his mother asked him for an explanation, he said:

"O, we were playing grocery store and everybody had to be something, so I was the cheese."

HELEN MORTON,

Girl—You remind me of the Woolworth building.

Boy—Why—because I'm so strong?

Girl—And tall and windy around the top.

ADELLA NIEMEYER,
1919 Dayton street.

Lady [to old farmer]—I've just had a letter from my son, Arthur, saying he has won a scholarship. I can't tell you how pleased I am.

Farmer—I can understand your feelings, mum. I felt just the same way when our pig won a medal at the show.

CHARLOTTE MARION NORTON,
7747 Aberdeen street.

Little Alice, 3 years old, after she had been tucked into bed, was afraid of the dark.

"There's some one who always takes care of little children," her mother assured her. But Alice looked puzzled and her mother continued: "Don't you remember some one up in the sky?"

Alice smiled back. "O, yes; course I do now—Lindbergh!"

BERNICE WALLUNAS,
7630 Sacramento avenue.

Storekeeper—I don't like the ring of this dime.

Customer—Well, what do you expect for ten cents, a concert of chimes?

STEVE BABYAR,

Mr. Brown—Do you know, our new minister is just wonderful. He brings home to you things that you never saw before.

Mr. Jones—That's nothing; our laundryman does the same thing.

GRACE COOKE,
910 13th street, Wilmette.

Lawyer—The cross-examination did not seem to worry you very much. Have you had previous experience?

Client—Six children.

GERTRUDE GELFOND,

Student—Well, he got married and he wrote "Paradise Lost." Then his wife died and he wrote "Paradise Regained."

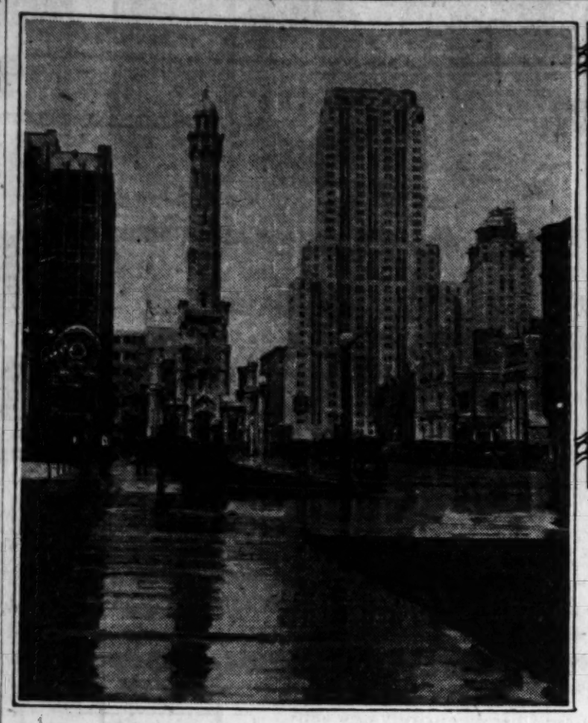
A RAINY DAY IN TOWERTOWN



"After the Rain," showing the upper end of Michigan avenue, this week won the first prize of $5 in The Tribune's contest for amateur photographers of the north side. The photographer was Alex Pietrowski, 927 Crescent place. The second prize of $3 was awarded to Betty Barry, 1537 Central avenue, Wilmette, for a picture of Winifred Barry (right). A picture of Gordon Hal Reeder among the pumpkins won the third prize of $2 for Mrs. Hal Reeder, 234 North 2d street, Highland Park.

FRESHENS $1 LAMP SHADE AND FINDS IT NOW WORTH $14

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargain, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Wilmette, Oct. 9.—A few days ago I saw a lamp shade, hand painted and beautifully made, only a little soiled. I purchased this for $1, removed a georgette rosette, gave it a naphtha bath. I couldn't duplicate it now for $14.

Bargain in Imported Lace.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Two years ago I purchased a piece of lace in Lake Geneva. When I came back to town, I looked at laces in the stores, and found that I had three yards of a hand made Bohemian lace, three inches wide. This sells for $5.95 a yard. I certainly received my money's worth.

Waiting Brings Reward.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—We had just sold all our old furniture and purchased new. I wanted a new rug but the one I liked cost $52.75. I didn't want to pay that much and decided not to get one. Two weeks later I found the very same rug reduced to $19.50.

$32.50 Gown for $15.

Winnetka, Oct. 6.—I entered an exclusive Rogers Park shop to get a better price than $32.50 on a much admired gown. The clerk asked me to wait for the manager. While waiting I noticed in a paper lying near the same dress at another shop for $15. I left at once and bought the advertised dress. It is continually admired for its style, quality, and color. A fine and gratifying bargain!

STOCKTON P.-T. A. GIVES RECEPTION FOR PRINCIPAL

J. Edward Huber, new principal of Stockton Junior High school, 430 Beacon street, was honored at a reception given Friday in the school building under the auspices of the Stockton Parent-Teacher association. Mr. Huber took charge of the Stockton school last month, succeeding A. O. Coddington, who retired last spring after 40 years' service.

Mr. Huber was formerly principal of Hamilton school, 1650 Cornelia avenue.

The program, which was arranged by Mrs. George Hawkins, 4529 Monticello avenue, included several acts presented by the gymnasium classes and a short concert by the school band. The guests included Judge Joseph F. McCarthy of the Municipal court, Ald. John Hoellen [47th], Ald. John A. Massen [48th], and Mr. Coddington.

WAITERS SERVE SOUP IN HUNGARIAN, ARABIC, DANISH, OR ASSYRIAN

Thirty-six languages are spoken in the Drake hotel.

Only Babel and the league of nations assembly have previously boasted such an array of linguistic talent.

Drake room service knows ice water in eleven languages.

Ask for soup in Hungarian or Hindustani, Danish or Arabic, and you'll get—soup. The waiter's face will not change expression during the transaction, either, or the chef have apoplexy.

Addressed in Assyrian or Bohemian, the bus boy will respond with a polite syllable in the same tongue and continue replenishing the butter.

"We were called on to use twenty-five different languages when delegates to the Eucharistic congress were in the hotel in 1925," Tracy Drake, president of the Drake Hotel company, recalled.

Members of the Drake personnel who "double" as interpreters are in many cases professional men of high standing in their native lands, reduced to dishwashing and pantry service during the period of adjustment in a strange country.

Neatly ticketed in the card index of Eric, maitre d'hotel, are the linguistic accomplishments of his 500 subordinates.

Leads Fellowship Class.

Announcement was made last week that the Rev. Harold Lundquist, assistant dean of Moody Bible institute, has accepted an invitation to become leader of the Fellowship class, being organized at the Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, 4301 Sheridan road.

NEW LAKE VIEW CHURCH SCHOOL GAINS NUMBERS

Sponsors Indicate Plan Is Successful.

More than 100 pupils in three schools of the Lake View district have enrolled in the school of religion that is being tried out for the first time in Chicago, according to an announcement made recently by the Rev. Dore N. Ester, chairman of the Lake View Religious council, sponsors of the school. The enrollment is increasing rapidly, he said, children from Agassiz, Hawthorne and Morris schools composing the student body at present.

The classes are meeting one hour each week, the children being excused from regular classes to attend the religious teaching groups. Pupils in Hawthorne school meet Mondays at the parish house of Trinity Lutheran church, 3111 Seminary avenue; those from the Morris school convene Fridays at the same place, while Agassiz pupils meet Wednesdays at Wesley Methodist church, Diversey parkway and Seminary avenue.

Miss Lucille Desjardins is in charge of the teaching staff at the school of religion, assisted by Miss Dorothy Nichols and Miss Carrie Anderson. Miss Desjardins has conducted similar schools in Birmingham, Ala., and Oak Park, Ill.

The Lake View Religious council, which is responsible for the formation of the new school, is composed of representatives of 24 churches in the district. In addition to the Rev. Ester other officers are: vice chairman, Dr. Gottfried Nelson of the Trinity Lutheran church, and secretary, the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot of the Church of Our Savior.

Third Reformed Bazaar.

The annual bazaar sponsored by the women's societies of the Third Reformed church will be held Wednesday and Friday in the church parlors, Osgood and Wellington avenues.

Lincoln Park Kiwanians Hear Address by Captain

Capt. Harry Hand, 6th corps area, United States army, was the speaker at the meeting of the Lincoln Park Kiwanis club Wednesday at the Parkway hotel, 2100 Lincoln Park west. Four new members have been elected to membership, Harry W. Delano announced yesterday. They are: W. S. Miller, new secretary of the North Avenue Y. M. C. A.; Louis J. Freed, 2032 North Clark street; J. A. Flannery, 649 West North avenue, and Henry A. Herst, 555 West North avenue.

The Rev. Frederick Selden Observes 27th Anniversary

Dr. Frederick Selden, pastor of Ravenswood Presbyterian church, 4302 North Hermitage avenue, preached his twenty-seventh anniversary sermon at the annual homecoming service last Sunday. Dr. George L. Robinson of the Presbyterian Theological seminary spoke at the afternoon service.

SHERIDAN GROUP ASKS CITY FOR ADDED POLICE

L. G. Ross, business manager of the Sheridan Center association, last week announced that the association will make a formal demand that the city and Lincoln park officials provide additional police protection to the community. The association is composed of business men in the area bounded by Irving Park boulevard, Sheridan road, Grace street and the lake.

"Many complaints of robbery attempts in the district have been made recently," Mr. Ross said. "More police are needed especially on Sheridan road between Grace street and Wilson avenue, where the shops and stores are not even given the protection of a single patrolman during the night."

Plans are now being made for a golf tournament to be held on the nine hole indoor course in the association's club house at 627 Gary place. Adolph Blint is in charge of the tournament.

LEGION INVITES GERMAN VETS TO NOV. 11 MEETING

Former Enemies to Join in Celebrating Armistice

German veterans of the great war will shake hands with Legion members armistice day when Lincoln Park post, No. 481, will be host to members of the German veterans' organization, the Deutscher Krieger-Verein, at the clubrooms of the post, 1713 North Larrabee street. The German organization was formed in Chicago for comradeship and sick and death benefits. The membership comprises more than 1,000, all of whom must be American citizens. Ono Schwarck, who served four years in the German army, is president of the organization. Judge Joseph Burke, past commander of Blackhawk post, and Ald. Albert Loescher will speak at the get-together.

"This is the first occasion of this kind in Chicago," said Commander Fred Zei of Lincoln Park post, "and it will be a pleasure to entertain the German veterans."

Northtown post's drum and bugle corps will participate today in the dedication of the new 538 acre Curtis airport at Glenview. Two hundred planes are scheduled to put in their appearance at the ceremony. HAENISCH IS OUT FOR HIS SECOND DOUBLE VICTORY

Thinks He Can Again Beat Thompson.

Lincoln park system. Once more there are rumors that he will act in this important matter within the next week or two. The whole political north side expresses amazement that he hasn't done something in this field before now. Mayor Thompson's own board named by Len Small is still in full possession and what Emmerson does is expected to have a decided influence in ward and district contests, if not in much larger matters, throughout the whole park territory.

It is not expected that the governor will hand the entire park system—commissioners, pay roll, contracts and perquisites—to any single leader or to any group. His whole record since his inauguration last January—nine months ago—is considered as establishing the contrary.

Possibility of Complications.

But neither is it expected that he will continue to leave the whole thing in Mayor Thompson's hands or those of his aide, Eugene R. Pike, the present president. It is deemed more likely that he will make his own selection of each trustee, the secretary, the superintendent and the attorney, then accept less closely scrutinized recommendations from several leaders in the park area as to the bulk of the patronage, item by item.

If considerable of this goes to Haenisch or to Brundage it may shake up the outlook for the Forty-sixth ward fight particularly. It is not thought likely that any of it will go to Deneen. But if it is concentrated in any one faction it will spell trouble, it is said, for others.

So far as is known there is no important candidate being groomed to run against Haenisch for the state senatorial nomination. He had an easy time of it in 1926, winning the primary nomination from a former representative, George A. Williston, by 18,245 to 11,126, and having only negligible opposition in the election, his majority there being 32,480.

Candidate for Representative.

One potential candidate, Weir Traver, is said to be looking over the state representative field. He is a resident of the Forty-sixth and in business is employed in the same office as Haenisch. The two present Republican representatives are James J. McVicker, a close friend of Mayor Thompson, and Roy Juul, a Deneenite. The recent discovery of his name on the pay rolls of the sanitary district already is being used quietly against Juul's renomination.

Winter Season Opened by Neighborhood Club

The Lake Shore Neighborhood club of Evanston held its first meeting of the year Monday evening at the Orrington school, Orrington avenue and Lincoln street. Former Gov. J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota talked on "The Government in Business," and Charles E. Lutton and Rollin Pease presented a program of songs. Officers of the club include: President, Archibald A. McKinley, 803 Monticello street; vice president, Samuel E. Sackett; secretary, W. Clement Stone, and program chairman, W. Marshall Galloway.

SCOUTS PROVE "MINUTE MEN" IN SURPRISE TEST

Troops 854 and 848 Win Contests.

Massachusetts' minute men of revolutionary fame have nothing on the Boy Scouts of the north shore district, it was demonstrated in a recent emergency mobilization. Responding to a sudden call to report at Welles park, Lincoln and Western avenues, 350 Scouts and 24 Scout leaders of the district appeared in quick time. The call was sent out by the activities committee to prove that Scout troops of the north side can be depended upon to give service in any emergency and on short notice.

Troop No. 854 of the St. Thomas Evangelical Reformed church, Grace street and La Vergne avenue, received the highest rating in the mobilization by having 86 per cent of its membership present. Donald Ullock is Scoutmaster of the troop.

After the troops had reported for duty and an inspection had been made of their equipment, the Scouts took part in contests to further demonstrate their efficiency should an actual need for service arise. These contests included knot tying, first aid, and signaling. The Boy Scouts illustrated how calls for aid and the treatment of injuries could be made without the conventional equipment as well as the methods used with the regulation scouting supplies.

The Scouts and their leaders had no information as to what was expected of them until the time for action arrived.

Troop No. 848 of the Avondale Presbyterian church took first place in the contests and was awarded a silver shield donated by the North Shore Kiwanis club. The presentation was made by Bernard West, chairman of the activities committee. Members of the Victory and Trowel posts of the American Legion acted as judges of the competition.

V. H. Condon, assistant field executive of the North Shore district, aided the committee in planning and carrying out the exhibition in mobilization and scoutcraft. A. A. Kirk is field executive of the district, John McGlashan is scoutmaster, and W. S. Gazlay is troop organization committeeman.

SEEK WILSON AV. WIDENING STAND OF RAVENSWOOD

Business Men Plan Survey of District.

In order to determine exactly what the attitude of residents of Ravenswood on the proposed widening of Wilson avenue, the members of the Ravenswood Improvement association will begin at once to make a survey of the district between Clark street and Western avenue. The decision to canvass all property owners in the district was made at the meeting of the association last week at 4520 North Hermitage avenue.

Benjamin Herbert, secretary of the association, says there have been many conflicting reports on the public sentiment regarding the improvement. Mr. John J. Hoellen [47th], who attended the meeting, declared that property owners west of Western avenue are firmly opposed to the plan. He said not a single taxpayer had signified his approval of the project.

Favored East of Clark.

At present, members of the association pointed out, the only property owners supporting the plan are business men in the Wilson avenue shopping district, east of Clark street. When the survey is completed, Mr. Herbert said, the association then can take steps to carry out the wishes of the Ravenswood people—whether they favor or oppose the widening.

The uptown business men, led by the Wilson Avenue Improvement association, are working on plans to connect Wilson avenue into a through highway from the lake west to the county line. The first step in their plan will be to obtain the widening of the street west of Clark street to conform to the present width of the highway between Clarendon avenue and Clark street. With that step completed, William Fiske, president of the Wilson avenue group, said, an appeal will be made to the state for aid to again further widening the entire length of the street.

See Traffic Relief.

The uptown group support their plan on the grounds that the improvement of the street will create a much needed thoroughfare to the west side. Wilson avenue, they point out, is the only logical street in the district for this purpose. Furthermore, they say, the widening of the roadway will relieve some of the traffic congestion in the Wilson-Lawrence avenue business district.

Form Property Owners' Association in Albany Park

A new organization to be known as the Albany Park Property Owners' association, is being formed in the north side community. The first meeting was held recently in the River park field house, 5150 North Francisco avenue. Arthur Beck has been appointed temporary chairman of the club and Harold Eskuna temporary secretary. The purpose of the organization is to unite the efforts of residents in Albany Park in obtaining improvements.

VOICE of the NORTH SIDE

LAKE VIEW'S YOUNG DOERS.

Chicago, Oct. 14.—I want to tell you how much I enjoyed your column about Lake View High school in Sunday's TRIBUNE. I read every word carefully—and then looked for more, for it seemed to me that you had left out many worthy names. True, you mention a really deserving group but surely those who have arrived at an early success is more or less exceptional.

But what of the younger generation? Let me be mentor for a moment and name a few who are of especial interest in Chicago. Nearly all of these are under thirty years of age, or just a year or two beyond and that fact should indeed bear witness to their worth.

John Demuth, a graduate of '18 is a gifted young architect who designed the beautiful new Sholom Temple at Cornelia and Sheridan road.

Mark Turbyfill, winner of international prizes for poetry and well known dancer, often seen at Ravinia in the ballet during the opera.

Vandell Hall, that irresistable and adorable "Red Headed Music Maker."

Adolph Reimers, violinist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Edwin Grumbine, editor of Child Welfare magazine.

Carl W. Crouse, well established Washington patent attorney.

Maurice Marseilles, popular "blues singer."

And I seem to remember being told that Janet Gaynor was a Lake View girl.

I dare say there are dozens more and those few I thought would be well known personages and their mention would attract considerable attention. It is, indeed, a great old school!

DELAY ACTION ON $250,000 PAVING ON SUPERIOR ST.

Only one north side improvement project was approved at the latest public hearing held by the board of local improvements in the city hall. Approval was given by property owners to the opening and paving of Mendell street east of Ashland avenue. Two other paving projects, one estimated to cost a quarter of a million dollars, were postponed until the next hearing, Friday of this week.

The Mendell street improvement will cost approximately $11,500. The ordinance, which will soon go to the County court for confirmation, calls for the opening and paving of the street from Ashland avenue to a point 237 feet southeast from the intersection of Ashland avenue and Mendell street. The pavement will be of granite block.

The two projects which were deferred until the next meeting also provided for the improvement of streets in the near north district. One of them is the widening of Superior street between North La Salle street and Lake Shore drive, estimated to cost $243,000.

The other improvement which was postponed for two weeks calls for the paving of McClurg court between East Grand avenue and East Erie street. The estimated cost of the pavement, which will be of asphalt, is $36,000.

Both the Superior street and McClurg court improvements are being supported by the North Central association.

Hibbard Parent-Teacher Group to Dine Tomorrow

The Hibbard Junior High School Parent-Teacher association will hold a dinner meeting tomorrow evening at 1222 Wilson avenue, Mrs. Cecil Becker, chairman of the committee in charge, announced last week. Following the dinner a program including motion pictures of Washington, D. C., will be presented.

HOWARD STREET PAVING ASKED BY RESIDENTS

Of a total of eight property owners on Howard street between Ashland avenue and the elevated tracks six have signified their approval of a plan to resurface the street, Robert Ferguson, president of the Howard District Business association, reported at the recent meeting of the organization.

As soon as the petition is prepared it will be presented to Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works. It is the aim of the property owners to obtain a pavement that will last five years, Mr. Ferguson said. The pavement has been repaired twice in the last year, but is now in poorer condition than it has ever been, he declared.

SPURN CITY HALL; VOTE CONCRETE PAVING ON TROY

Property Owners Choose Private Contractor.

Property owners on Troy street between Lawrence avenue and Argyle street at a recent meeting unanimously voted to award a contract for the laying of a new pavement to a private contractor instead of permitting the city to do the work as proposed by the board of local improvements. The residents also ordered a concrete pavement in place of the asphalt pavement proposed by the city.

A. J. Gordon, president of the North Channel Improvement association, which has sponsored the meetings of the Troy street property owners, last week announced that a contract for a concrete paving job had been awarded to the Rock Road Construction company, a neighborhood concern, with headquarters at Peterson and Crawford avenues.

Cost Is $5.80 a Foot.

The work will cost approximately $5.80 a front foot, according to officials of the construction company. The contract was awarded after the property owners investigated work done by the same construction company in West Pullman and Elmhurst.

The decision on the type of pavement and the means of construction was made by the property owners after several meetings and lengthy discussions on the subject were held. The North Channel Improvement association, which includes in its membership many of the residents on the section of Troy street, sponsored all the meetings, which were held at the River park field house, 6100 North Francisco avenue. They undertook to settle the question after a number of property owners reported their opposition to the asphalt pavement as proposed by the city. Supporters of the concrete pavement plan pointed out that this type of pavement would cost no more than the asphalt surface which the city planned to lay.

Debate Held on Types of Paving.

In order that the property owners could hear both sides of the question, speakers favoring both propositions attended the meetings and explained in detail the benefits of both pavement types.

LIFE IS DIFFICULT IN EVANSTON FOR CARELESS DRIVER

Working on their program to make Evanston as free as humanly possible from accidents, the police accident prevention bureau, headed by Frank Kreml, is entering on its eighth week with an increasing record of convictions in accident cases. Nine more convictions were obtained out of the 32 cases that came up in September, making a total of 25, or 77 per cent.

Recent convictions include Walter Anderson, 942 Sherman avenue, who was fined $25 and costs for driving while intoxicated after a plea of guilty; Herman Kauber of Columbus, O., fined $25 and costs for driving on the wrong side of the street.

Fined for Crash.

Troubles didn't come singly to Frank Feuerstein, 1806 Greenleaf street, who went through a barricade and smashed into a concrete abutment, wrecking his car. No one else was involved in the accident, but Feuerstein was fined $5 and costs for going through the barricade.

Three safe drivers' cards have been issued since the opening of the bureau. C. N. Reese, 531 Hinman avenue; Margaret Lamb, 1031 Forest avenue, and J. H. Steffens were the ones to receive the accolade.

The cards are given after a driver has been followed by members of the squad for some distance, and his carefulness, consideration and skill in avoiding accidents have been noted. The card doesn't give its holder carte blanche to speed or break the traffic code. It's just an honor and to be taken as such.

Exhibit to Show Work.

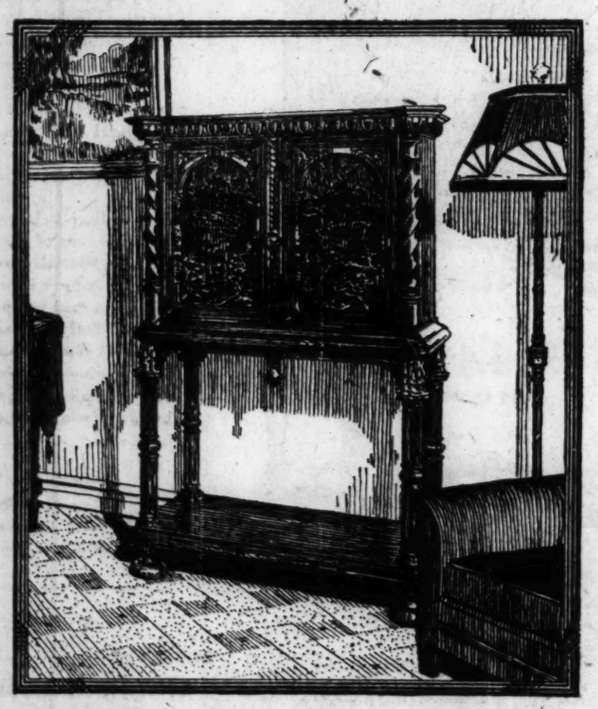
Oct. 28 and 29, during the welfare convention, the department will have displays at the North Shore hotel showing its work. Posters of various types now in street cars, buses and on trucks will be shown and placards telling of the various parts of the program. Mr. Kreml will be there to explain the display to the visitors.

New insignia have been secured for the members of the squad, the insignia of the National Safety council, a white cross on a black background, which is worn midway between the shoulder and the elbow.

Bank Women to Swim.

The annual swimming meet of the Chicago Bank Women's association will be held Friday evening in the swimming pool of the Lawrence hotel, 1020 Lawrence avenue.

BEFORE YOU BUY ANY RADIO RECEIVER MAKE THIS TEST



Permit us to place a Scott Custom-Built Radio in your home, where it will quickly convince you that it is different. You can, if you wish, arrange with dealers in other receivers who claim to have a product equal to the Scott Custom-Built, to place their sets side by side with the Scott. Tune each receiver over its entire range. THEN decide.

See for yourself how EASILY the Scott Custom-Built Receiver brings in stations at practically EVERY POINT ON THE DIAL over the whole scale! Compare this performance with the factory-built, mass-production receiver you are also testing! Show us another receiver which affords such unrestricted radio pleasure!

SCOTT CUSTOM-BUILT RADIO

The Chatham illustrated above is a rare and true classic in Gothic period art. An air of subdued richness characterizes it. Fancifully carved, gracefully proportioned, it reflects that cultural, religious age which brought forth its inspiration. The hexagonal, fluted legs are carved by hand. The door panels are genuine oil paintings, in marine views symbolical of the search for brighter, freer lands. The material is choice walnut, rich in the beauty of its grain.

by virtue of the fact that it is hand built and tested in the laboratory, by laboratory experts, is, we believe, the most selective radio receiver in existence today. And for the same reason, its tone is the closest approach to realism that engineering genius and painstaking care can achieve. It is, therefore, logical to conclude that Scott Custom-Built Radio offers the resident of the Chicago district more for his money than he can obtain in any other receiver.

Come to either of our salons for a demonstration, or we will gladly place a Scott Custom-Built Receiver in your home for a competitive test. 22 models to select from—upward from $215.

Organization of civic groups and improvement clubs in all parts of the city into one civic reform association, a job begun recently under the leadership of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, will be resumed tomorrow night, when delegates from the local groups will meet and plan the work to be done this fall.

T. P. Quinn, temporary chairman of the city-wide body, announced yesterday that representatives of eight organizations will meet tomorrow to plan a big meeting Nov. 25 and to launch a campaign for more members. The delegates will also select a name for the reform group through which they will attempt to obtain better local government and reduced taxes, Mr. Quinn said.

The following delegates will represent local organizations at the meeting:

H. A. Seymour, Southwest federation.

The Chicago Federation of Labor will also be represented.

"Our job for the present is to perfect our central organization, to make it more comprehensive, and to include delegates from parts of the city not yet represented," Mr. Quinn said. "When we have become well organized and truly representative of taxpayers throughout Chicago, we shall be able to make our influence felt in the interest of better government."

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan, national authority on government, will address the group at its meeting Nov. 25.

Brings Joy To Young and Old Alike

RADIO has brought the enjoyment of good music to millions who, before radio's coming, were denied the advantages and pleasures that music provides.

The fullness of this new found enjoyment depends on the abilities of the receiver itself—to give complete satisfaction it must virtually put the listener in the broadcasting studio, with every tone, every shading, every nuance audible and pure.

Howard Radio receivers have long enjoyed the reputation for superiority, not only for the true fidelity with which they reproduce the broadcast, but also for their unsurpassed sensitivity and selectivity.

The Howard price range now makes it possible for all to enjoy finer radio reception. Of course, you'd rather have a Howard. Your Dealer will be pleased to demonstrate the Howard in your own home.

NORTHWESTERN THEATER'S FIRST PLAY WEDNESDAY

Various Groups Join for Busiest Season.

Original plays, presentations for children, répertory plays and productions that have not been made known in this country will be included in one of the busiest seasons ever planned by the Northwestern University theater under the direction of Garrett H. Leverton.

The various groups included in the theater, the Playshop, Children's theater, Repertory theater, Prentice and Campus players have planned their schedules and selected the opening plays for the most part.

"The Misleading Lady" will be presented Wednesday and Friday at Annie May Swift hall on the university campus with Miss Regina Hjertilius and Arthur Aquart taking the leads. "The Young Idea," by Noel Coward, will come next on Nov. 6, 7, 8, starring Miss Belle Kennedy, on the faculty of the school of speech, formerly with the London school of expression.

Play About Tropical Life.

The first performance of the Playshop will be "The Breeding Stones," written by Miss Josephine Blackstock and dealing with life in the tropics. It is the policy of the Playshop to present only plays that have been written and worked up in its department. Theodore B. Hinckley conducts two playwriting classes. When a play written in either of these classes shows production possibilities it is taken over by Mrs. Charlotte B. Chorpenning, director of the Playshop for a trial rehearsal.

Finally, after much discussion, rehearsing and rewriting, the play is ready for production. Costumes are made, scenes designed and painted, and the result is an entirely original production.

Miss Blackstock's play, which has gone through the preliminary stages, is the story of the relations of American tourists to native life in the Hawaiian islands. Hawaiian scenery and Hawaiian singing are expected to enhance the production. Miss Ethel Swift and Fred De Cordova will take the leading parts, and others in the cast are: Rex Wilkes, Miss Ruth Chorowsky, Francis Fabian, Miss Marie Powley, Miss Margaret Lester, Miss Leith Lidseen, and Marie Weeks.

The Children's theater will have its first performance some time in November with "Robin Hood" as the opening play under the direction of Miss Winifred Ward. "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Aladdin," and a third play, not yet chosen, will complete the schedule. Each play will have two performances, morning and afternoon, at the Nichols school and at the Haven school.

Children Also in Casts.

The casts of some of the plays include children in the Evanston schools along with the students of the university. Its purpose is not only to afford recreation for the school children, but to give the students a chance to take part in projects of the junior dramatic field.

In all the groups, with the exception of Campus and Prentice players, townspeople, as well as students, are in the casts and engage in the production work. The Repertory theater is being worked into a company to tour the north shore and surrounding towns with highly polished productions and it, too, offers opportunity to persons not otherwise connected with the university.

Other performances planned include "Merchant of Venice," James Barrie's "Alice Sit By the Fire," and "The Insect Comedy," by the Capek brothers. Rachel Crothers' "A Little Journey" will be presented by a cast of freshmen only, some time in December.

Ralph Dennis is dean of the school of speech and theater arts, Lee Mitchell is handling production for the university theater plays. John F. Baird is directory of the Repertory theater.

The Young Woman's auxiliary of the Woman's club of Evanston will hold an informal cabaret dinner dance in the clubhouse at Church street and Chicago avenue next Saturday. A variety of entertainment has been planned by the social chairman, Miss Dorothy Pearson.

Mrs. Walter C. Roberts is the president of the auxiliary, which is composed of 300 young Evanston women. Assisting Miss Pearson are: Mrs. W. Marshall Branch, Mrs. Arthur Chilgren, Mrs. J. P. Bauer, Mrs. J. W. Corrington, Miss Virginia Helm, Mrs. P. L. Morrison, Mrs. Willard K. Nelson, Mrs. C. Cranston Spray, Mrs. Henry R. Strong, Mrs. L. G. Youngren, Mrs. Wallace W. Weld, and Mrs. Douglas D. Waitley.

CARDINAL WILL DEDICATE NEW PARISH SCHOOL

Cardinal Mundelein will officiate at the dedication next Sunday of the new $185,000 school building of St. Henry parish, recently completed at North Hoyne and Granville avenues. Students attending classes in the old St. Henry school, 1920 Devon avenue, are being transferred to the new building as rapidly as the classrooms are made ready for use.

The new building contains 20 classrooms, a cafeteria and a large auditorium which will be utilized for church services, the church building at Ridge boulevard and Devon avenue recently having been turned over to the exclusive use of the Angel Guardian orphanage. Plans are now being made for the construction of a new church, convent, rectory and gymnasium, all to be of the same type of architecture.

Safety Islands Declared Needed in Ashland Avenue

Following a survey of the new Ashland avenue improvement made by Leslie Sorenson, city traffic engineer, he declared that the extreme width of the roadway will make it necessary to build safety islands at every intersection, as a safety measure. The street recently was widened to 100 feet.

TINIEST HOLY SCROLL RESTS IN TEMPLE ARK

Torah Brought from Palestine.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Visible for several blocks in all directions is the dome of Washington boulevard temple, Washington boulevard and Ogden avenue. The dome, in fact, rising to a height of 83 feet and almost the same distance in diameter, is said to be the largest temple dome in Chicago. Eight years ago, when the temple was dedicated, it was surrounded by a sparsely settled territory. Today it finds itself in the midst of an active business and residential district.

DR. SAMUEL SCHWARTZ.

Within the arc of the temple is what is said to be the tiniest holy scroll—Torah—in the United States. The scroll was obtained by Dr. Samuel Schwartz, rabbi of the temple, during a recent visit to the Holy Land, its purchase being made possible through Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lurie, pioneer members of the congregation, in honor of their silver wedding anniversary. Dr. Schwartz uses the unique torah in all of his Sabbath services.

Golden Jubilee Celebrated.

The temple, which celebrated its golden jubilee three years ago this month, is a union of two old prominent west side congregations — B'nai Abraham and Zion. Both congregations had an illustrious history in the Jewish community of Chicago. Among the rabbis who ministered to the old congregations were Rabbi Ignatz Grossman, Dr. Felsenthal, Dr. A. R. Levy, Dr. Joseph Stolz, Dr. Max Heller, Dr. Samuel S. Cohon, and Rabbi Merrit.

The union of the two old congregations took place in 1918. Shortly after that Dr. Samuel Schwartz was called as rabbi and has since been in charge. A graduate of the University of Chicago and of the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati, with former pastorates at Cleveland and Montreal, Dr. Schwartz has seen the membership double during the time that he has been in charge. The temple also owes much of its strength to the untiring efforts of its official board, several members of whom have been deeply devoted to the welfare of the organization, and have given generously of their time and money toward its progress for the last two score years.

The temple draws a goodly portion of its congregation from Oak Park, River Forest, Maywood, La Grange, and even as far west as Geneva. In many instances those of the congregation are of the third generation of the original members.

Picture Liberty of Jew.

From an architectural standpoint, aside from the dome, the windows conceived and planned by Dr. Schwartz are a distinctive feature. The panel on the north side, as seen from Washington boulevard, pictures the condition of the Jew in countries of oppression, contrasted with the liberty of the Jew in America.

Other windows depict the revelation at Sinai, the maxim of Simon the Just; Israel's guiding star, "The Light of the Torah"; Israel's heart in song and prayer; the prophecy of the Prophets Micah and Isaiah concerning universal peace; the vision of the Prophet Zechariah. There is a window in the Sabbath school library symbolizing education and showing the Sabbath school banner.

Windows Are Gifts.

The windows are the gifts of different members in the congregation, with the exception of the "liberty window."

Rosendahl Is Sunday Club's First Speaker

Commander Charles Emery Rosendahl, U. S. N., skipper of the American dirigible Los Angeles, and official observer for the navy in the globe girdling trip of the Graf Zeppelin and other transoceanic voyages made by the German blimp during the last year, will be the speaker tonight at the first of this season's weekly series of Sunday Evening club meetings to be staged by the American Legion at La Grange. His subject will be "Around the World on Board the Graf Zeppelin."

The meeting, which is expected to attract at least 3,000 listeners from the west side suburbs, will be held in the auditorium of Lyons Township High school.

The success of the Sunday Evening club, started three years ago by the La Grange Legionnaires, not only has won them signal honors at the state and national conventions of the big ex-service group, but also has been copied in the community development programs of other veteran organizations all over the country.

Winner of Legion Plaque.

Probably the most convincing evidence of the success of the La Grange post's Sunday evening undertakings was the award to it last year of the Illinois American Legion service plaque.

Another indication of the growing popularity of the movement is the announcement by Marshall Mathews, president of the club and former post commander, that the regular Sunday night sessions will be supplemented this winter by six matinées, arranged particularly for children.

The program, covering a period of twenty-one weeks, is comprehensive in its scope, including religion and politics, science and history, music and education.

York and Summerall to Speak.

Speakers, in addition to Commander Rosendahl, include such outstanding figures as Sergt. Alvin C. York, America's great war hero; Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army and the sixth American to be honored with the rank of general; Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovich, cousin of the late czar and one of the few remaining leaders of the Russian royalists; Carl Sandburg, Will Irwin, Percy Grainger, and Efrem Zimbalist.

The program, after the first meeting, follows:

Oct. 27—Will Irwin, noted correspondent, "With Mr. Hoover in South America."

Nov. 3—Dr. John Murray, principal, University college, Exeter, England. Subject, "The Essence of Individualism."

Nov. 10—Tom Skeyhill of Australia. Subject, "The Last of the Long Hunters and America's Greatest Hero."

Nov. 17—Avlin C. York.

Nov. 24—Efrem Zimbalist, violinist and composer.

DU PAGE COUNTY SEEKS $500,000 HOSPITAL FUND

Reduction in Cost of Ills Proposed.

Not only is the population of Du Page county to be adequately hospitalized but there is to be a material reduction in the high cost of sustaining its ills, ailments and injuries, according to the plans now being formulated for the new $500,000 Du Page Memorial hospital by community leaders of Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, Westfield, West Chicago, Lombard, and other neighboring towns.

The need for a general hospital in the county has long been recognized. Health authorities have estimated that at present less than half the hospital capacity necessary to safety is available. An investigation of local conditions by Dr. William H. Walsh, who was formerly executive secretary of the American Hospital association, has been a determining factor in planning the size of the first unit of the new institution. Dr. Williams has been retained as consultant.

In Center of County.

The site chosen for the hospital is almost at the geographical center of Du Page county, north of Harrison avenue between Glen Ellyn and Wheaton. The building, to be in keeping with its suburban locality, will have the appearance of a large, commodious country home. Plans for the exterior have been entrusted to Pond, Pond, Martin & Lloyd of Chicago, specialists in hospital design.

The hospital will have a 98 bed capacity. There are to be 62 beds in three and four bed wards and two bed semiprivate rooms, and 38 in private rooms. The building plans provide for complete X-ray with fluoroscope, physical therapy and surgical departments, a bacteriological and pathological laboratory, and also an obstetrical suite of the latest approved design.

An organization to conduct the drive for the building fund of $500,000, the estimated cost of site, building, furnishings and equipment, was formed last week. Charles W. Hadley, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, was elected general chairman.

Suburban Mayors Lend Aid.

Daniel Garrity is chairman of the Wheaton group, and Mrs. Thomas S. McCarty heads the women's division. Coöperating in the drive are the mayors of Lombard, Wheaton, Westfield, and West Chicago.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

OTTO H. BERZ, our civic landmark at Leavitt street and Warren avenue, often referred to as the Man on Horseback, has returned from the great north woods of Michigan looking like a million dollars and feeling that way, says Otto, whose establishment is so highly esteemed by west siders as to give rise to the popular saying, "I hope I go to Otto when I die."

Joe Murphy, a local boy, has entered De La Salle High school, where he tried out for the football team with excellent chances of making a name for himself.

"DO you know what they're calling Hack Wilson?" queried Earl Brazee, our fellow cohort and cameraman. "No," we replied, accepting the cigarette. "Sunny Boy," said Earl, galloping on his way to 5300 North Christiana avenue to shoot a picture of the officers of the Paterson School Community center.

Mrs. John H. McGeary of Oak Park phoned in Thursday a week ago [too late for publication in our last] and informed us that her police dog was just full of news. It transpires that the pro-Cub canine lamped the Trib's page one headline, "Athletics Win Again, 9-3," and chewed up the paper.

FEWER and fewer contented cows are going dry this year, according to reliable statistics reaching the editor. They are giving booze instead of milk, instances in ever increasing numbers being reported in and around Chicago, where the familiar quarts and pints delivered daily by the faithful dairyman have been found to contain gin, bourbon and Scotch. We would therefore advise readers to be on guard and if the least suspicion is aroused to take no chance but snatch the bottles in off the back porch pronto. The situation, of course, adds another grave problem to those attending prohibition enforcement. In fact, at this writing, we are still trying to figure out how a federal court can padlock a cow.

Clifford Fox, the stock exchange publicist and young Marco Polo, who, with his charming helpmeet, has just returned from the orient, sends us a number of quaint professional signs illustrative of the earnest efforts of the Japanese to master the English language. One we hope you haven't met before is that of a Yokohama dressmaker, reading, "Ladies have fits upstairs."

MRS. BRET L. VILNA, who is secretary of the Cicero Welfare center, would like to have one small, old fashioned cook stove and a wringer, required by a little lady near 80 years old, to complete the furnishings of a small apartment the center has provided. If any kind-hearted reader has any such articles please send them to Mrs. Vilna at Cicero, Ill.

ALDERMEN ACT TOMORROW ON 5 ZONING MOVES

Five ordinances rezoning west side property will be considered at a public meeting of the city council committee on buildings and zoning tomorrow morning. Property owners in the blocks on which the changes would be made have been notified to appear at the city hall for a hearing if they wish to object to the ordinances.

The following property would be rezoned, according to the ordinances before the committee: the east side of Mayfield avenue between the alley south of Washington boulevard and the alley north of Madison street, from a residence to an apartment block.

The south side of Warren boulevard between Leavitt street and a line 94 feet east, from an apartment to a commercial classification; the west side of Kostner avenue between Congress street and a line 125 feet north of Harrison street, from an apartment to a commercial classification.

The east side of Harlem avenue between Talcott and Bryn Mawr avenues, from an apartment to a commercial district; and the east side of Kedvale avenue between Grace street and Warwick avenue, from a residence to an apartment classification.

MORTON SENIORS WAGE HOT FIGHT FOR PRESIDENCY

Five candidates for the presidency of the senior class of Morton High school, Cicero, will close a whirlwind primary campaign tomorrow by addressing their classmates at a meeting in the Little theater of the school. One of the two candidates receiving the largest number of votes in the primary election Tuesday will be elected president Oct. 26.

The candidates are: Robert Cech, Walter Fandorff, Thomas Kazakos, Walter Jones, and Edward Novak.

At an election held several days ago Cech and Jones received equal numbers of votes. The other three candidates entered the race after a new election had been called. One of them, young Kazakos, said to have cherished a three year ambition to head the class, was eliminated by a technicality from the earlier voting.

Other officers, chosen at the first election, are: Vice president, John Dunkel; secretary, Miss Helen Yarkowitz, and treasurer, Miss Ethel Hanslik.

RIVER FOREST BATTLES OVER ZONING CHANGE

Bigger Trade Area Proposed on Lake St.

Property owners in River Forest presented a petition to the village board of local improvements last Monday night requesting that a public hearing be called to consider the question of a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance changing the north side of Lake street from Bonnie Brae avenue to Franklin street from a residential to a commercial character. The petition was referred to the zoning board of appeals of the village.

The proposed change has caused a stir among residents of the territory affected. Not only property owners along Lake street but also those possessing lots adjacent are taking a keen interest in the suggested alteration. Considerable opposition has been reported and several days ago a circular appeared published by the Committee for the Defense of the Zoning and condemning the change.

Plead for Shopping District.

Several points in favor of the change are cited in the petition presented to the board. According to the petitioners, Lake street within River Forest is by reason of its location and use a business street; the south side of the street has been retarded largely because of the fact that the north side has not been available for similar development; the amendment to the zoning ordinance would result in greatly increased taxes to the various tax receiving bodies, which would benefit the entire village; and the development of both sides of Lake street for commercial purposes would create a shopping district where money spent would be spent "at home."

According to the petition a supplemental document has been signed by various property owners in several parts of the village requesting the change. This is said to contain the names of past officials of River Forest, members of the school board, the original zoning board, and various other organizations.

Foes Cite Ten Reasons.

In their circular calculated to gain opponents to the zoning change the committee for the defense of the zoning, of which Frederick Doyle is chairman, outlines ten reasons for their stand. These include the following: the zoning laws have been mainly responsible for the admirable development of River Forest and the steady rise of property values; the majority of homes of the village were built or bought after the zoning ordinance was passed and with confidence that the village would permanently maintain the protection against undesirable buildings which the zoning laws afford; the erection of stores and apartments in any section now zoned for residences would depreciate the value of every nearby home; fourth, the total value of all homes that would be depreciated amounts to several millions of dollars.

Grant "Final" Continuance in Bus Battle

The long series of continuances encountered by northwest side residents in their fight of more than a year to obtain feeder buses on streets throughout that district is over. This was indicated Tuesday by the Illinois Commerce commission. The northwest siders will know definitely with a few weeks whether they will get the feeder buses having free transfer service to street cars or whether they must continue to use Chicago Motor Coach company buses charging a 10 cent fare.

The case pending before the commission in which the West Town Chamber of Commerce, the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, and the Chicago Surface lines are opposing the motor coach company and are demanding the removal of the latter's buses, was continued Tuesday at the request of the coach company until Oct. 30. This continuance is the last, however, the commission ruled, and the case must go on next week without further delay.

Refuse Indefinite Delay.

The coach company first asked to have the case continued indefinitely but this request was refused by the commission. O. W. Holmes of the federation and H. J. Ruggles of the West Town chamber objected to any continuance on the ground that the fight already has been delayed unnecessarily and that northwest side residents are entitled to an immediate decision.

Feeder buses are being sought on ten lines, many of which are served by the coach company's 10 cent buses and some of which are without transportation facilities. Residents demand an adequate transportation system at a total fare of 7 cents.

Lines Sought on These Streets.

They seek feeder buses for the following streets:

Northwest highway from Edison park to Milwaukee avenue.

Elston avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Lawrence avenue.

Narragansett avenue from Irving Park boulevard to North avenue, then east on North avenue to Austin avenue.

Central avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Harrison street.

Laramie avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Lake street.

Central Park avenue from Foster avenue to 26th street.

Addison street from Cumberland avenue to Broadway

Belmont avenue from Beach avenue to Central Park avenue.

Diversey avenue from Harlem avenue to Milwaukee avenue.

Congress Park Women Hear Bundesen Tuesday

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen will speak on "Community Health" at the next meeting of the Congress Park Woman's club to be held at the community hall, Ogden avenue and DuBois boulevard, at 2 o'clock Tuesday. In arranging this program the civics committee of the club, with Miss Laura M. Hart as chairman, is striving to carry out the plans of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs to make community service the keynote for the coming year. Music will be furnished at the meeting by Mrs. F. H. White.

HAENISCH OUT FOR ANOTHER TWIN VICTORY

Thinks He Can Again Beat Thompson.

State Senator Herman J. Haenisch who topped the rout of the Thompson-Crowe-Galpin forces in the Republican primary of last year by trouncing Mayor Thompson for the party committeeship of his own ward, the 46th, is out to attempt the same thing if the mayor ventures to run again.

HERMAN J. HAENISCH.

In less belligerent but no less determined phraseology he made this statement yesterday as his answer to rumor that efforts already are being made to squeeze him out of the committeeship fight by warning him gently that he'd better not run for two offices next April—that if he treasures the renomination for senator he may well concentrate his attention on that one post exclusively.

Out for Both Again.

"Four years ago," he said, "my election as state senator was almost unanimous. So I'll run for that office again. Two years ago my victory for membership on the county committee was decisive. I don't intend to surrender my right to run again for that place. There is nothing incompatible in the two offices. The ward committeeship is strictly a party matter. It's nonofficial and pays no compensation. Therefore, I shall run for both."

This is one specific, clear example of how the county committeeship election in conjunction with the primaries for the United States senatorship, for congress, for several state offices, for the legislature and for county and sanitary district places, probably will tangle the wires more than it did last year, the first time the 1927 primary law was in operation. Without the momentum of the presidential and governorship fights to determine the general direction, the strain for organization control is expected to develop an increased number of cross currents.

Office Candidates Neglected.

In April of last year, it was suspected later from the returns, the local leaders of the Crowe-city hall organization neglected office candidacies to further their individual candidacies for ward committeeships. Most of them won but their candidates went down with a flop, ascribed at least to some extent to their being sacrificed to individual desires for patronage by means of ward recognition. The Deneen forces concentrated more on winning the offices and they won them.

Next year, it is said, the hostility over control of the organization will be doubled because of the anomalous situation created when the Crowe-Thompson office seekers were repudiated by the voters but managed to take over the ownership of the party machinery that the other fellows had lost sight of.

Haenisch won what was considered as remarkable victory without the sponsorship of any of the three big Republican factions, winning by the strength of his own organization in his ward and in his senatorial district, the Thirty-first. The Deneen folks did pull down their candidate in order to give him a clearer field, but it was said he might have topped the field any way as he defeated Thompson by a vote of 7,157 to 5,346, a lead of 1,811.

Goes Along on His Own.

Since that time he has continued to operate almost exclusively on his own. He has retained the friendship of the old Lundin wing of the Thompson m[achine].

Thinks He Can Win in Ward for Senator.

shine, has managed to coöperate to some extent with the Deneen group, has held his own against the Brundage forces, and he has gone along with Emmerson.

But it is said that his aloofness hasn't been entirely to the satisfaction of any of these units and that the Thompson, Deneen and Brundage outfits all may be expected to have a close eye on the committeeship of the Forty-sixth.

There is considerable doubt that Thompson, in view of his recent lack of interest in matters political and what is considered his reluctance even to get near the edges of the fracas, will consider running again in a ward race. But in the event that he holds off it is reported he may put in Ald. Oscar Nelson, a former Democrat, now his council leader, or some one else as his proxy.

Brundage Also Mentioned.

There also has been considerable comment centering about the fact that Edward J. Brundage, former attorney general, once more is a "full time" resident of the ward, has taken another plunge into the controversy as to who is to run Cook county politics, and, according to his friends, would not be loath again to gain control of his home bailiwick. But here again there are complications. Mr. Brundage has been urged to announce himself as a third Republican candidate in the United States senatorship battle. The practical ones say he wouldn't run for ward committeeman and that high office on the same day.

He also, it is said, might back some other candidate of his own against Haenisch, and there is a suspicion that the Deneen leaders might like to do the same—that is, with the same reservation that it wouldn't interfere with the senator's own campaign operations or other maneuvers linked with them.

Immense importance is attached to what Gov. Emmerson does with the Lincoln park system. Once more there are rumors that he will act in this important matter within the next week or two. The whole political north side expresses amazement that he hasn't done something in this field before now. Mayor Thompson's own board named by Len Small is still in full possession and what Emmerson does is expected to have a decided influence in ward and district contests, if not in much larger matters, throughout the whole park territory.

It is not expected that the governor will hand the entire park system—commissioners, pay roll, contracts and perquisites—to any single leader or to any group. His whole record since his inauguration last January—nine months ago—is considered as establishing the contrary.

Possibility of Complications.

But neither is it expected that he will continue to leave the whole thing in Mayor Thompson's hands or those of his aide, Eugene R. Pike, the present president. It is deemed more likely that he will make his own selection of each trustee, the secretary, the superintendent and the attorney, then accept less closely scrutinized recommendations from several leaders in the park area as to the bulk of the patronage, item by item.

If considerable of this goes to Haenisch or to Brundage it may shake up the outlook for the Forty-sixth ward fight particularly. It is not thought likely that any of it will go to Deneen. But if it is concentrated in any one faction it will spell trouble, it is said, for others.

So far as is known there is no important candidate being groomed to run against Haenisch for the state senatorial nomination. He had an easy time of it in 1926, winning the primary nomination from a former representative, George A. Williston, by 12,245 to 11,126, and having only negligible opposition in the election, his majority there being 32,480.

Candidate for Representative.

One potential candidate, Weir Traver, is said to be looking over the state representative field. He is a resident of the Forty-sixth and in business is employed in the same office as Haenisch. The two present Republican representatives are James J. McVicker, a close friend of Mayor Thompson, and Roy Juul, a Deneenite. The recent discovery of his name on the pay rolls of the sanitary district already is being used quietly against Juul's renomination.

PROSPECT CLUB HOLDS REUNION BALL SATURDAY

Prospect club, with clubrooms at 2347 North Damen avenue, will hold its annual reunion and ball at the Graemere hotel, Washington boulevard and Homan avenues, next Saturday night. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Charles Cohen, Sol Lefkowitz, A. Mannison, Manual Moshiek, Max Herwitz, and Daniel Cohen. The reunion and ball of last year was attended by more than 600 persons.

One of the oldest social clubs on the northwest side, the Prospect club was formed more than ten years ago by some 25 young men to greet and renew old friendships with the returning world war veterans of the neighborhood. A permanent organization resulted. Today the active membership totals more than 125.

Plans are being considered to rent or build new quarters since the club has outgrown its present quarters. The clubrooms are equipped with a piano, a radio, a library of several hundred books, and means for other forms of amusement and recreation. Friday evening has been long established as social night with music, dancing and various other entertainments for members and their guests.

Officers of the club are: Louis Blonsky, president; Samuel Gold, vice president; Leo Stone, secretary; Joseph Berman, financial secretary; Oscar Burke, treasurer; Samuel Orleans, sergeant at arms, and John Nosanov, house manager.

DRAFT COMMUNITY CENTER'S PROGRAM

HERE'S A BARGAIN: PIANO AND BENCH, DELIVERED, FOR $10

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargain, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—I found a wonderful bargain this week in Englewood. I was passing a moving and storage company and saw pianos advertised in the window. I went in and purchased a good looking piano and bench for $10. They delivered it free of charge.

MRS. KAY ROGERS,

Underwear for 10 Cents.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—I looked and looked for woolen underwear for my father, only to find that it cost from $7 to $10. A few days later our neighborhood store had a fire sale. Here I found woolen underwear, the size and quality I desired, only a trifle soiled, for 10 cents apiece. I took all I could get.

MRS. VAL LEFERER,

GETS HER FLORIDA TRIP.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—I was invited to my cousin's home in Florida, but I had to have some new dresses. All that I wanted cost $15. I knew I couldn't afford them so I sat down and wrote my cousin a letter telling her I was unable to come. As I was on my way to mail the letter the next day, I saw the same dresses marked down to $5. I tore up the letter and bought five dresses, saving $50.

VIRGINIA SMITH,
2628 North Sacramento avenue.

Four Curtains for $1.45.

Berwyn, Oct. 10.—When a new store was opened on Ashland avenue, I found a lot of remnants priced at 7 cents a yard. I matched four such remnants of white swiss curtain material. On another counter I found lace edging at 5 cents a yard. Ten yards of material cost me 70 cents. Fifteen yards of lace cost 75 cents, so four curtains cost me only $1.45. I think this a real bargain.

DEMAND DUNNING POSTAL STATION BE NAMED ANEW

Declaring that the present name is either connected with an institution for the care of the insane or its without any meeting at all, the Ridgemoor Improvement club has petitioned Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder for a change in the name of the Dunning postal station on West Irving Park boulevard.

The club, headed by Michael A. Marine, suggests as a possibility the name Ridgemoor, which is associated with a tine-time suburban community now absorbed in the city.

The club points out that the name Dunning is inevitably connected with the Chicago State Hospital for the Insane and that the name is therefore in a sense undesirable. It adds that since the name of the hospital has been changed from Dunning it has no longer any real significance.

The organization asks that this request be given consideration before the new postal building now under construction on Irving Park boulevard is completed.

CLUB OFFICERS ARE ELECTED AT LANE TECH HIGH

Officers of many of the student clubs at Lane Technical High school were elected at meetings of the organizations last week in the school, 1225 Sedgwick street. At the second fall meeting of the Press club, one of the newer organizations in the school, Theodore Mau was named president. Louis Wade Jr. is vice president and John Pavlick is secretary.

The purpose of the club, which now has a membership of more than thirty students, is to advertise the school by contributing articles on student activities to the community and downtown newspapers.

Mr. Mau was also elected president of the German club at its first meeting. R. A. Gilbert heads the Spanish club during the fall semester.

SEEK TO DOUBLE ATTENDANCE AT SOCIAL CENTER

Starting its third year of service, the Peterson community center, meeting in Peterson school, 5500 North Christiana avenue, on Tuesday and Friday nights, hopes to establish a new record for community center work. With the record of 25,000 persons attending last year, the officers are looking forward to passing the 50,000 mark this year.

The activities of the center include instruction in golf, dramatic art, dancing, gymnasium classes, representation in basketball leagues by four young men's and two girls' teams, a harmonica club for boys, lectures, movies, and Americanization work.

The instructor for golf is Fred Johnson; dancing, Mrs. Helen Porter; dramatic art, Miss Luceba Lobdell, and Americanization, Miss Louise Adams, a teacher in the Peterson school.

Officers of the Peterson community center are: Moses Baum, president; Mrs. Walter Grau (secretary of the Fortieth ward branch of the Women's City club), secretary; August Wilhelm, treasurer, and Mrs. Christian Pedersen, vice president and director. Mrs. Pedersen was appointed by the board of education as director and is responsible for the activities of the center. Mrs. Marie Merrill is supervisor of the work of the community center.

THE REV. JESSE E. THORSON.

THE REV. C. O. SOLBERG.

This morning the Rev. C. O. Solberg, dean of the Chicago Lutheran Bible school, will preach the anniversary sermon, while the choir and soloists will present a special song service tonight. The Rev. Jesse E. Thorson is the pastor.

The anniversary dinner of the congregation took place Friday evening and on Thursday evening the Luther league held a program at which the Rev. Oliver Fjeldstad was the principal speaker. Judge Edgar A. Jonas addressed the Men's brotherhood at an open meeting Tuesday evening.

The church, organized in 1909 with a small membership, now has 450 members and an enrollment of 500 in the Sunday school. The Rev. Thorson has been the pastor for the last eight years, four pastors having preceded him in the twenty years of the church's existence.

Supt. George C. Nelson has been in charge of the Sunday school for more than fifteen years. The congregation has an attractive building, constructed four years ago at a cost of about $100,000.

CALLS 'L' DRIVE NECESSITY FOR FUTURE TRAFFIC

Kaspar Lauds Principle of Grade Separation.

A through traffic artery such as the elevated highway which the west park board proposes to construct over Kinzie street between the Chicago river and the city limits is not only feasible, but will become the logical expedient in solving the traffic problem of the future, is the opinion of Otto Kaspar, president of the Kaspar American State bank and director of the West Town Chamber of Commerce.

"Whether the rapid traffic boulevard is elevated or depressed the principle of the separation of grades and the elimination of intersections is sound and is an advanced step in solving the ever increasing traffic problem," Mr. Kaspar said yesterday.

No Cross Streets Closed.

"If the builders of an elevated roadway bear in mind the idea that no cross streets shall be closed by the structure the greatest objection to such a project will be removed. The west park board does not propose to close any streets, and hence will give the west side a valuable and far reaching improvement," Mr. Kaspar continued.

"A driver operating a car capable of going at a rapid rate of speed does not like to be restricted as he must be on the surface roads. The reason we have fast cars is that we can make time with them, but if it is dangerous for us to travel rapidly the fast cars are of no benefit.

"I am in favor of the elevated highway because I believe it is a needed improvement and that there is a demand for it.

"I am not prepared to say definitely that a similar highway should eventually be built to serve other parts of the west side—the Lawndale district, for example, but I believe that a project in that locality is as feasible as the Kinzie street project.

Speed and Convenience Provided.

"A roadway which eliminates intersections and makes for speed is desirable, provided, as I said before, that it is not built in such a way as to close streets. If we are assured that in future highways such as the one proposed streets will not be closed, the greatest argument against them will have been removed. There remains then only the question of convenience and speed in traveling a long distance, two things which the elevated boulevard undoubtedly provides.

"I do not believe the cost of this project is prohibitive," Mr. Kaspar said in conclusion. "I am convinced that the west park board can build it for the amount estimated. The figures have been prepared by experts, and I believe the cost has been well analyzed. I see no evidence to show that the cost will exceed the estimates, as some opponents charge, and the board is warranted in using all the figures it has compiled."

Hubbart Favors Project.

J. R. Hubbart, manager of the Graemere hotel, Washington boulevard and Homan avenue, one of the largest hotels on the west side, yesterday advanced the belief that opposition based on the argument that the superhighway would injure the west side because it would take traffic off the surface streets is false.

"I have had a good deal of experience with highways and am convinced that the old idea that through traffic directed on to a business street aids business is without foundation.

"I was in touch with the planning of the Yellowstone trail, and when it was being laid out across the country all the small towns on the route wanted the road to go through the center of their business districts. In a short time they discovered that the road carrying through traffic was a great hindrance to business instead of a help, since it interefered with local trade.

"This and similar experiences in traffic development prove conclusively that a project such as the elevated highway which takes through traffic off the surface streets is a distinct aid to business in a district. The argument that it carries out business and prosperity is groundless.

Want Streets Free for Trade.

"Let me cite another example," Mr. Hubbart continued. "In Milwaukee, city officials realized that it would be to their advantage to keep through state roads away from the main business district of the city. As a result, route 100 coming all across the state does not pass through the business section of that city at all, but circles around and goes straight to Chicago.

"The reason for this action on the part of Milwaukee residents was that they wanted their business streets free for local trade, since the through traffic gave them nothing but congestion.

"The elevated highway being constructed in New York does not pass directly through business sections, but instead the latter may be reached only by descending from the roadway on ramps and by driving a few blocks, just as the west park highway is planned.

"Another example of the experience of towns with through traffic may be found right near Chicago in the Fox river valley. The Fox River Valley association is now working to remove through drivers from the business streets of towns in that area simply because they interfere with business instead of aid it.

Too Narrow-Minded.

"The argument that the road would serve only the suburbs is equally without foundation. It is clear that anything serving to bring people in from the western suburbs is of benefit to the west side.

"I operated a hotel on the north side before coming to the west side, and when the outer drive was planned there was no objection from business or hotel men that traffic would be diverted and take away business. On the other hand, they supported the improvement, and are now gaining from this action.

"The trouble with the west side is that there is no easy way to get to it. It should be made accessible by just such a project as the superhighway, yet people fight the improvement," Mr. Hubbart concluded.

MEET TOMORROW TO PRESS DRIVE FOR TAX REFORM

Civic Leaders Plan Big Meeting for Nov. 25.

Organization of civic groups and improvement clubs in all parts of the city into one civic reform association, a job begun recently under the leadership of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, will be resumed tomorrow night, when delegates from the local groups will meet and plan the work to be done this fall.

T. P. Quinn, temporary chairman of the city-wide body, announced yesterday that representatives of eight organizations will meet tomorrow to plan a big meeting Nov. 25 and to launch a campaign for more members.

The delegates will also select a name for the reform group through which they will attempt to obtain better local government and reduced taxes, Mr. Quinn said.

The following delegates will represent local organizations at the meeting:

Fred C. Sterling, 39th Ward federation.

Robert McMurray, Ridge Civic council.

F. R. Campbell, Austin federation.

William R. Wendell, South Side federation.

Albert Olson, Northwest Town Central organization.

O. W. Holmes, Northwest federation.

M. A. Seymour, Southwest federation.

The Chicago Federation of Labor will also be represented.

"Our job for the present is to perfect our central organization, to make it more comprehensive, and to include delegates from parts of the city not yet represented," Mr. Quinn said. "When we have become well organized and truly representative of taxpayers throughout Chicago, we shall be able to make our influence felt in the interest of better government."

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan, national authority on government, will address the group at its meeting Nov. 25.

His talk was characterized by a rare type of wit which made it highly original and genuinely funny, yet intensely earnest.

Alibad Grotto to Hold Ceremonial on Saturday

The Alibad grotto of Cicero will hold a ceremonial at 8 o'clock next Saturday evening in Morton High school. A parade, starting at 48th avenue and 22d street, will traverse Berwyn. Several visitors are expected from grottos in neighboring states.

DIVISION STREET DISTRICT URGES ASHLAND BONDS

Flats, Stores Empty, They Complain.

Business men and property owners on Ashland avenue near Division street are urging voters to aid them in transforming that street from a thoroughfare of vacant buildings to the first rate business artery city planners intended it to be by voting for the $19,000,000 bond issue which will be on the ballot Nov. 5.

The entire sum would be used by the city to pay property owners judgments due them for condemnation and damages as a result of the proposed widening of Ashland avenue, begun ten years ago and not yet completed.

Not only are property owners and merchants handicapped because the widened street which they looked forward to has not yet materialized, but considerable damage has been done because the widening is half completed. For the last three years landlords have been unable to give their tenants leases because since 1926 they have been told that widening was just around the corner.

Scores of Vacancies.

As a result, scores of flats and stores have remained vacant, and unless the bond issue is passed the improvement will be no nearer than it was three years ago, they assert.

Property owners also have suffered on another score since 1926. At that time they were ordered by the city to move their buildings back 27 feet to a new building line or else have the fronts cut off when the improvement was made. Many moved their buildings and others tore them down and built new structures on the new building line. But since some owners were unable to move their buildings, those on the setback line are hidden from view, and merchants testify that they are practically useless as stores.

The entire street, with some buildings set back 27 feet and others flush with the sidewalk, presents a queer picture and does not attract either shoppers or tenants, merchants complain.

Buildings Long Vacant.

Charles C. Breyer, merchant at 1121 North Ashland avenue, said yesterday that he moved to his store to that address from another location only after it had been vacant a year and he was unable to rent it. Two lofts above the store were recently rented on a month to month basis without a lease after having been vacant for more than a year, Mr. Breyer testified.

"I cannot give my tenants leases because the front of the building might be cut off by the widening at any time," he said. "I am in the same position as I was three years ago, and will continue to lose about $1,500 a year on my building until the street is widened."

Forced to Cut Rents.

A. F. Jahnke, merchant at 1421 North Ashland avenue for more than 20 years, told the same story. One flat over his store has been vacant since the old lease ran out, because he was unable to renew it. Another flat has been rented at an extremely low rate without a lease.

"If I could set my building back I would probably be able to rent the flats," Mr. Jahnke said. "I cannot do that, however, until my neighbors move their buildings, because if I did, my store would be sandwiched in between the buildings on each side and would not be visible except from directly in front. Another reason for not moving my building back is that the judgment for damages awarded me by the city three years ago has not been paid."

MAYFAIR CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON PALESTINE

Franklin D. Elmer spoke on "Palestine" at the first fall meeting of the Mayfair Woman's club Monday evening at the Mayfair community house, Sunnyside and Kenton avenues. Mrs. Walter C. Pidgeon presided.

The club chorus, organized last year under the direction of Roger Walters, also appeared on the program. The program was arranged by Mrs. G. Harriman and her program committee.

The club will meet again Monday, Oct. 28, in the community house. In addition to Mrs. Pidgeon, officers are Mrs. George A. Harriman, first vice president; Mrs. Charles F. Fruehling second vice president; Mrs. Fred W Glocke, recording secretary; Mrs. Orville Lynam, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Albert J. Smith, treasurer.

ALTRUI CLUB TO GIVE DRAMA OF VILLAGE AND THE GREAT CITY

The humdrum of a metropolis and the quiet peace of the country woven into four acts of humor and heart throbs is Lillian Mortimer's drama "The Road to the City." The Altrui club of Jefferson Park will present this play in the Wilson park fieldhouse at 8:15 o'clock, Oct. 30 and 31.

George Heilman, 4108 North Hermitage avenue, who has staged plays and pageants around Chicago for twenty-five years, is directing the production with the assistance of Mrs. M. Henderson, Mrs. H. Smith, and Mrs. H. Diedesch. The cast includes Howell Eshelman, George Pabst, Herbert Anderson, Arthur Carlson, Edward Brearly, Miss Mildred Henderson, Mrs. C. Boehm, Miss Vera Eshelman, Mrs. Ewald Weber, and Mrs. Leland McCabe.

LOGAN SQUARE CIVIC PROGRAM TO BE PLANNED

Clubs to Meet Jointly on Oct. 29.

Coöperation among social and business groups of Logan Square for the betterment of that community is sought by the Logan Square Kiwanis club through a series of meetings at which local problems of the district will be discussed. Seventeen clubs, including eleven parent-teacher associations, have agreed to send delegates to the first community get-together conducted by the Kiwanians Oct. 29 at the Norske club, Kedzie boulevard and Fullerton avenue.

Richard N. Howes of Iowa, Kiwanis district governor, will be the guest speaker and will discuss "Community Aims, Ideals, and Accomplishments."

President Joseph A. Hollander of the Logan Square Kiwanis club said yesterday that his group plans not only to aid in community developments in Logan Square, but to initiate a future program and map out a plan of action.

The following clubs have notified the arrangements committee that they will attend the meeting: Logan Square post, No. 405, the American Legion; Logan Square Athletic club; Physicians' Fellowship club; Northwest branch, Chicago Medical society; Avondale Chamber of Commerce; Central Fullerton Avenue Business Men's association; parent-teacher groups of Avondale, James Monroe, Brentano, Mozart, Chase, Goethe, Kelvyn Park, Pulaski, Logan, Darwin, Linne schools.

PROPOSED PARK TOO SMALL, SAY CIVIC LEADERS

Irving Board Replies to Montrose Boosters.

Although the Irving Park district recently announced that plans are under way to establish a new park at Sunnyside avenue and Bernard street, in a community without park facilities, a civic group which previously charged the park board with continued neglect of that neighborhood still persists in its charges.

The Montrose District Boosters association, headed by B. A. Rooney, is of the opinion that neglect of the area bounded by Lawrence, Kedzie, Crawford avenues, and Irving Park boulevard is still evident because the proposed park site is entirely too small. Members demand that a seven and one-half acre park be laid out instead of one 266 by 600 feet in size, as the commissioners plan.

T. B. McGrath, legal adviser to the Irving Park district, replied yesterday that the Montrose group's original charges of neglect were without foundation and that the current accusation would not have been made if the accusers had given the matter proper study.

Cites Limit on Expenditure.

"It is impossible for the district to obtain a larger park in that community because we must limit our expenditure to $450,000," he explained. "Our fund of $1,800,000 for improvements must be spread over the entire district, of which the area in question is only a small part. More than $1,300,000 has been spent in other sections and certainly $450,000 is a generous portion of the whole sum at our disposal.

"High land values in that section of Albany Park make is impossible for us to plan a larger park," he continued. "Although for $300,000, the approximate amount we can spend for a site, we can purchase a large plot of ground in a section where there is a good deal of vacant property, that entire district is built up and the property, which must be condemned, costs a good deal.

"As for the charge of continued neglect, it has been necessary to direct our atention during the last few years to other districts and spend our available funds for parks in many parts of the northwest side. Our recent improvements have been for the most in areas where property was cheap and where future development would raise the price and make the cost prohibitive," he explained.

Land Values High for Years.

"Albany Park, on the other hand, has been thickly populated for some time, and there has been no necessity for us to exhaust our funds for parks in that district for fear the land values would rise.

"The proposed park at Sunnyside avenue and Bernard street would compare favorably in size with almost all of our parks except Kilbourn park. The latter contains 19 acres, but cost no more than the small parks because it is in a new neighborhood and was purchased when the land was entirely vacant," he concluded.

The commissioners will decide definitely next month whether to purchase the proposed site on Sunnyside avenue or another location in the neighborhood. The site tentatively selected is suitable as far as the cost of the ground is concerned, they believe, but since it is across the street from Roosevelt High school, it is not regarded as an ideal park location. A survey of the district will be made and if no more suitable location is found, condemnation proceedings will be opened, according to the present plans.

The women of the church prepared and served the meal.

THREE STRIKING NAMES GIVEN TO GOOSE ISLAND

First Christened Kilgobbin and Then Little Hell.

This article is the nineteenth of a series on the names of districts, streets, and suburbs of the northwest side.

From geese and gas house to factory and railroad and from Kilgobbin to Goose island via Little Hell is the history in miniature of the 160 acre section that is surrounded completely by the waters of the north branch of the Chicago river and the Ogden, or north branch, canal.

When three Irish lords of the land evicted hundreds of their tenants and railroaded them to the United States, a carload reached Chicago and settled on the island that stretches crookedly from Chicago to North avenue between Halsted street and Racine avenue. Ogden's island it had been called when it was called anything and there were tanneries and small soap factories even then at the northern end.

But when the Irish came, they brought the name of Kilgobbin to it. Little Hell was added because of the nearby gas house with its nightly flames and smoke. And Goose Island it became and remained because of the geese they raised in the river channels.

Squatters Driven Out.

The southern end of the island was grassy and pleasant and, although the houses that were put up were little more than shacks, it was considered for a time a good place to live. But P. D. Armour put up his 2,500,000 bushel grain elevator and more and more railroads came through; docks were built into the channel and factories began to wipe out everything else. A son of one of the squatters who persisted in staying on the island was killed and with that as impetus the rest were forced out.

Before that, however, at least one factory had left the island and under rather unusual circumstances. Charles Cleaver had a soap works there in 1835. Some time later he moved it to the south side. He had recently built several houses for his workmen and conceived the bright idea of floating them down the river. There was a bridge, only one, in the way so, he writes: "I notified the city authorities that the bridge was obstructing public traffic and after a delay of a few days it was duly removed."

Mayor Ogden an Early Owner.

Goose island has changed hands many times in its existence. William B. Ogden, first mayor of Chicago, owned most of it at one time. At the time the canal was dug the Illinois Land company was the owner, and in 1855 it was entered as Elston's addition to Chicago. It was not until after the digging of the canal that the island was called that with propriety.

Before that time the north branch curved around to make two sides of the triangle and the third side was part swamp, part rivulet, and part pond.

Now there is no through street across it and, though streets are laid out on it, they run at angles different from the ones leading up to it. Ogden avenue leads up to it from the southwest and then jumps it to pick up again on the other side. Plans to build a bridge across the two channels and over the railroad tracks to connect the two links are still hanging fire.

SMALLEST HOLY SCROLL RESTS IN TEMPLE ARK

Dr. Schwartz Brings Torah from Palestine.

which is a tribute of the congregation to the sisterhood.

The cost of the building, erected nine years ago, was $400,000, but it is said that it could not be duplicated at the present time for $650,000. The land itself is 125 by 185 feet.

The temple has one of the largest Sunday schools among Jewish congregations in the city. A fine, well equipped building for Sunday school purposes provides excellent facilities for the various classes which begin with the kindergarten and lead on up to those for university students. There is a regular attendance of some five hundred in the school, which is taught by twenty-one paid instructors. There are three pupils who recently received merit distinction for not having missed a Sunday in nine years. The are Carl Steiner, Harold Kohn, and Eleanor Kohn.

Teachers of School.

The teachers of the Sunday school are: Philip Sang, Marshall Baker, Jacob Beck, Donald J. Sabath, J. Miller, and the Misses Rebecca Bodian, Lillian Cohen, Ruth Dennen, Genevieve Eisenberg, Sonia Hassen, Adeline Levy, Rose Neary, Annette Ornstein, Ruth Rothschild, Rosalie Sabath, Edna Schwartz, Rose Schwartz, Lillian Teplitz, Zelda Brody, and Mrs. Philip Sang. Dr. Schwartz has personal supervision of the Sunday school.

The temple has a circulating library of several thousand volumes, not only of religious books, but fiction and general research volumes, as well. The library is supplemented by books from the public library. Part of the temple library has been sponsored by the Goldstine family, the Max Lurie family, and the Teplitz family, in memory of their departed. The librarians are Miss Bruna Hazan and Miss Pearl Brown and Carl Sabath.

Ehrman is President.

Max Ehrman is president of the congregation, an office which he has held for the last twenty years. Henry Lurie is financial secretary, an office which he has held for the last twenty-one years. Max Lurie is first vice president; Leo Seelig, second vice president; Charles T. Kramer, recording secretary, and Albert Cohn, treasurer.

The trustees are Charles S. Lurie, Isidor Sabath, Jacob I. Goldstein, Milton D. Goldstine, Philip Sang, Sidney Saldinger, Bernard Superfine, Joseph A. Wais, Max A. Weisskopf, Morris Robitcheck, Gustav D. Golding, Ezra Gottlieb, A. A. Lieberman and Harry Wechter.

The Temple Sisterhood has charter member who is still active in the organization, Mrs. Emma Weisskopf. Officers of the sisterhood are: Mrs. Sam Cohn, president; Mrs. I. Sabath, first vice president; Mrs. Henry Lurie, second vice president; Mrs. Jacob I. Goldstein, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Milton D. Goldstine, recording secretary; Mrs. Sam Brody, financial secretary, and Mrs. Fred Kohn, treasurer.

The Temple Brotherhood is officered as follows: Gustav D. Golding, president; Fred Lederer, vice president; Max Beck, treasurer; Jacob Beck, secretary. Mr. Golding is also a member of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods and is chairman of the committee on public worship.

Ralph Galley is president of the Temple Alliance, an organization of young people devoted to social and cultural activities. Donald J. Sabath is treasurer; Marion Peskind, secretary; Jack Goldstein, assistant secretary.

Alumni Meet Sunday.

The alumni group of the Temple, consisting of one hundred and fifty confirmants, under the leadership of Philip Sang, meets every Sunday morning. This group is particularly outstanding because of its keen interest in the higher things in Jewish life.

Miss Rose Deutch is in charge of the community house, where Hebrew school is held three times a week. Here also is the headquarters for the Boy Scout and Camp Fire girls' activities. The community house was dedicated in 1920, a year before the Temple was erected. The building has a large auditorium, and modern kitchen facilities for functions given by the sisterhood and similar organizations. There is also a fine dining room and parlors, one for women and one for men. The building is used exclusively by the Temple organizations.

The Temple has a fine choir, under the directorship of J. Arthur Wirth, who is the organist. This choir is heard at the impressive regular Friday evening services.

Human interest pictures, pictures that tell a story, and action pictures are the new subjects for camera fans to try their trigger finger at and win a prize in the photo contest of the Metropolitan section.

Children and grownups at play and at work, caught unawares by the amateur fan or posed in a scene that tells its own story—pictures taken around the home.

The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print, as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Park View Festival.

A fall festival will be conducted by the Park View Lutheran church, 3921 Monticello avenue, from Wednesday to Friday of next week, Pastor M. E. Fretheim announced yesterday.

PROVE SKILL AT DARK DAY PHOTOGRAPHY

Entrants in The Tribune's contest for amateur photographers of the west side this week proved their skill at making pictures on rainy days. Mrs. William Krause, 134 Berteau avenue, Elmhurst, won the first prize of $5 with a picture of William Krause and Fred Mumm playing cards on a rainy day in camp. The second prize of $3 was awarded to Mrs. Horace B. Hench, 172 South Garfield avenue, Hinsdale, for "Tea for Two," showing Betsy Hench and her dog, Julie Gal. With a picture of the sun breaking through the clouds after a rain on the Des Plaines river, Mrs. J. A. Ross, Wauconda, Ill., won the third prize of $2. An extra prize of $2 went to Robert P. Rasmussen, 715 Highland avenue, Glen Ellyn, for "A Happy Helper," showing Marilyn Jean Rasmussen, 2½ years old.

West Irving Business Men to Plan Drive Tomorrow

The West Irving Business Men's association will meet tomorrow evening in the community room of the West Irving State bank to plan for a business promotion campaign. Twenty-five new members were recently voted into the organization, and a campaign inaugurated to extend the membership activities to include Addison street business men. The following men were appointed by the president: Louis J. Schorsch, to interview the Addison merchants; Fred E. Hoff, E. S. Liljeberg and I. Diehl.

UNANIMITY SEEN IN PARK AREA'S FIRST ELECTION

Single Ticket Is Likely in Leyden District.

The election of five commissioners for the newly formed Northwest Leyden park district No. 4 promises to be without a contest, for only five men are running for places on the board, and there is no indication that opposition will be formed.

Northwest Leyden district will have jurisdiction over park and playground facilities in the villages of Franklin Park and Schiller Park, and will embrace the area bounded by Bryn Mawr and Grand avenues, the western county line, and River road. The election will be held at 9670 Franklin avenue, Franklin Park.

Candidates Meet Tomorrow.

J. H. Dart of Franklin Park, one of the candidates, yesterday predicted that the five aspirants to office will have the field to themselves. They have agreed to run on one ticket, he said, and will meet tomorrow night to decide on a name for the ticket and to draw up a platform. The other four candidates are: J. W. Stackland, W. J. Smith, and A. O. Atherton of Franklin Park, and Maurice Z. Sax of Schiller Park.

This entire area is without parks or playgrounds, Mr. Dart pointed out, and the platform of his party will probably include as its main plank a pledge to begin immediate negotiations to provide recreation centers for the two villages.

"Although as far as we know no candidates will oppose our ticket, we have begun campaigning already and intend to acquaint all residents of the villages with our plans before the election," he said.

Move Started By Kiwanis.

The movement to form the park district was begun some months ago by the Franklin Park Kiwanis club to give the two villages a taxing body of their own to provide recreation centers. Members of the club argued that unless immediate steps were taken to form a park district the area would be taken over by some body already formed, and would then stand little chance of getting the much needed parks, while residents would have to pay additional taxes.

Leyden township lost the opportunity to provide its own parks last year, they pointed out, when the area south of Grand avenue and west of the Des Plaines river was taken over by the Melrose Park district.

North Western to Start Elevation Work in May

Elevation of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks between Foster and Ozark avenues at a cost of more than $2,000,000 agreed upon last summer by the city and the railroad, must be begun next May and be completed in 1939, according to an ordinance recently passed by the city council. The elevation will include traffic subways over Bryn Mawr avenue, Nagle avenue, Newark avenue, Raven street, Newal street, Harlem avenue, Oliphant avenue, Ashkosh avenue, and Devon avenues, and pedestrian subways at Ardmore and Olympia avenues.

BUSINESS GROUPS BALK PAVING ON MILWAUKEE AVE.

$201,000 Faherty Project Is Abandoned.

Business men and property owners on Milwaukee avenue, who are in the midst of formulating plans for improving their street and are holding weekly meetings in an attempt to decide what sort of improvement would be best, hastened to the city hall recently to keep the board of local improvements from doing things on its own hook.

A group of more than 75, representing civic groups as well as business interests, attended a public hearing on the proposed paving of Milwaukee avenue between Halsted and Division streets and forced the board to abandon the project. The job would have cost $201,000.

Only Repairs Needed.

Spokesmen demanded that the city attempt no improvement on the street until local interests decided what they wanted, and also reminded the board that the existing pavement needed only minor repairs.

The statement of President Faherty of the board that the proposition represented the wishes of 55 per cent of the property owners in that section of Milwaukee avenue and that the board was asked to start proceedings and did not undertake the matter itself was greeted with a laugh from the assemblage.

"How can you say that 55 per cent of the property owners petitioned you to pave this street when a much larger percentage than that is here demanding that the project be abandoned?" one merchant asked.

More than 7,000 feet of frontage was represented by the Northwest Side Commercial league, he asserted, and independent owners of most of the remaining frontage were also present to oppose the project.

"Sentiment Against Unanimous."

"We've got more than a majority lined up against the improvement," another opponent argued. "The sentiment against it is unanimous."

A third irate merchant interjected that Milwaukee avenue would be in first class condition if the street was not continually torn up by underground work of the public utilities. What the city should do is make these companies fix the streets after they tear them up instead of asking property owners to pay $200,000 for a new pavement, he advised.

On motion of James Vignola, the board voted unanimously to abandon the project.

HOLD UP PAVING OF STREETS ON CITY BOUNDARIES

Property Owners Seek Pacts with Villages.

At a recent public hearing held by the board of local improvements northwest side property owners succeeded in having three projects abandoned, prevailed upon the board to defer two others for a year, and approved three without objections. The improvements abandoned and deferred would have cost $200,000, and the three approved will cost $100,000.

Paving a group of 41st ward streets was abandoned by the board at the request of Ald. T. J. Bowler and local property owners.

Improvement of Byron street between Narragansett and Melvina avenues, Melvina avenue between Byron street and Berenice avenue, and Mobile avenue between Byron and Addison streets, estimated to cost $75,500, was abandoned because the specifications called for paving only half of Byron street and Melvina avenue in certain sections. These streets are at the city limits, and half of them belongs to neighboring villages.

Demands Joint Action.

The same condition was presented on Leonard avenue between Central and Miltimore avenues, where half of the street belongs to the county, and on Leclaire avenue between Foster and Berwyn avenues. Ald. Bowler pointed out that it would be useless to pave only half of these streets, and asked that the board wait until agreements could be reached with the other taxing bodies. These projects would have cost $16,000 and $13,000, respectively.

The proposed paving of Albion avenue between Natoma and Newcastle avenues, costing $17,800, was deferred for a year in order to give Ald. Bowler time to negotiate with the village of Niles for paving its half of the street. The city planned to pave only 15 feet, and leave the other 15 for the village to improve.

Sewer Project Delays Paving.

Paving of Spaulding avenue between Montrose avenue and Irving Park boulevard was deferred for a year at the request of property owners until the question of laying a sewer in the district would be settled. The cost of the improvement would be $80,000.

Improvement of the following system of streets in Norwood Park, costing $59,000, was approved at the hearing: Nagle avenue between Raven street and Milwaukee avenue, and Haft and Hermoine streets between Nagle and Milwaukee avenues.

Others approved are: Paving of Berwyn avenue between Leclaire and Laramie avenues, and Leamington avenue between Berwyn and Elston avenues, at a cost of $25,000; and paving of Slocum street between Menard and Marmora avenues, costing $15,500.

REFERENDUM ON NORTHWEST PARK IS POSTPONED

An election which was to have been held Tuesday on the proposed organization of the Glen Park district, comprising parts of Niles, Niles Center, Edgebrook, and an adjacent section of Chicago, was called off late Monday night by the county court at the request of a group of residents, in the four municipalities, and will be held Nov. 15 instead.

A petition was brought into the county court rooms Monday afternoon by a group of residents, headed by H. S. Ashenhurst, and including village officials of the towns to have been part of the district, asking that the election be delayed to give them time to study the matter. They had no knowledge of the proposition, Mr. Ashenhurst explained, and learned of the election only through the court's official notice. Because of the mystery surrounding the proposition to create the park district, the petitioners asked that the referendum be deferred.

REALTY OWNERS ORGANIZE FOR FIGHT ON SEWER

Propose $10,000 Fund to Block Project.

The proposed $3,000,000 Berteau avenue sewer project will be opposed by a large group of property owners who organized the Berteau Avenue Objectors' league Monday night. The project was abandoned by the city three years ago after a court battle, but was revived recently. Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], whose constituents would have to pay for the sewer, asserted that it was revived in the city council without his knowledge.

A. W. Zitzman, a leader in the former battle to defeat the project, was elected president of the objectors' league. The group includes members of the following neighborhood groups: Park View association, West Walker Improvement club, Walker Improvement club, Mont Lawn Improvement club, Montrose District Boosters' association, Independence Improvement club, West End Portage Park association, and the Park View Chamber of Commerce.

Alderman Fights for Repeal.

A fund of more than $10,000 will be raised to fight the project in court if the board of local improvements attempts to have it confirmed, members decided at the initial meeting. Ald. Ross, however, is attempting to have the city council pass an ordinance repealing the measure permitting the board to proceed.

Residents of the district do not want the Berteau sewer, they say, because while they would have to pay heavy assessments, they do not need a new sewer. The main line would extend from the north branch of the river in Berteau avenue to Narragansett avenue, and according to residents of the 40th ward, would be of benefit only to property owners at the western extremity.

Ordinance Passed in June.

At the time of his election Ald. Ross pledged himself to fight any attempt by the city to construct the sewer, but he discovered two months ago that an ordinance for the project had been passed by the city council in June without his knowledge. He charged that administration leaders intentionally slipped the ordinance over without his knowledge.

Tom Osterholm Heads Oak Park Music Club

Officers of Music club of Oak Park High school were elected at the first meeting. Tom Osterholm was elected president. His assistants on the executive staff are: James Elwell, vice president; Pat Doyle, secretary; Irene Basta, treasurer, and Robert Phillips, sergeant at arms. Virginia Roos is chairman of the program committee, and Marie Louise Taylor is chairman of the publicity committee.

TINIEST HOLY SCROLL RESTS IN TEMPLE ARK

Torah Brought from Palestine.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Visible for several blocks in all directions is the dome of Washington boulevard temple, Washington boulevard and Marlow avenue. The dome, in all rising to a height of 83 feet and almost the same distance in diameter, is said to be the largest temple dome in Chicago. Eight years ago, when the temple was dedicated, it was surrounded by a sparsely settled territory. Today it finds itself in the midst of an active business and residential district.

DR. SAMUEL SCHWARTZ.

Within the arc of the temple is what is said to be the tiniest holy scroll—Torah—in the United States. The scroll was obtained by Dr. Samuel Schwartz, rabbi of the temple, during a recent visit to the Holy Land, its purchase being made possible through Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lurie, pioneer members of the congregation, in honor of their silver wedding anniversary. Dr. Schwartz uses the unique torah in all of his Sabbath services.

Golden Jubilee Celebrated.

The temple, which celebrated its golden jubilee three years ago this month, is a union of two old prominent west side congregations — B'nai Abraham and Zion. Both congregations had an illustrious history in the Jewish community of Chicago. Among the rabbis who ministered to the old congregations were Rabbi Ignatz Grossman, Dr. Felsenthal, Dr. A. R. Levy, Dr. Joseph Stolz, Dr. Max Heller, Dr. Samuel S. Cohon, and Rabbi Merrit.

The union of the two old congregations took place in 1918. Shortly after that Dr. Samuel Schwartz was called as rabbi and has since been in charge. A graduate of the University of Chicago and of the Hebrew Union college of Cincinnati, with former pastorates at Cleveland and Montreal, Dr. Schwartz has seen the membership double during the time that he has been in charge. The temple also owes much of its strength to the untiring efforts of its official board, several members of whom have been deeply devoted to the welfare of the organization, and have given generously of their time and money toward its progress for the last two score years.

The temple draws a goodly portion of its congregation from Oak Park, River Forest, Maywood, La Grange, and even as far west as Geneva. In many instances those of the congregation are of the third generation of the original members.

Picture Liberty of Jew.

From an architectural standpoint, aside from the dome, the windows conceived and planned by Dr. Schwartz are a distinctive feature. The panel on the north side, as seen from Washington boulevard, pictures the condition of the Jew in countries of oppression, contrasted with the liberty of the Jew in America.

Other windows depict the revelation at Sinai, the maxim of Simon the Just; Israel's guiding star, "The Light of the Torah"; Israel's heart in song and prayer; the prophecy of the Prophets Micah and Isaiah concerning universal peace; the vision of the Prophet Zechariah. There is a window in the Sabbath school library symbolizing education and showing the Sabbath school banner.

Windows Are Gifts.

The windows are the gifts of different members in the congregation, with the exception of the "liberty window,"

Rosendahl Is Sunday Club's First Speaker

Commander Charles Emery Rosendahl, U. S. N., skipper of the American dirigible Los Angeles, and official observer for the navy in the globe girdling trip of the Graf Zeppelin and other transoceanic voyages made by the German blimp during the last year, will be the speaker tonight at the first of this season's weekly series of Sunday Evening club meetings to be staged by the American Legion at La Grange. His subject will be "Around the World on Board the Graf Zeppelin."

The meeting, which is expected to attract at least 3,000 listeners from the west side suburbs, will be held in the auditorium of Lyons Township High school.

The success of the Sunday Evening club, started three years ago by the La Grange Legionnaires, not only has won them signal honors at the state and national conventions of the big ex-service group, but also has been copied in the community development programs of other veteran organizations all over the country.

Winner of Legion Plaque.

Probably the most convincing evidence of the success of the La Grange post's Sunday evening undertakings was the award to it last year of the Illinois American Legion service plaque.

Another indication of the growing popularity of the movement is the announcement by Marshall Mathews, president of the club and former post commander, that the regular Sunday night sessions will be supplemented this winter by six matinées, arranged particularly for children.

The program, covering a period of twenty-one weeks, is comprehensive in its scope, including religion and politics, science and history, music and education.

York and Summerall to Speak.

Speakers, in addition to Commander Rosendahl, include such outstanding figures as Sergt. Alvin C. York, America's great war hero; Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the army and the sixth American to be honored with the rank of general; Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovich, cousin of the late czar and one of the few remaining leaders of the Russian royalists; Carl Sandburg, Will Irwin, Percy Grainger, and Efrem Zimbalist.

The program, after the first meeting, follows:

Oct. 27—Will Irwin, noted correspondent, "With Mr. Hoover in South America."

Nov. 3—Dr. John Murray, principal, University college, Exeter, England. Subject, "The Essence of Individualism."

Nov. 10—Tom Skeyhill of Australia. Subject, "The Last of the Long Hunters and America's Greatest Hero."

Nov. 17—Avlin C. York.

Nov. 24—Efrem Zimbalist, violinist and composer.

Dec. 1—Gen. Summerall.

Dec. 8—Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovich of Russia, cousin and brother-in-law of the late Czar Nicholas II. of Russia. Subject, "Out of My Life."

Dec. 15 — Prof. J. E. Williamson, originator of undersea photography. Subject, "Beauty and Tragedy Under the Sea." Illustrated.

Dec. 22—Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean Yale divinity school.

Jan. 5—Carl Sandburg, "An Evening of Music and Poetry."

Jan. 12—Dr. B. R. Baumgardt, astronomer and author. Subject, "The Frontiers of the Universe." Illustrated.

Jan 19—Rabbi Barnett Brickner, Cleveland, O.

Jan. 26—Percy Grainger, pianist and composer.

Feb. 2—Count Kuhn Byron de Prorok, archeologist. Subject, "Excavations on the Site of Ancient Carthage." Illustrated.

Feb. 9—Dr. Lincoln Caswell, "Interpretation of Abraham Lincoln."

Feb. 16—Kedroff quartet, Russian singers. "The Miracle of Vocal Art."

Feb. 23—Dr. Ray Petty, pastor, Baptist temple, Philadelphia.

March 2—Prof. Hilton Ira Jones, chemist. Subject, "Science and the Future."

DU PAGE COUNTY SEEKS $500,000 HOSPITAL FUND

Reduction in Cost of Ills Proposed.

Not only is the population of Du Page county to be adequately hospitalized but there is to be a material reduction in the high cost of sustaining its ills, ailments and injuries, according to the plans now being formulated for the new $500,000 Du Page Memorial hospital by community leaders of Wheaton, Glen Ellyn, Westfield, West Chicago, Lombard, and other neighboring towns.

The need for a general hospital in the county has long been recognized. Health authorities have estimated that at present less than half the hospital capacity necessary to safety is available. An investigation of local conditions by Dr. William H. Walsh; who was formerly executive secretary of the American Hospital association, has been a determining factor in planning the size of the first unit of the new institution. Dr. Williams has been retained as consultant.

In Center of County.

The site chosen for the hospital is almost at the geographical center of Du Page county, north of Harrison avenue between Glen Ellyn and Wheaton. The building, to be in keeping with its suburban locality, will have the appearance of a large, commodious country home. Plans for the exterior have been entrusted to Pond, Pond, Martin & Lloyd of Chicago, specialists in hospital design.

The hospital will have a 98 bed capacity. There are to be 62 beds in three and four bed wards and two bed semiprivate rooms, and 38 in private rooms. The building plans provide for complete X-ray with fluoroscope, physical therapy and surgical departments, a bacteriological and pathological laboratory, and also an obstetrical suite of the latest approved design.

An organization to conduct the drive for the building fund of $500,000, the estimated cost of site, building, furnishings and equipment, was formed last week. Charles W. Hadley, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, was elected general chairman.

Suburban Mayors Lend Aid.

Daniel Garrity is chairman of the Wheaton group, and Mrs. Thomas S. McCarty heads the women's division. Coöperating in the drive are the mayors of Lombard, Wheaton, Westfield, and West Chicago.

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

OTTO H. BERZ, our civic landmark at Leavitt street and Warren avenue, often referred to as the Man on Horseback, has returned from the great north woods of Michigan looking like a million dollars and feeling that way, says Otto, whose establishment is so highly esteemed by west siders as to give rise to the popular saying, "I hope I go to Otto when I die."

Joe Murphy, a local boy, has entered De La Salle High school, where he tried out for the football team with excellent chances of making a name for himself.

"DO you know what they're calling Hack Wilson?" queried Earl Brazee, our fellow cohort and cameraman. "No," we replied, accepting the cigarette. "Sunny Boy," said Earl, galloping on his way to 5300 North Christiana avenue to shoot a picture of the officers of the Paterson School Community center.

Mrs. John H. McGeary of Oak Park phoned in Thursday a week ago [too late for publication in our last] and informed us that her police dog was just full of news. It transpires that the pro-Cub canine lamped the Trib's page one headline, "Athletics Win Again, 9-3," and chewed up the paper.

FEWER and fewer contented cows are going dry this year, according to reliable statistics reaching the editor. They are giving booze instead of milk, instances in ever increasing numbers being reported in and around Chicago, where the familiar quarts and pints delivered daily by the faithful dairyman have been found to contain gin, bourbon and Scotch. We would therefore advise readers to be on guard and if the least suspicion is aroused to take no chance but snatch the bottles in off the back porch pronto. The situation, of course, adds another grave problem to those attending prohibition enforcement. In fact, at this writing, we are still trying to figure out how a federal court can padlock a cow.

Clifford Fox, the stock exchange publicist and young Marco Polo, who, with his charming helpmeet, has just returned from the orient, sends us a number of quaint professional signs illustrative of the earnest efforts of the Japanese to master the English language. One we hope you haven't met before is that of a Yokohama dressmaker, reading, "Ladies have fits upstairs."

MRS. BRET L. VILNA, who is secretary of the Cicero Welfare center, would like to have one small, old fashioned cook stove and a wringer, required by a little lady near 80 years old, to complete the furnishings of a small apartment the center has provided. If any kindhearted reader has any such articles please send them to Mrs. Vilna at Cicero, Ill.

ALDERMEN ACT TOMORROW ON 5 ZONING MOVES

Five ordinances rezoning west side property will be considered at a public meeting of the city council committee on buildings and zoning tomorrow morning. Property owners in the blocks on which the changes would be made have been notified to appear at the city hall for a hearing if they wish to object to the ordinances.

The following property would be rezoned, according to the ordinances before the committee: the east side of Mayfield avenue between the alley south of Washington boulevard and the alley north of Madison street, from a residence to an apartment block.

The south side of Warren boulevard between Leavitt street and a line 84 feet east, from an apartment to a commercial classification; the west side of Kostner avenue between Congress street and a line 125 feet north of Harrison street, from an apartment to a commercial classification.

The east side of Harlem avenue between Talcott and Bryn Mawr avenues, from an apartment to a commercial district; and the east side of Kedvale avenue between Grace street and Warwick avenue, from a residence to an apartment classification.

MORTON SENIORS WAGE HOT FIGHT FOR PRESIDENCY

Five candidates for the presidency of the senior class of Morton High school, Cicero, will close a whirlwind primary campaign tomorrow by addressing their classmates at a meeting in the Little theater of the school. One of the two candidates receiving the largest number of votes in the primary election Tuesday will be elected president Oct. 26.

The candidates are: Robert Cech, Walter Fandorff, Thomas Kazakos, Walter Jones, and Edward Novak.

At an election held several days ago Cech and Jones received equal numbers of votes. The other three candidates entered the race after a new election had been called. One of them, young Kazakos, said to have cherished a three year ambition to head the class, was eliminated by a technicality from the earlier voting.

Other officers, chosen at the first election, are: Vice president, John Dunkel; secretary, Miss Helen Yarkowitz, and treasurer, Miss Ethel Hanslik.

RIVER FOREST BATTLES OVER ZONING CHANGE

Bigger Trade Area Proposed on Lake St.

Property owners in River Forest presented a petition to the village board of local improvements last Monday night requesting that a public hearing be called to consider the question of a proposed amendment to the zoning ordinance changing the north side of Lake street from Bonnie Brae avenue to Franklin street from a residential to a commercial character. The petition was referred to the zoning board of appeals of the village.

The proposed change has caused a stir among residents of the territory affected. Not only property owners along Lake street but also those possessing lots adjacent are taking a keen interest in the suggested alteration. Considerable opposition has been reported and several days ago a circular appeared published by the Committee for the Defense of the Zoning and condemning the change.

Plead for Shopping District.

Several points in favor of the change are cited in the petition presented to the board. According to the petitioners, Lake street within River Forest is by reason of its location and use a business street; the south side of the street has been retarded largely because of the fact that the north side has not been available for similar development; the amendment to the zoning ordinance would result in greatly increased taxes to the various tax receiving bodies, which would benefit the entire village; and the development of both sides of Lake street for commercial purposes would create a shopping district where money spent would be spent "at home."

According to the petition a supplemental document has been signed by various property owners in several parts of the village requesting the change. This is said to contain the names of past officials of River Forest, members of the school board, the original zoning board, and various other organizations.

Foes Cite Ten Reasons.

In their circular calculated to gain opponents to the zoning change the committee for the defense of the zoning, of which Frederick Doyle is chairman, outlines ten reasons for their stand. These include the following: the zoning laws have been mainly responsible for the admirable development of River Forest and the steady rise of property values; the majority of homes of the village were built or bought after the zoning ordinance was passed and with confidence that the village would permanently maintain the protection against undesirable buildings which the zoning laws afford; the erection of stores and apartments in any section now zoned for residences would depreciate the value of every nearby home; fourth, the total value of all homes that would be depreciated amounts to several millions of dollars.

Grant "Final" Continuance in Bus Battle

The long series of continuances encountered by northwest side residents in their fight of more than a year to obtain feeder buses on streets throughout that district is over. This was indicated Tuesday by the Illinois Commerce commission. The northwest siders will know definitely with a few weeks whether they will get the feeder buses having free transfer service to street cars or whether they must continue to use Chicago Motor Coach company buses charging a 10 cent fare.

The case pending before the commission in which the West Town Chamber of Commerce, the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, and the Chicago Surface lines are opposing the motor coach company and are demanding the removal of the latter's buses, was continued Tuesday at the request of the coach company until Oct. 30. This continuance is the last, however, the commission ruled, and the case must go on next week without further delay.

Refuse Indefinite Delay.

The coach company first asked to have the case continued indefinitely but this request was refused by the commission. O. W. Holmes of the federation and H. J. Ruggles of the West Town chamber objected to any continuance on the ground that the fight already has been delayed unnecessarily and that northwest side residents are entitled to an immediate decision.

Feeder buses are being sought on ten lines, many of which are served by the coach company's 10 cent buses and some of which are without transportation facilities. Residents demand an adequate transportation system at a total fare of 7 cents.

Lines Sought on These Streets.

They seek feeder buses for the following streets:

Northwest highway from Edison park to Milwaukee avenue.

Elston avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Lawrence avenue.

Narragansett avenue from Irving Park boulevard to North avenue, then east on North avenue to Austin avenue.

Central avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Harrison street.

Laramie avenue from Milwaukee avenue to Lake street.

Central Park avenue from Foster avenue to 26th street.

Addison street from Cumberland avenue to Broadway.

Belmont avenue from Beach avenue to Central Park avenue.

Diversey avenue from Harlem avenue to Milwaukee avenue.

Fullerton avenue from Narragansett avenue to Central Park avenue.

SMALL BACKER GROOMED FOR SPITE BATTLE

Scanlan May Run in La Salle County.

Precampaign seasons frequently bring talk of many candidacies of retaliation, reprisal, and spite that fades away gradually, but La Salle county now is hearing discussion of this sort that, it is said, may prove to be more than an unfulfilled threat.

GEO. M. REYNOLDS

La Salle county alone constitutes the Thirty-ninth legislative district and is represented in the upper chamber of the assembly by Senator George M. Reynolds of Utica. He is the target for the talk of punishment for purely political reasons.

It is reported that William M. Scanlan of Peru, a former representative, is telling his friends that because he was not retained by Gov. Emmerson as chairman of the state industrial commission, to which he was appointed by Len Small, he intends to contest for Reynolds' seat.

Aimed at County Organization.

The theory is said to be not so much that Scanlan's election to the senate would punish Emmerson for his refusal to retain him in a nice job but that Scanlan's candidacy will make the sledding rougher for the county organization, which refused or failed to back him up in demands for retention.

The county committee passed into the unquestioned control of the anti-Small forces in connection with the Stone-Scholes contest for the Supreme court. Action by the Republican convention in La Salle county, one of ten in the court district, came at a crucial time. The Small people attempted to get a split delegation to the Peoria convention, but the anti-Small group stood fast for a solid block for Justice Stone.

Later developments indicated this firmness probably was the deciding factor in the battle. It was a feather in the caps of the victors, and last year W. C. ("Cadet") Jones of Streator, their leader, was elected chairman of the county committee.

One of the Scholes workers was Scanlan. As a state office holder he continued to support Small in the primary last year. The Jones forces were with Emmerson. They included former Senator Thurlow G. Essington, the 1924 anti-Small nominee for governor, and Senator Reynolds, then a holdover, since he was elected as Essington's successor in 1926.

Watch Emmerson Policy.

Politicians have been much interested in observing one of the results of Gov. Emmerson's long delay in dropping Small lieutenants from the state pay roll. The process took months; in fact, is just being completed now. Had he ousted them all in the first month or so, say the experts, they would have taken their medicine as something to be expected.

But a number who, like Scanlan were kept in office month after month, are said to have developed a belief there was a chance for them to hold on for an entire four years. The Jones-Essington-Reynolds group was strong with the new governor and Scanlan is said to have seen to it that word reached them that they'd better be careful if they didn't want trouble in the county.

Proof of the influence of the group at Springfield was seen in the recent appointment of Mr. Jones as chairman of the pardon and paroles board, but those closest to Emmerson say it was more of a personal tribute to the appointee's own qualifications than an award of patronage to the county organization. Despite this belief, it is said that Scanlan felt he might have been reappointed if Jones hadn't wanted something for himself. But it also is pointed out that the anti-Small organization hardly would have indorsed Scanlan because of his long Small associations.

May Be Favored by Circumstances.

Scanlan, who served in the lower house from 1908 to 1922, has made no announcement of his intentions, but reports from the cities of Ottawa, Streator, and La Salle, the larger centers of population, indicate that circumstances may be shaping themselves up in a way that may add to his chances of success if he determines to make the race.

There are reports that at least two others of some prominence are being urged to run against Senator Reynolds. One of them is Mrs. W. S. Mason, a city commissioner of La Salle, who, in the absence of her husband, is now acting mayor of the city. Another is Cyrus P. Trowbridge, a Marseilles druggist, who for years has been a member of the county board of supervisors. In a race such as this, it is admitted, Scanlan's chances would be much better than in a two man fight.

Scanlan was named on the industrial commission as one of the representatives of labor whose appointment is provided for by law. Added to the support of labor, he might be expected to have the wet indorsement and the backing of the extensive cement interests in the county, which have been a factor in previous contests. He also would have the Small organization in the county.

Reynolds Quiet, Well Informed.

Reynolds has been one of the quietest men in the state senate during his first term. But he has been considered a well informed member whose voting record has been approved by organizations whose purpose is to guard the welfare of the state.

In its report of April 2, 1926, when Reynolds was a candidate, the Legislative Voters' league said of him:

"George M. Reynolds, Utica banker, formerly served as treasurer of La Salle county with a good record and has been chairman of the Republican county central committee; he has excellent standing in the community as a business man and citizen."

Of Scanlan, ending his seventh term in 1922, the same organization said:

"One of the Thompson-Small regulars, voted for the Thompson (Kankakee) platform resolution giving gratuitous advice to the President and congress about national affairs, and for the bill to paralyze the state civil service."

House Race Is Indefinite.

The fight for the three places from the county in the lower house has not yet begun to shape up definitely. This is the district from which the late Lee O'Neil Browne was so long the Democratic minority member. His seat was occupied during the last session by Edmond P. Conerton of La Salle, who is expected to be a candidate again. Thomas J. Dunne is another talked of for the Democratic place.

The two Republican incumbents, R. G. Soderstrom of Streator and Ole E. Benson of Ottawa, are expected to seek renomination. There is said to be some chance that John Wylie, a veteran former member from the city of La Salle, may run.

Hoover carried La Salle county by 3,232. Collidge carried it by 13,731 against Davis and La Follette; and the vote for the third party standard bearer was considered significant. It amounted to 7,685, making La Salle one of the banner counties of the state for the radicals.

Last year in the primary Emmerson carried the county easily, his vote being 18,249 to Small's 10,220, and now, out of office, Small is nowhere nearly so strong as he used to be.

FLOWER HIGH TO DEVOTE WEEK TO VOCATIONS

Plans have been completed at Lucy Flower Technical High school for Girls' Achievement week, beginning tomorrow. At an assembly next Friday several students are to tell their experiences as wage earners during the summer vacation. Miss Dorothy Lauth will relate the story of her position in a restaurant, Miss Ruth Faist is to tell of her work in a cafeteria, and Miss Anna Schwartz will give an account of her employment in a dressmaking establishment. Miss June Erickson, a graduate of Flower millinery department, will relate how she achieved success.

Answers to a questionnaire which was recently sent to several successful women in various positions in Chicago are to be read at the assembly. The questions included the following: "What preparation work do you need for your position?" "Is there a large need for women in this field?" and "What special aptitudes does one require?"

Some of the replies to the questionnaire will be posted.

Various exhibits are to be on display at the school during the week.

CALL ELECTION WEDNESDAY ON MOSQUITO PLAN

The voters of a major part of Du Page county will soon vote on the establishment of a mosquito control district, following the filing of a petition with S. L. Rathje, county judge, calling for such an election.

The petition, circulated by a Mosquito Abatement league, of which Mrs. H. M. Beardsley of Wheaton is chairman, bore the names of 8 per cent of the voters, a minimum of 5 per cent having been required.

The county judge has set Wednesday as the date for a hearing at which boundaries of the proposed district will be fixed and a date for a referendum vote set.

HERE'S A BARGAIN: PIANO AND BENCH, DELIVERED, FOR $10

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargain, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—I found a wonderful bargain this week in Englewood. I was passing a moving and storage company and saw pianos advertised in the window. I went in and purchased a good looking piano and bench for $10. They delivered it free of charge.

MRS. KAY ROGERS,
1901 West 35th street.

Underwear for 10 Cents.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—I looked and looked for woolen underwear for my father, only to find that it cost from $7 to $10. A few days later our neighborhood store had a fire sale. Here I found woolen underwear, the size and quality I desired, only a trifle soiled, for 10 cents apiece. I took all I could get.

MRS. VAL LEFERER,
1114 North Lincoln street.

GETS HER FLORIDA TRIP.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—I was invited to my cousin's home in Florida, but I had to have some new dresses. All that I wanted cost $15. I knew I couldn't afford them so I sat down and wrote my cousin a letter telling her I was unable to come. As I was on my way to mail the letter the next day, I saw the same dresses marked down to $5. I tore up the letter and bought five dresses, saving $50.

VIRGINIA SMITH,
2628 North Sacramento avenue.

Four Curtains for $1.45.

Berwyn, Oct. 10.—When a new store was opened on Ashland avenue, I found a lot of remnants priced at 7 cents a yard. I matched four such remnants of white swiss curtain material. On another counter I found lace edging at 5 cents a yard. Ten yards of material cost me 70 cents. Fifteen yards of lace cost 75 cents, so four curtains cost me only $1.45. I think this a real bargain.

ALLS 'L' DRIVE NECESSITY FOR FUTURE TRAFFIC

aspar Lauds Principle of Grade Separation.

A through traffic artery such as the ated highway which the west ark board proposes to construct over ade street between the Chicago r and the city limits is not only sible, but will become the logical ent in solving the traffic prob- s of the future, is the opinion of n Kaspar, president of the Kaspar erican State bank and director of West Town Chamber of Com- rce.

"Whether the rapid traffic boule- d is elevated or depressed the prin- ple of the separation of grades and e elimination of intersections is ed and is an advanced step in solv- the ever increasing traffic prob- ," Mr. Kaspar said yesterday.

No Cross Streets Closed.

"If the builders of an elevated road- ay bear in mind the idea that no ss streets shall be closed by the ucture the greatest objection to ch a project will be removed. The park board does not propose to se any streets, and hence will give e west side a valuable and far reach- g improvement," Mr. Kaspar con- ued.

"A driver operating a car capable going at a rapid rate of speed does t like to be restricted as he must on the surface roads. The reason have fast cars is that we can make e with them, but if it is dangerous us to travel rapidly the fast cars e of no benefit.

"I am in favor of the elevated high- ay because I believe it is a needed provement and that there is a de- nd for it.

"I am not prepared to say definite- that a similar highway should entually be built to serve other rts of the west side—the Lawndale strict, for example, but I believe at a project in that locality is as cessible as the Kinzie street project.

Speed and Convenience Provided.

"A roadway which eliminates inter- ctions and makes for speed is desir- le, provided, as I said before, that is not built in such a way as to ss streets. If we are assured that future highways such as the one oposed streets will not be closed, the ongest argument against them will ve been removed. There remains en only the question of convenience d speed in traveling a long distance, o things which the elevated boule- d undoubtedly provides.

"I do not believe the cost of this oject is prohibitive," Mr. Kaspar d in conclusion. "I am convinced at the west park board can build it r the amount estimated. The figures ve been prepared by experts, and I lieve the cost has been well ana- zed. I see no evidence to show that e cost will exceed the estimates, as me opponents charge, and the board s warranted in using all the figures it has compiled."

Hubbart Favors Project.

J. R. Hubbart, manager of the Grae- ne hotel, Washington boulevard and man avenue, one of the largest ho- ls on the west side, yesterday ad- anced the belief that opposition based n the argument that the superhigh- ay would injure the west side be- use it would take traffic off the sur- ce streets is false.

"I have had a good deal of experi- nce with highways and am convinced at the old idea that through traffic rected on to a business street aids siness is without foundation. Both siness men and engineers are get- ng further and further away from is idea," he said.

"I was in touch with the planning f the Yellowstone trail, and when it as being laid out across the coun- y all the small towns on the route vited the road to go through the nter of their business districts. In short time they discovered that the ad carrying through traffic was a ost hindrance to business instead of help, since it interefered with local ade.

"This and similar experiences in affic development prove conclusive- that a project such as the elevated ighway which takes through traffic f the surface streets is a distinct aid business in a district. The argu- ent that it carries out business and operty is groundless.

Want Streets Free for Trade.

"Let me cite another example," Mr. ubbart continued. "In Milwaukee, ty officials realized that it would be their advantage to keep through affic roads away from the main busi- ss district of the city. As a result, ute 100 coming all across the state es not pass through the business ction of that city at all, but circles ound and goes straight to Chicago.

"The reason for this action on the rt of Milwaukee residents was that ey wanted their business streets free r local trade, since the through traf- c gave them nothing but congestion.

"The elevated highway being con- ucted in New York does not pass ectly through business sections, but und the latter may be reached only descending from the roadway on mps and by driving a few blocks, as the west park highway is ned.

"Another example of the experience towns with through traffic may be ted right near Chicago in the Fox ver valley. The Fox River Valley sociation is now working to remove ough drivers from the business rts of towns in that area simply cause they interfere with business stead of aid it.

Too Narrow-Minded.

"The argument that the road would ve only the suburbs is equally thout foundation. It is clear that nything serving to bring people in om the western suburbs is of benefit the west side. The opposition is ther selfish in its interests and not ncerned with the welfare of the dis- ct or is too narrow-minded to see e light.

"No one in New York is arguing at the highway there will serve only ople in Yonkers; they say people om Yonkers will come into the city the highway and do their shop- ng at the same time drivers from e suburb will not be forced to use w York business streets, which al- ready have all they can do to take care of local traffic.

"I operated a hotel on the north side before coming to the west side, and when the outer drive was planned there was no objection from business or hotel men that traffic would be di- verted and take away business. On the other hand, they supported the im- provement, and are now gaining from this action.

"The trouble with the west side is that there is no easy way to get to it; it should be made accessible by just such a project as the superhighway, yet people fight the improvement," Mr. Hubbart concluded. "On the north side property owners did not fight the outer drive, even though they realized that it would make their homes a good deal farther away from the lake. Why?. Because they saw that such a boulevard would make the district easily accessible and make it a much more desirable place in which to live and own property."

The first program is to be given in November. In addition there will be a regular monthly meeting devoted to the study of classic and contemporary dramatists and the mechanics of the theater. Several of the players have taken courses in stagecraft and speech arts.

The director is Mrs. Frank Pettee, who has had much experience in Little theater work. The members of the staff are: Business manager, Tom Hulton; assistants, Walter Hancock and Leone Mayer; treasurer, Miss Nan Hancock; secretary, Miss Marian Glahn, and program chairman, Fred Whiteley.

"JANE OF THE SIXTIES"

That's the title Brainard W. Nies, 17 years old, 413 Fourth street South, St. Charles, has given to this charming picture. It shows Miss Jane Degenhardt, 405 Fourth street South, St. Charles, as she appeared in a doll buggy parade held in connection with a recent celebration in the Kane county town.

WEST SUBURBAN SEWAGE DISPOSAL ISSUE DEFEATED

A $475,000 bond issue proposition to construct a new sewage disposal system for Elmhurst, Villa Park, and Addison was defeated at the polls in those three municipalities Tuesday. The improvement was proposed by the recently created Salt Creek Sanitary district.

A count of the ballots showed 1,084 in favor and 2,398 against the proposed expenditure. A majority of voters in Elmhurst approved the bond issue, however, while an overwhelming "no" vote was polled in Villa Park and Addison.

Opponents of the improvement argued that it would benefit only Elmhurst, since the other villages did not need a new sewage system, while all three would have to help bear the cost. They estimated that it would entail an annual tax increase of $5.50 on the average $10,000 home.

Model 81—De Luxe Open Console, 9 tubes, 4 screen grid, Micro-Balanced chassis. $164. Model 82 — De Luxe French Door Console. $195.
ALSO TUNED RADIO FREQUENCY MODELS in the same cabinets—at the same prices.

Now — perfected screen grid — built by Bremer-Tully, long famous as makers of radio's finest receiving instruments. Never before such power to bring in the "hard-to-get" stations, crystal clear on every wave length—hundreds by actual count. Never before such richness of tone, pure and mellow as an old violin. Never before such modulation, perfect in register and clarity from a bedside whisper to full ballroom volume, alike on "distance" and local programs.

The power and sensitivity of FOUR screen grid tubes . . . plus the selectivity of the Bremer-Tully Micro-Balanced chassis . . . plus the tone richness of the big 10 inch Bremer-Tully speaker, specially wound with over four miles of finest copper wire to bring out all the beauty of screen grid reception . . . makes the new Bremer-Tully undisputably the world's finest radio. A comparison side by side with any other 1930 radio—bar none—instantly proves that! It is the radio you have been waiting for—at the lowest price a Bremer-Tully Instrument has ever been sold.

STREET HONORS HORATIO LOOMIS, LIBERAL LEADER

Signer of Plea for First Theater in Chicago.

This article is the nineteenth of a series on the origins of the names of streets and suburbs of the west side.

Loomis street, running from 1359 West Madison street south to 1234 street and becoming a boulevard between Garfield boulevard and Marquette road, is one of those thoroughfares which has retained its name despite changes, in many instances, from original titles.

The street was named after Horatio G. Loomis, native of Vermont and pioneer settler and distinguished resident of early Chicago.

His name appears on the list of 25 members of the first directorate when definite steps were taken for organizing the Chicago Board of Trade in 1848. It is interesting to observe that as many men on this first directorate were in no way connected with the grain and forwarding business. Mr. Loomis was a grocer.

Opposed Foes of Theater.

Loomis' name also appears as one of the signatures of 54 distinguished citizens back in 1837 when a letter was written to Mr. McKenzie, of the theatrical profession, recognizing his worth and ability at a time when the town appears to have been somewhat divided on the theater question.

The theater did not make its appearance in Chicago until after the village had become a city in 1837, records Kirkland's "History of Chicago."

The name of the pioneer firm which essayed the venture was Isherwood & McKenzie, and the only place to be procured for the performance was the Sauganash hotel, which had been vacated.

The troupe, it seems, had left Chicago to play the smaller prairie towns, following its metropolitan success and, on its return, had asked for a year's license. A protest arose because of "the tendency of modern theaters was grossly demoralizing and destructive of principle, and that such places were the nurseries of crime."

Plea Signed by 54 Residents.

Mr. McKenzie had acquitted himself to the satisfaction of the public and, as a recognition of his worth and ability, 54 leading citizens [among them Mr. Loomis] extended him a benefit on the night of Oct. 13, 1838.

History does not record, but it may be assumed, that Mr. Loomis, forgetting the cares of his grocery business, occupied one of the boxes at the performance that long ago October night at the Rialto, Chicago's first theater, which is described as having had a "seating capacity for an audience of 600 and fitted up with boxes, gallery and pit."

"Encouraged by the support accorded our efforts in the past, we have under consideration for the coming winter the most comprehensive program ever undertaken by any park system or civic enterprise in Chicago. Details are being completed and an announcement of the winter program will be made within two weeks."

Flats Empty Even at Low Rents, They Complain.

Business men and property owners on Ashland avenue near Division street are urging voters to aid them in transforming that street from a thoroughfare of vacant buildings to the first rate business artery city planners intended it to be by voting for the $19,000,000 bond issue which will be on the ballot Nov. 5.

The entire sum would be used by the city to pay property owners judgments due them for condemnation and damages as a result of the proposed widening of Ashland avenue, begun ten years ago and not yet completed.

Not only are property owners and merchants handicapped because the widened street which they looked forward to has not yet materialized, but considerable damage has been done because the widening is half completed. For the last three years landlords have been unable to give their tenants leases because since 1926 they have been told that widening was just around the corner.

Scores of Vacancies.

As a result, scores of flats and stores have remained vacant, and unless the bond issue is passed the improvement will be no nearer than it was three years ago, they assert.

Property owners also have suffered another score since 1926. At that time they were ordered by the city to move their buildings back 27 feet to a new building line or else have the fronts cut off when the improvement was made. Many moved their buildings and others tore them down and built new structures on the new building line. But since some owners were unable to move their buildings, those on the setback line are hidden from view, and merchants testify that they are practically useless as stores.

The entire street, with some buildings set back 27 feet and others flush with the sidewalk, presents a queer picture and does not attract either shoppers or tenants, merchants complain.

Buildings Long Vacant.

Charles C. Breyer, merchant at 1121 North Ashland avenue, said yesterday that he moved to his store to that address from another location only after it had been vacant a year and he was unable to rent it. Two lofts above the store were recently rented on a month to month basis without a lease after having been vacant for more than a year, Mr. Breyer testified.

"I cannot give my tenants leases because the front of the building might be cut off by the widening at any time," he said. "I am in the same position as I was three years ago, and will continue to lose about $1,500 a year on my building until the street is widened."

Forced to Cut Rents.

A. F. Jahnke, merchant at 1421 North Ashland avenue for more than 20 years, told the same story. One flat over his store has been vacant since the old lease ran out, because he was unable to renew it. Another flat has been rented at an extremely low rate without a lease.

"If I could set my building back I would probably be able to rent the flats," Mr. Jahnke said. "I cannot do that, however, until my neighbors move their buildings, because if I did, my store would be sandwiched in between the buildings on each side and would not be visible except from directly in front. Another reason for not moving my building back is that the judgment for damages awarded me by the city three years ago has not been paid."

W. H. Livingston Named Chelcs Club President

At a meeting of the Chelcs club last Monday night W. H. Livingston was elected president. The membership is composed of the following: Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heaney, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Eberth, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clemens, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith. The name of the club is derived from the last initials of the members. Meetings are held every two weeks, the next one being at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Married 50 Years

MR. AND MRS. CHAS. LOPHAS.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lopahs, 2819 South Kedvale avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Oct. 11. They are pioneers of their neighborhood, having resided at the same address for 33 years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lopahs were born in Germany 74 years ago. They came to the United States in 1885. There are four children and ten grandchildren.

A celebration supper in honor of the event was given at the Lopahs' home on Oct. 12, the day following the anniversary. About 90 relatives and friends were present.

REALTY OWNERS ORGANIZE FOR FIGHT ON SEWER

Propose Fund of $10,000 to Block Project.

The proposed $3,000,000 Berteau avenue sewer project will be opposed by a large group of property owners who organized the Berteau Avenue Objectors' league Monday night. The project was abandoned by the city three years ago after a court battle, but was revived recently. Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], whose constituents would have to pay for the sewer, asserted that it was revived in the city council without his knowledge.

A. W. Zitzman, a leader in the former battle to defeat the project, was elected president of the objectors' league. The group includes members of the following neighborhood groups: Park View association, West Walker Improvement club, Walker Improvement club, Mont Lawn Improvement club, Montrose District Boosters' association, Independence Improvement club, West End Portage Park association, and the Park View Chamber of Commerce.

Alderman Fights for Repeal.

A fund of more than $10,000 will be raised to fight the project in court if the board of local improvements attempts to have it confirmed, members decided at the initial meeting. Ald. Ross, however, is attempting to have the city council pass an ordinance repealing the measure permitting the board to proceed.

Residents of the district do not want the Berteau sewer, they say, because while they would have to pay heavy assessments, they do not need a new sewer. The main line would extend from the north branch of the river in Berteau avenue to Narragansett avenue, and according to residents of the 40th ward, would be of benefit only to property owners at the western extremity.

Ordinance Passed in June.

At the time of his election Ald. Ross pledged himself to fight any attempt by the city to construct the sewer, but he discovered two months ago that an ordinance for the project had been passed by the city council in June without his knowledge. He charged that administration leaders intentionally slipped the ordinance over without his knowledge.

MARSHALL FIELD OPENS STORE FOR OAK PARK AREA

Thousands of residents of the western suburbs attended the opening yesterday of the new west suburban store of Marshall Field & Co. in Oak Park. The doors were opened for the first time at 9 a. m. to give customers their first glimpse of the store's interior.

In recognition of the opening, merchants of the western suburbs set aside the week of Oct. 19 as fall opening week in Oak Park and the streets and facades of the business buildings are decorated with banners, bunting and flags in honor of the event.

A visitor to the store on Wednesday was H. Gordon Selfridge, the London merchant and former official of Marshall Field & Co., who was in Chicago for a brief visit.

Entrances to the store are on Harlem avenue and on Lake street. There are five floors of merchandise in the new store and all the facilities of the downtown store are at the command of west suburbanites.

The trained sales force employed in the store are, for the most part, residents of the western suburbs.

George P. Bennet of Glen Ellyn, will be manager. Mr. Bennet has been in the service of Field's since 1904.

GARFIELD CLUB TO HEAR BANKER ON WEDNESDAY

D. W. Lange of the Chicago Trust company will address the next meeting of the Garfield Park club Wednesday noon at the Midwest Athletic club, 6 North Hamlin avenue, according to an announcement yesterday. Henry Kohl, secretary of the club, is to be in charge of the program.

Attendance at the meetings of the club is to come up for consideration at the next gathering of the board of directors. George P. Madigan, president, told members last Wednesday that his attention has been centered upon various items of business before the club rather than upon attendance at the weekly luncheons, but that the matter would be taken up in the near future.

Progress of the club in opposing the suggested west side superhighway was reported by Mr. Madigan. He stated that he is confident that the measure will be defeated next month, but that the vote should be overwhelming against it in order to prevent revival of the proposition again in the future. By defeating it three to one, Mr. Madigan said, residents of the west side will not be confronted with the same measure again.

THEIR GOLDEN DAY

MR. AND MRS. P. E. FLOREEN.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter E. Floreen of 127 South Scoville avenue, Oak Park, with friends and relatives, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 12.

Three years after their marriage, which was solemnized in Gothenburg, Sweden, Mr. and Mrs. Floreen came to America. They made their home first in Chicago, then in Oak Park. Among the congratulatory messages sent Mrs. Floreen was one from her mother containing an original wedding invitation that the young bride-elect had written fifty years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Floreen's eight sons and daughters were present at the anniversary gathering. They are Eric N., David E., Walter R., and Adolph R. Floreen, Mrs. John W. McAllister, Mrs. Richard Beguelin, Mrs. Dwight Hampson, and Mrs. George Green.

LOGAN SQUARE CIVIC PROGRAM TO BE PLANNED

Clubs to Meet Jointly on Oct. 29.

Coöperation among social and business groups of Logan Square for the betterment of that community is sought by the Logan Square Kiwanis club through a series of meetings at which local problems of the district will be discussed. Seventeen clubs, including eleven parent-teacher associations, have agreed to send delegates to the first community get-together conducted by the Kiwanians Oct. 29 at the Norske club, Kedzie boulevard and Fullerton avenue.

Richard N. Howes of Iowa, Kiwanis district governor, will be the guest speaker and will discuss "Community Aims, Ideals, and Accomplishments."

Propose Definite Program.

President Joseph A. Hollander of the Logan Square Kiwanis club said yesterday that his group plans not only to aid in community developments in Logan Square, but to initiate a future program and map out a plan of action.

The following clubs have notified the arrangements committee that they will attend the meeting: Logan Square post, No. 405, the American Legion; Logan Square Athletic club; Physicians' Fellowship club; Northwest branch, Chicago Medical society; Avondale Chamber of Commerce; Central Fullerton Avenue Business Men's association; parent-teacher groups of Avondale, James Monroe, Brentano, Mozart, Chase, Goethe, Kelvyn Park, Pulaski, Logan, Darwin, Linne schools.

Members of Committee.

The Kiwanis club committee includes Charles V. Falkenberg, Walter A. Aeppli, John Stehman, A. J. Parks, and Harry A. Gardner.

The next community event will be an Armistice day celebration, in which the Legion post will take the lead.

BUSINESS GROUPS BALK PAVING ON MILWAUKEE AVE.

$201,000 Faherty Project Is Abandoned.

Business men and property owners on Milwaukee avenue, who are in the midst of formulating plans for improving their street and are holding weekly meetings in an attempt to decide what sort of improvement would be best, hastened to the city hall recently to keep the board of local improvements from doing things on its own hook.

A group of more than 75, representing civic groups as well as business interests, attended a public hearing on the proposed paving of Milwaukee avenue between Halsted and Division streets and forced the board to abandon the project. The job would have cost $201,000.

Only Repairs Needed.

Spokesmen demanded that the city attempt no improvement on the street until local interests decided what they wanted, and also reminded the board that the existing pavement needed only minor repairs.

The statement of President Faherty of the board that the proposition represented the wishes of 55 per cent of the property owners in that section of Milwaukee avenue and that the board was asked to start proceedings and did not undertake the matter itself was greeted with a laugh from the assemblage.

"How can you say that 55 per cent of the property owners petitioned you to pave this street when a much larger percentage than that is here demanding that the project be abandoned?" one merchant asked.

More than 7,000 feet of frontage was represented by the Northwest Side Commercial league, he asserted, and independent owners of most of the remaining frontage were also present to oppose the project.

"Sentiment Against Unanimous."

"We've got more than a majority lined up against the improvement," another opponent argued. "The sentiment against it is unanimous."

A third irate merchant interjected that Milwaukee avenue would be in first class condition if the street was not continually torn up by underground work of the public utilities. What the city should do is make these companies fix the streets after they tear them up instead of asking property owners to pay $200,000 for a new pavement, he advised.

On motion of James Vignola, the board voted unanimously to abandon the project.

STAFF IS NAMED BY MORTON HIGH SCHOOL'S PAPER

Eleven staff members of the Mortonian, published and printed by members of the J. Sterling Morton High school, were awarded supervisory positions on the paper, according to an announcement made this week by Louis A. Traksl, faculty adviser.

Frank S. Cerny, 5409 West 24th place, Cicero, will guide the paper this year as editor-in-chief. He will be assisted by Don O. Nold, 3112 Maple avenue, Berwyn, who was appointed associate editor. The women's activities will be supervised by Vivian Huseby, 4919 West 24th place, Cicero, woman's editor.

Roy Hegerhorst, 1409 Gundersor avenue, Berwyn, is the new sports editor. Other appointees are: Herbert Chdise, 1825 61st avenue, literary editor; Adelle Milias, 1367 50th avenue, feature editor; William Steinbach, 2400 Elmwood avenue, column conductor; Vera Kriz, 2401 58th avenue, chairman editorial board; Ethel Hanblik, 2117 56th avenue, exchange editor; Earl Goris, 1331 Austin avenue, general news editor; and Marie Mottle, 2314 59th avenue, chief copy reader.

Some 40 reporters complete the staff of the Mortonian. The paper is seven columns wide and consists of four pages. No advertisements are used as circulation receipts pay for all work. Typesetting, makeup, and printing is done in the high school print shop. This year the circulation figures have reached 3,500 with a large part of the classes left to canvass.

Elmhurst Police Protect Pupils at Danger Points

Five special police have been stationed at railroad and dangerous street crossings in Elmhurst to protect children on their way to and from school. Chief of Police Martens urges parents to instruct their children to follow directions of the policemen.

SMALLEST HOLY SCROLL RESTS IN TEMPLE ARK

Dr. Schwartz Brings Torah from Palestine.

which is a tribute of the congregation to the sisterhood.

The cost of the building, erected nine years ago, was $400,000, but it is said that it could not be duplicated at the present time for $650,000. The land itself is 125 by 185 feet.

The temple has one of the largest Sunday schools among Jewish congregations in the city. A fine, well equipped building for Sunday school purposes provides excellent facilities for the various classes which begin with the kindergarten and lead on up to those for university students. There is a regular attendance of some five hundred in the school, which is taught by twenty-one paid instructors. There are three pupils who recently received merit distinction for not having missed a Sunday in nine years. The are Carl Steiner, Harold Kohn, and Eleanor Kohn.

Teachers of School.

The teachers of the Sunday school are: Philip Sang, Marshall Baker, Jacob Beck, Donald J. Sabath, J. Miller, and the Misses Rebecca Bodian, Lillian Cohen, Ruth Dennen, Genevieve Eisenberg, Sonia Hassen, Adeline Levy, Rose Neary, Annette Ornstein, Ruth Rothschild, Rosalie Sabath, Edna Schwartz, Rose Schwartz, Lillian Teplitz, Zelda Brody, and Mrs. Philip Sang. Dr. Schwartz has personal supervision of the Sunday school.

The temple has a circulating library of several thousand volumes, not only of religious books, but fiction and general research volumes, as well. The library is supplemented by books from the public library. Part of the temple library has been sponsored by the Goldstine family, the Max Lurie family, and the Teplitz family, in memory of their departed. The librarians are Miss Bruna Hazan and Miss Pearl Brown and Carl Sabath.

Ehrman is President.

Max Ehrman is president of the congregation, an office which he has held for the last twenty years. Henry Lurie is financial secretary, an office which he has held for the last twenty-one years. Max Lurie is first vice president; Leo Seelig, second vice president; Charles T. Kramer, recording secretary, and Albert Cohn, treasurer.

The trustees are Charles S. Lurie, Isidor Sabath, Jacob I. Goldstein, Milton D. Goldstine, Philip Sang, Sidney Saldinger, Bernard Superfine, Joseph A. Wais, Max A. Weisskopf, Morris Robitcheck, Gustav D. Golding, Ezra Gottlieb, A. A. Lieberman and Harry Wechter.

The Temple Sisterhood has charter member who is still active in the organization, Mrs. Emma Weisskopf. Officers of the sisterhood are: Mrs. Sam Cohn, president; Mrs. I. Sabath, first vice president; Mrs. Henry Lurie, second vice president; Mrs. Jacob I. Goldstein, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Milton D. Goldstine, recording secretary; Mrs. Sam Brody, financial secretary, and Mrs. Fred Kohn, treasurer.

The Temple Brotherhood is officered as follows: Gustav D. Golding, president; Fred Lederer, vice president; Max Beck, treasurer; Jacob Beck, secretary. Mr. Golding is also a member of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods and is chairman of the committee on public worship.

Ralph Galley is president of the Temple Alliance, an organization of young people devoted to social and cultural activities. Donald J. Sabath is treasurer; Marion Peskind, secretary; Jack Goldstein, assistant secretary.

Alumni Meet Sunday.

The alumni group of the Temple, consisting of one hundred and fifty confirmants, under the leadership of Philip Sang, meets every Sunday morning. This group is particularly outstanding because of its keen interest in the higher things in Jewish life.

Miss Rose Deutch is in charge of the community house, where Hebrew school is held three times a week. Here also is the headquarters for the Boy Scout and Camp Fire girls' activities. The community house was dedicated in 1920, a year before the Temple was erected. The building has a large auditorium, and modern kitchen facilities for functions given by the sisterhood and similar organizations. There is also a fine dining room and parlors, one for women and one for men. The building is used exclusively by the Temple organizations.

The Temple has a fine choir, under the directorship of J. Arthur Wirth, who is the organist. This choir is heard at the impressive regular Friday evening services.

HOLD UP PAVING OF STREETS ON CITY BOUNDARIES

Property Owners Demand Pacts with Villages.

At a recent public hearing held by the board of local improvements northwest side property owners succeeded in having three projects abandoned, prevailed upon the board to defer two others for a year, and approved three without objections. The improvements abandoned and deferred would have cost $300,000, and the three approved will cost $100,000.

Paving a group of 41st ward streets was abandoned by the board at the request of Ald. T. J. Bowler and local property owners.

Improvement of Byron street between Narragansett and Melvina avenues, Melvina avenue between Byron street and Berenice avenue, and Mobile avenue between Byron and Addison streets, estimated to cost $75,500, was abandoned because the specifications called for paving only half of Byron street and Melvina avenue in certain sections. These streets are at the city limits, and half of them belongs to neighboring villages.

Demands Joint Action.

The same condition was presented at Leonard avenue between Central and Miltimore avenues, where half of the street belongs to the county, and on Leclaire avenue between Foster and Berwyn avenues. Ald. Bowler pointed out that it would be useless to pave only half of these streets, and asked that the board wait until agreements could be reached with the other taxing bodies. These projects would have cost $16,000 and $13,000, respectively.

The proposed paving of Albion avenue between Natoma and Newcastle avenues, costing $17,800, was deferred for a year in order to give Ald. Bowler time to negotiate with the village of Niles for paving its half of the street. The city planned to pave only 15 feet, and leave the other 15 for the village to improve.

Sewer Project Delays Paving.

Paving of Spaulding avenue between Montrose avenue and Irving Park boulevard was deferred for a year at the request of property owners until the question of laying a sewer in the district would be settled. The cost of the improvement would be $80,000.

Improvement of the following system of streets in Norwood Park, costing $50,000, was approved at the hearing: Nagle avenue between Raven street and Milwaukee avenue, and Huff and Hermoine streets between Nagle and Milwaukee avenues.

Others approved are: Paving of Berwyn avenue between Leclaire and Laramie avenues, and Leamington avenue between Berwyn and Elston avenue, at a cost of $25,000; and paving of Ibcum street between Menard and Ramora avenues, costing $15,500.

ELMHURST HIGH CLASS TO STAGE 2 PLAYS OCT. 23

The class in dramatic art at York Community High school of Elmhurst will present two plays on Oct. 23, Miss Vivian Webster, who is in charge of the work, has announced.

"The Pot Boiler" will be presented by the following cast: Sud, John McDaniels; Mr. Wouldby, Willis Gilmore; Mr. Ivory, James O'Brien; Miss Ivory, Frances Lauer; Miss Pencil, Lucille Schoch; Mr. Inkwell, Howard Slovick; Mr. Ruler, Carl Schwebl.

The cast of the second play, "Wisdom Teeth," includes Edwin Wertzler as Henry, Laura Wycoff as Aunt Henrietta, Marjorie Stewart as the girl, and Edith Voge as the office nurse.

PROVE SKILL AT DARK DAY PHOTOGRAPHY

Entrants in The Tribune's contest for amateur photographers of the west side this week proved their skill at making pictures on rainy days. Mrs. William Krause, 134 Berteau avenue, Elmhurst, won the first prize of $5 with a picture of William Krause and Fred Mumm playing cards on a rainy day in camp. The second prize of $3 was awarded to Mrs. Horace B. Hench, 172 South Garfield avenue, Hinsdale, for "Tea for Two," showing Betsy Hench and her dog, Julie Gal. With a picture of the sun breaking through the clouds after a rain on the Des Plaines river, Mrs. J. A. Ross, Wauconda, Ill., won the third prize of $2. An extra prize of $2 went to Robert P. Rasmussen, 715 Highland avenue, Glen Ellyn, for "A Happy Helper," showing Marilyn Jean Rasmussen, 2½ years old.

SEE YOUR PHOTOS IN PRINT AND WIN PRIZES IN CASH

What does your family do on a rainy day? Say it with photographs and win a prize in The Tribune's photo contest. Perhaps the youngsters turn the attic upside down and most likely the co-ed daughter curls up in a big chair with a book and a box of caramels. Maybe mother spends the day making cookies, but Jack and Tom will be off for a hike in hip boots and slickers.

Dull day photographs are an interesting problem to any amateur camera fan and doubly so with a chance to win some prizes. The Tribune will pay $5 for the best picture taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third. All pictures must be taken in the Chicago area.

Address entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be printed plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be the final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Program of Riley Readings.

The Rev. Claude Pernin, S. J., of Loyola university, gave a program of James Whitcomb Riley readings at Providence High school, Central Park avenue and Monroe street, last Tuesday morning. The student body attended.

Mr. Schalck was born in Alsace in 1846 and came to Chicago in November, 1871.

Mr. and Mrs. Schalck were in the audience of the Iroquois theater when it burned Dec. 30, 1903.

Haylett, managing vice president of the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce, who acted as toastmaster, the following presidents of 16 local organizations who coöperated in the celebration were present at the banquet: William J. UNANIMITY SEEN IN PARK AREA'S FIRST ELECTION

Single Ticket Is Likely in Leyden District.

The election of five commissioners for the newly formed Northwest Leyden park district No. 4 promises to be without a contest, for only five men are running for places on the board, and there is no indication that opposition will be formed.

Northwest Leyden district will have jurisdiction over park and playground facilities in the villages of Franklin Park and Schiller Park, and will embrace the area bounded by Bryn Mawr and Grand avenues, the western county line, and River road. The election will be held at 9670 Franklin avenue, Franklin Park.

Candidates Meet Tomorrow.

J. H. Dart of Franklin Park, one of the candidates, yesterday predicted that the five aspirants to office will have the field to themselves. They have agreed to run on one ticket, he said, and will meet tomorrow night to decide on a name for the ticket and to draw up a platform. The other four candidates are: J. W. Stackland, W. J. Smith, and A. O. Atherton of Franklin Park, and Maurice Z. Sax of Schiller Park.

This entire area is without parks or playgrounds, Mr. Dart pointed out, and the platform of his party will probably include as its main plank a pledge to begin immediate negotiations to provide recreation centers for the two villages.

"Although as far as we know no candidates will oppose our ticket, we have begun campaigning already and intend to acquaint all residents of the villages with our plans before the election," he said.

Move Started By Kiwanis.

The movement to form the park district was begun some months ago by the Franklin Park Kiwanis club to give the two villages a taxing body of their own to provide recreation centers. Members of the club argued that unless immediate steps were taken to form a park district the area would be taken over by some body already formed, and would then stand little chance of getting the much needed parks, while residents would have to pay additional taxes.

Leyden township lost the opportunity to provide its own parks last year, they pointed out, when the area south of Grand avenue and west of the Des Plaines river was taken over by the Melrose Park district.

Aurora Horseshoe Team Trims Elmhurst Players

The Four Horsemen, horseshoe pitchers of Aurora, descended upon Elmhurst's unsuspecting array of sturdy pitchers and licked them on their own grounds last Sunday. Elmhurst won one of the games. Ten Elmhurst men matched with the Aurora aggregation and about twenty games were played.

OAK PARK PLANTS 1,500 ELM TREES, COSTING $30,000

Planting of trees in the section of Oak Park bounded by Berkshire street, North avenue, Harlem avenue, and Ridgeland avenue began last Monday. One thousand, five hundred white American elms are to be planted in the district, at a cost of $30,000. Work is under the direction of the board of local improvements and the forestry department. Because of the uniformity of the trees and the regular distance between each one the effect is expected by the board of local improvements to be unusually handsome in three or four years, when the results of the work will be apparent.

A Symphony of Fashion

—sounds like a rather high-flown phrase with which to describe a store's fashions—but consider . . .

The coat in the deeper tones is the framework of our score—the dress is chosen for its harmony—Hat, shoes, hose, bag and gloves each play their part in our melody of color.

Then jewelry with remarkable versatility lends a "fortissimo" through color accent or a "pianissimo" through subtle shaded blendings.

Just the right line here—the right color tone there—a matching—a blending—and the curtain rises on the ENSEMBLE, a symphony of Fashion.

Our store is like a great orchestra—each department is an artist playing its part in this "Symphony of Fashion."

OLDEST TEMPLE TO REDEDICATE IMPROVED HOME

K. A. M. Service Set for Next Sunday.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Kehilath Anshe Mayriv temple, Drexel boulevard and 50th street, following changes that include improved acoustics, seating capacity to care for the increasing congregation and a new general scheme of decoration, will be dedicated anew next Sunday.

RABBI SOLOMON B. FREEHOF.

Special treatment of transparent glaze over the leaded glass windows has resulted in softening the lighting effect; unusual craftsmanship has gone into the doors of the ark, which is vignetted against a delicate silver damask treatment; authentic religious emblems are inlaid in native and foreign woods, and an innovation is to be used in the arrangement which now crowns the organ and choir.

At the rededication next Sunday, the harvest festival will be held when the parents and children of the congregation will be brought to worship, jointly, in the reconstructed temple for the first time.

Kehilath Anshe Mayriv, meaning "The Congregation of the Men of the East," enjoys the distinction of having established the first synagogue not only in Chicago but in the entire northwest, and from it have sprung many leading temples flourishing in the city today.

Founded at Federal Building Site.

From the time when its first synagogue was consecrated in 1851 on the site of the federal building, where a tablet now marks the spot, it has grown steadily. In 1919, its fourth structure at Indiana avenue and 33d street, proved inadequate and, like its predecessors, was vacated to make way for a still more commodious and impressive home.

Thus has developed the congregation which Abraham Kohn had boasted in 1907 possessed property amounting to $1,300, with encumbrances of $2,800, and which paid its rabbi the then munificent sum of $1,000 a year.

About the time of the great Chicago fire, when the records of K. A. M. were destroyed, there was organized the Hebrew Benevolent society, which still owns burial ground in Graceland, the first cemetery located where Lincoln park is today, having been abandoned. The congregation now owns the largest cemetery in Cook county, Mount Mayriv, Addison street and Narragansett avenue.

In 1874 the congregation lost its synagogue in the second Chicago fire. It was granted the use of the Methodist Episcopal church at Wabash avenue and 14th street, and later erected its own place of worship at Indiana avenue and 26th street.

The temple, recently reconstructed, is one of the landmarks of the south side, a stately and beautiful monument to the progressive spirit of the pioneers.

Rapid Growth Under New Leader.

Dr. Tobias Schanfarber occupied the pulpit from 1901, and has been rabbi emeritus since Dr. Solomon B. Freehof was chosen a spiritual leader in 1923. With its removal farther south to a location more accessible and serviceable

ST. DAVID'S CATHOLIC CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ITS SILVER JUBILEE

St. David's Catholic church on Emerald avenue at 32d street, of which the Rev. Joseph McNamee is pastor, will celebrate its silver jubilee next Sunday, Oct. 27. Twenty-five years ago, in the fall of 1904, the parish was established by the late Rev. D. J. Crimmins who, at the time of his death, was pastor of St. Leo's church on the south side.

THE REV. F. X. M'CABE.

Elaborate plans are under way for the jubilee celebration in which prominents of the neighborhood—Catholic, Protestant and Jew alike—will participate. A banquet for a hundred guests is to be given in the evening in the school hall.

The Right Rev. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, D. D., is to be present at the solemn jubilee mass in the church at noon. The Rev. F. X. McCabe, formerly of De Paul university, will preach the sermon. The pastor, Father McNamee, will be the celebrant of the mass, assisted by the Rev. Matthew Hanley, as deacon, and the Rev. James Cannell as subdeacon. Father Hanley is pastor of St. Joachim's parish, and Father Cannell is pastor of Immaculate Conception parish.

South Side Ladies' Aid to Give Benefit Party

Members of the South Side Ladies' Aid society will hold a card party tomorrow evening at Prospect hall, 64th street and Ashland avenue. Mrs. Joseph P. Hurley, 5845 Campbell avenue, president of the organization, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. She is being assisted by Mrs. August E. Miller, 3604 West 60th place, and Mrs. Paul Klinkhammer, 7508 May street.

Vote League to Learn How City Is Run

Mysteries of city and county governmental procedure will be cleared up in the minds of many south side women when the South Shore League of Women Voters holds its citizenship school Thursday in the Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue.

The school, which is to be an all day affair, begins at 10:30 in the morning, when Miss Edith Rockwood, legislative secretary of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will speak on "Chicago and Cook county." An informal discussion will follow the talk.

Luncheon to Be Served.

Luncheon is to be served at 12:45, in charge of Mrs. Carl Sittler, and afterwards Miss Rockwood will reassemble her class for a discussion of the work which the league has to do.

At 2 o'clock Spencer D. Parrott of the department of local community research, University of Chicago, will address the afternoon session of the school.

All women who are interested in civic education are urged to attend the meeting and to join the league. Mrs. C. A. Geiger, organization and membership chairman, has been conducting a membership drive.

Others on Committee.

She is being assisted by Mrs. R. L. Barry, Mrs. Charles Bidwell, Mrs. H. N. Bundesen, Mrs. L. D. Cook, Mrs. F. W. Fischer, Mrs. Lewis Houlding, Mrs. L. B. Iliff, Mrs. Charles Newton, Mrs. G. W. Payson, Mrs. J. W. Steigely, Mrs. J. S. Way, Miss Anna L. Deegan, and W. V. Muttart. The South Shore league is hoping to secure the prize for increased membership presented at the November convention of the Cook County leagues.

ZIMMIE has finished remodeling the town pump and bank fixtures factory in South Michigan avenue and is again communing with the muse of journalism. We learn, therefore, amongst other items, that William H. Rezanka of 7831 South Wabash avenue has left the firm of P. Becker & Co., where he was premier sales prima donna, and is now marketing insulation. Bill has persuasive powers all his own and can also persuade the sweetest kind of music to pour forth from a cornet, even when it goes into the horn quite sour. Bill spends his Sundays these lovely months touring in Michigan, and always manages to get to the ole St. Joe Y in time for Sunday dinner. He knows his rutabagas, does Bill.

FRANK K. FOSS of 4810 Woodlawn avenue is home for a month's visit with his mother after two and a half years in the Argentine. He's general manager of the Wilson properties down there, but manages to get away every so often. It seems a far cry back to 1917 when Frank was champion pole vaulter at Cornell and had his picture in the rotogravure sections. He uses the same coördination of effort in putting Wilson & Co. over the top in South America. 'Tis a bully country, opines Frank, not excepting the tango.

FEWER and fewer contented cows are going dry this year, according to reliable statistics reaching the editor. They are giving booze instead of milk, instances in ever increasing numbers having been reported in and around Chicago, where the familiar quarts and pints delivered each morning by the faithful dairyman have been found to contain gin, bourbon, and Scotch. We advise readers to be on their guard, and if the least suspicions is aroused to take no chances but snatch the bottles in off the back porch pronto. The situation adds another grave problem to those attending prohibition enforcement. In fact, at this writing, we are still trying to figure out how a federal court can padlock a cow.

ROBERT E. HUMPHREY, Hyde Park's well known realtor, has left his partner, Charley E. Grubb, alone, alone, all, all alone, in the Humphrey & Grubb real estate office and has taken unto himself a new position. Bob is now manager of the real estate department of the Lake Park Securities company at 950 East 47th street. What he doesn't know about south side realty isn't in the book. Bob has been in the business for some twenty years and can shut his eyes and describe every street and building from 39th to 87th street. Charles, meanwhile, will carry bravely on at the old stand, 907 East 47th, thus gladdening the hearts of the many clients of the old firm.

Banker to Address Women of Hyde Park

The first of the 1929-'30 series of financial discussions for Hyde Park women, which is being sponsored by the University State bank, will be held Friday afternoon in the bank hall, 1352 East 55th street. "Plain Points on Investing" will be the topic. Charles W. Hoff, president of the bank, will be the speaker. Following the address a reception and tea will be held. Mrs. Ella S. Stewart, manager of the women's department of the bank, is in charge of the program.

Holy Angels' Buildings Are Refurnished

The work of renovating and redecorating the parish buildings of Holy Angels church, 543 Oakwood boulevard, has just been completed. This church, erected about thirty years ago, is still as modern and up to date as the newest buildings, and is considered one of the most beautiful and famous structures in the entire country. Many of its features have been copied and incorporated into churches erected elsewhere.

Its architect, James J. Egan, was a famous builder of churches a quarter century ago, and he, assisted by Father Tighe, who was the pastor at that time, succeeded in creating a masterpiece. An idea of the solidity of the construction is indicated by the thickness of the walls, which are eleven feet at the lower part. This furnishes support for the roof trusses, which weigh nineteen tons each.

Indiana Cut Stone Used.

The building is constructed of Indiana cut stone, which in time becomes as durable as granite. The twenty-three stained glass windows are gems of art. They were produced in the studios of John Hardman of London, England, and have few equals in America. The woodwork and pews are all of quarter sawed redwood, finely carved, and would be almost priceless if reproduced today.

One of the most beautiful mural paintings of any building in this country is contained at Holy Angels. It is semi-circular in shape, following the sanctuary arch, and is 100 feet from end to end and twenty feet wide. It was painted by Oliver Dennett Grover, famous Chicago artist who was at one time dean of the Chicago Art institute.

Carnival to Defray Cost.

In order to help defray the expenses connected with these improvements a carnival is being held in the parish auditorium. It started yesterday and will continue through next Saturday.

The Rev. M. J. McKenna is the present pastor.

"TULIP TIME" TO BE GIVEN THIS WEEK BY HOPE CHURCH CHOIR

Presentation of the operetta "Tulip Time," by members of the senior choir of Hope church, 64th street and Washtenaw avenue on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Oct. 22 and 23, at Hope church, promises delightful entertainment to south siders. The story takes place in Holland and has to do with the adventures of a party of American college students who are there, presumably, to study tulips. After an evening filled to overflowing with good comedy and catchy music, the final curtain falls with the prospect of a triple wedding.

The principals of the cast are: Gertrude Schlieske, Ruth Bhaar, Louise Oswald, Walter Huscher, Bert Strieter, Arthur Scheck, Carl Fuss, and Harry Peterson, with the backing of an unusual array of chorus work furnished by other members of the choir, costumed as Dutch villagers, flower girls, and American students.

200 Boys Are Guests of Stagg at Grid Game

More than 200 boys were the guests of A. A. Stagg, head coach of the University of Chicago, and the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 66th street and Union avenue, yesterday at the double header at Stagg field. Chicago played Indiana State Normal college and Ripon college of Wisconsin and the 200 boys cheered with thousands of students and alumni when Chicago gained and groaned when they lost any yardage.

PONDER WOMAN FOR ASSEMBLY IN HYDE PARK

To Pick Successor to Mrs. Cheney.

Chicago women interested in the active participation of their sex not only in politics but in government have their eyes on the Fifth state senatorial district, frequently called the Hyde park district.

Will a third woman be sent, from there to the legislature as one of its state representatives? That is what the women—and a great many of the men—of the city want to know. There have been two elected there in the last six years, Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode and Mrs. Flora S. Cheney. Both died while in office and the general feeling is that there is an opening for another woman now.

Reports indicate that discussion of the subject by party leaders is being withheld until after the judicial election of Nov. 5; but it is believed that shortly after that date there will be a definite movement started for the nomination of a woman on the Republican ticket in this district.

Many Women Available.

There are no advance indications of possible candidates, but the district has a large number of them active in politico-civic work whose names are well known to the voters. Among them are many identified with the University of Chicago group, and it is not improbable that one of these will be put into the race.

The territory included in the district is decidedly "mixed" politically; but the initiative in favor of a woman candidate probably will come from the Deneen group, which supported both Mrs. Goode and Mrs. Cheney. There is a sort of implied commitment by this faction on the subject, and if the women want to enter a contestant of their own it is said they may expect favorable consideration from the Deneen leaders of the district, headed by Roy O. West, national committeeman, long a power in Hyde park.

But the Harding-Snow group also has strength in parts of the district and some of its adherents say there is a possibility they might choose to run a woman under certain circumstances.

Location of District.

The district lies between State street and the lake shore. Between Cottage Grove avenue and the lake it extends only as far southward as 63d street. But the western half—that part between State street and Cottage Grove avenue—runs south as far as 71st street. In one sense the Fifth ward, Deneen territory which elected Felix A. Norden as ward committeeman last year, is considered the center of the district.

North of the Fifth ward lies the Fourth, where Charles Krutckoff, member of the board of assessors and a Harding lieutenant, is committeeman, and a small part of the Third, which has Oscar De Priest as its committeeman. A large part of the vote in this northern section is colored.

How Deneenite Can Win.

While experts might contend that the Deneen people, even in spite of recent events, could not control the greater part of this area as they did

HAND AND MIND TRAINED IN TUNE AT TILDEN TECH

Students Work Hard and Find It Pleasure.

BY ELIZABETH BROWNING.

A great building whose mile and a half of corridors link together foundry and machine shop, engine room and chemical laboratory, classroom and gymnasium, Tilden Technical High school, 4747 South Euclid avenue, resembles at first glimpse some great industrial plant, functioning with perfect efficiency in every part of the complicated process of turning out trained and disciplined high school graduates.

The boys themselves seem attuned to the business-like atmosphere of the school. Guards studying in the halls between classes barely look up from their books to scan the passes of the few boys who move noiselessly through the corridors; idleness and truancy are inconceivable.

Laughter to Be Heard, Too.

Then, down on a lower level, one passes a door through which comes the sound of splashing water, laughter and shouting. Across the hall a piano is playing a popular piece with the assistance of a brass or two. At the end of a corridor a giant graph drawn with scientific precision impresses one—with the popular support the student body is giving the school paper.

In one of the classrooms a group of boys are flying miniature planes with much applause for the more successful; in another a student proudly displays the vise he has just completed which he will take home to use on jobs around the house.

One begins to realize that this school, which teaches a boy to use his hands together with his mind, is not such a business-like place after all, but perhaps more amusing than the schools where there are only books from which to learn.

Courses Are Difficult.

Tilden boys have one of the hardest courses offered in any city high school, but it does not hinder their coming from as far away as South Chicago and Morgan Park every day. The curriculum, which has won the praise of the Japanese minister of education and of European authorities, combines the practical use of machinery with courses in English, history, literature, science and mathematics, which every one must take, as well as the optional foreign languages, art and architecture.

Preliminary training in wood patterning and metal casting in the foundry is followed by two years of specialization in auto, electrical or machine shops. As Hance Williamson, dean of boys and senior machine shop instructor, said, there is not one penny's worth of toy machinery in the million dollars' worth of equipment in the shops, but only machines actually in commercial use.

'Twas Not Always So.

Time was when things were far different at Tilden Tech. Only nine years ago girls were still enrolled as students, and an ordinary high school course was offered for their benefit as an alternative to the technical course. Miss Laura M. Wright, acting assistant principal, was dean of girls then and taught Latin.

"Of course I miss the girls, and miss teaching my old subject, too," she said, "but it must be admitted that discipline has improved five hundred per cent since the girls left. There is no more showing off now, and the boys get down to work better than they used to. Now girls come here only as guests, for dances and plays, and even if we get along pretty well without them most of the time, when they do come here it's a state occasion."

Work Is Harder Now.

In the old days the students did not work as hard as they do now. Technical subjects were not introduced into Lake High school, as Tilden was called prior to 1914, until 1904.

"When I came to the old Lake High school in 1898," Miss Wright explained; "there were only seven teachers and five hundred students. We taught about fifteen hours a week, and now we teach thirty or thirty-five hours. Our building had sixteen rooms, and we certainly were proud of it. It was considered one of the finest in the city, if not in the country."

The old Lake High school building dated from 1887, when residents of what was then the town of Lake, just south of the city limits at 39th street, decided to give their three year old high school a building befitting the growing importance of the community.

Fine New $60,000 Building.

The Swifts, the Morrisses, the Tildens and many others lived on or near Emerald avenue, which with its gingerbread adornments and iron fenced plots of grass was the Lake Shore drive of the town of Lake. They were responsible for the fine new building, costing $60,000, and many of their children were among the early graduates of the school. James E. Armstrong, retired principal of Englewood High school, succeeded James Hannan as principal of Lake High school when the latter, who was first principal, became superintendent in 1887. Harry Keeler, principal of Lindblom High school, was in the first graduating class of Lake High school.

All subsequent additions to the high school building have been made in harmony with the original building. In 1904 a northwest wing was added, and in 1923 the west and south wings, at a cost of $3,000,000.

Name of Lake Dropped.

The name of Lake High school, which survived the disappearance of Lake township in the annexation by Chicago in 1889 was finally dropped in 1915 as having no further significance, and the school was named after Edward F. Tilden, banker and old resident of the neighborhood.

Many well known men have followed Harry Keeley since he was graduated from Lake High school. Charles C. Fitzmorris, former chief of police; Elmer Holmgren; Frank K. Gerty, inspector of school property; J. J. Zmrhal, district superintendent of schools; Walter Wright, superintendent of small parks and air port, and Mrs. Walter Buhlig, former president of the State Parent-Teacher association, are a few of those who have been prominent in public affairs.

Others in Professions.

Dr. Glen Moore, Dr. Sidney Portis and Dr. Bernard Portis, Ira J. Bready, and Lawrence Burke, mechanical engineers, Harold Burke, insurance rate engineer; L. J. Coyte, professor at the Ralston Industrial school, Pittsburgh, and Gustav Lundt, professor of chemistry at Columbia university; William Campbell Wright, and B. K. Gibson, architects, and Hugo Bezdek, athletic director of the University of Pennsylvania, are distinguished in the professions.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES OF 41 YEARS AGO

REFUSES BIG PROFIT ON CAMEOS PICKED UP AT 50 CENTS EACH

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargain, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Stopping casually one day to peer in the grimy window of a little near north side antique shop, I saw two tiny flat carnelian cameo ornaments. After some hesitation I went in to price them and was surprised to be able to buy them for 50 cents each. I took them to a jeweler and had them made into earrings for $2.50. When I called for them, the jeweler offered me $30 for the finished pair. That means a profit of $25.50, a real bargain.

Rubber Plant Bargain.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—About a year and a half ago a florist in my neighborhood had four rubber plants that he was closing out for 75 cents, and I bought one. A friend of mine who is a florist told me recently that the plant is now worth several dollars. The older it becomes, the more valuable it is.

10-Cent Kettle Lasts 12 Years.

Pleased with 10-Cent Clock.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Recently at my neighborhood store I found an old clock which I purchased for 10 cents. My husband was greatly pleased and soon had it in running order. We polished the metal so that it looked fine and were pleased to find that it kept perfect time. I wouldn't sell the clock now for $10. A real bargain!

STREET HONORS HORATIO LOOMIS, LIBERAL LEADER

Supporter of Move for First Theater.

Loomis street, running from 1359 West Madison street south to 123d street and becoming a boulevard between Garfield boulevard and Marquette road, is one of those thoroughfares which has retained its name despite changes, in many instances, from original titles.

The street was named after Horatio G. Loomis, native of Vermont and pioneer settler and distinguished resident of early Chicago.

His name appears on the list of 25 members of the first directorate when definite steps were taken for organizing the Chicago Board of Trade in 1848. It is interesting to observe that so many men on this first directorate were in no way connected with the grain and forwarding business. Mr. Loomis was a grocer.

Opposed Foes of Theater.

Loomis' name also appears as one of the signatures of 54 distinguished citizens back in 1837 when a letter was written to Mr. McKenzie, of the theatrical profession, recognizing his worth and ability at a time when the town appears to have been somewhat divided on the theater question.

The theater did not make its appearance in Chicago until after the village had become a city in 1837, records Kirkland's "History of Chicago."

The name of the pioneer firm which essayed the venture was Isherwood & McKenzie, and the only place to be procured for the performance was the Sauganash hotel, which had been vacated.

The troupe, it seems, had left Chicago to play the smaller prairie towns, following its metropolitan success and, on its return, had asked for a year's license. A protest arose because of "the tendency of modern theaters was grossly demoralizing and destructive of principle, and that such places were the nurseries of crime."

Plea Signed by 54 Residents.

Mr. McKenzie had acquitted himself to the satisfaction of the public and, as a recognition of his worth and ability, 54 leading citizens [among them Mr. Loomis] extended him a benefit on the night of Oct. 13, 1838.

In their letter to Mr. McKenzie on the occasion, Mr. Loomis and his fellow leaders availed themselves of the opportunity to give their own opinion regarding the propriety of attending theatrical performances. They referred to the theater as "a combination of amusement and instruction," and as "contributing to the pleasure and amusement of the public."

History does not record, but it may be assumed, that Mr. Loomis, forgetting the cares of his grocery business, occupied one of the boxes at the performance that long ago October night at the Rialto, Chicago's first theater, which is described as having had a "seating capacity for an audience of 400 and fitted up with boxes, gallery and pit."

PONDER WOMAN FOR LEGISLATURE FROM HYDE PARK

Voters to Pick Successor to Mrs. Cheney.

years ago, it is generally admitted that they can elect one of the district's three state representatives by taking full advantage of the right of cumulative voting—the "plumping" of three votes for one candidate.

That Deneen operation, strengthened by the swing of the large independent element of voters, is said to be what elected Mrs. Goode in 1924, reelected her in 1926, and elected Mrs. Cheney in 1928. Not that the Snow-Harding forces fought the women candidates. They have had candidates of their own for whom they were plumping.

The political practice in the district has been for the Republicans to nominate two and the Democrats one for the lower house. In the last primary the Snow and Harding people indorsed William J. Warfield, a young negro of excellent record. The big colored vote in the district lines up with them and that was one reason for their decision.

Similar Lineup Likely.

Although the primary date is still far away, it is thought a similar situation will develop in the approaching contest. Warfield was elected and, from a political viewpoint, is considered entitled to a chance at renomination so that it is predicted his former support will stand by him this time.

The voters of the district who supported Mrs. Goode and Mrs. Cheney are more than proud of the records of the two women. In its report of April 2, 1926, when Mrs. Goode was ending her first term, the Legislative Voters' league said of her:

"In ending her first term during which she showed that she possessed unusual capacity for legislative work; is exceptionally well informed, and was closely attentive to her duties as a house member; was particularly active in fighting for economy, and aided largely in securing legislation for the licensing and regulation of public dance halls."

Records of Both Approved.

Mrs. Cheney died during her first term in office, but frequently the opinion was expressed by legislative observers that her service was on a par with that of Mrs. Goode.

So far as the customarily Democratic place in the district list is concerned, it is said that there is no doubt it will go once more to Michael L. Igoe, minority leader of this chamber, unless he and his associate party leaders determine that he is to run for some other office on the big spring ticket, possibly one of the county places.

Question as to Woods.

There may be some question whether Senator Roy C. Woods will have a serious fight for renomination, but at least none of the early symptoms of conflict have appeared thus far. County Treasurer Harding and Acting County Chairman Snow are said to have assured him of their support for another term, and if the Deneen faction is grooming some one to run against him the new aspirant is deep under cover.

SMALL BACKER GROOMED FOR SPITE BATTLE

Scanlan May Enter Senate Race in La Salle Co.

Campaign seasons frequently bring the talk of many candidacies of retaliation, reprisal, and spite that fades away gradually, but La Salle county now is hearing discussion of this sort that, it is said, may prove to be more than an unfulfilled threat.

T. K. REYNOLDS
Reynolds of Utica.

La Salle county alone constitutes the Thirty-ninth legislative district and is represented in the upper chamber of the assembly by Senator George Reynolds of Utica. He is the target for the talk of punishment for many political reasons.

It is reported that William M. Scanlan of Peru, a former representative, is telling his friends that because he was not retained by Gov. Emmerson as chairman of the state industrial commission, to which he was appointed by Len Small, he intends to contest Reynolds' seat.

Aimed at County Organization.

The theory is said to be not so much that Scanlan's election to the senate would punish Emmerson for refusing to retain him in a nice job as that Scanlan's candidacy will make a fighting rougher for the county organization, which refused or failed to back him up in demands for retention.

The county committee passed into the unquestioned control of the anti-Small forces in connection with the Lundin-Scholes contest for the Supreme court. Action by the Republican committee in La Salle county, one of ten in the court district, came at a crucial time. The Small people attempted to effect a split delegation to the Peoria convention, but the anti-Small group stood fast for a solid block for Justice Dunne.

Other developments indicated this action probably was the deciding factor in the battle. It was a feather in the caps of the victors, and last night W. C. ("Cadet") Jones of Streator, their leader, was elected chairman of the county committee.

One of the Scholes workers was Scanlan. As a state office holder he was pledged to support Small in the primary last year. The Jones forces broke with Emmerson. They included Senator Thurlow G. Essington, the first anti-Small nominee for governor, and Senator Reynolds, then a member, since he was elected as Essington's successor in 1928.

Watch Emmerson Policy.

Politicians have been much interested in observing one of the results of Emmerson's long delay in dropping Small lieutenants from the state roll. The process took months; in fact, is just being completed now. It is stated them all in the first month or so, say the experts, they would have taken their medicine as something to be expected.

But a number who, like Scanlan, were kept in office month after month, are said to have developed a belief there was a chance for them to hold on for an entire four years. The Essington-Reynolds group was feuding with the new governor and Scanlan is said to have seen to it that word reached them that they'd better be careful if they didn't want trouble in the county.

Proof of the influence of the group in Springfield was seen in the reappointment of Mr. Jones as chairman of the pardon and paroles board, but those closest to Emmerson say it was more of a personal tribute than appointee's own qualifications as an award of patronage to the county organization. Despite this belief it is said that Scanlan felt he would have been reappointed if Jones had not wanted something for himself. It also is pointed out that the Small organization hardly would have shunned Scanlan because of his anti-Small associations.

Will Be Favored by Circumstances.

Scanlan, who served in the lower house from 1903 to 1922, has made no announcement of his intentions, but reports from the cities of Ottawa, Streator, and La Salle, the three centers of population, indicate that circumstances may be shaping themselves up in a way that may add to his chances of success if he chooses to make the race.

There are reports that at least two men of some prominence are being urged to run against Senator Reynolds. One of them is Mrs. W. S. Hoyt, a city commissioner of La Salle, who, in the absence of her husband, is now acting mayor of the city. Another is Cyrus P. Trowbridge, La Salle druggist, who for years has been a member of the county board of supervisors. In a race such as this, it is admitted, Scanlan's friends would be much better than in a three man fight.

Scanlan was named on the industrial commission as one of the representatives of labor whose appointment is provided for by law. Added to the support of labor, he might be expected to have the wet indorsement and the backing of the extensive business interests in the county, which have been a factor in previous contests. He also would have the Small organization in the county.

Reynolds Quiet, Well Informed.

Reynolds has been one of the quietest men in the state senate during his first term. But he has been considered a well informed member whose legislative record has been approved by organizations whose purpose is to further the welfare of the state.

In the report of April 2, 1926, when Reynolds was a candidate, the Legislative Voters' league said of him:

"Thomas M. Reynolds, Utica banker, has long served as treasurer of La Salle county with a good record and has been chairman of the Republican county central committee; he has exercised weight in the community as a business man and citizen."

CHILDREN START LIBRARY-ZEPPELIN TOUR OF WORLD

More than a hundred children recently started a Graf Zeppelin tour of the world at the branch library in Cornell Square park. The Zeppelin will move along a frieze decorated with the scenery of Ireland, Scotland, Holland, France, Switzerland, Italy, Japan, Alaska, and Mexico. The picture shows Miss Lois Waters telling the tourists stories of Ireland. Children in the group are: Leona Norris, Frances Bukowsky, John Pawlok, Frank Lauratin, Lillian Buteprska, Peter Super, Peter Stefanisan, Walter Budz, Agnes Klonowski, Alice Drouse, Evelyn Drouse, Evelyn Polek, Julia Dzendzel, Lottie Ondack, Sophie Polek, Gorgar Skorodinsky, Peter Mazier, Elizabeth Mazier, Henry Suszka, Emil Sumta, Edward Pranolis, and John Szczelma.

in 1922, the same organization said:

"One of the Thompson-Small regulars, voted for the Thompson (Kaukakee) platform resolution giving gratuitous advice to the President and congress about national affairs, and for the bill to paralyze the state civil service."

House Race Is Indefinite.

The fight for the three places from the county in the lower house has not yet begun to shape up definitely. This is the district from which the late Lee O'Neil Browne was so long the Democratic minority member. His seat was occupied during the last session by Edmond P. Conerton of La Salle, who is expected to be a candidate again. Thomas J. Dunne is another talked of for the Democratic place.

The two Republican incumbents, R. G. Soderstrom of Streator and Ole E. Benson of Ottawa, are expected to seek renomination. There is said to be some chance that John Wylie, a veteran former member from the city of La Salle, may run.

Hoover carried La Salle county by 3,232. Collidge carried it by 13,731 against Davis and La Follette; and the vote for the third party standard bearer was considered significant. It amounted to 7,685, making La Salle one of the banner counties of the state for the radicals.

Last year in the primary Emmerson carried the county easily, his vote being 18,249 to Small's 10,220, and now, out of office, Small is nowhere nearly so strong as he used to be.

MORRILL SCHOOL 6TH GRADE BOYS ACT AS POLICE

Dangerous crossings near Morrill school are being patrolled before and after school hours by shifts of volunteer police. Ten sixth grade boys play the envied rôle of policemen and efficient protection is given chilren of the school. A regular policeman has recently taken over part of the patrol at the 63d and Rockwell street corner, but the amateur force is on hand whenever the official cop is off duty and the 59th and Rockwell street crossing is still entirely under their supervision.

The methods of Capt. James Wills, head of the force, are praised by Miss Esther Watt, physical education director of the school, who has been made honorary chief of the force. He and his lieutenants have already snatched three children from under automobiles, and reckless jaywalking is being eliminated.

On rainy days the boys spend several hours "drying out" after a turn on duty, and Mr. Chandler hopes that the proper equipment will be provided before the cold weather begins.

RIDGE COUNCIL'S CAR LINE STAND STARTS BATTLE

Three Affiliated Bodies Demand Reversal.

Three far south side organizations affiliated with the Ridge Civic council have rebelled at the general body's opposition to the proposed extension of the 95th street car line from State street to Western avenue.

Representatives of the three affiliated organizations will voice their meeting of the council tomorrow evening their opposition to the general body's protest at a recent meeting at the city hall.

The proposed car line extension is not needed, Robert Blackburn, president of the Civic council, declared in opposing the project when he led a delegation to the city hall.

Propose Reversal of Stand.

Opposition to the view expressed by Mr. Blackburn first was shown at the latest meeting of the council, when representatives of the Longwood Manor Improvement association introduced a resolution in favor of the 95th street car line. Arguments on the resolution were deferred to the meeting tomorrow evening.

Since that meeting two weeks ago the Brainerd Improvement association and the 95th Street Business Men's improvement association have lined up with the Longwood Manor group, and officials of both organizations have announced their intention of fighting for the project at the meeting of the Civic council tomorrow evening.

William J. Buckley, president of the Longwood Manor Improvement association, pointed out that his organization has a territory with a three-quarter mile frontage on 95th street, while the Brainerd group has a corresponding frontage on the north side of that thoroughfare. He said his organization has gone on record in favor of a car line on 95th street, and will continue its campaign for the project independent of the Civic council if that action is necessary.

Points to Inconvenience.

To show that the car line is necessary he pointed out that a resident of his territory is compelled to travel to 79th street in order to board a street car which will take him east of State street.

James H. Ryan, president of the 95th Street Business Men's Improvement association, asserted that although his organization was a member of the council his group does not agree on the matter of transportation.

"We want the 95th street car line, and we also want the extension of the Ashland avenue car line to 103d street," Mr. Ryan said.

LEGION TO HOLD HARVEST FROLIC TO AID HOSPITAL

Gall Post's Festival to Be Staged in Riverdale.

Do you remember way back when the finest pumpkin and the biggest ear of corn furnished attractions at the fall country fair? Well, Paul Gall post, No. 303, of the American Legion is going to hold an old fashioned harvest time festival at 70 East 137th street, Riverdale, Oct. 25-26. There will be many exhibits of skill and handicraft. A poster contest will be held in the schools and the work of the winner will be exhibited. There will be fish ponds, balloon bursting, and other attractions. The purpose of the event will be the raising of funds to equip and endow a room in the new hospital for war women soon to be a part of the Edward Hines Jr. memorial group at Maywood. Mrs. Anna J. Peterson and her corps of workers will judge the food and fancy work exhibits. Mrs. Harold F. Miller is general chairman.

The next fourth district meeting will be held Thursday night, Oct. 31, in the Masonic temple, Otto boulevard between 15th and 16th streets, Chicago Heights. The Chicago Heights post will be host. "This post," advises Commander W. W. O'Connell, "has the reputation of putting big things over in a big way. Jack Poorman, senior vice commander, will be on hand. This is Comrade Poorman's home town and also his post. Notify your membership, and bring out your drum and bugle corps or what have you?"

Tinley Park post, No. 615, is planning another of its dances for the night of Nov. 16.

Englewood post, No. 61, will hold its annual dance on the night of Nov. 20. Installation of officers, Nov. 1 with Ferre C. Watkins, past department commander, as installing officer. At that time there will also be dancing—and refreshments.

Word from voiture 220 of the Forty and Eight, says that the chalet is now dressed in its prettiest and a wonderful spot for the Legion posts to hold fall parties. Room to dance, a big fireplace and accommodations to serve hot meals for more than 200 are only a few of the attractions to be had for the asking. The convalescent camp has two new cottages in process of completion, and offers a most restful spot for veterans recovering their full health. A good chef, plenty of fresh air and no din of traffic.

REVIVE INTEREST IN DEPRESSION OF TRACKS OF I. C.

Railroad Puts Cost at at $8,632,000.

Interest in the movement to obtain passage of an ordinance for the depression of the South Chicago branch of the Illinois Central railroad tracks was revived last week when railroad officials presented to the track elevation committee of the city council a report of the cost of the project.

Morgan L. Fitch, chairman of the track depression committee of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, which started the campaign last year to obtain the improvement, says a public hearing will be held within the next ten days to permit south shore residents tell what they think about the contemplated ordinance.

Property Owners to Pay Part.

Mr. Fitch explained that according to the proposal of the railroad officials the property owners along the right of way would be compelled to pay for part of the work. The total cost, as estimated by the railroad, is $8,632,000.

Mr. Fitch asserted that he believed the railroad wanted to depress its tracks as much as south shore residents desire it and that work would be started as soon as some way of paying for it could be found.

In the report the railroad officials suggested that payment should be apportioned as follows: $2,073,000 by south shore property owners, $1,075,000 by the city of Chicago, and $4,584,000 by the railroad

Increased Fare Suggested.

In order to raise its share of the money, the report stated that the railroad would be compelled to increase fares 1 cent until 1940.

FALL GARDENING HOLDS DISTRICT CLUBS' INTEREST

Gresham Women Hostesses at Meeting.

This is the season when flower lovers are in the final rush of gardening and planting before cold weather sets in. In keeping with the time of year gardens were the preoccupation of the women's club of the third district at their fall meeting Wednesday at Hamilton park field house.

The morning session opened with brief talks by district chairmen on "What My Package of Seeds Contains," following which Mrs. Grant Beebe spoke on "The Club Woman, What Can She Get and What Can She Give?"

Luncheon was served at 12:30 o'clock by members of the Gresham Woman's club, who were hostesses of the district for the meeting. James H. Burdett then described garden club contests in the flower show at the Hotel Sherman next spring which the Illinois Federation of Woman's Clubs is sponsoring. Dr. P. R. Blodgett, president of the Izaak Walton league, gave a talk on conservation, with "The Challenge of the Future" as his subject.

Beverly Hills Club Meeting.

At a recent meeting of the Beverly Hills Woman's club in the Ridge fieldhouse, 102d place and Church street, the program was conducted by the garden department, of which Mrs. H. E. Wulfing is chairman. Other members of the department who assisted with the program were Mrs. Nicholas Jacobs, 1st vice chairman; Mrs. Walter Stone, second vice chairman; Mrs. A. N. Buck, secretary; Mrs. George Morris, social chairman; Mrs. Dana Howard, service chairman, and Mrs. J. F. Baldwin, who has charge of spring and summer tours.

Mrs. Frederick Fisher, president of the Garden Club of Illinois, spoke on "Planting for Continuous Bloom," and Lucienne Bose, harpist of the Chicago Civic orchestra, gave a short program.

Mrs. Edward Howe of Olympia Fields was hostess recently to the Flossmoor Garden club when the autumn planting of bulbs was discussed. Mrs. Burdett is president of the club, with Mrs. Roger Vaughn vice president, Mrs. William Brown, secretary, and Mrs. Frank Condon, treasurer.

Other members who are particularly active in directing the work of the club are Mrs. Warren Vandersluis, in charge of flower shows; Mrs. Kenneth Smith, program chairman; Mrs. William Brown, publicity chairman; Mrs. Philip Hawley, social chairman; Miss Margaret Allen, plant and market chairman.

Work of Blue Island Club.

The railway stations in Blue Island are to be beautified this fall by the Blue Island Garden club now that the Rock Island railroad has signified its intention of coöperating with the club in putting improvements through. Estimates of the cost of planting shrubs and flowers at the stations were submitted to the club at its meeting the afternoon of Oct. 11 at the home of Mrs. George Roll, 2524 Burr Oak avenue.

Mrs. Richard A. Napier, president of the club, was aided in obtaining the railroad's coöperation by Mrs. Daniel Londacre and Mrs. Benjamin Hogan.

Officers of the Blue Island Garden club, besides Mrs. Napier, are: Mrs. Minnie Schmidt, 212 Walnut street, vice president; Mrs. Daniel Londacre, 49 Greenwood avenue, recording secretary; Mrs. R. S. Napier, 76 Walnut street, corresponding secretary; Mrs. James Ocker, treasurer; Mrs. Morris Nielson, 620 Greenwood avenue, program chairman; Mrs. Benjamin Hogan, 447 Maple avenue, and Mrs. Charles Meyrs, 460 Fairmont street, executives.

Chicago Heights Club.

The floriculture department of the Chicago Heights Woman's club will hold its monthly meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the Elks' clubhouse. Mrs. Ray Holbrook is in charge of the program, assisted by Mrs. R. V. Carrier and Mrs. Craig A. Hood.

A lecture on landscape gardening and an illustrated talk on better homes and gardens will comprise the program. Heading the department is Mrs. T. D. McClure, chairman, with Mrs. Holbrook vice chairman and Mrs. W. F. McEldowney secretary-treasurer.

Also scheduled for tomorrow is the meeting of the Morgan Park Woman's club, whose regular weekly program is being given under the auspices of the garden department and of the art department.

The morning will be devoted to a lecture by Charles Hudson, former professor of floriculture at Cornell university, who will speak on the planting of bulbs in autumn. Questions on problems of gardening will be answered after the lecture.

Mrs. H. E. Wulfing is chairman of the garden department, and active in the department are Mrs. A. Leyden, Mrs. A. C. Watson, Mrs. F. M. Murdoch, and Mrs. W. E. Haines.

WORLD SERIES STARS AUTOGRAPH BASEBALL PRIZES

Will Be Awarded in Park Contests.

Although Chicago baseball fans are bemoaning the way their Cubs played during the world series, 12 south side boys will be happy near Christmas time when they receive baseballs autographed by the stars of the Chicago and Philadelphia teams as prizes for taking honors in south park playground competition.

This announcement was made last week by V. K. Brown, superintendent of playgrounds for the south park commission, when the fall and winter activities were planned. The suggestion that autographed baseballs be given as individual prizes was made, according to Mr. Brown, by Howard Ehmke, who pitched the first game against the Cubs.

Ehmke Friend of Boys.

Ehmke, who is a friend of Mr. Brown and a frequent visitor at the South Park offices and its numerous playgrounds when he is in Chicago, has often taken south side boys to watch the Athletics and the White Sox play. On his last western trip Ehmke promised Mr. Brown that he would get the signatures of the star players of both world series participants for the playground department.

Although the great majority of the men, women, boys and girls, who regularly attend the south park playgrounds, will take part in some phase of indoor athletics, officials of the playground department expect thousands of south side residents to participate in the dramatic work, and the boys' and girls' handcraft work.

Boys' Shops Opened.

B. C. Friedman, in charge of the boys' handcraft classes, has already opened shops in many of the parks and boys throughout the system are preparing to make various articles under his instruction. Mr. Friedman specializes in model airplane construction and all planes for south park competition in this event are made under his supervision.

Miss Dorothy Mullen is in charge of girls' handcraft classes which meet one afternoon each week. The women's classes are held one evening each week, and there is always a waiting list at every park for the classes. The women are instructed in making parchment shades, quilting, leather purses, felt hats, basket weaving and many other articles for personal and home use.

"New Ideas in Education," Subject of Club Speaker

"New Ideas in Education" was the subject of an address by Eston V. Tubbs, director of curriculum for the board of education, at a meeting of the Hamilton Park Women's club Tuesday afternoon at the Hamilton park fieldhouse, 70th street and Normal avenue. Pedro Espino, tenor, furnished the musical program.

Benefit Bridge Party.

The Hyde Park auxiliary of Oakhaven sponsored a luncheon and bridge party on Thursday at the Plaisance hotel. The proceeds went to the Oakhaven Home for the Aged. Mrs. J. R. Bensley, 3933 Ellis avenue, was chairman of the affair.

CRY DOWN MOVE TO PAVE DAMEN SOUTH OF 33D

City Hall to Submit Plan Again Next Friday.

Property owners on Damen avenue between 33d street and Pershing road raised so many objections to the proposed paving and widening of the street at a public hearing in the city hall recently that the board of local improvements deferred action. The project will be taken up again at a special meeting in the board rooms next Friday morning. Some of the fifty property holders who appeared at the first hearing promised to have twice that number on hand to fight the improvement this week.

Paving and widening of Damen avenue south of the drainage canal should be speeded because a bridge across the canal will be completed within a few month and will be useless without an adequate street to carry traffic to it, the board holds.

Cost Estimated at $143,000.

The portion between 33d street and Pershing road would cost $143,000, engineers for the board estimated, and would include paving with asphalt and widening from 30 to 48 feet. Property owners would be assessed to bear part of the expense, and the city would pay the remainder as a public benefit.

At the recent hearing residents of the street swarmed around the rostrum and literally shouted their objections at President Faherty of the board. The existing pavement is sufficient as far as residents are concerned, they said, and is not only wide enough for their purposes, but is in good condition. Some argued that there is not enough traffic on South Damen avenue to warrant such a large expenditure, while others based their objections on the fact that many property owners would be unable to pay the tax.

"You are taking our property by widening the street, and yet you ask us to pay for it," one resident shouted. "Besides, we don't need a new street, and your plan would help nobody but people who want to drive trucks past our doors!"

Postpone Action on Sewer.

Another project which will be considered at a special hearing Friday due to the failure of the board to obtain its approval at the earlier session is a proposed sewer in the following system of streets, costing $56,500:

98th street from Avenue N to the alley west of Avenue G; the alley west of Avenue H between 97th and 99th streets; and the alley west of Avenue J between 98th and 97th streets.

Property owners presented a petition signed by a majority of residents asking that the improvement be abandoned. They do not want a new sewer because the existing drainage is adequate, spokesmen said. Many homes that do not need sewerage will be assessed to pay for the improvement benefiting others, they argued. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] asked that the board defer action and give the property owners another hearing.

Other paving and sewer improvements estimated to cost property owners $391,000 were approved without objection at the recent hearing.

OLDEST TEMPLE TO REDEDICATE IMPROVED HOME

K. A. M. to Hold Service Next Sunday.

ible to its members, and under the leadership of Rabbi Freehof, K. A. M. has made great strides both in influence and increased membership.

The officers of the temple are Louis L. Kahn, president; Leo Metzenberg, vice president; Frank Sulzberger, vice president; Edwin A. Stiefel, treasurer. Louis M. Katz, financial secretary, and Aileen Sinsheimer, recording secretary.

At the fiftieth anniversary of K. A. M. in 1897, and at the eightieth anniversary two years ago, much interesting data concerning the earliest history of the Jews of Chicago in general was brought forth.

Few Jews Here Before 1840.

Very little is known of Jewish settlers in Chicago prior to the early 1840s. In Andreas' "History of Chicago," there appeared only the names of Morris Baumgarden, Aaron Friend, and Isaac Hays (Chayes). By 1845, however, Chicago had a promising little Jewish colony.

On Nov. 3, 1847, a small body of coreligionists assembled in the dry goods store of Levi Rosenfeld, 155 Lake street, and formed the Kehilath Anshe Mayriv congregation. The constitution was signed by the following fourteen members:

Many of the descendents of these pioneers are still active in the congregation.

The Rev. Ignace Kunreuther was elected rabbi, reader and shochet of the congregation in 1847 and remained until 1853. On noticing the leaning of the congregation toward what he considered reform ideas, he severed his connection with K. A. M. and retired to private life. He was succeeded in office by Godfrey Snydacker as hazzar and teacher.

First Temple Dedicated in 1851.

At the first synagogue of K. A. M. and the first Jewish house of worship in Illinois, dedicated in 1851, many influential citizens of Chicago were present, and several co-religionists traveled hundreds of miles in order to participate in the consecration.

In 1868 the congregation, increasing in wealth and in numbers, purchased the northwest corner of Wabash avenue and Peck court, with the church building standing on it, for $50,000. The church was remodeled and changed into a synagogue. A new organ, an excellent choir, and other improvements were introduced.

Following the fire of 1874, the congregation purchased a lot and building from Plymouth church, Indiana avenue and 26th street, and changed it into a synagogue. The congregation then had a membership of 120, and about that number of children attended the Sabbath school.

Dr. Samuel Sale and Rabbi Isaac S. Moses occupied the pulpit during the 1880s.

In 1890 the congregation had a membership of 155, and 30 widow members, a total of 185.

A new temple at 26th street and Indiana avenue was dedicated in June 11, 1891, and Drs. Adler, Felsenthal, Hirsch, Stolz, Austrian, Messing, and Norden assisted Dr. Moses in the dedicatory ceremonies.

Largest Growth in Last Five Years.

K. A. M. has had its largest measure of growth during the last five years of its existence, having more than quadrupled its membership during that period. It has also accepted the larger responsibilities with which the community charged it in the growing importance of its social, charitable, educational, and religious work. While during the first fifty years of its existence no fewer than fifteen ministers served the congregation, in the last thirty years of its life only three rabbis have been called to fill its pulpit. These were Rabbi Moses P. Jacobson, Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber, and the incumbent, Dr. Freehof.

With the coming of Dr. Freehof to K. A. M., a new spirit is said to have taken hold of the congregation. Dr. Freehof had never occupied a pulpit before. After his graduation from the Hebrew Union college in 1915 he was chosen as professor of rabbinics and liturgy at that institution, in which position he remained until coming to Chicago.

Remodeled Kehilath Anshe Mayriv Auditorium

TWO HYDE PARK TEACHERS GET PRINCIPALSHIPS

Spurgin to Burroughs; Mrs. Duggan, Armour

Mrs. Mildred Duggan and William Spurgin, teachers at Hyde Park High school, left the school last week to take up duties as principals at two south side elementary schools.

Mrs. Duggan, who for nine years has been a teacher and sponsor of both the Spanish club and the Junior Girls' club, has been made principal of Armour school, 950 West 33d place. Mrs. Duggan left a teaching position at Austin High school on the west side, and entered Hyde Park in 1920 as a Spanish instructor.

Honored at Luncheon.

At a luncheon in her honor, held the day before she left Hyde Park to take up her new duties, she said, "It isn't pleasant to leave Hyde Park, but since it is a promotion I feel that I should take the new position. I fear, however, that I shall miss Hyde Park very much."

Mr. Spurgin, who came to Hyde Park ten years ago as an instructor in chemistry, and who shortly after became dean of boys, will take up the duties of principal of Burroughs school, 66th and Washtenaw avenue.

Retires as Dean of Boys.

In addition to his position as dean of boys, Mr. Spurgin was sponsor of the Chemistry club. He also taught English, algebra, general science, and senior civics.

Ralph R. Williams faculty adviser of the Hyde Park Weekly, the student newspaper, will take up the position of dean of boys.

MISS ROBERTSON IS PRESIDENT OF EMBLEM CLUB

The Girls' Emblem club of Morgan Park High school recently elected new officers for the year. Miss Margaret Robertson is to be president, Miss Virginia Voris, vice president, and Miss Kathryn Stevens, secretary. Miss Cora Frizell is the pep committee representative.

The club is considering altering the requirements for minor emblems so as to make them more difficult to obtain. A committee has been appointed to outline a new system for earning the club awards. The club, which was founded four years ago for the purpose of promoting girls' athletics in the school, meets every third or fourth week.

Teachers' Science Class at Englewood School

Classes in general science for elementary teachers residing on the south side opened Oct. 16 in room 132 of Englewood High school. Teachers of first and second grade met at 7:45 o'clock, and the third and fourth grade teachers at 8:45 o'clock. On Thursday evening classes began for fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade teachers. The work, according to Charles J. Lunak, assistant superintendent of schools, is to follow the present course of study in general science for elementary grades.

A great blow to her many friends at Tilden Technical High school and on the south side was the sudden death Monday night of Miss Elzoria Ennis, instructor in the mathematics department. Miss Ennis was stricken with appendicitis Wednesday of last week while at the school.

Born in Petersburg, Ill., she was a graduate of Illinois college at Jacksonville and was planning to attend the recent centennial celebration. She had taught at Lincoln, Ill., before coming to Tilden in 1923.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Hyde Park Baptist church, 5600 Woodlawn avenue. Interment took place at Petersburg. Miss Ennis is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ennis of Petersburg.

Organization of civic groups and improvement clubs in all parts of the city into one civic reform association, a job begun recently under the leadership of the Northwest Federation of Improvement Clubs, will be resumed tomorrow night, when delegates from the local groups will meet and plan the work to be done this fall.

T. P. Quinn, temporary chairman of the city-wide body, announced yesterday that representatives of eight organizations will meet tomorrow to plan a big meeting Nov. 25 and to launch a campaign for more members.

The delegates will also select a name for the reform group through which they will attempt to obtain better local government and reduced taxes, Mr. Quinn said.

The following delegates will represent local organizations at the meeting:

Robert McMurray, Ridge Civic council.

William R. Wendell, South Side federation.
Albert Olson, Northwest Town Central organization.
O. W. Holmes, Northwest federation.
M. A. Seymour, Southwest federation.

The Chicago Federation of Labor will also be represented.

"Our job for the present is to perfect our central organization, to make it more comprehensive, and to include delegates from parts of the city not yet represented," Mr. Quinn said. "When we have become well organized and truly representative of taxpayers throughout Chicago, we shall be able to make our influence felt in the interest of better government."

Prof. Thomas H. Reed of the University of Michigan, national authority on government, will address the group at its meeting Nov. 25.

The Senior Dramatic club of Parker Senior High school elected officers for the semester at a recent meeting. Miss Juliette Dennis is the new president, Robert Simpson, vice president; Miss Orline Koebel, secretary; Paul Grimes, treasurer, and Hugh Mann, librarian.

Following the election, "The Sicilians," a one act play of Moliere, was presented with Miss Juliette Dennis, Miss Lucille Havill, Charles Line and Edward Patterson in the cast. Violin music was furnished by William Boros.

Seniors who are interested in taking part in the class plays are particularly urged to become members, since Miss Margaret Baker, dramatic teacher, will select members of the club for rôles in future productions.

LDEST TEMPLE TO REDEDICATE MPROVED HOME

L. A. M. Service Set for Next Sunday.

BY RABBI SOLOMON B. FREEHOF.

Kehilath Anshe Mayriv temple, Drexel boulevard and 50th street, following changes that include improved acoustics, seating capacity to care for the increasing congregation and a new general scheme of decoration, will be dedicated anew next Sunday.

RABBI SOLOMON B. FREEHOF.

Special treatment of transparent glaze over the leaded glass windows has resulted in softening the lighting effect; unusual craftsmanship has gone into the doors of the ark, which are inlaid against a delicate silver background treatment; authentic religious symbols are inlaid in native and foreign woods, and an innovation is to be found in the arrangement which now places the organ and choir.

On the rededication next Sunday, the harvest festival will be held when the parents and children of the congregation will be brought to worship, jointly in the reconstructed temple for the first time.

Kehilath Anshe Mayriv, meaning "the Congregation of the Men of the Law," enjoys the distinction of having established the first synagogue not only in Chicago but in the entire northwest, and from it have sprung many leading temples flourishing in the city today.

Founded at Federal Building Site.

From the time when its first synagogue was consecrated in 1851 on the site of the federal building, where a bronze tablet now marks the spot, it has moved steadily. In 1919, its fourth structure at Indiana avenue and 33d street, proved inadequate and, like its predecessors, was vacated to make room for a still more commodious and impressive home.

Time has developed the congregation which Abraham Kohn had boasted in 1851 possessed property amounting to $2,000, with encumbrances of $2,800, on which paid its rabbi the then munificent sum of $1,000 a year.

Before the time of the great Chicago fire, when the records of K. A. M. were destroyed, there was organized a Hebrew Benevolent society, which owns burial ground in Graceland, the first cemetery located where Lincoln park is today, having been abandoned. The congregation now owns the largest cemetery in Cook county, on Mayriv, Addison street and Narragansett avenue.

In 1874 the congregation lost its synagogue in the second Chicago fire. It then granted the use of the Methodist Episcopal church at Wabash avenue and 14th street, and later erected its own place of worship at Indiana avenue and 26th street.

The temple, recently reconstructed, is one of the landmarks of the south side, a stately and beautiful monument to the progressive spirit of the pioneers.

Rapid Growth Under New Leader.

Dr. Tobias Schanfarber occupied the pulpit from 1901, and has been rabbi emeritus since Dr. Solomon B. Freehof was chosen as spiritual leader in 1923. Since his removal farther south to a location more accessible and service-

ST. DAVID'S CATHOLIC CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ITS SILVER JUBILEE

St. David's Catholic church on Emerald avenue at 32d street, of which the Rev. Joseph McNamee is pastor, will celebrate its silver jubilee next Sunday, Oct. 27. Twenty-five years ago, in the fall of 1904, the parish was established by the late Rev. D. J. Crimmins who, at the time of his death, was pastor of St. Leo's church on the south side.

THE REV. F. X. M'CABE.

Elaborate plans are under way for the jubilee celebration in which prominents of the neighborhood—Catholic, Protestant and Jew alike—will participate. A banquet for a hundred guests is to be given in the evening in the school hall.

The Right Rev. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, D. D., is to be present at the solemn jubilee mass in the church at noon. The Rev. F. X. McCabe, formerly of De Paul university, will preach the sermon. The pastor, Father McNamee, will be the celebrant of the mass, assisted by the Rev. Matthew Hanley, as deacon, and the Rev. James Cannell as subdeacon. Father Hanley is pastor of St. Joachim's parish, and Father Cannell is pastor of Immaculate Conception parish.

South Side Ladies' Aid to Give Benefit Party

Members of the South Side Ladies' Aid society will hold a card party tomorrow evening at Prospect hall, 64th street and Ashland avenue. Mrs. Joseph P. Hurley, 5845 Campbell avenue, president of the organization, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements. She is being assisted by Mrs. August E. Miller, 3604 West 60th place, and Mrs. Paul Klinkhammer, 7[illegible] May street.

Vote League to Learn How City Is Run

Mysteries of city and county governmental procedure will be cleared up in the minds of many south side women when the South Shore League of Women Voters holds its citizenship school Thursday in the Bryn Mawr Community church, 7000 Jeffery avenue.

The school, which is to be an all day affair, begins at 10:30 in the morning, when Miss Edith Rockwood, legislative secretary of the Illinois League of Women Voters, will speak on "Chicago and Cook county." An informal discussion will follow the talk.

Luncheon to Be Served.

Luncheon is to be served at 12:45, in charge of Mrs. Carl Sittler, and afterwards Miss Rockwood will reassemble her class for a discussion of the work which the league has to do.

At 2 o'clock Spencer D. Parrott of the department of local community research, University of Chicago, will address the afternoon session of the school.

All women who are interested in civic education are urged to attend the meeting and to join the league. Mrs. C. A. Geiger, organization and membership chairman, has been conducting a membership drive.

Others on Committee.

She is being assisted by Mrs. R. L. Barry, Mrs. Charles Bidwell, Mrs. H. N. Bundesen, Mrs. L. D. Cook, Mrs. F. W. Fischer, Mrs. Lewis Houlding, Mrs. L. B. Iliff, Mrs. Charles Newton, Mrs. G. W. Payson, Mrs. J. W. Steigely, Mrs. J. S. Way, Miss Anna L. Deegan, and W. V. Muttart. The South Shore league is hoping to secure the prize for increased membership presented at the November convention of the Cook County leagues.

Bill has persuasive powers all his own and can also persuade the sweetest kind of music to pour forth from a cornet, even when it goes into the horn quite sour. FRANK K. FOSS of 4810 Woodlawn avenue is home for a month's visit with his mother after two and a half years in the Argentine. He's general manager of the Wilson properties down there, but manages to get away every so often. It seems a far cry back to 1917 when Frank was champion pole vaulter at Cornell and had his picture in the rotogravure sections. He uses the same coördination of effort in putting Wilson & Co. over the top in South America. 'Tis a bully country, opines Frank, not excepting the tango.

FEWER and fewer contented cows are going dry this year, according to reliable statistics reaching the editor. They are giving booze instead of milk, instances in ever increasing numbers having been reported in and around Chicago, where the familiar quarts and pints delivered each morning by the faithful dairyman have been found to contain gin, bourbon, and Scotch. We advise readers to be on their guard, and if the least suspicions is aroused to take no chances but snatch the bottles in off the back porch pronto. The situation adds another grave problem to those attending prohibition enforcement. In fact, at this writing, we are still trying to figure out how a federal court can padlock a cow.

Holy Angels' Buildings Are Refurnished

The work of renovating and redecorating the parish buildings of Holy Angels church, 543 Oakwood boulevard, has just been completed. This church, erected about thirty years ago, is still as modern and up to date as the newest buildings, and is considered one of the most beautiful and famous structures in the entire country. Many of its features have been copied and incorporated into churches erected elsewhere.

Its architect, James J. Egan, was a famous builder of churches a quarter century ago, and he, assisted by Father Tighe, who was the pastor at that time, succeeded in creating a masterpiece. An idea of the solidity of the construction is indicated by the thickness of the walls, which are eleven feet at the lower part. This furnishes support for the roof trusses, which weigh nineteen tons each.

Indiana Cut Stone Used.

The building is constructed of Indiana cut stone, which in time becomes as durable as granite. The twenty-three stained glass windows are gems of art. They were produced in the studios of John Hardman of London, England, and have few equals in America. The woodwork and pews are all of quarter sawed redwood, finely carved, and would be almost priceless if reproduced today.

One of the most beautiful mural paintings of any building in this country is contained at Holy Angels. It is semi-circular in shape, following the sanctuary arch, and is 100 feet from end to end and twenty feet wide. It was painted by Oliver Dennett Grover, famous Chicago artist who was at one time dean of the Chicago Art institute.

Carnival to Defray Cost.

In order to help defray the expenses connected with these improvements a carnival is being held in the parish auditorium. It started yesterday and will continue through next Saturday.

The Rev. M. J. McKenna is the present pastor.

"TULIP TIME" TO BE GIVEN THIS WEEK BY HOPE CHURCH CHOIR

Presentation of the operetta "Tulip Time," by members of the senior choir of Hope church, 64th street and Washtenaw avenue on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, Oct. 22 and 23, at Hope church, promises delightful entertainment to southsiders. The story takes place in Holland and has to do with the adventures of a party of American college students who are there, presumably, to study tulips. After an evening filled to overflowing with good comedy and catchy music, the final curtain falls with the prospect of a triple wedding.

GERTRUDE C. SCHLIESKE.

The musical director is I. C. Strieter, assisted by Edgar Krause and Gertrude Schlieske as dramatic coaches. The principals of the cast are: Gertrude Schlieske, Ruth Blaar, Louise Oswald, Walter Huscher, Bert Strieter, Arthur Scheck, Carl Fuss, and Harry Peterson, with the backing of an unusual array of chorus work furnished by other members of the choir, costumed as Dutch villagers, flower girls, and American students.

200 Boys Are Guests of Stagg at Grid Game

More than 200 boys were the guests of A. A. Stagg, head coach of the University of Chicago, and the Edgewood Y. M. C. A., 66th street and Union avenue, yesterday at the double header at Stagg field. Chicago played Indiana State Normal college and Ripon college of Wisconsin and the 200 boys cheered with thousands of students and alumni when Chicago gained and groaned when they lost any yardage.

PONDER WOMAN FOR ASSEMBLY IN HYDE PARK

To Pick Successor to Mrs. Cheney.

Chicago women interested in the active participation of their sex not only in politics but in government have their eyes on the Fifth state senatorial district, frequently called the Hyde park district.

Will a third woman be sent from there to the legislature as one of its state representatives? That is what the women—and a great many of the men—of the city want to know. There have been two elected there in the last six years, Mrs. Katherine Hancock Goode and Mrs. Flora S. Cheney. Both died while in office and the general feeling is that there is an opening for another woman now.

Reports indicate that discussion of the subject by party leaders is being withheld until after the judicial election of Nov. 5; but it is believed that shortly after that date there will be a definite movement started for the nomination of a woman on the Republican ticket in this district.

Many Women Available.

There are no advance indications of possible candidates, but the district has a large number of them active in politico-civic work whose names are well known to the voters. Among them are many identified with the University of Chicago group, and it is not improbable that one of these will be put into the race.

The territory included in the district is decidedly "mixed" politically; but the initiative in favor of a woman candidate probably will come from the Deneen group, which supported both Mrs. Goode and Mrs. Cheney. There is a sort of implied commitment by this faction on the subject, and if the women want to enter a contestant of their own it is said they may expect favorable consideration from the Deneen leaders of the district, headed by Roy O. West, national committeeman, long a power in Hyde park.

But the Harding-Snow group also has strength in parts of the district and some of its adherents say there is a possibility they might choose to run a woman under certain circumstances.

Location of District.

The district lies between State street and the lake shore. Between Cottage Grove avenue and the lake it extends only as far southward as 63d street. But the western half—that part between State street and Cottage Grove avenue—runs south as far as 71st street. In one sense the Fifth ward, Deneen territory which elected Felix A. Norden as ward committeeman last year, is considered the center of the district.

North of the Fifth, ward lies the Fourth, where Charles Krutchoff, member of the board of assessors and a Harding lieutenant, is committeeman, and a small part of the Third, which has Oscar De Priest as its committeeman. A large part of the vote in this northern section is colored.

How Deneenits Can Win.

While experts might contend that the Deneen people, even in spite of recent events, could not control the greater part of this area as they did

HAND AND MIND TRAINED IN TUNE AT TILDEN TECH

Students Work Hard and Find It Pleasure.

BY ELIZABETH BROWNING.

A great building whose mile and a half of corridors link together foundry and machine shop, engine room and chemical laboratory, classroom and gymnasium, Tilden Technical High school, 4747 South Euclid avenue, resembles at first glimpse some great industrial plant, functioning with perfect efficiency in every part of the complicated process of turning out trained and disciplined high school graduates.

The boys themselves seem attuned to the business-like atmosphere of the school. Guards studying in the halls between classes barely look up from their books to scan the passes of the few boys who move noiselessly through the corridors; idleness and truancy are inconceivable.

Laughter to Be Heard, Too.

Then, down on a lower level, one passes a door through which comes the sound of splashing water, laughter and shouting. Across the hall a piano is playing a popular piece with the assistance of a brass or two. At the end of a corridor a giant graph drawn with scientific precision impresses one—with the popular support the student body is giving the school paper.

In one of the classrooms a group of boys are flying miniature planes with much applause for the more successful; in another a student proudly displays the vise he has just completed which he will take home to use on jobs around the house.

One begins to realize that this school, which teaches a boy to use his hands together with his mind, is not such a business-like place after all, but perhaps more amusing than the schools where there are only books from which to learn.

Courses Are Difficult.

Tilden boys have one of the hardest courses offered in any city high school, but it does not hinder their coming from as far away as South Chicago and Morgan Park every day. The curriculum, which has won the praise of the Japanese minister of education and of European authorities, combines the practical use of machinery with courses in English, history, literature, science and mathematics, which every one must take, as well as the optional foreign languages, art and architecture.

Preliminary training in wood patterning and metal casting in the foundry is followed by two years of specialization in auto, electrical or machine shops. As Hance Williamson, dean of boys and senior machine shop instructor, said, there is not one penny's worth of toy machinery in the million dollars' worth of equipment in the shops, but only machines actually in commercial use.

'Twas Not Always So.

Time was when things were far different at Tilden Tech. Only nine years ago girls were still enrolled as students, and an ordinary high school course was offered for their benefit as an alternative to the technical course. Miss Laura M. Wright, acting assistant principal, was dean of girls then and taught Latin.

"Of course I miss the girls, and miss teaching my old subject, too," she said, "but it must be admitted that discipline has improved five hundred per cent since the girls left. There is no more showing off now, and the boys get down to work better than they used to. Now girls come here only as guests, for dances and plays, and even if we get along pretty well without them most of the time, when they do come here it's a state occasion."

Work Is Harder Now.

In the old days the students did not work as hard as they do now. Technical subjects were not introduced into Lake High school, as Tilden was called prior to 1914, until 1904.

"When I came to the old Lake High school in 1898," Miss Wright explained; "there were only seven teachers and five hundred students. We taught about fifteen hours a week, and now we teach thirty or thirty-five hours. Our building had sixteen rooms, and we certainly were proud of it. It was considered one of the finest in the city, if not in the country."

The old Lake High school building dated from 1887, when residents of what was then the town of Lake, just south of the city limits at 39th street, decided to give their three year old high school a building befitting the growing importance of the community.

Fine New $60,000 Building.

The Swifts, the Morrisses, the Tildens and many others lived on or near Emerald avenue, which with its gingerbread adornments and iron fenced plots of grass was the Lake Shore drive of the town of Lake. They were responsible for the fine new building, costing $60,000, and many of their children were among the early graduates of the school. James E. Armstrong, retired principal of Englewood High school, succeeded James Hannan as principal of Lake High school when the latter, who was first principal, became superintendent in 1887. Harry Keeler, principal of Lindblom High school, was in the first graduating class of Lake High school.

All subsequent additions to the high school building have been made in harmony with the original building. In 1904 a northwest wing was added, and in 1923 the west and south wings, at a cost of $3,000,000.

Name of Lake Dropped.

The name of Lake High school, which survived the disappearance of Lake township in the annexation by Chicago in 1889 was finally dropped in 1915 as having no further significance, and the school was named after Edward F. Tilden, banker and old resident of the neighborhood.

Many well known men have followed Harry Keeley since he was graduated from Lake High school. Charles C. Fitzmorris, former chief of police; Elmer Holmgren; Frank K. Gerty, inspector of school property; J. J. Zmrhal, district superintendent of schools; Walter Wright, superintendent of small parks and air port, and Mrs. Walter Buhlig, former president of the State Parent-Teacher association, are a few of those who have been prominent in public affairs.

Others in Professions.

Dr. Glen Moore, Dr. Sidney Portis and Dr. Bernard Portis, Ira J. Bready, and Lawrence Burke, mechanical engineers, Harold Burke, insurance rate engineer; L. J. Coyte, professor at the Ralston Industrial school, Pittsburgh, and Gustav Lundt, professor of chemistry at Columbia university; William Campbell Wright, and B. K. Gibson, architects, and Hugo Bezdek, athletic director of the University of Pennsylvania, are distinguished in the professions.

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES OF 41 YEARS AGO

This is the way high school graduates of 1888 looked when they dressed up to have their class picture made. The class is that of the Town of Lake High school, predecessor of the Tilden Technical High school of today. Faculty members appear in the front of the picture. The men in the front row are James E. Armstrong (left), then principal of the school and later for 37 years head of the Englewood High school, and James Hannan, then superintendent of schools of the Town of Lake.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Stopping casually one day to peer in the grimy window of a little near north side antique shop, I saw two tiny flat carnelian cameo ornaments. After some hesitation I went in to price them and was surprised to be able to buy them for 50 cents each. I took them to a jeweler and had them made into earrings for $2.50. When I called for them, the jeweler offered me $30 for the finished pair. That means a profit of $26.50, a real bargain.

AVENUE HONORS GOV. COLES, WHO BARRED SLAVERY

Lafayette Host on His Visit to Illinois.

This is the nineteenth of a series of articles on the origins of the names of streets and suburbs of the south side.

Back in the days when Chicago's boundaries extended to 39th street the inhabitants of south Chicago, with pride in the history of the state, named their finest streets after the governors of Illinois. Today not many traces of the old village remain in this thriving southernmost part of metropolitan Chicago, but a landmark of the historically minded village fathers is preserved in Coles avenue, named for Illinois' second governor.

Coles avenue parallels South Shore drive between 71st and 79th streets.

Probably Never in Chicago.

There is no record showing that Gov. Edward Coles in all his wide travels ever came to Chicago or that he was even aware of the potential colussus in the northeast corner of his state. Nevertheless, it is fitting that one of Chicago's fine residential streets should bear his name, if only because he kept Illinois free of slavery at a time when it was in serious danger of becoming a slave state.

Born a member of a slave holding family in Albemarle county, Virginia, Edward Coles, as a protégé of Thomas Jefferson, was strongly opposed to the institution of slavery. When, after two visits to Illinois, he came out permanently in 1819, his first act was to free his slaves. During his governorship, from 1822 to 1826, the question of revising the constitution to make Illinois a slave state was continuously to the fore, and Coles was largely responsible for keeping Illinois "free soil."

Played Host to Lafayette.

Also memorable in Coles' governorship was Lafayette's visit to Illinois. Coles, who for six years was President Madison's secretary, had known the Frenchman in Europe, and when he came to this country in 1824 Coles, as governor, invited him to come west. More than a third of the year's revenue was expended in entertaining the guest, a sum of perhaps $6,000.

PONDER WOMAN FOR LEGISLATURE FROM HYDE PARK

Voters to Pick Successor to Mrs. Cheney.

years ago, it is generally admitted that they can elect one of the district's three state representatives by taking full advantage of the right of cumulative voting—the "plumping" of three votes for one candidate.

That Deneen operation, strengthened by the swing of the large independent element of voters, is said to be what elected Mrs. Goode in 1924, reelected her in 1926, and elected Mrs. Cheney in 1928. Not that the Snow-Harding forces fought the women candidates. They have had candidates of their own for whom they were plumping.

The political practice in the district has been for the Republicans to nominate two and the Democrats one for the lower house. In the last primary the Snow and Harding people indorsed William J. Warfield, a young negro of excellent record. The big colored vote in the district lines up with them and that was one reason for their decision.

Similar Lineup Likely.

Although the primary date is still far away, it is thought a similar situation will develop in the approaching contest. Warfield was elected and, from a political viewpoint, is considered entitled to a chance at renomination so that it is predicted his former support will stand by him this time.

The voters of the district who supported Mrs. Goode and Mrs. Cheney are more than proud of the records of the two women. In its report of April 2, 1926, when Mrs. Goode was ending her first term, the Legislative Voters' league said of her:

"In ending her first term during which she showed that she possessed unusual capacity for legislative work; is exceptionally well informed, and was closely attentive to her duties as a house member; was particularly active in fighting for economy, and aided largely in securing legislation for the licensing and regulation of public dance halls."

Records of Both Approved.

Mrs. Cheney died during her first term in office, but frequently the opinion was expressed by legislative observers that her service was on a par with that of Mrs. Goode.

So far as the customarily Democratic place in the district list is concerned, it is said that there is no doubt it will go once more to Michael L. Igoe, minority leader of this chamber, unless he and his associate party leaders determine that he is to run for some other office on the big spring ticket, possibly one of the county places. But it is understood that he has a real liking for the sort of legislative activity he has engaged in during the last two sessions, and his associates feel that he is of great value to the party there.

Question as to Woods.

There may be some question whether Senator Roy C. Woods will have a serious fight for renomination, but at least none of the early symptoms of conflict have appeared thus far. County Treasurer Harding and Acting County Chairman Snow are said to have assured him of their support for another term, and if the Deneen faction is grooming some one to run against him the new aspirant is deep under cover.

Much depends here on the general plan of campaign of the forces that will support United States Senator Deneen for renomination. If they determine to make a fight all the way down the line, it is said, they may put up a man against Woods.

TWO HYDE PARK TEACHERS GET PRINCIPALSHIPS

Mrs. Duggan to Armour; Spurgin to Burroughs.

Mrs. Mildred Duggan and Wm. Spurgin, teachers at Hyde Park High school, left the school last week to take up duties as principals of two south side elementary schools.

Mrs. Duggan, who for nine years has been a teacher and sponsor of both the Spanish club and the Junior Girls' club, has been made principal of Armour school, 950 West 51st street. Mrs. Duggan left a teaching position at Austin High school on the west side, and entered Hyde Park in 1919 as a Spanish instructor.

Honored at Luncheon.

At a luncheon in her honor, on the day before she left Hyde Park to take up her new duties, she said, it isn't pleasant to leave Hyde Park, but since it is a promotion I feel that I should take the new position. I like, however, that I shall miss Hyde Park very much."

Mr. Spurgin, who came to Hyde Park ten years ago as an instructor in chemistry, and who shortly afterwards became dean of boys, will take up the duties of principal of Burroughs school, 66th and Washtenaw avenue.

Retires as Dean of Boys.

In addition to his position as dean of boys, Mr. Spurgin was sponsor of the Chemistry club. He also taught English, algebra, general science and senior civics.

Ralph R. Williams, faculty adviser of the Hyde Park Weekly, the student newspaper, will take up the position of dean of boys.

SEWER PARLEY IS POSTPONED UNTIL OCT. 2

The second meeting of members of the sanitary district board and south side civic leaders, which was scheduled for last Wednesday, was postponed until Friday afternoon, Oct. 5. This announcement was made by H. Haylett, managing vice president of the Greater South Side chamber of commerce, who will lead the delegation of south side residents and business men at the conference.

The fact that Howard W. Ilsley, president of the sanitary district, will not return to the city from a stay in New York until Oct. 21 was the reason given by Mr. Haylett for the delay. These meetings were suggested by Ira Elmore in an attempt to find a solution for the sewer relief problem of the south side.

Patrol Streets Before, After School.

Dangerous crossings near Morrill school are being patrolled before and after school hours by shifts of volunteer police. Ten sixth grade boys play the envied rôle of policemen and efficient protection is given chilren of the school. A regular policeman has recently taken over part of the patrol at the 63d and Rockwell street corner, but the amateur force is on hand whenever the official cop is off duty and the 59th and Rockwell street crossing is still entirely under their supervision.

The methods of Capt. James Wills, head of the force, are praised by Miss Esther Watt, physical education director of the school, who has been made honorary chief of the force. He and his lieutenants have already snatched three children from under automobiles, and reckless jaywalking is being eliminated.

LEGION TO HOLD HARVEST FROLIC TO AID HOSPITAL

Gall Post's Festival to Be Staged in Riverdale.

Do you remember way back when the finest pumpkin and the biggest ear of corn furnished attractions at the fall country fair? Well, Paul Gall post, No. 303, of the American Legion is going to hold an old fashioned harvest time festival at 70 East 137th street, Riverdale, Oct. 25-26. There will be many exhibits of skill and handicraft. A poster contest will be held in the schools and the work of the winner will be exhibited. There will be fish ponds, balloon bursting, and other attractions. The purpose of the event will be the raising of funds to equip and endow a room in the new hospital for war women soon to be a part of the Edward Hines Jr. memorial group at Maywood. Mrs. Anna J. Peterson and her corps of workers will judge the food and fancy work exhibits. Mrs. Harold F. Miller is general chairman.

The next fourth district meeting will be held Thursday night, Oct. 31, in the Masonic temple, Otto boulevard between 15th and 16th streets, Chicago Heights. The Chicago Heights post will be host. "This post," advises Commander W. W. O'Connell, "has the reputation of putting big things over in a big way. Jack Poorman, senior vice commander, will be on hand. This is Comrade Poorman's home town and also his post. Notify your membership, and bring out your drum and bugle corps or what have you?"

Tinley Park post, No. 615, is planning another of its dances for the night of Nov. 16.

Englewood post, No. 61, will hold its annual dance on the night of Nov. 20. Installation of officers, Nov. 1 with Ferre C. Watkins, past department commander, as installing officer. At that time there will also be dancing—and refreshments.

The Hyde Park auxiliary will hold a reception and tea at Hotel Sherman on Friday afternoon in honor of one of their charter members, Mrs. George M. Kellogg Jr., recently elected president of the state department of the American Legion auxiliary. Mrs. George S. Middleton Jr. is chairman of the affair.

Square post, No. 232, will observe its annual navy night tomorrow night at their headquarters, Midway temple, 61st and Cottage Grove avenue. The principal speakers will be Rear Admiral W. S. Crosley, commandant of Great Lakes naval training station; Lieut. [Daddy] Schick, Department Commander Edward Hayes of Decatur, and William Mundt, state adjutant. Invitations have been extended to all Legion posts of Cook county and it is expected that several thousand Legionnaires will be in attendance. Entertainment has been provided for the evening by Nate Feldt. Doors will be thrown open on this special night to the public as well as to the Legionnaires.

Nomination of officers and members of the board of governors for next year will be made at the meeting of Woodlawn post, No. 175, tomorrow night at post headquarters, 1208 East 63d street.

Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder will be the speaker at the meeting of Advertising Men's post, No. 38, at Hotel Sherman tomorrow noon.

Hyde Park post, No. 34, is extending an invitation to all Legionnaires to join them in a patriotic ball to be held in Armistice night, Nov. 11, at the Trianon ballroom. Several features of interest are being worked out by the post.

Roseland post, No. 49, will hold its installation of officers Oct. 22 at the South End Chamber of Commerce hall, 11145 Michigan avenue. The officers to be installed are: A. G. Lindell, commander; R. Von Meeteren, first vice commander; John Swanson, second vice commander; Edward Reinhard, third vice commander; A. E. Price, finance officer; A. J. Lindell, adjutant; P. De Vries, sergeant at arms, and Arthur Hauser, Warren Stautz, Daniel Lucas, Albert Vanderwarf, Walter Roy, and Richard Ubbink, as members of the executive committee. George S. Middleton, commander, third district, is to be installing officer.

REVIVE INTEREST IN DEPRESSION OF TRACKS OF I. C.

Railroad Puts Cost at $8,632,000.

Interest in the movement to obtain passage of an ordinance for the depression of the South Chicago branch of the Illinois Central railroad tracks was revived last week when railroad officials presented to the track elevation committee of the city council a report of the cost of the project.

Morgan L. Fitch, chairman of the track depression committee of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, which started the campaign last year to obtain the improvement, says a public hearing will be held within the next ten days to permit south shore residents tell what they think about the contemplated ordinance.

Property Owners to Pay Part.

Mr. Fitch explained that according to the proposal of the railroad officials the property owners along the right of way would be compelled to pay for part of the work. The total cost, as estimated by the railroad, is $8,632,000.

Mr. Fitch asserted that he believed the railroad wanted to depress its tracks as much as south shore residents desire it, and that work would be started as soon as some way of paying for it could be found.

In the report the railroad officials suggested that payment should be apportioned as follows: $2,073,000 by south shore property owners, $1,075,000 by the city of Chicago, and $4,584,000 by the railroad

Increased Fare Suggested.

In order to raise its share of the money, the report stated that the railroad would be compelled to increase fares 1 cent until 1940.

OLDEST TEMPLE TO REDEDICATE IMPROVED HOME

K. A. M. to Hold Service Next Sunday.

able to its members, and under the leadership of Rabbi Freehof, K. A. M. has made great strides both in influence and increased membership.

The officers of the temple are Louis L. Kahn, president; Leo Metzenberg, vice president; Frank Sulzberger, vice president; Edwin A. Stiefel, treasurer; Louis M. Katz, financial secretary, and Alleen Sinsheimer, recording secretary.

At the fiftieth anniversary of K. A. M. in 1897, and at the eightieth anniversary two years ago, much interesting data concerning the earliest history of the Jews of Chicago in general was brought forth.

Few Jews Here Before 1840.

Very little is known of Jewish settlers in Chicago prior to the early 1840s. In Andreas' "History of Chicago," there appeared only the names of Morris Baumgarden, Aaron Friend, and Isaac Hays (Chayes). By 1845, however, Chicago had a promising little Jewish colony.

On Nov. 3, 1847, a small body of co-religionists assembled in the dry goods store of Levi Rosenfeld, 155 Lake street, and formed the Kehilath Anshe Mayriv congregation. The constitution was signed by the following fourteen members:

Abraham Kohn, Jacob Rosenberg, Samuel Cole, Morris L. Leopold, Philip Newburgh, Benedict Shubart, Leon Greenebaum, Levi Rosenfeld, Jacob Fuller, M. Becker, Isaac Wormser, B. Stern, M. Braunschild, and Julius Kohn.

Many of the descendents of these pioneers are still active in the congregation.

The Rev. Ignace Kunreuther was elected rabbi, reader and shochet of the congregation in 1847 and remained until 1853. On noticing the leaning of his congregation toward what he considered reform ideas, he severed his connection with K. A. M. and retired to private life. He was succeeded in office by Godfrey Snydacker as hazzar and teacher.

First Temple Dedicated in 1851.

At the first synagogue of K. A. M. and the first Jewish house of worship in Illinois, dedicated in 1851, many influential citizens of Chicago were present, and several co-religionists traveled hundreds of miles in order to participate in the consecration.

In 1868 the congregation, increasing in wealth and in numbers, purchased the northwest corner of Wabash avenue and Peck court, with the church building standing on it, for $50,000. The church was remodeled and changed into a synagogue. A new organ, an excellent choir, and other improvements were introduced.

Following the fire of 1874, the congregation purchased a lot and building from Plymouth church, Indiana avenue and 26th street, and changed it into a synagogue. The congregation then had a membership of 120, and about that number of children attended the Sabbath school.

Dr. Samuel Sale and Rabbi Isaac S. Moses occupied the pulpit during the 1880s.

In 1890 the congregation had a membership of 155, and 30 widow members, a total of 185.

A new temple at 26th street and Indiana avenue was dedicated in June 11, 1891, and Drs. Adler, Felsenthal, Hirsch, Stolz, Austrian, Messing, and Norden assisted Dr. Moses in the dedicatory ceremonies.

Largest Growth in Last Five Years.

K. A. M. has had its largest measure of growth during the last five years of its existence, having more than quadrupled its membership during that period. It has also accepted the larger responsibilities with which the community charged it in the growing importance of its social, charitable, educational, and religious work. While during the first fifty years of its existence no fewer than fifteen ministers served the congregation, in the last thirty years of its life only three rabbis have been called to fill its pulpit. These were Rabbi Moses P. Jacobson, Rabbi Tobias Schanfarber, and the incumbent, Dr. Freehof.

With the coming of Dr. Freehof to K. A. M., a new spirit is said to have taken hold of the congregation. Dr. Freehof had never occupied a pulpit before. After his graduation from the Hebrew Union college in 1915 he was chosen as professor of rabbinics and liturgy at that institution, in which position he remained until coming to Chicago.

A nation-wide network of stations affiliated with the National Broadcasting company will broadcast the efforts of Zimbalist, playing a century of music composed especially for the violin or arranged for the instrument by truly great violinists.

Since 1907 Zimbalist has been recognized as possessing a rare combination of superlative technical skill and a fiery ability to interpret the greatness that master composers intended.

WORLD'S SERIES ACES AUTOGRAPH BASEBALL PRIZES

Will Be Awarded Boys in Park Competition.

Although Chicago baseball fans are bemoaning the way their Cubs played during the world series, 12 south side boys will be happy near Christmas time when they receive baseballs autographed by the stars of the Chicago and Philadelphia teams as prizes for taking honors in south park playground competition.

This announcement was made last week by V. K. Brown, superintendent of playgorunds for the south park commission, when the fall and winter activities were planned. The suggestion that autographed baseballs be given as individual prizes was made, according to Mr. Brown, by Howard Ehmke, who pitched the first game against the Cubs.

Ehmke Friend of Boys.

Ehmke, who is a friend of Mr. Brown and a frequent visitor at the South Park offices and its numerous playgrounds when he is in Chicago, has often taken south side boys to watch the Athletics and the White Sox play. On his last western trip Ehmke promised Mr. Brown that he would get the signatures of the star players of both world series participants for the playground department.

Although the great majority of the men, women, boys and girls, who regularly attend the south park playgrounds, will take part in some phase of indoor athletics, officials of the playground department expect thousands of south side residents to participate in the dramatic work, and the boys' and girls' handcraft work.

Boys' Shops Opened.

B. C. Friedman, in charge of the boys' handcraft classes, has already opened shops in many of the parks and boys throughout the system are preparing to make various articles under his instruction. Mr. Friedman specializes in model airplane construction and all planes for south park competition in this event are made under his supervision.

Miss Dorothy Mullen is in charge of girls' handcraft classes which meet one afternoon each week. The women's classes are held one evening each week, and there is always a waiting list at every park for the classes. The women are instructed in making parchment shades, quilting, leather purses, felt hats, basket weaving and many other articles for personal and home use.

HEADS OF CLUBS TELL OF SERVICE TO COMMUNITIES

Thirty presidents of women's clubs in the second district defined the contribution of their organizations to the community at the fall meeting of the district Thursday at the Cambridge club, 1625 East 53d street.

The meeting, which was an all day affair, was opened in the morning by chairmen of the district departments who briefly outlined their work for the coming year. Then the club institute, which instructs in the mechanics of running a club, was held, with Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin, Mrs. J. S. Laurer, Mrs. John McKeon, Mrs. R. E. Davis, and Mrs. J. J. Nozy as speakers.

Following a luncheon Mrs. Willis M. Graham, state chairman of community service, spoke, and it was after her speech that presidents of clubs in the district discussed the contributions of their respective organizations to their communities.

Music was furnished by the chorus of the West Pullman Woman's club. The meeting was open to all club women in the district interested. The president and four delegates from each club in the district were in attendance.

FALL GARDENING HOLDS DISTRICT CLUBS' INTEREST

RIDGE COUNCIL'S CAR LINE STAND STARTS BATTLE

Three Affiliated Clubs Demand Reversal.

Three far south side organizations affiliated with the Ridge Civic council have rebelled at the general body's opposition to the proposed extension of the 95th street car line from State street to Western avenue.

Representatives of the three affiliated organizations will voice at a meeting of the council tomorrow evening their opposition to the general body's protest at a recent meeting at the city hall.

The proposed car line extension is not needed, Robert Blackburn, president of the Civic council, declared in opposing the project when he led a delegation to the city hall.

Propose Reversal of Stand.

Opposition to the view expressed by Mr. Blackburn first was shown at the latest meeting of the council, when representatives of the Longwood Manor Improvement association introduced a resolution in favor of the 95th street car line. Arguments on the resolution were deferred to the meeting tomorrow evening.

Since that meeting two weeks ago the Brainerd Improvement association and the 95th Street Business Men's Improvement association have lined up with the Longwood Manor group, and officials of both organizations have announced their intention of fighting for the project at the meeting of the Civic council tomorrow evening.

William J. Buckley, president of the Longwood Manor Improvement association, pointed out that his organization has a territory with a three-quarter mile frontage on 95th street, while the Brainerd group has a corresponding frontage on the north side of that thoroughfare. He said his organization has gone on record in favor of a car line on 95th street, and will continue its campaign for the project independent of the Civic council if that action is necessary.

Points to Inconvenience.

To show that the car line is necessary he pointed out that a resident of his territory is compelled to travel to 79th street in order to board a street car which will take him east of State street.

James H. Ryan, president of the 95th Street Business Men's Improvement association, asserted that although his organization was a member of the council his group does not agree on the matter of transportation.

"We want the 95th street car line, and we also want the extension of the Ashland avenue car line to 103d street," Mr. Ryan said.

Bank Workers Golf.

The officers and employés of the South Side Trust and Savings bank, 47th street and Cottage Grove avenue, held a golf tournament last Saturday at the Glen Eagles Country club. The bank was closed in celebration of Columbus day. W. O. Odburg, assistant cashier, was in charge of the program.

Chatham Club Invites Public to Meeting Today

Filmore Summerfield, violinist, Rose Roseman, pianist, and the Gleason dancers will give the programs at the open meeting of the Chatham Young People's club, this afternoon. Sol Libman and Ethel Gould are in charge of the affair to be held in the Grand Crossing gymnasium, 77th street and Ingleside avenue. Dancing will follow the program. Sol Glassman, president of the club, extends an invitation to both members and nonmembers.

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR WINTER SEASON

Many New Features on Schedule.

With the broadcast of the world series and the first big football games W-G-N opened what assuredly will be its most brilliant season in the station's history.

Henry Selinger, general manager and musical director of W-G-N, stated yesterday that the presentations planned for the coming season will be unrivaled in an American studio.

Gaston du Moulin, director of the W-G-N symphony orchestra, has made an extensive study of musical presentations for the radio and is ready with the best in orchestral music. He has learned to take full advantage of the tone perspective possibilities of the new W-G-N studios, assuring accurate and colorful reproduction at the receiver.

Goldkette Ready with Hits.

Jean Goldkette employs a staff of dirt, jazz conscious arrangers, which includes Victor Young, prominent orchestrator and violin virtuoso; Ken Davis and Bill Huxley of piano fame. They with Jean have scoured the 1930 musical shows appearing, or to appear in New York, in search of the hits of the coming season. They have already made a few choice selections, and are now at work on the orchestrations. The brass and saxophone sections have been reinforced.

Carleton Coon and Joe Sanders have returned to their winter quarters at the Blackhawk restaurant. Joe has a few new tunes appearing which promise to be, in the vernacular, wows.

Time on the air for Coon-Sanders Nighthawks has been increased in response to thousands of requests. The Saturday midnight show, the Knights of the Bath, has a new master of ceremonies, Bob Elson. The Knights of the Bath is one of the few "call up" request programs remaining in a city which used to be full of them.

Love Plans Choral Groups.

Ivit Lev vocal director of W-G-N and newly appointed acoustician, plans the organization of several new choral groups. Mr. Love is one of the most prominent singers of oratorio music in America and has had years of experience with radio work.

An innovation in the presentation of opera is expected to mature this season. Famous operas will be reduced to musical dramas, written in the continuity department of W-G-N, so that the story will be completely told independently of the acting and singing. As the famous arias are reached a competent group of chorusters and the finest soloists available will sing them.

In these operas Mark Love, as acoustician, will play a vital part. The duties of the acoustician are to balance the volume of independent parts of a program emanating from different

RADIO'S HISTORY TO BE SHOWN AT EXPOSITION

Story Is Dramatized for Visitors.

The story of radio's rise from the time the first wireless signals flashed across the Atlantic until today, when it is regarded as one of the master instruments of the ages will be dramatized before the eyes of visitors in the special $100,000 radio pageant of progress section of the Chicago radio show which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow.

The radio pageant is without parallel in its completeness, range of material, technical scope, and historic appeal. Nothing is missing—photoradio, television, high speed wireless, ship-to-shore broadcasting, railroad and airplane apparatus. There are models and miniatures of entire installations, complete in every detail—apartment houses, high powered trans-Atlantic stations with towers, aerials, transmitting and receiving buildings, all reproduced with the fidelity of the originals.

Pictorial History.

Accompanying each exhibit is a complete pictorial history of the subject, photographs taken of high spots in its development from the crude things of earlier days to present day technical excellence.

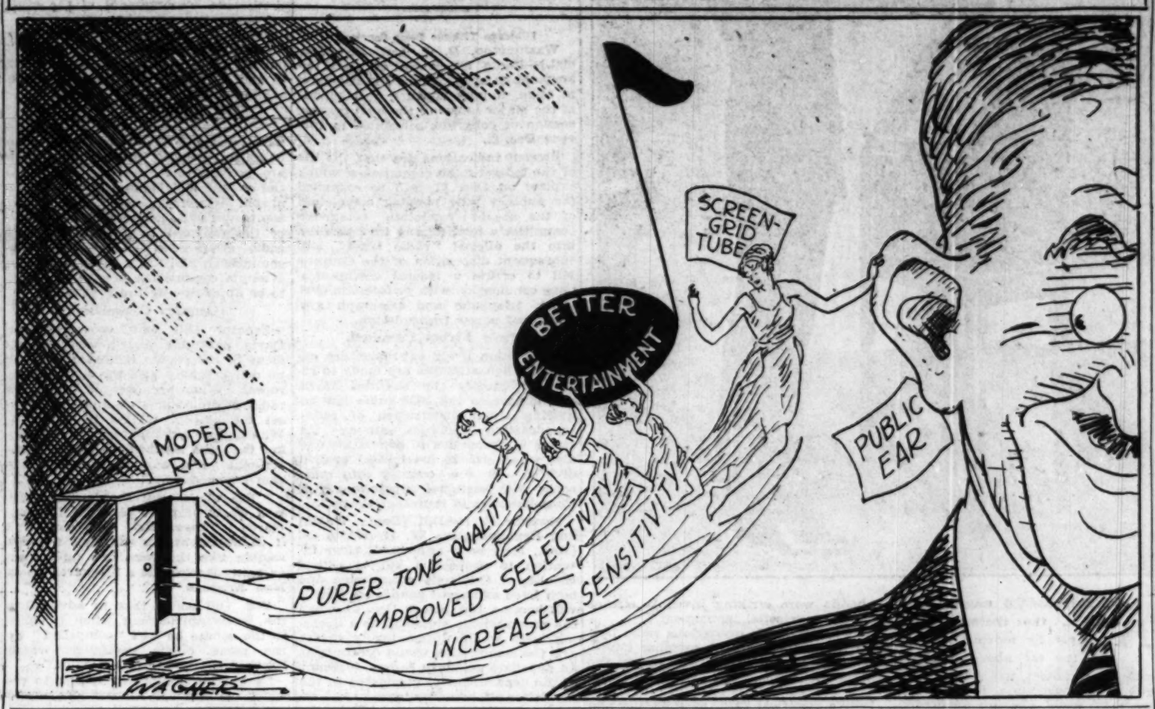
The exhibit has been many months in preparation and material has been gathered when necessary to round out one collection or another from England, France, Germany, and other foreign countries.

Marconi's First Equipment.

In the exhibit there is a Baden-Powell kite, associated in the minds of every one who knows radio with the carrying aloft of the aerial at St. John's, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12, 1901, when Marconi first succeeded in trapping a trans-Atlantic wireless signal. Also to be seen is an exact replica of the apparatus on which the famous inventor first heard the three dot signal, the letter "S," sent from Poldhu, England, while the Baden-Powell kite plunged about aloft. They were the three dots which changed a world.

Compared to modern radio apparatus the Marconi apparatus as exhibited at the Chicago radio show is so crude that it is sure to amaze spectators. Helped by no regeneration or amplifiers, and without even a thought of a loud speaker, Marconi heard England.

ACHIEVEMENT



MILLION DOLLAR DISPLAY, LAST WORD IN ART

Sets Are in Beautiful Cabinets.

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

With the finest display of radio creations ever brought together under one roof Chicago's eighth annual radio show—a million dollar exposition this year—opens tomorrow in the Coliseum. And until the doors close next Sunday night at 11 o'clock on the latest offerings of nearly 300 exhibitors, Chicago remains the capital of the ether-minded world.

Every inch of available space in the Coliseum, including the main building, mezzanine balconies, and north and south ballrooms will be occupied in presenting the latest in radio styles to crowds that will be record breaking, if early fall sales are a reliable index to the season's radio interest.

Show visitors will be impressed with the fact that the radio industry has suddenly grown up. It has hit a steady, measured stride hitherto unknown. Each of Chicago's previous expositions revealed products with revolutionary features unheard of at the preceding show. Last year saw a general introduction of the all electric receivers, the flowering of console or cabinet sets, and dynamic speakers.

The Screen Grid Tube.

This year brings a further perfection of these features and with them a definite and secure place in the radio sun for the screen grid tube.

The tube, it is claimed, has a capacity for increasing the circuit's sensitivity, sharpening tuning, producing added volume and enhancing the tonal quality. And tonal qualities, one learns, are what sell radios this year.

Few demand long distance tuning any more. All of the well known types will bring in plenty of fine programs. Fine cabinets—and they are finer than ever this year at somewhat reduced prices—help to sell the radio. They are likely to attract the eye, but

Illinois-Michigan Game on W-G-N Next Saturday

Next Saturday, W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the homecoming game at Champaign, where Illinois meets the Michigan eleven from Ann Arbor, with Quin Ryan at the michrophone. The week following the Illinois-Northwestern game at Evanston goes on the air.

AIR AND RADIO LAWS TO COME BEFORE PARLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—[U.P.]—In this picturesque city overlooking the great "Father of Waters" from the commanding Chickasaw bluffs the American Bar association will meet in its 152d annual national convention Oct. 23-26.

More than 5,000 members are expected to convene within a stone's throw of where Gen. Andrew Jackson opened his first law office here just 11 years after the bar association was organized in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1777.

Three principal topics for discussion are included on the program for the convention. They are aviation laws, revision of radio laws, and bar entrance requirements.

DAMROSCH TO START NEW CLASSES OVER W-G-N ON FRIDAY

Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, presents another of his series of radio classes in musical appreciation through W-G-N and a coast to coast network of stations connected with the National Broadcasting company, next Friday at 10 a. m.

These programs are part of a series of educational programs designed to be included in the musical curriculum of schools. Through them a complete symphony orchestra, augmented by the genius of Mr. Damrosch, can be brought to the classrooms of elementary schools, high schools and universities all over the country.

ADVERTISING ON RADIO NETWORKS DOUBLES IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Advertising over radio chains has nearly doubled during the last year, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of census of the department of commerce.

During the first seven months of 1928 advertisers spent $5,133,000 for facilities over the Columbia and N. B. C. chains. During the same seven months of 1929 they spent $9,974,000, representing an increase of over $4,500,000.

STATION S-E-X WILL BE NEXT.

Advance information coming from Los Angeles is that Clara Bow's next picture will be called "Station S-E-X." Is it radio or what?

CHICAGO RADIO SHOW TO OPEN DOORS TOMORROW

Million Dollar Display Is Last Word in Art.

the ear is the final arbiter. If the old set would give as fine a tone as the new ones many potential customers would not buy this year. Further improvement in speakers has helped radio in this major achievement of the year—the acquisition of the rich, clear voice of maturity.

The Radio Phonograph.

Of course, there are other features that will attract buyers. A remote control by which a set may be tuned from any part of the house, several devices for automatic tuning, including a visual tuning meter. Many of the new all electric sets are radio phonographs. This sort of set appears to have staged something of a comeback. If you are pleased with a certain radio selection you buy it for the phonograph and play it over; if it's a dull day for radio, you choose your own music.

With approximately 75 per cent of radios purchased, or at least chosen, by women, console cabinets and built-in speakers are more popular than ever. Women look at a radio not only as an instrument for producing music and entertainment but also as a piece of furniture. Hence manufacturers are striving for cabinets that will satisfy the most exacting tastes. In speaking of their latest designs they employ such phrases as "old English," "pilasters of diamond matched oriental walnut plywood," "Carpathian elm arched doors," "Gothic motif," "exterior of Jacobean beauty," and "Charles II. motif."

Set for Every Purse.

This year there appears to be a set for almost every pocket. A general tendency on the part of most manufacturers to get into the low priced field is manifesting. Here and there prices have been cut in half. With almost every offering one is sure to get much greater value per dollar than in any year since broadcasting began. Many console sets are priced from slightly more than $100 to $300, though one may spend considerably more.

In addition to the hundreds of receiving sets on exhibition visitors will find many late developments from radio laboratories and broadcast features to interest them. The RCA-Alexanderson system of television, though still in the laboratory stage, will be exhibited for the first time in Chicago and for the first time outside of New York City. A continuous demonstration of this new picture-radio will be under the direction of Austin Rahe of New York. Stars of the stage, screen, radio and distinguished persons in business and professional life will appear before the televisor, and arrangements have been made so that the spectators can see them in person and on the television screen at the same time.

W-G-N to Broadcast.

W-G-N and other powerful Chicago stations will broadcast programs from the huge Crystal studio in the Coliseum.

For the first time in the history of the Chicago radio show colorful broadcasts, originating here, will be put on the air by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia broadcasting system.

The new musical instrument, theremin, operated entirely by radio waves, will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago.

In the radio pageant of progress visitors may examine historic pieces of equipment used in the days of wireless infancy nearly thirty years ago.

Radio dealers who will come from all over the midcontinent region are looking forward to a banner year. A 50 per cent increase in business over the 1928-1929 season is predicted for them. Last year 2,000,000 sets were sold in the United States. If sales continue at the present pace it is estimated that 10,000,000 sets will be in use in the country by next June.

Chicago's radio show is sponsored by the Radio Manufacturers' association. G. Clayton Irwin Jr. is general manager of the show and U. J. Herrmann is managing director.

RADIO LEADERS WILL WELCOME GUESTS TO SHOW

For the first time during the eight years of radio shows in Chicago there is to be a reception committee at the forthcoming Chicago exhibit. It consists of seven of the leaders in the industry. Not only will they welcome distinguished guests but they will be on the alert constantly to see that the visitors' stay is made pleasant from the moment they enter the door. The committee consists of:

H. B. Richmond, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, Cambridge, Mass.; T. K. Webster, treasurer, and Henry Forster, vice president, of Chicago; Maj. Herbert H. Frost, director and former R. M. A. president, New York City; Capt. William Sparks, Jackson, Mich., vice president; Morris Metcalf, Springfield, Mass., vice president; and C. C. Colby, Boston, Mass., director and former R. M. A. president.

RADIO SET OF FUTURE WILL BE HEARD, NOT SEEN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Remote tuning and volume control are expected to constitute the next era of broadcast development.

Experts predict the radio wired home, with the receiving set or sets located in basement or attic and controlled from loud speaker outlets in various parts of the house by means of remote tuning and volume controls.

Two or more receiving sets will provide a multiplicity of simultaneous programs.

Just as the ornate parlor stove of a past generation disappeared into the basement and made way for radiators and registers in piping heat to all parts of the house, so must the radio set eventually be heard but not seen in all parts of the home, it is said.

MYSTERIOUS MUSIC

Theremin has no keyboard, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids for manipulation, and there is nothing but atmosphere between the player and the instrument itself.

One hand controls the tone and the other the volume, the position of each hand in relation to the theremin determining the tones produced. As described by Hubert S. Conover, 'cellist of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, one of the few attending a private demonstration of the theremin, "Music is produced as though the hands were striking invisible strings of some celestial instrument."

Of course, it's mysterious radio that is responsible for the seeming impossibility that takes place before the eyes and ears of the observer. When the human hand is brought into a sensitive electrical field, surrounding one of the slender rods protuding from the theremin, the field is so affected that audio frequency notes, or sound, are produced, louder or softer as the position of the hand is changed. These are amplified and passed through a loud speaker. The position of the other hand with reference to a second rod or antenna determines the volume, in gradations down to the faintest whisper.

Theremin is the invention of a young Russian scientist, Prof. Leon Theremin.

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR RECORD SEASON

Many New Features on Schedule.

studios. In order to do this, Mr. Love will cooperate with the engineering department, controling the volume of each microphone in use as he listens to the result in a loud speaker before him.

In a more popular vein the vocal department of W-G-N offers the Rondoliers. They are a well trained male quartet glorifying the old fashioned idea of harmony.

The new season will fully demonstrate the possibilities of W-G-N's capable staff of pianists. Herbert Johnson, a familiar figure on the American concert stage, appears not only with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra but as soloist.

Leon Denditsky, pianist with the Tonecasters, has begun a series of Wednesday afternoon recitals.

Barry and Kottler.

Mischa Kottler and Edward Barry are two prominent Chicago pianists. Kottler has recently been engaged by Jean Goldkette for performance with dance orchestra, taken directly from the concert stage. Edward Barry, Sunday soloist for the last three years at W-G-N, has, during those years, conducted a most extensive and successful course of radio piano lessons annually. Bary is also an important member of W-G-N's program department.

Chamber music such as heard during the Musical Melange was the nucleus for a great organization of ensembles. Since the early days of radio the Drake concert ensemble and the Blackstone string quintet have been outstanding as string ensembles on the air. However, these ensembles have been merely remote control subjects for broadcast.

Studio ensembles of woodwind, brass and string will appear almost nightly during the 1930 season at W-G-N. Novel combinations, of flute, oboe, and clarinet will be regularly announced.

The Tonecasters are a string trio now heard daily during the morning and afternoon programs. Armond Bieseret, violinist, directs Leon Benditsky and Leon Lichtenfeld, who play cello and piano with the trio.

W-G-N Players Ready.

Harry W. Spingold announces an extensive repertoire for the W-G-N Players for the coming season. He and Jean Conover, playwright, have selected a large number of classics to be reconstructed for radio presentation. As soon as the present series of dramatizations of Prohibition Killings is completed, the season will be open.

Among the new items of studio equipment to augment the presentation of programs are four new pianos. The studios have been completed. Attempts made to perfect a system of reproducing sound perspective have been astoundingly successful.

Among the finest of the long list of new features at W-G-N is to be a program known as "Chicagoland." It will begin next Sunday. In the preparation of this program, Edward Barry of the program and continuity department, coöperates with Alfred G. Wathall, eminent composer and member of the arranging staff of W-G-N. Mr. Barry has made extensive studies of Chicago's history in preparation of the announcements. Mr. Wathall has arranged a number of reminiscent melodies and has made several actual compositions for the programs.

Sports events, Christmas services, prize fights, the most brilliant of the operatic and concert stars, and a host of other broadcasts will make W-G-N's season exceptionally brilliant.

RADIO QUEEN

LELA M. OSBORN.

A daughter of the Kansas prairies, born in a village of fewer than 100 people, whose pioneer ancestors helped carry civilization into the western plains, will be crowned "radio queen of America" Monday evening at the opening of the Chicago Radio show. She is Lela M. Osborn of Wichita, Kas., and in view of thousands of show visitors she will receive the loving cup which is emblematic of her newly won title. Miss Osborn's essay on the subject "What My Radio Set Means to Me" was awarded first prize by the judges in the annual essay contest conducted by the management of the Chicago Radio show.

She was born twenty-three years ago in the little town of Healy, Kas., where her parents moved from Mason City, Ill. During the war, when she was still in her early teens, the scarcity of men on her father's farm thrust a man's responsibilities on her shoulders. During that time she helped her father in the fields and drove a tractor just as well as the man she replaced.

Her love for music was undoubtedly inherited from her mother, who encouraged her in her early efforts and with whom she sang in the church choir in Healy and later in St. Paul's Methodist church in Wichita. With the advent of radio broadcasting Miss Osborn conceived the ambition of winning fame as a radio artist and by dint of ardent effort was given a chance to sing in several programs over KFH in Wichita.

Miss Osborn's title was won in competition with thousands of other women and girls all over the country who submitted essays in the contest.

Carrier Pigeon Dropped for Radio by U. S. Navy

All carrier pigeon activities of the United States Navy were abolished on Oct. 1 and the navy began sending all its messages by radio, it was announced recently by the navy department. Four hundred birds will be kept at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, and the naval station at Guam, but will not be used in regular message service. The Anacostia, D. C., naval air station lofts now have the greatest number of prize winning birds. "Jolly Tar," the station's star pigeon, won both the 500 mile and the 600 mile race. The station has furnished eight winners this year.

SHAW ASKS 4 BILLIONS.

George Bernard Shaw, noted British dramatist, when asked recently by a radio director to state the sum for which he would write a drama for radio use, cabled a reply: "Four billion dollars might be sufficient, but that is not a contract."

RADIO WILL BE MAJOR ISSUE IN NEXT CONGRESS

Investigation of "Trust" to Be Completed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Radio legislation of vital importance to broadcasters and listeners-in alike, it now appears, will be one of the major issues of the next regular session of congress, scheduled to convene Dec. 2.

Present indications are that the life of the federal radio commission, which expires on Dec. 31, will be extended for another year pending completion of the senate interstate commerce committee's forthcoming investigation into the alleged "radio trust" and subsequent disposition of the Couzens bill to create a federal communications commission with jurisdiction over radio, telephone and telegraph systems, and power transmission.

Lively Fights Promised.

In addition lively squabbles are expected when attempts are made to repeal or modify the so-called Davis amendment to the 1927 radio law requiring equal distribution of radio broadcasting facilities among the states in proportion to population and also when attacks are leveled against division of the country into radio zones with sectional appointments of commissioners to represent them.

Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] and Representative W. H. White Jr. [Rep., Me.] have announced their intention to sponsor a bill to extend the life of the radio commission and both have expressed confidence that it will become law before Dec. 31 when the commission's authority as a licensing body would automatically expire and the commission would continue as an appellate group to review decisions of the department of commerce in the regulation of broadcasting.

Passage of the Couzens bill in the next session is generally conceded to be an impossibility in view of the senate committee's plan to investigate the alleged interlocking of radio, telegraph, telephone, cable and power companies as a basis for consideration of the proposal to abolish both the radio commission and water power commission and unify their powers in a single commission of five members to be appointed by the President.

"Hampers Commission."

Senator Dill who sponsored the Davis equitable distribution amendment in the senate indicated recently he will probably lead the fight for its repeal. When he appeared before the radio commission as voluntary counsel for station KWSC of Pullman, Wash., the senator asserted his belief that the amendment is unconstitutional "and hampers the commission tremendously."

"The whole cleared channel matter is a waste of radio facilities," he declared. "Personally, I do not think it constitutional to say that a great section like the west can have only as many stations as a little area up in New England."

Sen. Dill added that in advocating the Davis amendment when it came to the senate he was "compelled" by the same public sentiment which "forced the senate to accept it."

"I see no reason any longer to restrict the selection of members of the commission to any particular group of states," said Rep. White, discussing the proposal to abolish the limitation on the President in the appointment of radio commission members.

Problem of Geographic Needs.

"The problem of geographical needs with respect to radio has been met," he continued, "and there is no need of geographic distribution of members. A removal of restrictions will tend toward selection of the best available men for such a body."

Still another row centering in proposals to repeal the anti-monopoly provisions of the 1927 radio law is in prospect with the standing committee on radio law of the American Bar association and B. M. Webster, general counsel of the radio commission, on one side and Radio Protective association, a group of independent manufacturers, on the other.

The bar association committee and Mr. Webster are agreed that the provisions are unnecessary and the committee, which also denounced the Davis amendment, went so far in a recent report as to suggest that consolidation of wire and radio communication facilities should be permitted in order that American communication systems may keep pace with the British.

RADIO EXPERTS WILL LET SHOW VISITORS LISTEN TO RADIUM

All sorts of strange things happen in the great research laboratories of the country where men of science toil to discover more of the secrets of nature.

One of the impossibles, even to the research men, has now become the possible. It is the ability to hear the voice of radium. The ingenious device by which the feat is accomplished will be exhibited at the Chicago radio show and visitors may actually hear the continuous bombardment of the radium projectiles.

For many years science has been able to witness radium as it "talks," but the ability to hear the voice itself is one of the most recent scientific achievements.

COMMERCIAL USE OF TELEVISION BIGGEST BARRIER

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the commerce year book for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting upon the television circuit outdoor scenes was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

NAVY GIVES BREMEN AID.

The United States naval radio station in New York handles communications and weather reports for the mail plane catapulted from the S. S. Bremen. Two way communication was established recently on 500 kilocycles nine minutes after the plane took to the air at a distance of approximately 200 miles.

MAN MADE STATIC CAN BE QUELLED, 200 EXPERTS FIND

Correction of Troubles Usually Simple.

Have you a little static in your home? If so, don't worry too much, because the best engineering minds of the radio and electrical industries are combined to help you get rid of it!

Elimination of unnecessary noises that mar good radio reception has become a serious problem, not only for radio set owners and broadcasting stations, but also for manufacturers of radio receivers.

The problem became particularly acute for the radio manufacturing industry when the public at large blamed the set for giving audibility to all sorts of noises that had no connection whatever with entertainment.

The set itself, of course, is not responsible, and it is to inform set owners that many of these noises can be eliminated that the Radio Manufacturers' association published a book on radio interferences — "Home-Made Static and How to Avoid It."

There are two major types of interference, the book relates—natural and "man-made." Natural static, caused by lightning and other atmospheric disturbances, cannot be eliminated, although it can be reduced.

Static Can Be Reduced.

"Man-made static," however, being caused by man, can be eliminated by man. It usually comes from faulty electrical appliances located in or near the home that contains the noisy radio set.

To aid harassed set owners in finding and eradicating interference, the association enlisted the aid of more than 200 leading radio and electrical engineers. Under the supervision of H. B. Richmond these engineers reported their fullest knowledge and latest information as to the causes of static and the procedure necessary to find and eradicate them. The result of their reports, in condensed form, is given here:

The actual correction of the condition causing the interference is usually a simple matter. The most important step in eliminating or reducing interference is to trace it to a definite point or device.

The means for accomplishing this are not always within the province of the radio set owner and the course must be pursued as follows:

1. If your radio set is of the type which uses an antenna system (aerial and ground) the wire connecting to aerial and the wire connecting to ground should be removed from their respective binding posts and a small piece of wire substituted. Connect this wire directly across the aerial and ground posts.

Such procedure then leaves the radio set effectively without an antenna system, which is the collector of energy for the set. The result is that any interference which is being picked up outside the radio set itself is reduced or eliminated when the collector system is removed.

If the case is such that the interference is reduced or eliminated you may decide immediately that it is from an outside cause and not due to your radio set.

I. If, however, the interference continues with equal volume, a careful analysis of the radio set should be made. [Any reputable radio service organization will make this examination for a reasonable fee].

Consult Power Company.

2. When it is decided that the noise is due to outside causes and your local radio service organization has carefully checked the source, if it is found due to electric light or transmission wires, you should call the local power company and ask for assistance in reducing or eliminating the interference.

3. When satisfied that the interference is not due to electric light or transmission lines, and the set itself is free from internal noises, proceed carefully to check all lights, sockets, switches and electrical appliances in the house.

Experience teaches that common sense and careful elimination of each probable interference producer will bring very satisfactory results.

Once the faulty equipment is located, the remedy is usually to connect a filter condenser of small capacity across the leads of the offending appliance. In 99 cases out of 100 this is found to be an effective solution.

ADIO AS CRIME ETERRENT IS HOWN BY TESTS

hicago Police Soon Will Have Own Station.

dio as a crime deterrent by rea- of its aid to the police in expe- the speedy apprehension of minals, was emphasized recently by . Zucker, Chicago radio manufac- r. He cited the fact that the ts of Chicago, Detroit and other r cities have resorted successful- to the use of the wireless communi- n in combating the activities of ng men, burglars and perpetua- s of other major crimes.

r. Zucker, who has made an ex- sive study of the commercial and ial potentialities of radio, said that n the Chicago police had been erimenting with radio, there were t only fewer crimes reported, but greater number of arrests made in se where crimes were committed. r. Zucker praised Police Commis- ner William F. Russell of the Chi- o police department for his initia- e in employing radio as an adjunct his detective force. He predicted t the time was near at hand when e police of each metropolitan area uld have its own broadcasting sta- n in order to more efficiently fight me.

Speedy Apprehension.

"The best way of fighting crime d discouraging the tendencies of se about to launch upon a criminal reer, is to make an example of se who commit crimes," said Mr. cker. "This can only be accom- shed by certain and swift punish- nt.

"The first step toward the punish- nt of a person who has committed crime is the speedy apprehension f the guilty one and radio has given isfactory evidence of its value in is regard.

"Radio has played more or less of dramatic part in overtaking crimi- s on ships at sea while fleeing to refuge in a foreign land. How- er, it is only since the police author- es of some of our larger cities have roduced the radio in its daily fight ainst criminals that the real possibili- s of its use in this connection have en realized.

"Commissioner Russell of the Chi- go police department was one of s first to appreciate the value of dio as an adjunct to his crime fight- g forces. His judgment has already en confirmed by reduction in the mber of crimes reported and by n increase in the number of arrests r crimes committed.

High Powered Autos.

Commissioner Russell realized that e speed of the high powered motor r and its employment by hold up en had increased the number of eir crimes and at the same time ened the ability of the police to p with them. He introduced high powered squad cars into his depart- nt and even with this innovation und that his forces were handi- pped. When crimes were being mmitted his fleet of squad cars ere cruising the city and because of e department's lack of a means of mediate communication with them ere unable to advise them promptly on receipt of crime reports.

"All police squad cars which pat- l the street of Chicago were dio equipped. THE CHICAGO TRIB- NE, operating radio station, W-G-N, rked in conjunction with police adquarters and made it possible for lice commanders to be within in- ant communication reach of all uad cars. "As soon as a report of a robbery or any other major crime as received, police headquarters im- diately relayed it over a special ves to the broadcasting station which n turn sent out warnings over the r to the members of squad cars ruising the street. All available de- ils such as the description of those ested in connection with the crime ere disseminated in this manner."

The system was so successful that e police department applied for a ort wave license and soon is to have s own broadcasting station. It will erate on a frequency not heard on ordinary receiving sets.

SURVEY REVEALS FIFTH OF RADIO SETS ON FARMS

With farm families owning more an one-fifth of all the receiving sets in use in the United States, radio has come one of the most important modern factors in stemming mass de- ction of the nation's farms by the younger generation, it is disclosed in a survey recently made public here.

"Farmers constitute the largest single group of radio families in the United States, with 20.10 per cent own- ing receiving sets," declares Richard C. Bailey, whose company conducted the survey.

"Radio on the farm had added the essential dash of zest to rural life that made to keep the young folks down on the farm amused as well as cog- nizant of happenings in all parts of the world.

"The middle west is slightly behind New England and the mid-Atlantic states as far as the ratio of radio sets to families is concerned. Our survey showed that 42.85 per cent of the fam- ilies in New England and 43.75 per cent of the families in the mid-Atlantic states have receivers, while but 38.96 per cent of the families in the mid- western states east of Mississippi and 33.31 per cent of the families of the southwestern states west of the Missis- sippi have sets."

The per cent of families by population owning radio receivers, Mr. Smiley de- clares, is as follows: Large cities, 43.31 per cent; smaller cities, 41.17 per cent; rural towns, 31.78 per cent, and farms, 28.81 per cent. Of the esti- mated 30,500,000 homes in the United States having radio receivers only about 2,000,000 have electric light power operated sets, he declared.

GREAT SALES INCREASE.

Members of the Radio Manufactur- ers' association are reported last year to have sold $585,000,000 worth of radio products, compared with only $60,000,000 in 1923. One concern this year expects to do $110,000,000 worth of business.

TELEVISION'S FIRST SHOWING HERE

Television will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago at the radio show. Stars of the stage, screen and radio, as well as distinguished figures in the business world, will appear before the televisor. R. D. Kell, assistant to Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, the inventor of the system to be exhibited, is pictured demonstrating television above.

TRIBUNE WRITERS TO TALK DURING WOMEN'S HOUR

Style Show Feature of Exposition.

Women of Chicago and the middle west will not be slighted at the radio show. According to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the show, an hour's program, will be presented at the exposition every day except Sunday, devoted entirely to the things dear to women.

Appearing every afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock will be women famous for their expert knowledge of women's problems and interests. The program will be widely varied from day to day, and will range in nature from a lecture on the care of babies with live babies in charge of nurses present, by Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, chairman of the medical committee of the Illinois Masonic hospital, to a discussion of the intimate affairs of the heart.

Tribune Writers to Speak.

The program has been carefully arranged to contain something of value for all women and will present among others Sally Joy Brown and Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The management has secured a feature of unusual interest for the afternoon of the opening day of the exhibit when a forty-five minute style show will be presented in which a wide selection of woman's apparel will be shown on living models. This feature of the program will be repeated on the afternoon of Wednesday when a second style show will be held in which a complete exhibit of sport clothes and clothes for street wear with all accessories will be given.

To Talk About Poor.

Feature writers on Chicago metropolitan newspapers will have important parts in the program, speaking on subjects in which they have been especially interested in writing for their readers.

Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will give a talk Friday afternoon on table decorations, which will be supplemented by an actual demonstration of the arrangement of tables for various occasions, using china and crystal from Tatman's and linen from Marshall Field & Co. On Tuesday afternoon Sally Joy Brown, also of THE TRIBUNE, will tell of her experiences with Chicago's poor and needy in connection with the philanthropic work carried on by her paper.

SURVEY REVEALS BIG GROWTH OF RADIO RESEARCH

A recent survey of the leading radio manufacturing establishments reveals the growing importance of radio research. No longer is the radio industry content to have the designs set by one or two leaders, with the rest following suit. Rather, while the main principles may be set by one or two leaders, the various radio manufacturers are keen to work out their own individual ideas, with the result that there is sufficient competition in radio design to keep the industry forging ahead.

"This year's radio sets," states J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute, "display a delightful variety of ideas and designs, indicating the widespread growth of radio research."

Federal Radio Board Faces Heavy Schedule

A heavy schedule of hearings this fall and early winter faces the federal radio commission. More than 400 cases have been docketed to be heard before Dec. 31, when the present term will expire. About one-half are applications for new stations. Most of the remainder are petitions for kilocycle changes and increase in power. There now are 609 broadcasting changes. When the commission was created there were 732.

NAVY GIVES BREMEN AID.

The United States naval radio station in New York handles communications and weather reports for the mail plane catapulted from the S. S. Bremen. Two way communication was established recently on 500 kilocycles nine minutes after the plane took to the air at a distance of approximately 200 miles.

SALLY JOY BROWN.

CHICAGO OPERA TO GO ON AIR 13 NIGHTS THIS YEAR

Thirteen of the most famous operas from the pens of master composers as interpreted by the star artists of the famous Chicago Civic Opera company during its 1929-'30 season will be made available to listeners throughout the United States, it saw revealed in plans announced for their broadcast by the National Broadcasting company. The series will open Saturday night, Nov. 9.

What is said by engineers to be the most elaborate and complete radio "pick-up" in the United States is being installed in Chicago's new $20,000,000 opera to be used in making this series of broadcasts as mechanically perfect as engineers can devise.

More than $18,000 will be spent on the equipment. It will include twelve of the latest type condenser microphones and complete amplifying and control equipment in duplicate to insure the listener the most faithful reproduction of every tonal variation without interruption while he sits in his own home.

RADIO DIRECTS PLANE 15 MILES, BACK TO EARTH

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — Radio again proved its practicability in facilitating aerial navigation in foggy weather, the greatest hazard to aviation, when Lieut. James H. Doolittle took off from Mitchel field recently, blinded in a closed cockpit, flew a course of fifteen miles and landed within fifteen feet of his starting point, solely by means of instruments.

The tests were the culmination of a series of experiments being conducted under the direction of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for Aeronautics by Lieut. Doolittle, Lieut. Benjamin Kelsey, and Prof. William Brown of Massachusetts Institute of Tchnology. The tests have been in progress for the last three months, and last week's experiments were the first practical demonstration of blind flying.

While other sensitive aeronautical instruments played an important part in the experiments, the radio apparatus portrayed the leading rôle. As a result of the work of Prof. Brown, a new type of radio beacon was developed for the experiments, which, while only having a range of approximately twenty miles, is considerably more sensitive than the usual type now employed on the major air mail and transport routes.

When Lieut. Doolittle took off from Mitchel field he was inclosed in a hooded cockpit of a small biplane. As a precaution, Lieut. Kelsey flew at the front controls, but did not touch the instruments during the entire flight. As the plane took off, the pilot, blinded, flew directly into the wind, for a course of about five miles, following the direction of the radio beacon.

On the instrument board, a vibrating reed indicator told him how nearly he was following the course. As he veered to one side, one of the reeds vibrated more profusely than the other, and he steered until both were vibrating in synchronism.

At a point about five miles from the takeoff, Lieut. Doolittle turned about and returned over the field. As he drew closer the reeds oscillated with greater magnitude, and at the point the reeds stopped vibrating for an instant, indicating he was directly over the transmitter. Lieut. Doolittle then snapped a sensitive stop watch, in order to calculate distance, flew to a point about two miles beyond the field, reversed, and leveled off for a safe landing. A beacon marker indicated when he was over the edge of the field.

Both radio and aviation experts were well pleased with the success of the experiments.

SONG AND MOVIE MERGERS INVOLVE RADIO COPYRIGHT

May Break Down Music Royalty Barrier.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — [Special Correspondence.]—The latest twist in the complicated radio-movie-song publishers situation is the effect which the merging of several song publishers with companies which also operate broadcasting chains may have ultimately on the payment of royalty for popular copyrighted music by the broadcasters to the American Society of Composers.

With the announced merging of the Paramount and Warner Bros. interests, Paramount now controls the Harms group, formerly contracted to Warner Bros. And Paramount is interested in the Columbia Broadcasting system through a recent buy-in.

National Broadcasting company's song publishers' hookup is through the consolidation of Feist's and Carl Fischer, Inc., with Radio-Keith-Orpheum, both subsidiary holdings of the Radio Corporation of America. It seems the parent companies, namely, RCA and Paramount, are interested in affiliations with the song publishers primarily for movie productions, but at the same time one cannot overlook the fact that these parent companies are building up a counter weapon which might be used to break down the music royalty barrier, to which the broadcasters have been so much opposed.

Copyright Fight Bitter.

The fight between the American Society of Composers and the broadcasting stations has been a long and bitter one, with the society holding the upper hand until the present.

The broadcasters have recognized the right of the copyright owners to compensation for the music which they use and have expressed themselves as being willing to meet a standard schedule of rates. However, up to this time the society has not arranged such a schedule and is charging each broadcaster as it sees fit. The recent resignation of E. C. Mills to become the head of one of these music publishing companies concerned will not in any way, it is said, affect the policy of the American Society of Composers in its dealings with broadcasters.

May Freeze Out Society.

One commentator went so far as to say it is entirely possible that the big broadcasters, as a result of the recent mergers, will find themselves in a position to freeze out the American society by using only the music controlled by the holding companies, in addition to the classical selections for which the broadcasters have never had to pay for a large portion. Whether R. C. A. and Paramount interests would find it worth while to resort to this method of breaking up the present licensing arrangement is highly debatable.

It is the contention of those who see this loophole that, once the broadcasters broke away, the society would be forced to settle the long controversy by adopting a standard schedule of rates. Once the broadcasters decided to play their own music, to the exclusion of all other, it would place the society in a weak position when it came to the renewal of contracts. Naturally, the publishers would rush to the broadcasters with their contracts rather than to the society, if the latter was not able to have their numbers plugged over the air.

All Is Conjecture.

All this is nothing more than conjecture, since the broadcasters decline to discuss any aspects of the situation. However, this is the first loophole which has been found through which the broadcasters may escape what they term exorbitant royalties.

The Composers' society and the Universal Broadcasting company in Philadelphia are just now engaged in a controversy which may have some bearing on the final settlement of this question. The broadcasting station has refused to renew its license with the society because the latter tried to increase the rate and has filed a suit against the society, in the meantime continuing to use all music without the required license. The society has announced that, following the granting of an injunction to the Universal Broadcasting company, it will carry the fight to the Supreme court of Pennsylvania.

Fight Has Bearing.

The brief filed by the composers recently in answer to the charge by U. B. C. that the license fees for use of copyright music were exorbitant and were still going up, states that 'each of the proprietors of these copyrights is entitled to enjoy a legally protected monopoly." That is what a copyright or a patent right is.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

THERE are some famously identified radio hours that go along much the same year after year. And we have often wondered whether these programs are famous because they have certain famous announcers, or whether these announcers are famous because they were assigned to announce these programs. To us it is like our boyhood curiosity about the old Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore drive. We could never figure out whether it was pointed out to hundreds of thousands of visitors to the city because it was a famous old mansion or whether it was a famous mansion because it had been pointed out to so many people.

OF ALL the thousands of songs that are published annually, and broadcast by the radio, only thirty-two on an average become popular to earn big money for their sponsors.

SOME DAY our national ceremonies and sports events will be staged at hours of the day which will fit the needs of the broadcasters. Of course, the radio audience pays nothing for its privilege, in contrast to the spectators who have paid admission fees to be present, as at a world series game; but in cases where it will cause no inconvenience to the people actually present, the time schedule should be arranged so that the maximum radio audience may lend their ears to it.

A great consideration for the radio audience was shown by the presiding judge when we were broadcasting the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] from the hills of Tennessee in the summer of 1925. He would courteously wait in his chambers every morning until our engineers would assure us that the long lines over the mountains and all the other apparatus were hooked up and ready for the show to open. He knew, of course, of the hundreds of thousands of listeners who were expecting to be in on the first rap of the gavel and he would delay the convening of court out of deference to them.

DURING the Democratic convention at Houston last year the smart committeemen arranged to hold their whoopie sessions—when the keynote and the nominating speeches would be made—during the evening, when the uncountable mass of radio listeners could be in attendance. Sessions conducted during the daytime could not catch a fraction of the listeners who would cup their ears to the radio horn in the evening; and the larger the radio audience was, the greater would be the prospective votes the orators were striving to win.

World series baseball games are something else again. Last week a contributor to "The Voice of the People" on the editorial page advanced the suggestion that the broadcast of each afternoon's game be recorded on phonograph disks and then put out over the air again in the evening, for the benefit of the masses whose occupations do not permit them to steal any time off in the afternoon for radio listening.

As a coincidence, the radio audience has received quite a break in the matter of the championship fights. Since radio broadcasting came along to high popular favor in the last decade, all of the heavyweight title bouts have happened to be held at night, after working hours. Do you recall the great fights of fifteen or so years ago were held in the afternoon—Johnson and Jeffries at Reno, Johnson and Willard at Havana, Dempsey and Willard at Toledo, and Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby, Mont.

Next year, we hope, the world series can be held early enough to avoid interference with the regular football season. Last Saturday, at Madison, we were forced to stand by until the middle of the second quarter of the Wisconsin and Northwestern game for the end of the baseball game in Philly, while the football fans were phoning wildly and begging for the promised broadcast of the gridiron contest. A newspaper can cover every field of news, but a radio station, unfortunately, can cover only one thing at a time.

The advertisers on the chains have the same difficulty with the four hour difference in time across the United States. An hour long program, going on in New York City at eight in the evening, which is an excellent radio hour, reaches the Pacific coast audience at five, when the number of listeners is only a fraction of the eight o'clock audience. A program, to cover the country most completely, should go on the air over one of the chains at ten o'clock in New York, which would make it nine o'clock central time, eight o'clock Rocky mountain time, and seven on the Pacific coast.

A SPORTS announcer is ever open to suspicion of being partial or prejudiced in his reports, particularly if he praises a visiting team in any way. Radio listeners, some of them, are always scenting for evidence, of a partial tone in the announcer's voice. Candidly, we cannot remember ever being consciously partial toward either or any of the contestants in a football or baseball game or a prize fight or horse race, but we do appreciate good play and snappy action and we try to interpret it and give credit where credit is due.

Ever since we hooked rides to the old parks on the west and south sides, we have been whooping supporters of the Chicago Cub team and the Chicago White Sox. Nevertheless, fifteen minutes before the opening of the first game of the world series here last week, we gave it as our firm opinion that the Athletics would win four out of five. Needless to say, the boys about us gave us the razz and a few listeners wrote to accuse us of disloyalty. We quote from one, from Milwaukee: "I had always thought you a good thoroughbred Irishman until today, before the opening game, when you predicted that the A's would win four out of the first five games. Where is all that loyalty you paraded so strong all summer? Where is all that confidence that fairly oozed from you?"

Listeners are funny. They make the announcer timid about remarking that any player is shining in certain kinds of play or that one team is showing superiority in certain fields. O, well!

HERE'S TO the new radio season!

TERRELL TELLS OF PROGRESS IN RADIO BROADCAST

U. S. Chief Traces 15 Years' Growth.

BY WILLIAM D. TERRELL.
(Chief of the Radio Division, Department of Commerce.)

As early as 1914 phonograph records of music were broadcast from a radio station in New York City. The purpose of transmitting music was to test different types of hydrogen arc radiotelephone transmitters. It was much easier to use phonograph records than it was for the experimenter to talk or sing into the microphone for long periods of time during a test, and the phonograph record provided the most efficient and easily obtained method of modulation.

At that time no one had any idea of the future possibilities of broadcasting entertainment. The few receiving sets in use on land were owned by government departments, commercial radio companies and amateurs. It was not until the fall of 1921 that the possibilities of radio broadcasting were fully realized which resulted in a demand for radio broadcasting station licenses. The first of these licenses was issued to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Wave Lengths Set.

The first problem to be solved was to find a suitable wave length, or frequency, for the purpose. Ships were using 300, 450 and 600 meters, but as the 300 meter wave length was rarely used it was decided to put the broadcasting service on 360 meters to avoid interference with ship communication. A little later 485 meters was designated as the wave length upon which agricultural information and marketing reports would be broadcast.

If a station varied its frequency as much as ten kilocycles in those days no one was seriously inconvenienced, as the receiving sets were not very selective and wide variations reduced the heterodyne whistle which comes from the simultaneous operation of stations on or about the same frequency.

In March, 1923 the second national radio conference was called by Mr. Hoover, secretary of commerce. At this conference it was recommended that more channels be given to radio broadcasting and that ship stations be shifted to other positions. This resulted in the adoption of the present system of 10 kilocycle separation between broadcasting stations. After this it became necessary for transmitting stations to give greater care to maintaining their frequencies and our radio manufacturers to give more attention to selectivity in building radio receiving sets.

Frequency Stability Sought.

From that date until 1927 efforts were being directed toward improving frequency stability, which finally resulted in a great many stations adopting the method of crystal control.

During this period the radio division of the department of commerce was developing means for checking the frequency of stations from the offices of the supervisors of radio instead of measuring the wave lengths by the use of wavemeters taken to the stations, as had been the custom for many years.

In 1927 congress provided a special appropriation for the purpose of purchasing more precise monitoring or frequency checking apparatus for use by the radio division, but as there was no apparatus suitable for this purpose on the market it was necessary to have specially designed apparatus manufactured so that measurements could be made showing variations of a few cycles rather than a few hundred cycles, which was the limit of precision of some of the apparatus in use at that time. This new apparatus is now being delivered and installed.

There are ten sets to be in the offices of the supervisors of radio distributed as follows: Boston, New York, Baltimore, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Detroit, Chicago and St. Paul. Six portable sets are to be used on test cars assigned to Baltimore, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Detroit and Kansas City. It is planned to have additional installations at Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Hawaii and Alaska and on two additional test cars to be assigned to Seattle and Boston.

Checks Station Accuracy.

The most important unit of this monitoring system is to be an installation about six miles from Grand Island, Neb., where a fifty acre site of land has been procured and contract has been awarded for the erection of a building to be used exclusively for this purpose.

This station is to be known as the constant frequency monitoring station and will serve as a check on the accuracy of all of the other stations, while its accuracy will be based upon the national standard at the bureau of standards.

From this station it is expected that frequencies of all of the principal stations in the United States and the principal stations of other countries can be checked.

The measuring apparatus to be installed at this station will be of such design that it will be capable of making measurements of an accuracy of one part in one million. Three types of receivers are to be installed at this station, two of which cover the frequencies from 100 to 30,000 kilocycles and the third covers from 10 to 100 kilocycles, using both loops and antenna and having extreme selectivity and sensitivity. The arrangement of the receivers permits simultaneous use at all times. Each receiver is to be in a shielded booth.

Special Antenna System.

All power supplies, although generated on the premises, are to be filtered and shielded. The standards and receivers will be operated entirely from storage batteries, all provided in duplicate and charged by means of small motor generators through a suitable distribution system connected to the main power plant. A special antenna system, in conformity with the latest developments in this line, is to be erected.

The station is to be built around a room having 2,000 square feet of floor space, in which will be installed all of the standard equipment and receivers. In addition to this large room there will be rooms which can be used for dormitories, kitchen, workshop, office, storage batteries, motor generators and switchboards. An adjacent building will provide garage space and power plant. Every effort is being made to have the station complete in itself so that twenty-four hours a day service will be insured throughout the year.

Official Record Kept.

An official record of the monitoring work, or frequency checking, has been maintained during the last year. This record shows the advantage of carrying on work of this character. During the earlier measurements many stations varied as much as from five kilocycles to forty-eight kilocycles. Today few of them vary more than 500 cycles, and a great many of them are maintaining their frequencies within 100 cycles. During a period of seven and one-half months 23,450 measurements of broadcasting stations were made. When the new equipment is in operation the checking will not be limited to broadcasting stations, but will include stations above and below the broadcasting band and a force of men will be assigned to this work exclusively.

While the measuring of frequencies of the broadcasting stations is perhaps of greatest interest to the public, the measurement of the higher frequencies will be of extreme importance to the communication services, where the frequencies are rapidly coming into use for international communications, point-to-point communication in this country, air service, amateurs, and government services.

Check Foreign Station.

As many of these short wave stations are far-reaching in their effect it is anticipated that considerable time must be given to checking stations in foreign countries which may be causing interference with our international short wave stations.

This branch of the inspection work of the radio division of the department of commerce is just developing. It is anticipated that it will be one of the most important fields of activity and should prove of great benefit to the public.

Interference caused by the simultaneous operation of stations on the same frequency and interference caused by the operation of various types of electrical devices will continue to be a source of annoyance, but the remedy for this does not rest with the radio inspection service.

SHAW ASKS 4 BILLIONS.

George Bernard Shaw, noted British dramatist, when asked recently by a radio director to state the sum for which he would write a drama for radio use, cabled a reply: "Four billion dollars might be sufficient, but that is not a contract."

EDISON, HOOVER, FORD ON W-G-N TOMORROW NIGHT

World-Wide Climax to Light Jubilee.

An international broadcast without precedent, featuring talks by President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, and Henry Ford, is announced by the NBC as a world-wide climax of the Golden Jubilee of Light, Monday night, Oct. 21. W-G-N will broadcast the program, which comes at 6:30 p. m. central standard time.

It will be Science's night on the air. The ceremony is intended as a scientific world's tribute to the inventor of the electric light and will be staged with all ingeniousness engineers can evolve. The NBC networks, coast to coast, will be linked with short wave transmitters to relay the details to listeners throughout the nation.

A Tribute to Edison.

Besides the response by the Wizard of Menlo Park, talks by President Hoover and Henry Ford will mark formal dedication of the Edison School of Technology, founded by Ford as a tribute to his friend Edison. The broadcast will originate in Dearborn, Mich., where Ford has reconstructed the original laboratory and machines used by Edison when he invented electric light. Not only the old wooden laboratory but also the original lathes, work benches, and lamps are there as the nucleus for a new technical school.

Radio listeners will join the assemblage of world famous scientists at the closing minutes of Ford's dinner to Edison, at which Owen D. Young is toastmaster. A novelty will be music of 1879, year of Edison's invention, played by an old fashioned orchestra.

The notables will then visit the old laboratory, where Edison will make a duplicate of the original lamp from similar materials. Edison will work by the glow of an oil lamp, as all other lights are turned off, and many cities throughout the country will dim their lights simultaneously.

Edison to Make Tests.

Graham McNamee will describe the scene as Edison tests the "newfangled contraption, a light which burns without gas or flame and is cheaper than oil." As old generators hum and lights of 1879 flare up, McNamee will give the radio signal to resume modern illumination in all cities participating. Edison will then cross the laboratory and play the reed organ he kept at the end of the room.

Short talks by world famous scientists, whose names are withheld, and a brief address by President Hoover will end the festivities. The climax of Light's Golden Jubilee will be on a full hour from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. eastern standard time, Oct. 21. Both WEAF and WJZ in New York will be linked in NBC's nation-wide hookup, with short wave networks to other continents.

STATION STAFF OF KFI STUMPED BY TOUGH QUESTION

SAN FRANCISCO.—Recently a request was received at KFI which puzzled at first and afterward caused much amusement.

A piping, treble voice, evidently that of a child, called on the telephone:

"Say, mister, your station is playing too fast. How can I slow it down on my set?"

BIGGEST STUDIO ON TOP WORLD'S LARGESTBUILDING

N. B. C. Picks Chicago for Finest Quarters.

Complete plans for erection and equipment of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, atop the largest building in the world, are announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company. The new Chicago studios of the company will be situated on the roof of the Merchandise Mart, in the heart of the city.

The most modern equipment for broadcasting will be installed in studios, offices and laboratories, and engineers have devised plans for meeting radio problems as far into the future as possible. More than 62,000 square feet of floor space will be required to house the various activities.

Opening Jan. 1, 1930.

Formal opening of the new quarters, tentatively planned for Jan. 1, 1930, will be a definite step in fulfillment of Mr. Aylesworth's prediction two years ago that Chicago is destined to become one of the greatest broadcasting centers of the world. The fact that the Chicago headquarters of the National Broadcasting company are to be more pretentious than those now in use in New York, Washington, and San Francisco is regarded as a significant recognition of the importance of Chicago's position in the broadcasting field.

In the new location special construction will eliminate many of the physical and mechanical limitations of the usual office building. The quarters have been designed and will be built under the direction of O. B. Hanson, manager of operations and engineering.

Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, designers of the Merchandise Mart, will represent the NBC in architectural design and supervise the construction.

The new quarters will open with six studios, fully equipped with the latest developments in radio apparatus. Wire lines and other facilities will be installed, permitting expansion to an unlimited number of studios.

Largest Studio in World.

Studio "A" will be the largest radio theater in the world. It will be seventy-five feet long, fifty-one feet wide, and with a twenty-six foot ceiling, giving a total floor space of 3,820 square feet, and a total content of 99,450 cubic feet. It would provide standing room for more than a thousand persons, it is estimated.

The studio will have a large number of innovations in equipment. Instead of the usual velvet or monks' cloth drapes utilized in the regulating of acoustical effects, it will be walled with adjustable narrow panels. It is believed to be the first installation of this sort ever attempted.

A great pipe organ and organ loft, specially adapted for radio presentations of varied character, will be installed. A raised stage, for use in productions permitting the presence of an immediate audience, will occupy one end of the studio.

10,228 Feet Floor Space.

The other studios vary in floor size and ceiling height to meet various acoustical conditions. The total floor space devoted to the six broadcasting rooms will be 10,228 square feet, and total content will be 265,928 cubic feet.

Each studio will have a soundproof glass enclosed balcony to enable invited guests both to see the performance in the studio and hear it through loud speakers as the radio audience hears it.

All the studios except "F" will be on the nineteenth floor of the Mart, but will be two stories in height.

On the nineteenth floor will be the offices of the division engineer, plant and operating engineers, control boards, music library, musicians' rest rooms and lockers, reception rooms, announcers' rooms and lockers, artists' reception rooms, emergency first aid room, quarters for the library staff and engineering laboratory.

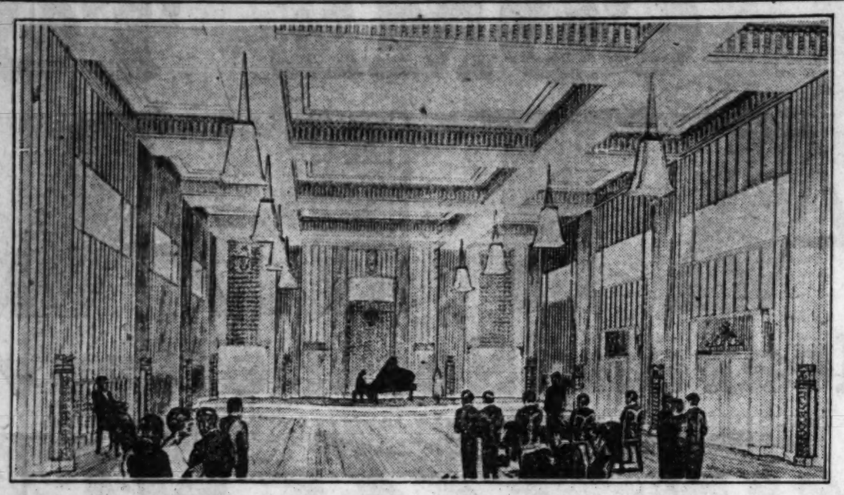
On the twentieth floor will be the office of the vice president in charge of the Chicago division, general office, agricultural department, program, press, sales and station relations departments, a conference room and studio "F." From observation rooms on the twentieth floor, visitors will be afforded a view of the performances in the studios.

Studios Without Windows.

The studios will be without windows [and partially hermetically sealed for soundproof] the ventilation being regulated through modern equipment maintaining a constant flow of pure air at a regulated temperature, and with a uniform degree of humidity. With this system, temperature is automatically maintained, within a variation of two degrees Fahrenheit.

In the center of the main control room will be two main control boards, each thirty feet long. One will be used for amplifiers, relays and controls of studio equipment.

CHICAGO TO GET BIGGEST STUDIOS



An architect's drawing of one of the studios of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, soon to be built by the National Broadcasting company atop the world's largest building, the new Chicago Merchandise Mart.

RADIO STOPPING DRIFT OF FARM FOLK TO CITIES

Makes Education at Home Possible.

WASHINGTON. — Radio has done more than anything else in the last four years to check the drift of farmers to the city, according to J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute here.

Figures from the department of agriculture show that in 1926 approximately 649,000 more people deserted the farm for the city than from city to the farm, while in 1928—the latest figures available—only 188,000 more people left the farm for the city than from the city to the farm.

The reasons for this drift to the city, according to a recent analysis made by the bureau of agricultural economics, are economic conditions, and leaving the farm in order to get better educational advantages for their children in the city.

"It is my candid belief," continued Smith, "that radio has gone a long way toward wiping out these two reasons for the rush to the city.

Get Educational Features.

"A more extensive use of broadcasting facilities by farming agencies, the department of agriculture and other organizations giving weather, crop and market reports, will assist the farmer in putting his business on a more efficient basis. Radio has, indeed, become an economic necessity on the farm today.

"Further, radio is relieving the farmer of the necessity of breaking up his occupation and moving to the city to give his children an education Broadcasting is bringing and in the future will bring even more educational features right to the farmer's fireside. Recognized and accredited high school and college courses are given on the air in some sections, and will undoubtedly be given more generally in the near future."

New Day for Farmer.

Radio is a boon to the farmer, his wife and children. It is bringing them advantages and pleasures never before enjoyed.

A new day for American agriculture is being ushered in, Smith declared, in commenting on the applications of the federal state marketing service of California for seven broadcast station licenses to be used in a state-wide market quotations service.

"There is no question but that radio can be effectively used by farm cooperative agencies in the scientific marketing and distribution of agricultural products," continued Smith.

"In using radio this way the farmer is applying modern business principles and practices to his work and it will undoubtedly help to improve his economic status.

"Hence radio is not only a source of entertainment and education on the farm but it has become an economic necessity."

Australia Convicts Its Unlicensed Listeners

Convictions recently have been obtained by the Australian government in the cases of 1,707 unlicensed broadcast listeners. New South Wales had the greatest number of convictions, 804. Penalties amounted to £3,121 and costs to £1,321 pounds. The license fee in Australia is $5.84.

Television Actress

Bonnie Blue, Chicago's first television actress, will entertain daily during the radio show. Visitors will see and hear her sing blue songs over television with sound. Miss Blue is a Chicago girl.

TINFOIL MAKES IDEAL APARTMENT "LEAD-IN" WIRE

Apartment dwellers and others who have unusually long aerials—so long in fact that reception is hindered—may be interested in a noval solution of the lead-in question. Incidentally, this idea gets around the need for drilling holes in window frames or walls.

Two large sheets of heavy copper or tin foil are obtained—perhaps 8 or 10 inches square. One is glued to the outside of the glass at the center of the window and the other exactly opposite, on the inside. The aerial lead wire is connected to the foil by picking up a corner and soldering. Inside, a wire from the foil leads to the antenna binding post of the set. The sheets of foil form a fairly large fixed condenser with glass insulation. Since the condenser is a "series" condenser, it is useful in cases of long aerials.

182 RADIO POLICE NOW.

There are now 182 government inspectors working under the supervisors, policing the ether and seeing that the broadcasting stations keep on their assigned wave channels.

STOCK TO OPEN CONCERT SERIES ON W-G-N TODAY

Symphony Orchestra Ready for Bow.

Dr. Frederick Stock and the world famous Chicago Symphony orchestra will be heard on the air for the first time this year today from 2 to 3 o'clock over W-G-N. The orchestra will broadcast each Sunday afternoon over a National Broadcasting company network.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the orchestra when they broadcast for the first time over a chain last year so delighted Dr. Stock that he decided to accept the invitation to give another series of concerts this season.

Acclaimed by music critics both in America and abroad as one of the finest musical organizations in the world, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has established a firm place in the hearts of American music lovers, and last year won nation-wide praise for their series of Sunday concerts under the same sponsorship.

Every modern broadcasting facility that engineers have devised will be used to make the reproduction of every note heard by the radio audience faithful to the finest degree. Dr. Stock has placed his personal approval on the perfectness of the broadcast and has stated that the radio does ample justice to his noted organization.

JUST TO PLEASE THE DIVA.

It was explained on the air recently that "O Promise Me," the hit in "Robin Hood," was written in the last minute to please a temperamental prima donna.

RADIO RELICS TO BE COLLECTED BY SMITHSONIAN

Government Agencies to Participate.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Radio's "hall of fame," now only a figurative something, is to become an actuality.

Within the Smithsonian institution in Washington there will be exhibited all of the available historical radio apparatus that can be collected, so that a graphic picture of the romance of radio may be depicted for posterity. The display will range from the first type of "spark gap" transmitter to the present water cooled tube circuits with their powerful signals.

Plans for the creation of a "radio museum" were discussed at a conference called by Capt. S. C. Hooper, chief of naval communications, and attended by representatives of other government departments and of a radio corporation which possesses a complete collection of historical radio apparatus. The conference unanimously agreed that there is a real need of the preservation of apparatus having historical significance, and steps immediately were taken to urge the Smithsonian institution to approve such a collection for display. Heads of all governmental departments and agencies likewise are being solicited to donate whatever radio equipment of an obsolete yet historical nature they have stored away.

Institution to Participate.

It was brought out by C. U. Mitman, curator of the Smithsonian institution, that the institution is anxious to obtain a historical exhibit of radio and will participate in any projects to procure the necessary equipment.

At the round table discussion, Capt. Hooper said that a large amount of radio apparatus of no value for service, but invaluable for historical purposes is being held at the navy yard in Washington, as well as at other navy yards and bases. Within a short time this material will be "junked" unless otherwise used. This statement served to reveal that at army depots throughout the country and at the United States bureau of standards equipment of a similar nature is lying about of practically no use.

Mr. Mitman explained, however, that under the law, historical apparatus or material held by any of the government departments cannot be loaned or given to agencies outside the government unless approved by the Smithsonian institution. Thereupon it was decided that the Smithsonian should be petitioned for the collection of this equipment and its arrangement for a suitable historical exhibit.

Inventors Still Alive.

The reason for the collection of such apparatus at this time is that many of the individuals who participated in the development in radio are still alive and available for the acquisition of authentic records of their inventions.

In its letter to the Smithsonian the conference, which was of an informal nature, asked that a formal committee consisting of representatives of the Smithsonian, departments of war, navy and commerce, Institute of Radio Engineers and three nongovernmental representatives be appointed for the "radio museum" collection. Mr. Mitman said that he believed the institution would be willing to sponsor the organization of the committee to carry through the collection of the apparatus.

WHEN BATTERY WEARS OUT.

Inability to bring the specific gravity up to its original value by a normal amount of charging is an indication that the useful life of the battery is all over. After a certain length of time the active material on the plates becomes exhausted and nothing can be done to bring it back.

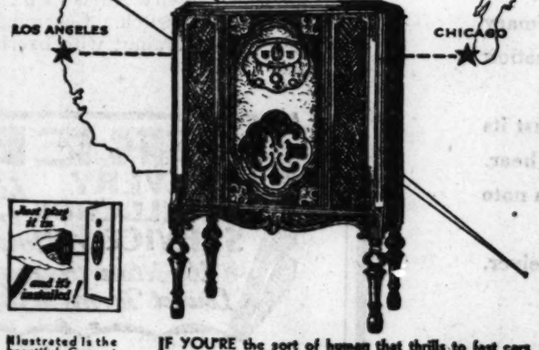
for Aerial



Illustrated is the beautiful Concert Grand. The top is of four-way matched butt walnut and surmounts side panels of diamond grained oriental walnut, flanking a central panel of figured bird's-eye maple, the whole hand rubbed to a mirror-like polish. It contains the standard SILVER RADIO eight tube screen-grid chassis, electro-dynamic speaker, and screen collector.

Price absolutely complete, less tubes $173.00

Your dealer also has the Sheraton Lowboy at $168.00, and the Sheraton Highboy at $195.00.

IF YOU'RE the sort of human that thrills to fast cars and horses, that gets a big kick out of a 300-yard drive, or one of Babe's homers—then get ready for the biggest thrill of all from SILVER RADIO.

For SILVER RADIO is the one outstanding radio that does simply amazing things—like bringing to your living room programs two thousand miles away with only an ice-pick for aerial . . . like bringing in programs direct from Japan, Australia, and New Zealand, as SILVER RADIOS in the west do.

Because SILVER is that kind of a radio, your SILVER RADIO dealer is ready to make, in your presence, four of the most amazing tests you've ever witnessed—tests so stiff that you can pick without error the best radio. Ask your dealer to make the "Ice-Pick Test", the "Vanishing-Aerial Test", the "Hairpin Test", and the "Coin Test"... they'll show you the amazing difference between SILVER RADIO and all others.

SILVER RADIO—product of the manufacturer who introduced screen-grid radio to America in 1927—is guaranteed to get more programs without an aerial—it doesn't need any—than nine out of ten other radios will get with big interference-collecting outdoor aerials, and...

After all, why not have the best in your home, too?... tell your SILVER RADIO dealer you've "come to see his four amazing tests".

VIBRA-CONTROL
brings true tone realism to
NEW FADA RADIOS

MUSIC is simply audible vibrations. Controlled, they bring harmony. Uncontrolled, discord. Sounds simple, yet radio's greatest problem was to control these vibrations.

But today all this is ended . . . for Fada has at last achieved Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all radio vibrations . . . and with it has eliminated distortion, interference, rumbles, rain barrel tones and roars.

On a Fada every note, every shading of tone now comes to you exactly as broadcast . . . exquisitely true, surprisingly clear . . . a mirror-like reproduction of the artists themselves. For Vibra-Control is the long-sought secret of tone realism.

It would take a thousand words to explain this great achievement; but in ten minutes you can discover what Vibra-Control will mean to you. Hear it today . . . and get the thrill of radio reception stripped of mechanical noise.

Only Fada has Vibra-Control, priced from $99.50 to $675.00.

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

—In all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence

Quite naturally some people discriminate in favor of excellence. Consequently, their choice of the new all-electric, screen grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

will come as a matter of course

IN THE HOUSES in which they live . . . the motor-cars which stand gleaming on their drives . . . the meals they serve in their dining-rooms . . . in short, in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence, a certain discrimination. These are people of good taste.

There is a radio receiver—the Eveready—which fits in with a life such as theirs, which fits in with a point of view demanding excellence in everything they own.

Its fidelity of reception is remarkable

Put it in a living-room and you have seats at a symphony concert . . . listen to it as you dine and you are transported to a table beside a polished square of dance floor in a smart restaurant . . . the excitement, the oratory, the color of a political campaign is yours without leaving your house . . . the President speaks to you as clearly as if you were present in Washington . . . this is the sort of reception you get—this is the sort of reception discriminating people demand—in the new Eveready Radio.

Its tone is full, round and agreeable. And because of the "weather-proof" principle incorporated in the new Eveready Radio the reception even on damp, humid nights is remarkably clear and free from distortion.

Its excellence is not a matter of months but many years

But if this were all people of good taste knew about the new Eveready Radio, they would hesitate to buy. Their whole point of view towards life requires that they also look for permanent, as well as momentary, excellence; that they look for the sort of perfection which comes with the ideal of precision building, an ideal which looks into the distant future as well as tomorrow.

So carefully, so precisely, is this fine instrument built that you may expect, not six months or a year of performance, but five, yes even ten years of satisfying reception. The large scientific organization which has expended years of research in making this radio receiver will add improvements, of course, as they are tested and tried out. That is taken for granted.

But the buyers of this radio receiver are not asked to consider mystifying technical terms, new accoutrements, devices and details comprehensible only to experts. Such things bore them. They know that whatever they buy is the best. Hence, they buy this radio.

You will want this remarkable radio receiver

And so, if you are a person who discriminates in favor of excellence, if your whole attitude towards life looks for effects, not causes, you will want the new Eveready Radio. That is why, when you see it, hear it, notice its beautiful cabinetwork, you will say, "Of course this is the instrument for my household."

LAFOUNT TELLS WAYS TO BETTER RADIO PROGRAMS

Must Give People What They Want.

BY HAROLD A. LAFOUNT.
[Radio Commissioner, Appointed from Zone Five.]

Any comprehensive plan for general improvement of radio programs in the United States necessarily resolves itself into a procedure whereby more persons will receive more of what they want, when they want it.

In order to accomplish any material degree of progress in its broadest sense, it is essential that the broadcast structure be considered as a whole, and that each unit fit into a general scheme of production and distribution, operating with conscious regard for its part in the scheme.

Our present radio structure comprises approximately six hundred units, functioning independently, and to some extent, competitively. There is no common denominator in practice, and little unity of purpose. Each station aims, in some degree, to give programs acceptable to its listeners, but in so doing most of them utterly disregard the availability and quality of such programs from other sources.

Measured by Public Reaction.

The question of what constitutes a desirable program is obviously one of individual prejudice, and opinion is of little value except in the mass. We are obliged to measure program values by public reaction, and to grade them by the response they evoke, giving due attention to the size of the potential audience.

Desirable programs have been established to fall into one of two types: first, those designed to be of unusual interest to a limited group or area; second, those which have been demonstrated to be of general interest or importance. Predominance of either type of program serves to identify a radio station.

On the above basis we are able to divide radio stations roughly into three classes:

The first group, fewer than a hundred in number, may be designated class A. By reason of availability of talent, unusual conditions of financing, connection with a network service, or combination of these factors, they consistently present programs of high quality and of general interest. These stations furnish our present standard of excellence in presentations designed for other than local consumption. They are able to broadcast the finest of music, by the best of artists, and to broadcast many features of uplifting and informative nature.

Constant Experimentation.

Undoubtedly the material that they put on the air is subject to much improvement. There is constant experimentation in the methods of presentation, and constant progress in the work of mechanical "pick-up" and transmission. Class A stations are naturally leaders in such improvement.

There is a rather sharp dividing line between the above mentioned group and those which we may designate class B. These are broadcasters whose supply of talent is limited, whose revenues are small, and who have not the advantages of network program services. In this class are several hundred stations struggling valiantly to give good programs. They deserve serious consideration in the measure that they play an integral part in the life of their communities. However, judged on the basis of the general interest value of their programs, they cannot be said to be at all comparable to those in class A.

A third class, which we may call class C, comprises a relatively small number of stations which devote much of their efforts to propaganda in behalf of religious, political, or social matters, or which are concerned with promoting a single business institution. From the standpoint of general interest their programs may be said to have a minimum of value, and in this discussion they may well be disregarded.

Ways Toward Improvement.

Two methods, not necessarily alternative, suggest themselves as essential to a comprehensive effort to improve broadcasting:

1. To raise the service value of class B stations to their communities.

2. To make class A programs available everywhere with such clarity and volume as to permit selection on a basis of desirability, rather than strength of signal.

Class B stations, for the most part, have neither money nor talent available for programs of general importance. Most of them would not fit economically into the present broadcast networks and are thereby prevented from transmitting programs emanating from centers where talent is more readily engaged. Progress in class B, it appears, will result from natural economic determination. The basis of radio financing now is advertising revenue, which in turn, has its prime requisite in listener interest. The listener is the foundation stone of the house.

If he is pleased with the program he is a potential purchaser of the products promoted in the program. If he is displeased, or is intrigued by a program elsewhere, he ceases to be a potential customer. Thus we have a logical cycle: Good programs, many listeners, pleased advertisers, more revenue. Or, conversely, poor programs, few listeners, unsatisfied advertisers, decreasing revenue.

It is apparent that class B stations cannot compete with class A stations in programs of widespread interest. It seems obvious that they should, therefore, give service to their listeners which they can do better than can those of class A. They can furnish specific service to specific communities, and justify their place in the general scheme. Those which are attuned to the spirit of their listeners, which present desirable material not otherwise available, are economically entitled to prosper. Those which fail to thus serve their listeners are likely to fail before the march of progress. It is the law of industrial "survival of the fittest."

Engineering Evolution Involved.

The problem of better dissemination of class A programs at present involves possible engineering evolution and perhaps revolution. There is, of course, a fair coverage of the country through broadcasts of network programs, and those from a few other stations in metropolitan areas. Cleared channels have improved the reception considerably over that of a few years ago.

But there is still a large audience which is not able to receive important programs with volume sufficient to assure consistently high quality.

What is Tri-toned Radio?*

Every musical instrument has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity, or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural over-emphasis of any part of the scale.

"IT ISN'T RADIO...IT'S THE HUMAN VOICE"

Hear Kylectron

The revolutionary new method of sound reproduction... as sensational as the first tube set...the one new thing in radio this year

KYLECTRON is new in principle, new in design. It isn't an attachment, it isn't a tube, it isn't a "refinement." It is as different from ordinary methods of radio reproduction as the modern tube set is different from the old-fashioned crystal set.

Hear it . . . and you will have an entirely new conception of how perfect radio can be. Through Kylectron you hear everything exactly as it is broadcast. Kylectron changes nothing . . . adds nothing . . . takes away nothing . . . from the instrumental or vocal music that reaches the microphone in concert hall or studio. It reproduces everything just as a perfect mirror reflects an image. It is sensitive enough to reproduce a sigh; powerful enough to bring you the crash of a brass band without distortion; without "hum;" without mechanical sounds. Hear Kylectron . . . and you'll say as thousands have said: "Surely, science can go no further." Kylectron is offered today only in Courier and Peerless Radios . . . receivers which in themselves have everything you've always wanted.

Screen grid . . . certainly!

Courier and Peerless are screen grid radios. They use three screen grid tubes. In addition they have power detection, push-pull amplification, single dial tuning, light-socket operation, complete shielding; in short, they have everything that has been proved sound in radio engineering.

They are super-sensative. They get the distant stations so you can enjoy them. Their selectivity is sharp enough to cut through powerful local stations but not so sharp as to eliminate the side-band frequencies of a station which give the necessary "back-ground" to music and speech.

Hear these radios now!

Step into the Courier-Peerless dealer's store and listen to Kylectron, or arrange for a free home demonstration. Turn the tuning dial yourself. Set the volume control at a mere whisper and then bring the sound up until it fills the room. There's no distortion, no "hum," no mechanical sound. Just thrillingly delightful music . . . the kind of radio music you've been waiting for. Visit one of the stores tomorrow. There will be no obligation.

Courier Radio—$85 to $165
(without tubes)

Courier Radios are encased in console cabinets which are exquisite examples of the most expert designers, the finest craftmanship and the generous use of the world's finest woods. Peerless Radio—$195 to $600
(without tubes)

It is impossible to build finer cabinets than those used to hold Peerless Radios. They are not merely "something to hold a radio" but exquisite pieces of furniture. Examine them carefully and you'll find nothing but the finest woods, nothing but the best in construction. Peerless Radios are made in models with Kylectron, or with the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

FIND USE FOR STATIC, ENEMY OF RADIO FANS

But Scientists Admit It Can't Be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After more than a decade of research, radio scientists have virtually admitted their inability to eliminate the devastating effects of static in the reception of broadcasting programs, but they are by no means through with their study. They have now begun to harness it for the benefit of mankind even though radio listeners gain nothing from the results of their experiments.

At this time of year, when the thoughts of the huge public of radio entertainment turn eagerly to visions of cold winter nights when reception is undisturbed by a jumble of noises that sound like a buzz saw in a box of automobile tools, such news is not so doleful as it might be at the beginning of summer. For the period from Oct. 1 to March 15 is ordinarily considered the most favorable to receptibility.

But even in warm weather, the situation is not so serious as it might seem in view of the improvements that have been made in receivers and transmitters and the growing tendency to depend on local rather than distant stations for radio programs.

Admits Science Is Balked.

Dr. L. W. Austin, head of the laboratory for special radio transmission research at the United States Bureau of Standards, admitted, in answer to the question, that scientists are balked by static. So far as can be determined now, this bane of listeners will be with us always.

The chief reason for this is the distinct similarity between the mode of propagation of the static pulses and the radio signals, according to Dr. Austin, who is internationally recognized as one of the foremost authorities on static in the world. Then, too, static can not be eliminated because, like the weather, it is caused by atmospheric conditions which as yet are beyond the control of science.

The most sensible solution to the problem, which Dr. Austin has been advocating for some time, is already being adopted, viz., the reliance on local stations, which may be in chain hookups, and the use of more powerful transmitters. Moreover, listeners are learning, he said, that often when the strength of the reception is diminished, the programs come in more clearly because the static is also made less noticeable.

Numerous Schemes Tried.

All sorts of schemes have been tried to overcome static but without marked success. Among these has been the underground antennas, which the navy was inclined to believe, for a while during the world war, was superior to the overhead directive system. It was found later, however, that static in comparison with signal strength is almost as bad in the ground as it is in the air.

A fraud order was issued several months ago against an invention which, it was claimed, would eliminate static in radio reception by the underground method after the bureau of standards had declared its claims false.

Static, like the proverbial ill-wind, has some useful qualities, the contentions of disgruntled listeners to the contrary. And it is these good points that are now attracting radio scientists to further research.

Even though the experts themselves do not agree on the cause or causes of static, they are finding it valuable in the location of storms and consequently a contributor to the safety of life in the air and at sea.

Determines Storm Position.

In Europe, static is being employed to determine the position of storms, and to chart weather maps along aviation routes, and in America, experiments along these lines are just beginning. The United States navy has found that static can be used on the high seas to trace the course of hurricanes, thus enabling warships to dodge the storms. In the northwestern wooded areas of this country, static is being used to warn rangers of approaching forest fires by means of its weather forecasting proclivities.

The relationship between weather conditions and forest fires—those originating from natural causes—has been established. This relationship is so definite that the weather bureau issues forecasts of forest fire dangers based on the "complement of the humidity." Also, there is an apparent relationship between static and relative humidity; and on this hypothesis the major obstacle to radio reception is being harnessed in order to determine the amount of moisture in the atmosphere.

As forest fires take a toll of approximately $20,000,000 worth of timber and other property annually, the use of static in determining the amount of moisture in the air may compensate for some of the evils that the millions of listeners suffer.

Two Schools of Thought.

There are two schools of thought on the origin of static, according to Dr. Austin. One group holds that static for the most part is caused by lightning. Thus, even if there is no storm within a 1,000 miles of you, the static that troubles your receiver may come from a lightning discharge far away, mayhap the other side of the world. Their contention is that there is always lightning somewhere in the atmosphere and that the waves caused by the discharges are carried over the world.

The second school of experts admits that lightning is a prominent cause of static but contends that there are other electrical discharges, not visible to the eye, which are also to blame. For instance, the contact between two currents of air of different temperature may effect such a discharge. Static is worse in low pressure areas and in mountainous regions, Dr. Austin said.

Fading, which is often associated with static and often blamed on the same sources, is caused generally by the interference of radio waves and only rarely by atmospherics, according to Dr. Austin, who was inclined to discount the interference of the waves that travel through the air with those that move along the earth as the cause of fading at great distances. It comes rather from two waves traveling by different paths which have been reflected by the upper atmosphere, he said.

Radio Sets Reach Public Through Varied Sources

An interesting sidelight on radio merchandising is contained in the diverse channels by which radio equipment makes its way to the consumer. Reports show sales by firms and individuals giving their principal lines of business as that of poultry raiser, harness shop, funeral director, court reporter, baby chick hatchery, poolroom, optometrists, insecticide dealer, patent medicine dealer and what not.

NOMINATED

Raymond A. Heising, who has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

RADIO ENGINEERS NAME HEISING INSTITUTE HEAD

Inventor, Research Expert Is Nominated.

Raymond A. Heising, well known radio engineer, has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers for 1930 by the board of direction of the institute.

Mr. Heising is engineer on the technical staff of the Bell telephone laboratories located in New York. He has a long record of study and achievement in the radio field. After receiving his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1914 he joined the research department of the Western Electric company—incorporated some years ago with Bell telephone laboratories. He participated in the long distance radio telephone experiments of 1915 and developed and operated the transmitting sets for the Montauk-to-Wilmington experiments and for those carried on between Arlington and San Francisco, Honolulu, and Paris.

Aided in War Research.

During the war he was a member of the subcommittee on "wireless communication between aircraft" of the national research council. Many of his investigations at this time were with radio telephony for airplanes, sub chasers, and other military units.

After the war he took part in the development of the ship to shore radio telephone, and later in the development of the long wave trans-Atlantic radio telephone circuit. For the last four or five years he has been investigating short wave phenomena and carrying on fundamental research in connection with the recently completed short wave radio systems.

Seventy Patents to Credit.

Mr. Heising has published many technical and scientific articles in the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and in the Physical Review, and has over seventy patents to his credit and others pending. In 1921 he was awarded the Morris Liebman Memorial prize by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Other members nominated are: Vice president, Col. A. G. Lee, staff engineer in charge of radio, engineering department, general postoffice, London, England.

HANDLING RADIO TUBES.

When changing tubes in the radio receiver always turn the set off. Failure to do so in many cases will burn out the tubes, due to the "rush" of current caused by the extraction of the tube.

FEDERAL COMMISSION SEEKS TO CUT DOWN CHAIN DUPLICATIONS

An attempt to prevent duplication of chain radio programs on the listeners' dials is being made by the federal radio commission in a survey of broadcasters on cleared channels who use chain programs at night.

Copies of a questionnaire, designed by W. J. Clearman at the instigation of Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, asks fourteen questions. The information, obtained from fifty odd stations, will be used "to assist the commission in its work of assigning frequencies to broadcasting stations in such a way as to provide the satisfactory reception of desirable programs without unnecessary duplication, interference and waste."

Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, recently hurled charges of favoritism to chain systems as against independent stations at the radio commission, and complained of the commission's continual postponement of putting into effect general order No. 43, which would limit the operation of stations on cleared channels broadcasting the same programs to transmitters 300 miles apart. This order has been delayed upon five different occasions, the latest effective date being set for Dec. 31.

STATION BUILT IN WORLD'S WORST RADIO CLIMATE

The country with the world's worst radio climate has finally bowed to the popularity of entertainment via the air. A station has been constructed in Colombia.

Being in the hottest corner of the Caribbean territory and with difficult natural conditions, Colombia has denied herself the privilege of local broadcasting until recently when a transmitter was built at Bogota with a studio installed at the Capitol for broadcasting Congressional proceedings and theater performances, according to word received by the U. S. department of commerce from James J. O'Neill, assistant trade commissioner.

Colombia becomes the 69th broadcasting country, and the station brings the total in foreign countries to 609. United States stations total 612.

TELEVISION NOT YET PRACTICAL COMMERCIALLY

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the Commerce Yearbook for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting outdoor scenes on the television circuit was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

HYDE FINDS RADIO NEW LEAVEN OF RURAL AMERICA

Breaks Down Isolation of Former Days.

BY ARTHUR M. HYDE.
[Secretary of Agriculture.]

WASHINGTON.—Agriculture needs radio. It carries to the most remote farm social values, aesthetic values and business information. It overcomes the barriers of space and breaks down isolation.

More than any other group in the United States, our farm people depend upon radio in their business and in their home life. "Radio belongs to farmers" said an official of the big broadcasting systems recently. He went on to explain his remark in this way:

"The business man gets reports of the markets from a ticker. Until radio came along the farmer was without similar comparable information on markets. The urban family can easily attend church services led by famous divines, hear the music of famous choirs, symphony orchestras, opera companies; until the advent of radio the farm family had scant opportunity to share these inspirations. "Spectacular and historical events, such as the inauguration of presidents and direct contact with the leaders of thought and action, are carried by radio to the most isolated farm homes.

"Lacking radio, the rural population even with the telephone and good roads would still be close to that condition of isolation and loneliness which was described and decried a quarter of a century ago in the report of President Roosevelt's country life commission."

Developing Business Service.

Our broadcasting experience in the department of agriculture has largely been confined to development of the business service of radio to the farm. The earliest broadcasting stations sent weather information—forecasts, warnings, etc.—in coöperation with the United States weather bureau, and crop and market news supplied by the bureau of agricultural economics. Later, the department established a radio service of timely information on production practices in agriculture and on scientific homemaking. Each year since the birth of broadcasting has seen a steady growth in the number of radio stations making these services available to the rural audience. At present 215 radio stations transmit weather reports obtained directly from the weather bureau; 114 stations broadcast crop and market news, some of them on schedules running up to four periods daily; 163 stations send one or more of the eight programs of general farming and home making information supplied by the department; and a network of 39 stations associated with the National Broadcasting company provides at noontime a national farm and home hour program.

217 Stations Serve Farmer.

All told, with duplications eliminated, 297 of the 610 radio broadcasting stations in the United States cooperate with the federal department of agriculture in one or more ways to serve farmers and home makers. Included in the list are virtually all stations of one thousand watts or higher power. The time devoted to this specialized service would command, at commercial rates, much more than one million dollars a year. It is freely given to agriculture without cost except the expense of supplying speakers or facts.

This coöperation of broadcasters with the department of agriculture does not tell the whole story of radio service to rural America. Nineteen of the land grant colleges of the United States maintain their own radio stations. These are broadcasting from a maximum of forty-three to a minimum of three hours a week with a large proportion of their time devoted to programs of farm and home information. Of the 19, one is on a "cleared" channel, the remaining 18 on regional channels. Their power ranges from 10,000 to 250 watts.

Colleges Supply Speakers.

Land grant colleges in the remaining 27 states supply speakers and programs to commercial broadcasting stations, except in a few states which do not possess powerful transmitters. State boards of agriculture or bureaus of markets in some great agricultural states such as Missouri and Wisconsin operate their own broadcasting stations. In other states the boards or departments of agriculture have accepted the offer of commercial radio facilities.

National, state, and smaller units of the farm organizations maintain agriculture information and promotion programs through numerous stations. On occasion the national network systems send special agricultural broadcasts into every part of the country. Rural listeners will recall many of them, including the program of the Institute of Coöperation last July and the National 4-H club program arranged by the department of agriculture last June which brought the 10,000 farm boys and girls in this organization a message from Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Farm Families Appreciate Radio.

Farm families owning radio sets use the business aids extended by the nation's broadcasters; they appreciate—few profoundly few can realize—the widening of cultural and social horizons made possible by the genius of electrical science.

Literally thousands of letters coming to the department bring home to us the fact that, through radio, a new renaissance is working in rural America. Farm families testify that the radio has "brought church services to our home." "Helped out in the back country." "made it possible for us to hear Presidents speak and opera stars sing." "taught us a number of new recipes." "brought relaxation to us," "made farm life more pleasant."

What the results will be in the way of a higher level of culture I am not bold enough to predict. Necessarily there will be developed closer ties of unity and of interest among the different sections of the nation. These are intangible values, values which cannot be listed or tabulated, values none the less real.

Western City Has Law to Help Radio Listeners

An ordinance has been passed by the city council of Sacramento, Cal., prohibiting the operation of devices, appliances, and equipment which interferes with radio broadcasting reception between 2 p. m. and 11 p. m., with the exception of machines used by doctors and of licensed radio stations and the operation of public utilities.

PLACEMENT OF AERIAL.

An outdoor aerial should, whenever possible, be strung in an open space away from nearby objects, such as trees, buildings and other wires, particularly those that run parallel with the aerial. Anything of a nature that will absorb radio signals will take away just so much energy from the aerial.

TO BROADCAST WAR PLAY.

The British Broadcasting company announces that it will broadcast "Journey's End," the British war play, on Armistice day, in the evening.

Chicago Radio Show Opens in Coliseum Tomorrow

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR WINTER SEASON

Many New Features on Schedule.

With the broadcast of the world series and the first big football games W-G-N opened what assuredly will be the most brilliant season in the station's history.

Henry Selinger, general manager and musical director of W-G-N, stated yesterday that the presentations planned for the coming season will be originated in an American studio.

Gaston du Moulin, director of the W-G-N symphony orchestra, has made an extensive study of musical presentations for the radio and is ready with the best in orchestral music. He has learned to take full advantage of the tone perspective possibilities of the new W-G-N studios, assuring accurate and colorful reproduction at the receiver.

Goldkette Ready with Hits.

Jean Goldkette employs a staff of expert, jazz conscious arrangers, which includes Victor Young, prominent orchestrator and violin virtuoso; Ken Harris and Bill Huxley of piano fame. They with Jean have scoured the 1930 musical shows appearing, or to appear in New York, in search of the hits of the coming season. They have already made a few choice selections, and are now at work on the orchestrations. The brass and saxophone sections have been reinforced.

Christen Coon and Joe Sanders have returned to their winter quarters at the Blackhawk restaurant. Joe has a few new tunes appearing which promise to be, in the vernacular, wows. Time on the air for Coon-Sanders Blackhawks has been increased in response to thousands of requests. The Saturday midnight show, the Knights of the Bath, has a new master of ceremonies, Bob Elson. The Knights of the Bath is one of the few "call up" different programs remaining in a city which used to be full of them.

Lee Plans Choral Groups.

Kurt Love, vocal director of W-G-N and newly appointed acoustician, plans the organization of several new choral groups. Mr. Love is one of the most prominent singers of oratorio music in America and has had years of experience with radio work.

An innovation in the presentation of opera is expected to mature this season. Famous operas will be reduced to musical dramas, written in the continuity department of W-G-N, so that the story will be completely told independently of the acting and singing. As the famous arias are reached a competent group of chorusters and the finest soloists available will sing them.

In these operas Mark Love, as acoustician, will play a vital part. The duties of the acoustician are to balance the volume of independent parts of a program emanating from different

MAID OF HONOR

Miss Irma Glen, staff artist of station WENR, will preside over the radio show as maid of honor. She will be the official hostess throughout the sessions of the exhibition.

RADIO'S HISTORY TO BE SHOWN AT EXPOSITION

Story Is Dramatized for Visitors.

The story of radio's rise from the time the first wireless signals flashed across the Atlantic until today when it is regarded as one of the master instruments of the ages will be dramatized before the eyes of visitors in the special $100,000 radio pageant of progress section of the Chicago radio show which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow.

The radio pageant is without parallel in its completeness, range of material, technical scope, and historic appeal. Nothing is missing—photoradio, television, high speed wireless, ship-to-shore broadcasting, railroad and airplane apparatus. There are models and miniatures of entire installations, complete in every detail—apartment houses, high powered trans-Atlantic stations with towers, aerials, transmitting and receiving buildings, all reproduced with the fidelity of the originals.

Pictorial History.

Accompanying each exhibit is a complete pictorial history of the subject, photographs taken of high spots in its development from the crude things of earlier days to present day technical excellence.

The exhibit has been many months in preparation and material has been gathered when necessary to round out one collection or another from England, France, Germany, and other foreign countries.

Marconi's First Equipment.

In the exhibit there is a Baden-Powell kite, associated in the minds of every one who knows radio with the carrying aloft of the aerial at St. John's, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12, 1901, when Marconi first succeeded in trapping a trans-Atlantic wireless signal. Also to be seen is an exact replica of the apparatus on which the famous inventor first heard the three-dot signal, the letter "S." sent from Poldhu, England, while the Baden-Powell kite plunged about aloft. They were the three dots which changed a world.

Compared to modern radio apparatus the Marconi apparatus as exhibited at the Chicago radio show is so crude that it is sure to amaze spectators. Helped by no regeneration or amplifiers, and without even a thought of a loud speaker, Marconi heard England.

ACHIEVEMENT

MILLION DOLLAR DISPLAY, LAST WORD IN ART

Sets Are in Beautiful Cabinets.

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

With the finest display of radio creations ever brought together under one roof Chicago's eighth annual radio show—a million dollar exposition this year—opens tomorrow in the Coliseum. And until the doors close next Sunday night at 11 o'clock on the latest offerings of nearly 300 exhibitors, Chicago remains the capital of the ether-minded world.

Every inch of available space in the Coliseum, including the main building, mezzanine balconies, and north and south ballrooms will be occupied in presenting the latest in radio styles to crowds that will be record breaking, if early fall sales are a reliable index to the season's radio interest.

Show visitors will be impressed with the fact that the radio industry has suddenly grown up. It has hit a steady, measured stride hitherto unknown. Each of Chicago's previous expositions revealed products with revolutionary features unheard of at the preceding show. Last year saw a general introduction of the all electric receivers, the flowering of console or cabinet sets, and dynamic speakers.

The Screen Grid Tube.

This year brings a further perfection of these features and with them a definite and secure place in the radio sun for the screen grid tube.

The tube, it is claimed, has a capacity for increasing the circuit's sensitivity, sharpening tuning, producing added volume and enhancing the tonal quality. And tonal qualities, one learns, are what sell radios this year.

Few demand long distance tuning any more. All of the well known types will bring in plenty of fine programs. Fine cabinets—and they are finer than ever this year at somewhat reduced prices—help to sell the radio. They are likely to attract the eye, but

Next Saturday, W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the homecoming game at Champaign, where Illinois meets the Michigan eleven from Ann Arbor, with Quin Ryar at the michrophone. The week following the Illinois-Northwestern game at Evanston goes on the air.

AIR AND RADIO LAWS TO COME BEFORE PARLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—[U.P.]—In this picturesque city overlooking the great "Father of Waters" from the commanding Chickasaw bluffs the American Bar association will meet in its 152d annual national convention Oct. 23-26.

More than 5,000 members are expected to convene within a stone's throw of where Gen. Andrew Jackson opened his first law office here just 11 years after the bar association was organized in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1777.

Three principal topics for discussion are included on the program for the convention. They are aviation laws, revision of radio laws, and bar entrance requirements.

DAMROSCH TO START NEW CLASSES OVER W-G-N ON FRIDAY

Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, presents another of his series of radio classes in musical appreciation through W-G-N and a coast to coast network of stations connected with the National Broadcasting company, next Friday at 10 a. m.

These programs are part of a series of educational programs designed to be included in the musical curriculum of schools. Through them a complete symphony orchestra, augmented by the genius of Mr. Damrosch, can be brought to the classrooms of elementary schools, high schools and universities all over the country.

ADVERTISING ON RADIO NETWORKS DOUBLES IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Advertising over radio chains has nearly doubled during the last year, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of census of the department of commerce.

During the first seven months of 1928 advertisers spent $5,133,000 for facilities over the Columbia and N. B. C. chains. During the same seven months of 1929 they spent $9,974,000, representing an increase of over $4,500,000.

STATION S-E-X WILL BE NEXT.

Advance information coming from Los Angeles is that Clara Bow's next picture will be called "Station S-E-X." Is it radio or what?

CHICAGO RADIO SHOW TO OPEN DOORS TOMORROW

Million Dollar Display Is Last Word in Art.

the ear is the final arbiter. If the old set would give as fine a tone as the new ones many potential customers would not buy this year. Further improvement in speakers has helped radio in this major achievement of the year—the acquisition of the rich, clear voice of maturity.

The Radio Phonograph.

Of course, there are other features that will attract buyers. A remote control by which a set may be tuned from any part of the house, several devices for automatic tuning, including a visual tuning meter. Many of the new all electric sets are radio phonographs. This sort of set appears to have staged something of a comeback. If you are pleased with a certain radio selection you buy it for the phonograph and play it over; if it's a dull day for radio, you choose your own music.

With approximately 75 per cent of radios purchased, or at least chosen, by women, console cabinets and built-in speakers are more popular than ever. Women look at a radio not only as an instrument for producing music and entertainment but also as a piece of furniture. Hence manufacturers are striving for cabinets that will satisfy the most exacting tastes. In speaking of their latest designs they employ such phrases as "old English," "pilasters of diamond matched oriental walnut plywood," "Carpathian elm arched doors," "Gothic motif," "exterior of Jacobean beauty," and "Charles II. motif."

Set for Every Purse.

This year there appears to be a set for almost every pocket. A general tendency on the part of most manufacturers to get into the low priced field is manifest. Here and there prices have been cut in half. With almost every offering one is sure to get much greater value per dollar than in any year since broadcasting began. Many console sets are priced from slightly more than $100 to $300, though one may spend considerably more.

In addition to the hundreds of receiving sets on exhibition visitors will find many late developments from radio laboratories and broadcast features to interest them. The RCA-Alexanderson system of television, though still in the laboratory stage, will be exhibited for the first time in Chicago and for the first time outside of New York City. A continuous demonstration of this new picture-radio will be under the direction of Austin Rahe of New York. Stars of the stage, screen, radio and distinguished persons in business and professional life will appear before the televisor, and arrangements have been made so that the spectators can see them in person and on the television screen at the same time.

W-G-N to Broadcast.

W-G-N and other powerful Chicago stations will broadcast programs from the huge Crystal studio in the Coliseum.

For the first time in the history of the Chicago radio show colorful broadcasts, originating here, will be put on the air by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia broadcasting system.

The new musical instrument, theremin, operated entirely by radio waves, will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago.

In the radio pageant of progress visitors may examine historic pieces of equipment used in the days of wireless infancy nearly thirty years ago.

Radio dealers who will come from all over the midcontinent region are looking forward to a banner year. A 50 per cent increase in business over the 1928-1929 season is predicted for them. Last year 2,000,000 sets were sold in the United States. If sales continue at the present pace it is estimated that 10,000,000 sets will be in use in the country by next June.

Chicago's radio show is sponsored by the Radio Manufacturers' association. G. Clayton Irwin Jr. is general manager of the show and U. J. Herrmann is managing director.

RADIO LEADERS WILL WELCOME GUESTS TO SHOW

For the first time during the eight years of radio shows in Chicago there is to be a reception committee at the forthcoming Chicago exhibit. It consists of seven of the leaders in the industry. Not only will they welcome distinguished guests but they will be on the alert constantly to see that the visitors' stay is made pleasant from the moment they enter the door. The committee consists of:

H. B. Richmond, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, Cambridge, Mass.; T. K. Webster, treasurer, and Henry Forster, vice president, of Chicago; Maj. Herbert H. Frost, director and former R. M. A. president, New York City; Capt. William Sparks, Jackson, Mich., vice president; Morris Metcalf, Springfield, Mass., vice president; and C. C. Colby, Boston, Mass., director and former R. M. A. president.

RADIO SET OF FUTURE WILL BE HEARD, NOT SEEN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Remote tuning and volume control are expected to constitute the next era of broadcast development.

Experts predict the radio wired home, with the receiving set or sets located in basement or attic and controlled from loud speaker outlets in various parts of the house by means of remote tuning and volume controls.

Two or more receiving sets will provide a multiplicity of simultaneous programs.

Just as the ornate parlor stove of a past generation disappeared into the basement and made way for radiators and registers in piping heat to all parts of the house, so must the radio set eventually be heard but not seen in all parts of the home, it is said.

MYSTERIOUS MUSIC

Theremin has no keyboard, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids for manipulation, and there is nothing but atmosphere between the player and the instrument itself.

One hand controls the tone and the other the volume, the position of each hand in relation to the theremin determining the tones produced. As described by Hubert S. Conover, 'cellist of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, one of the few attending a private demonstration of the theremin, "Music is produced as though the hands were striking invisible strings of some celestial instrument."

Of course, it's mysterious radio that is responsible for the seeming impossibility that takes place before the eyes and ears of the observer. When the human hand is brought into a sensitive electrical field, surrounding one of the slender rods protuding from the theremin, the field is so affected that audio frequency notes, or sound, are produced, louder or softer as the position of the hand is changed. These are amplified and passed through a loud speaker. The position of the other hand with reference to a second rod or antenna determines the volume, in gradations down to the faintest whisper.

Theremin is the invention of a young Russian scientist, Prof. Leon Theremin.

Radio to Be Major Issue Next Session

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Radio legislation of vital importance to broadcasters and listeners-in alike, it now appears, will be one of the major issues of the next regular session of congress, scheduled to convene Dec. 2.

Present indications are that the life of the federal radio commission, which expires on Dec. 31, will be extended for another year pending completion of the senate interstate commerce committee's forthcoming investigation into the alleged "radio trust" and subsequent disposition of the Couzens bill to create a federal communications commission with jurisdiction over radio, telephone and telegraph systems, and power transmission.

Lively Fights Promised.

In addition lively squabbles are expected when attempts are made to repeal or modify the so-called Davis amendment to the 1927 radio law requiring equal distribution of radio broadcasting facilities among the states in proportion to population and also when attacks are leveled against division of the country into radio zones with sectional appointments of commissioners to represent them.

Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] and Representative W. H. White Jr. [Rep., Me.] have announced their intention to sponsor a bill to extend the life of the radio commission and both have expressed confidence that it will become law before Dec. 31 when the commission's authority as a licensing body would automatically expire and the commission would continue as an appellate group to review decisions of the department of commerce in the regulation of broadcasting.

Passage of the Couzens bill in the next session is generally conceded to be an impossibility in view of the senate committee's plan to investigate the alleged interlocking of radio, telegraph, telephone, cable and power companies as a basis for consideration of the proposal to abolish both the radio commission and water power commission and unify their powers in a single commission of five members to be appointed by the President.

"Hampers Commission."

Senator Dill who sponsored the Davis equitable distribution amendment in the senate indicated recently he will probably lead the fight for its repeal. When he appeared before the radio commission as voluntary counsel for station KWSC of Pullman, Wash., the senator asserted his belief that the amendment is unconstitutional "and hampers the commission tremendously."

"The whole cleared channel matter is a waste of radio facilities," he declared. "Personally, I do not think it constitutional to say that a great section like the west can have only as many stations as a little area up in New England."

Sen. Dill added that in advocating the Davis amendment when it came to the senate he was "compelled" by the same public sentiment which "forced the senate to accept it."

"I see no reason any longer to restrict the selection of members of the commission to any particular group of states," said Rep. White, discussing the proposal to abolish the limitation on the President in the appointment of radio commission members.

Problem of Geographic Needs.

"The problem of geographical needs with respect to radio has been met," he continued, "and there is no need of geographic distribution of members. A removal of restrictions will tend toward selection of the best available men for such a body."

Still another row centering in proposals to repeal the anti-monopoly provisions of the 1927 radio law is in prospect with the standing committee on radio law of the American Bar association and B. M. Webster, general counsel of the radio commission, on one side and Radio Protective association, a group of independent manufacturers, on the other.

The bar association committee and Mr. Webster are agreed that the provisions are unnecessary and the committee, which also denounced the Davis amendment, went so far in a recent report as to suggest that consolidation of wire and radio communication facilities should be permitted in order that American communication systems may keep pace with the British.

RADIO EXPERTS WILL LET SHOW VISITORS LISTEN TO RADIUM

All sorts of strange things happen in the great research laboratories of the country where men of science toil to discover more of the secrets of nature.

One of the impossibles, even to the research men, has now become the possible. It is the ability to hear the voice of radium. The ingenious device by which the feat is accomplished will be exhibited at the Chicago radio show and visitors may actually hear the continuous bombardment of the radium projectiles.

For many years science has been able to witness radium as it "talks."

MOTORIST USES RADIO RECEIPT FOR LICENSE

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—[U. P.]—A radio was more alluring than the necessary license for the operation of his automobile, Joseph Hosley confessed to police here recently.

When Joseph paid the $10 down on the radio, he decided to eat his cake and have it, too. So he pasted the radio receipt on the windshield of his car. The hoax proved a good substitute for a state auto license division receipt.

Joseph probably had more than one laugh at Milwaukee policemen, for his novel stunt began Jan. 1, and lasted until an alert traffic officer escorted him on a visit to a judge. The visit cost Joseph $10 and besides he must get a new auto license in a hurry.

Carrier Pigeon Dropped for Radio by U. S. Navy

All carrier pigeon activities of the United States Navy were abolished on Oct. 1 and the navy began sending all its messages by radio, it was announced recently by the navy department. Four hundred birds will be kept at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, and the naval station at Guam, but will not be used in regular message service. The Anacostia, D. C., naval air station lofts now have the greatest number of prize winning birds. "Jolly Tar," the station's star pigeon, won both the 500 mile and the 600 mile race. The station has furnished eight winners this year.

WHEN BATTERY WEARS OUT.

Inability to bring the specific gravity up to its original value by a normal amount of charging is an indication that the useful life of the battery is all over. After a certain length of time the active material on the plates becomes exhausted and nothing can be done to bring it back.

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR RECORD SEASON

Many New Features on Fall Schedule.

studios. In order to do this, Mr. Love will coöperate with the engineering department, controling the volume of each microphone in use as he listens to the result in a loud speaker before him.

In a more popular vein the vocal department of W-G-N offers the Rondoliers. They are a well trained male quartet glorifying the old fashioned idea of harmony.

The new season will fully demonstrate the possibilities of W-G-N's capable staff of pianists. Herbert Johnson, a familiar figure on the American concert stage, appears not only with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra but as soloist.

Leon Denditsky, pianist with the Tonecasters, has begun a series of Wednesday afternoon recitals.

Barry and Kottler.

Mischa Kottler and Edward Barry are two prominent Chicago pianists. Kottler has recently been engaged by Jean Goldkette for performance with dance orchestra, taken directly from the concert stage. Edward Barry, Sunday soloist for the last three years at W-G-N, has, during those years, conducted a most extensive and successful course of radio piano lessons annually. Bary is also an important member of W-G-N's program department.

Chamber music such as heard during the Musical Melange was the nucleus for a great organization of ensembles. Since the early days of radio the Drake concert ensemble and the Blackstone string quintet have been outstanding as string ensembles on the air. However, these ensembles have bene erely remote control subjects for broadcast.

Studio ensembles of woodwind, brass and string will appear almost nightly during the 1930 season at W-G-N. Novel combinations, of flute, oboe, and clarinet will be regularly announced.

The Tonecasters are a string trio now heard daily during the morning and afternoon programs. Armond Bieseret, violinist, directs Leon Benditsky and Leon Lichtenfeld, who play cello and piano with the trio.

W-G-N Players Ready.

Harry W. Spingold announces an extensive répertoire for the W-G-N Players for the coming season. He and Jean Conover, playwright, have selected a large number of classics to be reconstructed for radio presentation. As soon as the present series of dramatizations of Prohibition Killings is completed, the season will be open.

Among the new items of studio equipment to augment the presentation of programs are four new pianos. The studios have been completed. Attempts made to perfect a system of reproducing sound perspective have been astoundingly successful.

Among the finest of the long list of new features at W-G-N is to be a program known as "Chicagoland." It will begin next Sunday. In the preparation of this program, Edward Barry of the program and continuity department, coöperates with Alfred G. Wathall, eminent composer and member of the arranging staff of W-G-N. Mr. Barry has made extensive studies of Chicago's history in preparation of the announcements. Mr. Wathall has arranged a number of reminiscent melodies and has made several actual compositions for the programs.

Sports events, Christmas services, prize fights, the most brilliant of the operatic and concert stars, and a host of other broadcasts will make W-G-N's season exceptionally brilliant.

RADIO QUEEN

LELA M. OSBORN.

A daughter of the Kansas prairies born in a village of fewer than 100 people, whose pioneer ancestors helped carry civilization into the western plains, will be crowned "radio queen of America" Monday evening at the opening of the Chicago Radio show. She is Lela M. Osborn of Wichita, Kas., and in view of thousands of show visitors she will receive the loving cup which is emblematic of her newly won title. Miss Osborn's essay on the subject "What My Radio Set Means to Me" was awarded first prize by the judges in the annual essay contest conducted by the radio show.

Her love for music was undoubtedly inherited from her mother, who encouraged her in her early efforts and with whom she sang in the church choir in Healy and later in St. Paul's Methodist church in Wichita. With the advent of radio broadcasting Miss Osborn conceived the ambition of winning fame as a radio artist and by dint of ardent effort was given a chance to sing in several programs over KFH in Wichita.

COMMERCIAL USE OF TELEVISION BIGGEST BARRIER

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the commerce year book for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting upon the television circuit outdoor scenes was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

MAN MADE STATIC CAN BE QUELLED, 200 EXPERTS FIND

Correction of Troubles Usually Simple.

Have you a little static in your home? If so, don't worry too much, because the best engineering minds of the radio and electrical industries are combined to help you get rid of it!

Elimination of unnecessary noises that mar good radio reception has become a serious problem, not only for radio set owners and broadcasting stations, but also for manufacturers of radio receivers.

The problem became particularly acute for the radio manufacturing industry when the public at large blamed the set for giving audibility to all sorts of noises that had no connection whatever with entertainment.

The set itself, of course, is not responsible, and it is to inform set owners that many of these noises can be eliminated that the Radio Manufacturers' association published a book on radio interferences — "Home-Made Static and How to Avoid It."

There are two major types of interference, the book relates—natural and "man-made." Natural static, caused by lightning and other atmospheric disturbances, cannot be eliminated, although it can be reduced.

Static Can Be Reduced.

"Man-made static," however, being caused by man, can be eliminated by man. It usually comes from faulty electrical appliances located in or near the home that contains the noisy radio set.

To aid harassed set owners in finding and eradicating interference, the association enlisted the aid of more than 200 leading radio and electrical engineers. Under the supervision of H. B. Richmond these engineers reported their fullest knowledge and latest information as to the causes of static and the procedure necessary to find and eradicate them. The result of their reports, in condensed form, is given here:

The actual correction of the condition causing the interference is usually a simple matter. The most important step in eliminating or reducing interference is to trace it to a definite point or device.

The means for accomplishing this are not always within the province of the radio set owner and the course must be pursued as follows:

1. If your radio set is of the type which uses an antenna system (aerial and ground) the wire connecting the aerial and the wire connecting the ground should be removed from their respective binding posts and a short piece of wire substituted. Connect this wire directly across the aerial and ground posts.

Such procedure then leaves the radio set effectively without an antenna system, which is the collector of energy for the set. The result is that any interference which is being picked up outside the radio set itself is reduced or eliminated when the collector system is removed.

If the case is such that the interference is reduced or eliminated you may decide immediately that it is from an outside cause and not due to your radio set.

I. If, however, the interference continues with equal volume, a careful analysis of the radio set should be made. [Any reputable radio service organization will make this examination for a reasonable fee].

Consult Power Company.

2. When it is decided that the noise is due to outside causes and your local radio service organization has carefully checked the source, if it is found due to electric light or transmission wires, you should call the local power company and ask for assistance in reducing or eliminating the interference.

3. When satisfied that the interference is not due to electric light or transmission lines, and the set itself is free from internal noises, proceed carefully to check all lights, sockets, switches and electrical appliances in the house.

Experience teaches that common sense and careful elimination of each probable interference producer will bring very satisfactory results.

Once the faulty equipment is located the remedy is usually to connect a filter condenser of small capacity across the leads of the offending appliance. In 99 cases out of 100 this is found to be an effective solution.

TERRELL TELLS OF PROGRESS IN RADIO BROADCAST

U. S. Chief Traces 15 Years' Growth.

BY WILLIAM D. TERRELL.
(Chief of the Radio Division, Department of Commerce.)

As early as 1914 phonograph records of music were broadcast from a radio station in New York City. The purpose of transmitting music was to test different types of hydrogen arc radiotelephone transmitters. It was much easier to use phonograph records than it was for the experimenter to talk or sing into the microphone for long periods of time during a test, and the phonograph record provided the most efficient and easily obtained method of modulation.

At that time no one had any idea of the future possibilities of broadcasting entertainment. The few receiving sets in use on land were owned by government departments, commercial radio companies and amateurs. It was not until the fall of 1921 that the possibilities of radio broadcasting were fully realized which resulted in a demand for radio broadcasting station licenses. The first of these licenses was issued to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Wave Lengths Set.

The first proclem to be solved was to find a suitable wave length, or frequency, for the purpose. Ships were using 300, 450 and 600 meters, but as the 300 meter wave length was rarely used it was decided to put the broadcasting service on 360 meters to avoid interference with ship communication. A little later 485 meters was designated as the wave length upon which agricultural information and marketing reports would be broadcast.

If a station varied its frequency as much as ten kilocycles in those days no one was seriously inconvenienced, as the receiving sets were not very selective and wide variations reduced the heterodyne whistle which comes from the simultaneous operation of stations on or about the same frequency.

In March, 1923 the second national radio conference was called by Mr. Hoover, secretary of commerce. At this conference it was recommended that more channels be given to radio broadcasting and that ship stations be shifted to other positions. This resulted in the adoption of the present system of 10 kilocycle separation between broadcasting stations. After this it became necessary for transmitting stations to give greater care to maintaining their frequencies and our radio manufacturers to give more attention to selectivity in building radio receiving sets.

Frequency Stability Sought.

From that date until 1927 efforts were being directed toward improving frequency stability, which finally resulted in a great many stations adopting the method of crystal control.

During this period the radio division of the department of commerce was developing means for checking the frequency of stations from the offices of the supervisors of radio instead of measuring the wave lengths by the use of wavemeters taken to the stations, as had been the custom for many years.

In 1927 congress provided a special appropriation for the purpose of purchasing more precise monitoring or frequency checking apparatus for use by the radio division, but as there was no apparatus suitable for this purpose on the market it was necessary to have specially designed apparatus manufactured so that measurements could be made showing variations of a few cycles rather than a few hundred cycles, which was the limit of precision of some of the apparatus in use at that time. This new apparatus is now being delivered and installed.

There are ten sets to be in the offices of the supervisors of radio distributed as follows: Boston, New York, Baltimore, New Orleans, Los Angeles San Francisco, Seattle, Detroit, Chicago and St. Paul. Six portable sets are to be used on test cars assigned to Baltimore, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Detroit and Kansas City. It is planned to have additional installations at Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Hawaii and Alaska and on two additional test cars to be assigned to Seattle and Boston.

Checks Station Accuracy.

The most important unit of this monitoring system is to be an installation about six miles from Grand Island, Neb., where a fifty acre site of land has been procured and contract has been awarded for the erection of a building to be used exclusively for this purpose.

This station is to be known as the constant frequency monitoring station and will serve as a check on the accuracy of all of the other stations, while its accuracy will be based upon the national standard at the bureau of standards.

From this station it is expected that frequencies of all of the principal stations in the United States and the principal stations of other countries can be checked.

The measuring apparatus to be installed at this station will be of such design that it will be capable of making measurements of an accuracy of one part in one million. Three types of receivers are to be installed at this station, two of which cover the frequencies from 100 to 30,000 kilocycles and the third covers from 10 to 100 kilocycles, using both loops and antenna and having extreme selectivity and sensitivity. The arrangement of the receivers permits simultaneous use at all times. Each receiver is to be in a shielded booth.

Special Antenna System.

All power supplies, although generated on the premises, are to be filtered and shielded. The standards and receivers will be operated entirely from storage batteries, all provided in duplicate and charged by means of small motor generators through a suitable distribution system connected to the main power plant. A special antenna system, in conformity with the latest developments in this line, is to be erected.

The station is to be built around a room having 2,000 square feet of floor space, in which will be installed all of the standard equipment and receivers. In addition to this large room there will be rooms which can be used for dormitories, kitchen, workshop, office, storage batteries, motor generators and switchboards. An adjacent building will provide garage space and power plant. Every effort is being made to have the station complete in itself so that twenty-four hours a day service will be insured throughout the year.

Official Record Kept.

An official record of the monitoring work, or frequency checking, has been maintained during the last year. This record shows the advantage of carrying on work of this character. During the earlier measurements many stations varied as much as from five kilocycles to forty-eight kilocycles. Today few of them vary more than 500 cycles, and a great many of them are maintaining their frequencies within 100 cycles. During a period of seven and one-half months 22,450 measurements of broadcasting stations were made. When the new equipment is in operation the checking will not be limited to broadcasting stations, but will include stations above and below the broadcasting band and a force of men will be assigned to this work exclusively.

While the measuring of frequencies of the broadcasting stations is perhaps of greatest interest to the public, the measurement of the higher frequencies will be of extreme importance to the communication services, where the frequencies are rapidly coming into use for international communications, point-to-point communication in this country, air service, amateurs, and government services.

As many of these short wave stations are far-reaching in their effect it is anticipated that considerable time must be given to checking stations in foreign countries which may be causing interference with our international short wave stations.

This branch of the inspection work of the radio division of the department of commerce is just developing. It is anticipated that it will be one of the most important fields of activity and should prove of great benefit to the public.

Interference caused by the simultaneous operation of stations on the same frequency and interference caused by the operation of various types of electrical devices will continue to be a source of annoyance, but the remedy for this does not rest with the radio inspection service.

RADIO TUBE NOW DOES DUTY AS ELEVATOR MAN

It takes an experienced operator to stop an elevator evenly at the various floor levels and even then they never always make perfect stops so that passengers do not have to "watch their step" getting on or off. That it takes the humble vacuum valve to do the job perfectly, year in and year out, is a fact that is little known to the radio public, versed as it is in the abilities of this magic tube for radio reception.

The use of vacuum tubes in the automatic leveling of elevator cars, in button controlled systems, depends on the characteristic of the increase of plate current when the tube is "in" or "out" of an oscillating condition.

SHAW ASKS 4 BILLIONS.

George Bernard Shaw, noted British dramatist, when asked recently by a radio director to state the sum for which he would write a drama for radio use, cabled a reply: "Four billion dollars might be sufficient, but that is not a contract."

EDISON, HOOVER FORD ON W-G-N TOMORROW NIGHT

World-Wide Climax to Light Jubilee.

An international broadcast without precedent, featuring talks by President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, and Henry Ford, is announced by the NBC as a world-wide climax of the Golden Jubilee of Light, Monday night, Oct. 21. W-G-N will broadcast the program, which comes at 6:30 p. m. central standard time.

It will be Science's night on the air. The ceremony is intended as a scientific world's tribute to the inventor of the electric light and will be staged with all ingeniousness engineers can evolve. The NBC networks, coast to coast, will be linked with short wave transmitters to relay the details to listeners throughout the nation.

A Tribute to Edison.

Besides the response by the Wizard of Menlo Park, talks by President Hoover and Henry Ford will mark formal dedication of the Edison School of Technology, founded by Ford as a tribute to his friend Edison. The broadcast will originate in Dearborn, Mich., where Ford has reconstructed the original laboratory and machines used by Edison when he invented electric light. Not only the old wooden laboratory but also the original lathes, work benches, and lamps are there as the nucleus for a new technical school.

Radio listeners will join the assemblage of world famous scientists at the closing minutes of Ford's dinner to Edison, at which Owen D. Young is toastmaster. A novelty will be music of 1879, year of Edison's invention, played by an old fashioned orchestra.

The notables will then visit the old laboratory, where Edison will make a duplicate of the original lamp from similar materials. Edison will work by the glaw of an oil lamp, as all other lights are turned off, and many cities throughout the country will dim their lights simultaneously.

Edison to Make Tests.

Graham McNamee will describe the scene as Edison tests the "newfangled contraption, a light which burns without gas or flame and is cheaper than oil." As old generators hum and lights of 1879 flare up, McNamee will give the radio signal to resume modern illumination in all cities participating. Edison will then cross the laboratory and play the reed organ he kept at the end of the room.

Short talks by world famous scientists, whose names are withheld, and a brief address by President Hoover will end the festivities. The climax of Light's Golden Jubilee will be on a full hour from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. eastern standard time, Oct. 21. Both WEAF and WJZ in New York will be linked in NBC's nation-wide hookup, with short wave networks to other continents.

STATION STAFF OF KFI STUMPED BY TOUGH QUESTION

SAN FRANCISCO.—Recently a request was received at KFI which puzzled at first and afterward caused much amusement.

A piping, treble voice, evidently that of a child, called on the telephone:

"Say, mister, your station is playing too fast. How can I slow it down on my set?"

RADIO WEATHER REPORTS LESSEN FISHING PERILS

Broadcasts Also Report Where Schools Are.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The hazardous life of a fisherman on the bleak coasts of New England and Newfoundland has become a great deal less dangerous recently with the establishment of a special broadcasting of weather information for fishing boats at Gloucester, Mass.

During the last half century the number of accidents to fishing vessels at sea caused by storms has been stupendous, according to Rear Admiral Andrews, commandant of the first naval district, Boston.

"The annals of the fishing towns from Machias, Me., to New London, Conn., are filled with sad stories of ships and men lost at sea," he reports, "or the disappearance of ships and crews after each storm. The people safe on land have been slow to recognize the peril of these mariners, but the establishment of station WHDH at Gloucester marks an epoch during which it may be confidently expected that these maritime disasters will be reduced to a minimum."

Only 5 Per Cent Without Radios.

Although at present only between 10 and 15 per cent of the 800 fishing vessels which operate out of New England ports are equipped with radio apparatus for receiving and transmitting, from 70 to 75 per cent are equipped with small broadcasting receivers and only 5 per cent [small craft] have no means of reception whatever. Moreover, these operate close to the shore.

Station WEEI of Boston has also been giving a special ocean broadcast for fishermen at the request of Admiral Andrews, but this information is more of a general nature and is not as valuable as the specially prepared weather data which are carried by WHDH.

This double service not only insures that all fishermen receive information regarding the weather at least twice daily, but it is so broadcast that the lobster fishermen at home may, through their receiving sets, obtain weather information which is of inestimable value to them in their work.

Keeps Fishermen Informed.

This service not only aids the fishermen far off the coast of New England but keeps every fisherman informed of the weather conditions, whether he fish far offshore for hake, halibut, haddock, pollack, cod, cusk, or mackerel, or comparatively close inshore for lobsters and other shellfish.

It is a distinct advance in the method of protection for the vast fishing industry of New England, which has proven such a source of wealth for the last 300 years.

Not only does this service protect the fishermen but it also notifies them of where they may obtain bait, the ports where the fish are most urgently needed, and where the highest prices prevail.

Tells Where Fish Are.

It also tells them where the schools of various fish are at the present time, since it is intended that large vessels which are fitted with radios capable of sending messages will inform station WHDH of the location of the fish, and this station in turn will broadcast it by voice to the smaller vessels which are fitted with receiving sets.

Fishermen far at sea on the Grand banks or on Georges banks no longer are cut off from urgent news from their loved ones at home, and such news will form a part of the broadcast from this station.

Federal Radio Board Faces Heavy Schedule

A heavy schedule of hearings this fall and early winter faces the federal radio commission. More than 400 cases have been docketed to be heard before Dec. 31, when the present term will expire. About one-half are applications for new stations. Most of the remainder are petitions for kilocycle changes and increase in power. There now are 609 broadcasting changes. When the commission was created there were 732.

FEDERAL COMMISSION SEEKS TO CUT DOWN CHAIN DUPLICATIONS

An attempt to prevent duplication of chain radio programs on the listeners' dials is being made by the federal radio commission in a survey of broadcasters on cleared channels who use chain programs at night.

Copies of a questionnaire, designed by W. J. Clearman at the instigation of Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, asks fourteen questions. The information, obtained from fifty odd stations, will be used "to assist the commission in its work of assigning frequencies to broadcasting stations in such a way as to provide the satisfactory reception of desirable programs without unnecessary duplication, interference and waste."

Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, recently hurled charges of favoritism to chain systems as against independent stations at the radio commission, and complained of the commission's continual postponement of putting into effect general order No. 43, which would limit the operation of stations on cleared channels broadcasting the same programs to transmitters 300 miles apart. This order has been delayed upon five different occasions, the latest effective date being set for Dec. 31.

SURVEY REVEALS BIG GROWTH OF RADIO RESEARCH

A recent survey of the leading radio manufacturing establishments reveals the growing importance of radio research. No longer is the radio industry content to have the designs set by one or two leaders, with the rest following suit. Rather, while the main principles may be set by one or two leaders, the various radio manufacturers are keen to work out their own individual ideas, with the result that there is sufficient competition in radio design to keep the industry forging ahead.

"This year's radio sets," states J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio Institute, "display a delightful variety of ideas and designs, indicating the widespread growth of radio research."

TELEVISION NOT YET PRACTICAL COMMERCIALLY

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the Commerce Yearbook for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting outdoor scenes on the television circuit was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

Russian Broadcasts from Moving Balloon

NEW YORK.—The description of the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin, given orally direct from an airplane, recalls the talk given several months ago from a balloon over Moscow, says P. A. D. Andrea, radio expert. An engineer installed a transmitter in the balloon and communication with land stations was established at a height of 13,000 feet. Two way communication was maintained continuously for two days and two nights, which was picked up by Odessa, Vladivostok, Minsk and Leningrad.

Unlicensed Listeners in Australia Are Convicted

The postal department of the Australian government has instituted a campaign against unlicenced radio listeners and has thus far convicted 1,707 listeners, according to a statement by the United States department of commerce.

BIGGEST STUDIO ON TOP WORLD'S LARGEST BUILDING

N. B. C. Picks Chicago for Finest Quarters.

Complete plans for erection and equipment of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, atop the largest building in the world, are announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company. The new Chicago studios of the company will be situated on the roof of the Merchandise Mart, in the heart of the city.

The most modern equipment for broadcasting will be installed in studios, offices and laboratories, and engineers have devised plans for meeting radio problems as far into the future as possible. More than 62,000 square feet of floor space will be required to house the various activities.

Opening Jan. 1, 1930.

Formal opening of the new quarters, tentatively planned for Jan. 1, 1930, will be a definite step in fulfillment of Mr. Aylesworth's prediction two years ago that Chicago is destined to become one of the greatest broadcasting centers of the world. The fact that the Chicago headquarters of the National Broadcasting company are to be more pretentious than those now in use in New York, Washington, and San Francisco is regarded as a significant recognition of the importance of Chicago's position in the broadcasting field.

In the new location special construction will eliminate many of the physical and mechanical limitations of the usual office building. The quarters have been designed and will be built under the direction of O. B. Hanson, manager of operations and engineering.

Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, designers of the Merchandise Mart, will represent the NBC in architectural design and supervise the construction.

The new quarters will open with six studios, fully equipped with the latest developments in radio apparatus. Wire lines and other facilities will be installed, permitting expansion to an unlimited number of studios.

Largest Studio in World.

Studio "A" will be the largest radio theater in the world. It will be seventy-five feet long, fifty-one feet wide, and with a twenty-six foot ceiling, giving a total floor space of 3,820 square feet, and a total content of 99,450 cubic feet. It would provide standing room for more than a thousand persons, it is estimated.

The studio will have a large number of innovations in equipment. Instead of the usual velvet or monks' cloth drapes utilized in the regulating of acoustical effects, it will be walled with adjustable narrow panels. It is believed to be the first installation of this sort ever attempted.

A great pipe organ and organ loft, specially adapted for radio presentations of varied character, will be installed. A raised stage, for use in productions permitting the presence of an immediate audience, will occupy one end of the studio.

10,228 Feet Floor Space.

The other studios vary in floor size and ceiling height to meet various acoustical conditions. The total floor space devoted to the six broadcasting rooms will be 10,228 square feet, and total content will be 265,928 cubic feet.

Each studio will have a soundproof glass enclosed balcony to enable invited guests both to see the performance in the studio and hear it through loud speakers as the radio audience hears it.

All the studios except "F" will be on the nineteenth floor of the Mart, but will be two stories in height.

On the nineteenth floor will be the offices of the division engineer, plant and operating engineers, control boards, music library, musicians' rest rooms and lockers, reception rooms, announcers' rooms and lockers, artists' reception rooms, emergency first aid room, quarters for the library staff and engineering laboratory.

On the twentieth floor will be the office of the vice president in charge of the Chicago division, general office, agricultural department, program, press, sales and station relations departments, a conference room and studio "F." From observation rooms on the twentieth floor, visitors will be afforded a view of the performances in the studios.

Studios Without Windows.

The studios will be without windows (and partially hermetically sealed for soundproof) the ventilation being regulated through modern equipment maintaining a constant flow of pure air at a regulated temperature, and with a uniform degree of humidity. With this system, temperature is automatically maintained, within a variation of two degrees Fahrenheit.

In the center of the main control room will be two main control boards, each thirty feet long. One will be used for amplifiers, relays and controls of studio equipment.

RADIO STOPPING DRIFT OF FARM FOLK TO CITIES

Makes Education at Home Possible.

WASHINGTON. — Radio has done more than anything else in the last four years to check the drift of farmers to the city, according to J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute here.

Figures from the department of agriculture show that in 1926 approximately 649,000 more people deserted the farm for the city than from city to the farm, while in 1928—the latest figures available—only 188,000 more people left the farm for the city than from the city to the farm.

The reasons for this drift to the city, according to a recent analysis made by the bureau of agricultural economics, are economic conditions, and leaving the farm in order to get better educational advantages for their children in the city.

"It is my candid belief," continued Smith, "that radio has gone a long way toward wiping out these two reasons for the rush to the city.

Get Educational Features.

"A more extensive use of broadcasting facilities by farming agencies, the department of agriculture and other organizations giving weather, crop and market reports, will assist the farmer in putting his business on a more efficient basis. Radio has, indeed, become an economic necessity on the farm today.

"Further, radio is relieving the farmer of the necessity of breaking up his occupation and moving to the city to give his children an education Broadcasting is bringing and in the future will bring even more educational features right to the farmer's fireside. Recognized and accredited high school and college courses are given on the air in some sections, and will undoubtedly be given more generally in the near future."

New Day for Farmer.

Radio is a boon to the farmer, his wife and children. It is bringing them advantages and pleasures never before enjoyed.

A new day for American agriculture is being ushered in, Smith declared, in commenting on the applications of the federal state marketing service of California for seven broadcast station licenses to be used in a state-wide market quotations service.

"There is no question but that radio can be effectively used by farm cooperative agencies in the scientific marketing and distribution of agricultural products," continued Smith.

"In using radio this way the farmer is applying modern business principles and practices to his work and it will undoubtedly help to improve his economic status.

"Hence radio is not only a source of entertainment and education on the farm but it has become an economic necessity."

Australia Convicts Its Unlicensed Listeners

Convictions recently have been obtained by the Australian government in the cases of 1,707 unlicensed broadcast listeners. New South Wales had the greatest number of convictions, 804. Penalties amounted to £3,121 and costs to £1,321 pounds. The license fee in Australia is $5.84.

Television Actress

Bonnie Blue, Chicago's first television actress, will entertain daily during the radio show. Visitors will see and hear her sing blue songs over television with sound. Miss Blue is a Chicago girl.

TINFOIL MAKES IDEAL APARTMENT "LEAD-IN" WIRE

Apartment dwellers and others who have unusually long aerials—so long in fact that reception is hindered—may be interested in a noval solution of the lead-in question. Incidentally, this idea gets around the need for drilling holes in window frames or walls.

Two large sheets of heavy copper or tin foil are obtained—perhaps 8 or 10 inches square. One is glued to the outside of the glass at the center of the window and the other exactly opposite, on the inside. The aerial lead wire is connected to the foil by picking up a corner and soldering. Inside, a wire from the foil leads to the antenna binding post of the set. The sheets of foil form a fairly large fixed condenser with glass insulation. Since the condenser is a "series" condenser, it is useful in cases of long aerials.

182 RADIO POLICE NOW.

There are now 182 government inspectors working under the supervisors, policing the ether and seeing that the broadcasting stations keep on their assigned wave channels.

STOCK TO OPEN CONCERT SERIES ON W-G-N TODAY

Symphony Orchestra Ready for Bow.

Dr. Frederick Stock and the world famous Chicago Symphony orchestra will be heard on the air for the first time this year today from 2 to 3 o'clock over W-G-N. The orchestra will broadcast each Sunday afternoon over a National Broadcasting company network.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the orchestra when they broadcast for the first time over a chain last year so delighted Dr. Stock that he decided to accept the invitation to give another series of concerts this season.

Acclaimed by music critics both in America and abroad as one of the finest musical organizations in the world, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has established a firm place in the hearts of American music lovers, and last year won nation-wide praise for their series of Sunday concerts under the same sponsorship.

Every modern broadcasting facility that engineers have devised will be used to make the reproduction of every note heard by the radio audience faithful to the finest degree. Dr. Stock has placed his personal approval on the perfectness of the broadcast and has stated that the radio does ample justice to his noted organization.

JUST TO PLEASE THE DIVA.

It was explained on the air recently that "O Promise Me," the hit in "Robin Hood," was written in the last minute to please a temperamental prima donna.

RADIO RELICS TO BE COLLECTED BY SMITHSONIAN

Government Agencies to Participate.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Radio's "hall of fame," now only a figurative something, is to become an actuality.

Within the Smithsonian institution in Washington there will be exhibited all of the available historical radio apparatus that can be collected, so that a graphic picture of the romance of radio may be depicted for posterity. The display will range from the first type of "spark gap" transmitter to the present water cooled tube circuits with their powerful signals.

Plans for the creation of a "radio museum" were discussed at a conference called by Capt. S. C. Hooper, chief of naval communications, and attended by representatives of other government departments and of a radio corporation which possesses a complete collection of historical radio apparatus. The conference unanimously agreed that there is a real need of the preservation of apparatus having historical significance, and steps immediately were taken to urge the Smithsonian institution to approve such a collection for display. Heads of all governmental departments and agencies likewise are being solicited to donate whatever radio equipment of an obsolete yet historical nature they have stored away.

Institution to Participate.

It was brought out by C. U. Mitman, curator of the Smithsonian institution, that the institution is anxious to obtain a historical exhibit of radio and will participate in any projects to procure the necessary equipment.

At the round table discussion, Capt. Hooper said that a large amount of radio apparatus of no value for service, but invaluable for historical purposes is being held at the navy yard in Washington, as well as at other navy yards and bases. Within a short time this material will be "junked" unless otherwise used. This statement served to reveal that at army depots throughout the country and at the United States bureau of standards equipment of a similar nature is lying about of practically no use.

Mr. Mitman explained, however, that under the law, historical apparatus or material held by any of the government departments cannot be loaned or given to agencies outside the government unless approved by the Smithsonian institution. Thereupon it was decided that the Smithsonian should be petitioned for the collection of this equipment and its arrangement for a suitable historical exhibit.

Inventors Still Alive.

The reason for the collection of such apparatus at this time is that many of the individuals who participated in the development in radio are still alive and available for the acquisition of authentic records of their inventions.

In its letter to the Smithsonian the conference, which was of an informal nature, asked that a formal committee consisting of representatives of the Smithsonian, departments of war, navy and commerce, Institute of Radio Engineers and three nongovernmental representatives be appointed for the "radio museum" collection. Mr. Mitman said that he believed the institution would be willing to sponsor the organization of the committee to carry through the collection of the apparatus.

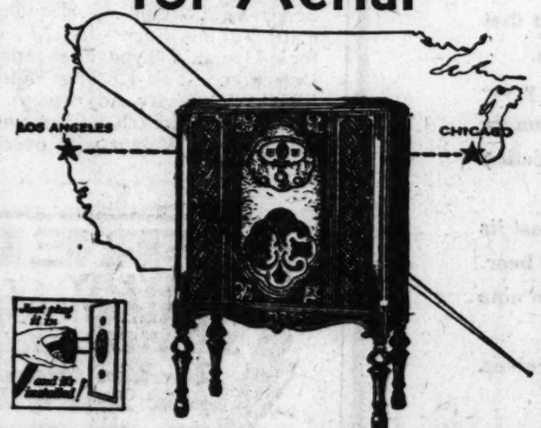
2000 MILES with only an ICE PICK for Aerial



Illustrated is the beautiful Concert Grand. The top is of four-way matched butt walnut and surmounts side panels of diamond grained oriental walnut, flanking a central panel of figured bird's-eye maple, the whole hand rubbed to a mirror-like polish. It contains the standard SILVER RADIO eight tube screen-grid chassis, electro-dynamic speaker, and screen collector.

Price absolutely complete, less tubes, $173.00

Your dealer also has the Sheraton Lowboy at $160.00, and the Sheraton Highboy at $195.00.

IF YOU'RE the sort of human that thrills to fast cars and horses, that gets a big kick out of a 300-yard drive, or one of Babe's homers—then get ready for the biggest thrill of all from SILVER RADIO.

For SILVER RADIO is the one outstanding radio that does simply amazing things—like bringing to your living room programs two thousand miles away with only an ice-pick for aerial . . . like bringing in programs direct from Japan, Australia, and New Zealand, as SILVER RADIOS in the west do.

Because SILVER is that kind of a radio, your SILVER RADIO dealer is ready to make, in your presence, four of the most amazing tests you've ever witnessed—tests so stiff that you can pick without error the best radio. Ask your dealer to make the "Ice-Pick Test", the "Vanishing-Aerial Test", the "Hairpin Test", and the "Coin Test" . . . they'll show you the amazing difference between SILVER RADIO and all others.

SILVER RADIO—product of the manufacturer who introduced screen-grid radio to America in 1927—is guaranteed to get more programs without an aerial—it doesn't need any—than nine out of ten other radios will get with big interference-collecting outdoor aerials, and . . .

After all, why not have the best in your home, too? . . . tell your SILVER RADIO dealer you've "come to see his four amazing tests".

VIBRA-CONTROL
brings true tone realism to
NEW FADA RADIOS

MUSIC is simply audible vibrations. Controlled, they bring harmony. Uncontrolled, discord. Sounds simple, yet radio's greatest problem was to control these vibrations.

But today all this is ended . . . for Fada has at last achieved Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all radio vibrations . . . and with it has eliminated distortion, interference, rumbles, rain barrel tones and roars.

On a Fada every note, every shading of tone now comes to you exactly as broadcast . . . exquisitely true, surprisingly clear . . . a mirror-like reproduction of the artists themselves. For Vibra-Control is the long-sought secret of tone realism.

It would take a thousand words to explain this great achievement; but in ten minutes you can discover what Vibra-Control will mean to you. Hear it today . . . and get the thrill of radio reception stripped of mechanical noise.

Only Fada has Vibra-Control, priced from $99.50 to $675.00.

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

—In all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence

Quite naturally some people discriminate in favor of excellence. Consequently, their choice of the new all-electric, screen grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

will come as a matter of course

IN THE HOUSES in which they live . . . the motor-cars which stand gleaming on their drives . . . the meals they serve in their dining-rooms . . . in short, in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence, a certain discrimination. These are people of good taste.

There is a radio receiver—the Eveready—which fits in with a life such as theirs, which fits in with a point of view demanding excellence in everything they own.

Its fidelity of reception is remarkable

Put it in a living-room and you have seats at a symphony concert . . . listen to it as you dine and you are transported to a table beside a polished square of dance floor in a smart restaurant . . . the excitement, the oratory, the color of a political campaign is yours without leaving your house . . . the President speaks to you as clearly as if you were present in Washington . . . this is the sort of reception you get—this is the sort of reception discriminating people demand—in the new Eveready Radio.

Its tone is full, round and agreeable. And because of the "weather-proof" principle incorporated in the new Eveready Radio the reception even on damp, humid nights is remarkably clear and free from distortion.

Its excellence is not a matter of months but many years

But if this were all people of good taste knew about the new Eveready Radio, they would hesitate to buy. Their whole point of view towards life requires that they also look for permanent, as well as momentary, excellence; that they look for the sort of perfection which comes with the ideal of precision building, an ideal which looks into the distant future as well as tomorrow.

So carefully, so precisely, is this fine instrument built that you may expect, not six months or a year of performance, but five, yes even ten years of satisfying reception. The large scientific organization which has expended years of research in making this radio receiver will add improvements, of course, as they are tested and tried out. That is taken for granted.

But the buyers of this radio receiver are not asked to consider mystifying technical terms, new accoutrements, devices and details comprehensible only to experts. Such things bore them. They know that whatever they buy is the best. Hence, they buy this radio.

EVEREADY SCREEN GRID CONSOLE MODEL 52, $157.50 (LESS TUBES)

Model 53, a larger console, $195 (less tubes)—Model 54, the de luxe console, $225 (less tubes), using the same perfected screen grid chassis. Pacific Coast prices slightly higher.

— mystifying technical terms bore them

You will want this remarkable radio receiver

And so, if you are a person who discriminates in favor of excellence, if your whole attitude towards life looks for effects, not causes, you will want the new Eveready Radio. That is why, when you see it, hear it, notice its beautiful cabinetwork, you will say, "Of course this is the instrument for my household."

—her point of view demands excellence in everything she owns

LAFOUNT TELLS WAYS TO BETTER RADIO PROGRAMS

Must Give People What They Want.

BY HAROLD A. LAFOUNT.
[Radio Commissioner, Appointed from Zone Five.]

Any comprehensive plan for general improvement of radio programs in the United States necessarily resolves itself into a procedure whereby more persons will receive more of what they want, when they want it.

In order to accomplish any material degree of progress in its broadest sense, it is essential that the broadcast structure be considered as a whole, and that each unit fit into a general scheme of production and distribution, operating with conscious regard for its part in the scheme.

Our present radio structure comprises approximately six hundred units, functioning independently, and to some extent, competitively. There is no common denominator in practice, and little unity of purpose. Each station aims, in some degree, to give programs acceptable to its listeners, but in so doing most of them utterly disregard the availability and quality of such programs from other sources.

Measured by Public Reaction.

The question of what constitutes a desirable program is obviously one of individual prejudice, and opinion is of little value except in the mass. We are obliged to measure program values by public reaction, and to grade them by the response they evoke, giving due attention to the size of the potential audience.

Desirable programs have been established to fall into one of two types: first, those designed to be of unusual interest to a limited group or area; second, those which have been demonstrated to be of general interest or importance. Predominance of either type of program serves to identify a radio station.

On the above basis we are able to divide radio stations roughly into three classes:

The first group, fewer than a hundred in number, may be designated class A. By reason of availability of talent, unusual conditions of financing, connection with a network service, or combination of these factors, they consistently present programs of high quality and of general interest. These stations furnish our present standard of excellence in presentations designed for other than local consumption. They are able to broadcast the finest of music, by the best of artists, and to broadcast many features of uplifting and informative nature.

Constant Experimentation.

Undoubtedly the material that they put on the air is subject to much improvement. There is constant experimentation in the methods of presentation, and constant progress in the work of mechanical "pick-up" and transmission. Class A stations are naturally leaders in such improvement.

There is a rather sharp dividing line between the above mentioned group and those which we may designate class B. These are broadcasters whose supply of talent is limited, whose revenues are small, and who have not the advantages of network program services. In this class are several hundred stations struggling valiantly to give good programs. They deserve serious consideration in the measure that they play an integral part in the life of their communities. However, judged on the basis of the general interest value of their programs, they cannot be said to be at all comparable to those in class A.

A third class, which we may call class C, comprises a relatively small number of stations which devote much of their efforts to propaganda in behalf of religious, political, or social matters, or which are concerned with promoting a single business institution. From the standpoint of general interest their programs may be said to have a minimum of value, and in this discussion they may well be disregarded.

Ways Toward Improvement.

Two methods, not necessarily alternative, suggest themselves as essential to a comprehensive effort to improve broadcasting:

1. To raise the service value of class B stations to their communities.

2. To make class A programs available everywhere with such clarity and volume as to permit selection on a basis of desirability, rather than strength of signal.

Class B stations, for the most part, have neither money nor talent available for programs of general importance. Most of them would not fit economically into the present broadcast networks and are thereby prevented from transmitting programs emanating from centers where talent is more readily engaged. Progress in class B, it appears, will result from natural economic determination. The basis of radio financing now is advertising revenue, which in turn, has its prime requisite in listener interest. The listener is the foundation stone of the house.

If he is pleased with the program he is a potential purchaser of the products promoted in the program. If he is displeased, or is intrigued by a program elsewhere, he ceases to be a potential customer. Thus we have a logical cycle: Good programs, many listeners, pleased advertisers, more revenue. Or, conversely, poor programs, few listeners, unsatisfied advertisers, decreasing revenue.

It is apparent that class B stations cannot compete with class A stations in programs of widespread interest. It seems obvious that they should, therefore, give service to their listeners which they can do better than can those of class A. They can furnish specific service to specific communities, and justify their place in the general scheme. Those which are attuned to the spirit of their listeners, which present desirable material not otherwise available, are economically entitled to prosper. Those which fail to thus serve their listeners are likely to fall before the march of progress. It is the law of industrial "survival of the fittest."

The problem of better dissemination of class A programs at present involves possible engineering evolution and perhaps revolution. There is, of course, a fair coverage of the country through broadcasts of network programs, and those from a few other stations in metropolitan areas. Cleared channels have improved the reception considerably over that of a few years ago.

But there is still a large audience which is not able to receive important programs with volume sufficient to assure consistently high quality.

U. S. SIGNAL CORPS DEVELOPS ADVANCED AVIATION RECEIVER

A new radio receiver of great promise for use in airplanes has been developed by the signal corps of the army. It is said to represent a decided advance in radio equipment and to meet the four most important requirements of an aircraft set—light weight, ease of installation, compactness, and simplicity of operation.

The instrument is a five tube set, known in the army as type VT-5. The circuit comprises a coupling tube, a stage of tuned radio frequency, a regenerative detector, and two stages of audio frequency amplification.

The receiver is uncontrolled and operation is quite simple. The coupling tube has been employed in such a way that variations of the antenna, due to the swinging of the trailing wire when an airplane is maneuvering, will not react on the circuit of the receiver and affect its tuning.

An outstanding feature is excellent regeneration control. So carefully has this been designed that the receiver can be made to operate smoothly without electrical "backlash" throughout its entire range. It covers a frequency band of 250 to 1,500 kilocycles or about 1,200 to 200 meters.

STATION BUILT IN WORLD'S WORST RADIO CLIMATE

The country with the world's worst radio climate has finally bowed to the popularity of entertainment via the air. A station has been constructed in Colombia.

Being in the hottest corner of the Caribbean territory and with difficult natural conditions, Colombia has denied herself the privilege of local broadcasting until recently when a transmitter was built at Bogota with a studio installed at the Capitol for broadcasting Congressional proceedings and theater performances, according to word received by the U. S. department of commerce from James J. O'Neill, assistant trade commissioner.

Colombia becomes the 69th broadcasting country, and the station brings the total in foreign countries to 609. United States stations total 612.

ANNUAL COST OF RADIO SET POWER IS $10,000,000

Current operated radio receiving sets were worth $10,000,000 in revenue to the electric light and power companies of the country during the last year, it is estimated by the National Electric Light association, which has just completed a survey of the load and revenue factors of the different household appliances.

Although the radio set is still comparatively new as an electric appliance, the revenue from current used by it last year was exceeded only by the returns from electric flatirons and ironing machines, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and ranges, and the rapid spread of the electric set bids fair to bring it among the very heaviest users of current within a year or two.

Scaling down all estimates of the number of electric sets in use, so as to allow for duplication in all other counts, the association figures that approximately 2,565,000 were in regular service last year, using an average of 60 kilowatt hours of current at an average cost of 6.55 cents per kilowatt hour, making a total cost for current of $10,080,000 for the year, or an average of $3.93 for each set.

A decided increase in the revenue from this source is anticipated by power officials, who point out that the number of sets in use last year represented less than 10 per cent of the number of homes wired for electricity, figured at 28,808,000.

Even at that, it is declared, radio sets last year were the seventh most popular of electrical appliances, the number in use being exceeded only by flatirons, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, fans, toasters and percolators. In point of current consumption, the radio set was exceeded only by ranges, refrigerators, ironing machines, oil burners and flatirons, but the consumption by these latter appliances is fhduced by a rate approximately only half of the regular current rate, through the provision of reduced charges for current used for power, while radio sets take the regular rate charged against current for lighting.

Mysteries of Radio Studio Surprise to Mountaineer

DENVER.—A lean, weather beaten man with the peculiar stoop of the mountaineer, sauntered into KOA recently and asked to be shown through the station. The hostess first took him to the main studio where the larger instruments of the orchestra were placed. The xylophone took his eye. He walked all around it, examined the long sound chambers, felt the wooden slabs above them gingerly. At length he stood back in awe. "Well, I'll be!" he ejaculated. "So that's your broadcastin' machinery."

What is Tri-toned Radio?*

Every musical instrument has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity, or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural overemphasis of any part of the scale.

"IT ISN'T RADIO...IT'S THE HUMAN VOICE"

Hear Kylectron

The revolutionary new method of sound reproduction... as sensational as the first tube set...the one new thing in radio this year

KYLECTRON is new in principle, new in design. It isn't an attachment, it isn't a tube, it isn't a "refinement." It is as different from ordinary methods of radio reproduction as the modern tube set is different from the old-fashioned crystal set.

Hear it . . . and you will have an entirely new conception of how perfect radio can be. Through Kylectron you hear everything exactly as it is broadcast. Kylectron changes nothing . . . adds nothing . . . takes away nothing . . . from the instrumental or vocal music that reaches the microphone in concert hall or studio. It reproduces everything just as a perfect mirror reflects an image. It is sensitive enough to reproduce a sigh; powerful enough to bring you the crash of a brass band without distortion; without "hum;" without mechanical sounds. Hear Kylectron . . . and you'll say as thousands have said: "Surely, science can go no further." Kylectron is offered today only in Courier and Peerless Radios . . . receivers which in themselves have everything you've always wanted.

Screen grid . . . certainly!

Courier and Peerless are screen grid radios. They use three screen grid tubes. In addition they have power detection, push-pull amplification, single dial tuning, light-socket operation, complete shielding; in short, they have everything that has been proved sound in radio engineering.

They are super-sensative. They get the distant stations so you can enjoy them. Their selectivity is sharp enough to cut through powerful local stations but not so sharp as to eliminate the side-band frequencies of a station which give the necessary "back-ground" to music and speech.

Hear these radios now!

Step into the Courier-Peerless dealer's store and listen to Kylectron, or arrange for a free home demonstration. Turn the tuning dial yourself. Set the volume control at a mere whisper and then bring the sound up until it fills the room. There's no distortion, no "hum," no mechanical sound. Just thrillingly delightful music . . . the kind of radio music you've been waiting for. Visit one of the stores tomorrow. There will be no obligation.

Courier Radio—$85 to $165
(without tubes)

Courier Radios are encased in console cabinets which are exquisite examples of the most expert designers, the finest craftmanship and the generous use of the world's finest woods. They are the kind of cabinets you'd expect to find only on extremely high priced sets. There are models with Kylectron or the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

Peerless Radio—$195 to $600
(without tubes)

It is impossible to build finer cabinets than those used to hold Peerless Radios. They are not merely "something to hold a radio" but exquisite pieces of furniture. Examine them carefully and you'll find nothing but the finest woods, nothing but the best in construction. Peerless Radios are made in models with Kylectron, or with the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

FIND USE FOR STATIC, ENEMY OF RADIO FANS

But Scientists Admit It Can't Be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After more than a decade of research, radio scientists have virtually admitted their inability to eliminate the devastating effects of static in the reception of broadcasting programs, but they are by no means through with their study. They have now begun to harness it for the benefit of mankind even though radio listeners gain nothing from the results of their experiments.

At this time of year, when the thoughts of the huge public of radio entertainment turn eagerly to visions of cold winter nights when reception is undisturbed by a jumble of noises that sound like a buzz saw in a box of automobile tools, such news is not so doleful as it might be at the beginning of summer. For the period from Oct. 1 to March 15 is ordinarily considered the most favorable to receptibility.

But even in warm weather, the situation is not so serious as it might seem in view of the improvements that have been made in receivers and transmitters and the growing tendency to depend on local rather than distant stations for radio programs.

Admits Science Is Balked.

Dr. L. W. Austin, head of the laboratory for special radio transmission research at the United States Bureau of Standards, admitted, in answer to the question, that scientists are balked by static. So far as can be determined now, this bane of listeners will be with us always.

The chief reason for this is the distinct similarity between the mode of propagation of the static pulses and the radio signals, according to Dr. Austin, who is internationally recognized as one of the foremost authorities on static in the world. Then, too, static can not be eliminated because, like the weather, it is caused by atmospheric conditions which as yet are beyond the control of science.

The most sensible solution to the problem, which Dr. Austin has been advocating for some time, is already being adopted, viz., the reliance on local stations, which may be in chain hookups, and the use of more powerful transmitters. Moreover, listeners are learning, he said, that often when the strength of the reception is diminished, the programs come in more clearly because the static is also made less noticeable.

Numerous Schemes Tried.

All sorts of schemes have been tried to overcome static but without marked success. Among these has been the underground antennae, which the navy was inclined to believe, for a while during the world war, was superior to the overhead directive system. It was found later, however, that static in comparison with signal strength is almost as bad in the ground as it is in the air.

A fraud order was issued several months ago against an invention which, it was claimed, would eliminate static in radio reception by the underground method after the bureau of standards had declared its claims false.

Static, like the proverbial ill-wind, has some useful qualities, the contentions of disgruntled listeners to the contrary. And it is these good points that are now attracting radio scientists to further research.

Even though the experts themselves do not agree on the cause or causes of static, they are finding it valuable in the location of storms and consequently a contributor to the safety of life in the air and at sea.

Determines Storm Position.

In Europe, static is being employed to determine the position of storms, and to chart weather maps along aviation routes, and in America, experiments along these lines are just beginning. The United States navy has found that static can be used on the high seas to trace the course of hurricanes, thus enabling warships to dodge the storms. In the northwestern wooded areas of this country, static is being used to warn rangers of approaching forest fires by means of its weather forecasting proclivities.

The relationship between weather conditions and forest fires—those originating from natural causes—has been established. This relationship is so definite that the weather bureau issues forecasts of forest fire dangers based on the "complement of the humidity." Also, there is an apparent relationship between static and relative humidity; and on this hypothesis the major obstacle to radio reception is being harnessed in order to determine the amount of moisture in the atmosphere.

As forest fires take a toll of approximately $20,000,000 worth of timber and other property annually, the use of static in determining the amount of moisture in the air may compensate for some of the evils that the millions of listeners suffer.

Two Schools of Thought.

There are two schools of thought on the origin of static, according to Dr. Austin. One group holds that static for the most part is caused by lightning. Thus, even if there is no storm within a 1,000 miles of you, the static that troubles your receiver may come from a lightning discharge far away, mayhap the other side of the world. Their contention is that there is always lightning somewhere in the atmosphere and that the waves caused by the discharges are carried over the world.

The second school of experts admits that lightning is a prominent cause of static but contends that there are other electrical discharges, not visible to the eye, which are also to blame. For instance, the contact between two currents of air of different temperature may effect such a discharge. Static is worse in low pressure areas and in mountainous regions, Dr. Austin said.

Fading, which is often associated with static and often blamed on the same sources, is caused generally by the interference of radio waves and only rarely by atmospherics, according to Dr. Austin, who was inclined to discount the interference of the waves that travel through the air with those that move along the earth as the cause of fading at great distances. It comes rather from two waves traveling by different paths which have been reflected by the upper atmosphere, he said.

Radio Sets Reach Public Through Varied Sources

An interesting sidelight on radio merchandising is contained in the diverse channels by which radio equipment makes its way to the consumer. Reports show sales by firms and individuals giving their principal lines of business as that of poultry raiser, harness shop, funeral director, court reporter, baby chick hatchery, poolroom, optometrists, insecticide dealer, patent medicine dealer and what not.

NOMINATED

Raymond A. Heising, who has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

RADIO ENGINEERS NAME HEISING INSTITUTE HEAD

Inventor, Research Expert Is Nominated.

Raymond A. Heising, well known radio engineer, has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers for 1930 by the board of direction of the institute.

Mr. Heising is engineer on the technical staff of the Bell telephone laboratories located in New York. He has a long record of study and achievement in the radio field. After receiving his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1914 he joined the research department of the Western Electric company—incorporated some years ago with Bell telephone laboratories. He participated in the long distance radio telephone experiments of 1915 and developed and operated the transmitting sets for the Montauk-to-Wilmington experiments and for those carried on between Arlington and San Francisco, Honolulu, and Paris.

Aided in War Research.

During the war he was a member of the subcommittee on "wireless communication between aircraft" of the national research council. Many of his investigations at this time were with radio telephony for airplanes, sub chasers, and other military units.

After the war he took part in the development of the ship to shore radio telephone, and later in the development of the long wave trans-Atlantic radio telephone circuit. For the last four or five years he has been investigating short wave phenomena and carrying on fundamental research in connection with the recently completed short wave radio systems.

Seventy Patents to Credit.

Mr. Heising has published many technical and scientific articles in the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and in the Physical Review, and has over seventy patents to his credit and others pending. In 1921 he was awarded the Morris Liebman Memorial prize by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Other members nominated are: Vice president, Col. A. G. Lee, staff engineer in charge of radio, engineering department, general postoffice, London, England.

SCIENTISTS PROVE RADIO SIGNALS CAN PIERCE SOLID ROCK

Proof that radio waves can pierce solid rock seems to have been established conclusively by experiments in the Mammouth cave of Kentucky and in the Mount Royal tunnel in Montreal. Two scientists of the McGill university department of physics, Dr. A. S. Eve and Dr. D. A. Kays, have just reported the results.

In both tunnel and cave low frequency signals came in plainly, although their strength was not so great as in open air reception. In both tunnel and cave high frequency stations could not be tuned in. The report states that signals from distant radio stations were heard under 300 feet of sandstone and limestone. Precautions were taken to prevent signals from coming through passageways or through wiring.

HYDE FINDS RADIO NEW LEAVEN OF RURAL AMERICA

Breaks Down Isolation of Former Days.

BY ARTHUR M. HYDE.
[Secretary of Agriculture.]

WASHINGTON.—Agriculture needs radio. It carries to the most remote farm social values, aesthetic values and business information. It overleaps the barriers of space and breaks down isolation.

More than any other group in the United States, our farm people depend upon radio in their business and in their home life. "Radio belongs to farmers" said an official of the big broadcasting systems recently. He went on to explain his remark in this wise:

"The business man gets reports of his markets from a ticker. Until radio came along the farmer was without similar comparable information on markets. The urban family can easily attend church services led by the great divines, hear the music of famous choirs, symphony orchestras, opera companies; until the advent of radio the farm family had scant opportunity to share these inspirations.

"Spectacular and historical events, such as the inauguration of presidents and direct contact with the leaders of thought and action, are carried by radio to the most isolated farm homes.

"Lacking radio, the rural population even with the telephone and good roads would still be close to that condition of isolation and loneliness which was described and decried a quarter of a century ago in the report of President Roosevelt's country life commission."

Developing Business Service.

Our broadcasting experience in the department of agriculture has largely been confined to development of the business service of radio to the farm.

The earliest broadcasting stations sent weather information—forecasts, warnings, etc.—in coöperation with the United States weather bureau, and crop and market news supplied by the bureau of agricultural economics. Later, the department established a radio service of timely information on production practices in agriculture and on scientific homemaking. Each year since the birth of broadcasting has seen a steady growth in the number of radio stations making these services available to the rural audience. At present 215 radio stations transmit weather reports obtained directly from the weather bureau; 114 stations broadcast crop and market news, some of them on schedules running up to four-time periods daily; 163 stations send six or more of the eight programs of general farming and home making information supplied by the department; and a network of 29 stations associated with the National Broadcasting company provides at noontime a national farm and home hour program.

27 Stations Serve Farmer.

All told, with duplications eliminated, 227 of the 610 radio broadcasting stations in the United States coöperate with the federal department of agriculture in one or more ways to serve farmers and home makers. Included in the list are virtually all stations of one thousand watts or higher power. The time devoted to this specialized service would command, at commercial rates, much more than one million dollars a year. It is freely given to agriculture without cost except the expense of supplying speakers or facts.

This coöperation of broadcasters with the department of agriculture does not tell the whole story of radio service to rural America. Nineteen of the land grant colleges of the United States maintain their own radio stations. These are broadcasting from a maximum of forty-three to a minimum of three hours a week with a large proportion of their time devoted to programs of farm and home information. Of the 19, one is on a "cleared" channel, the remaining 18 on regional channels. Their power ranges from 10,000 to 250 watts.

Colleges Supply Speakers.

Land grant colleges in the remaining 27 states supply speakers and programs to commercial broadcasting stations, except in a few states which do not possess powerful transmitters. State boards of agriculture or bureaus of markets in some great agricultural states such as Missouri and Wisconsin operate their own broadcasting stations. In other states the boards or departments of agriculture have accepted the offer of commercial radio facilities.

National, state, and smaller units of the farm organizations maintain agriculture information and promotion programs through numerous stations. On occasion the national network systems send special agricultural broadcasts into every part of the country. Rural listeners will recall many of them, including the program of the Institute of Coöperation last July and the National 4-H club program arranged by the department of agriculture last June which brought the 500,000 farm boys and girls in this organization a message from Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Farm Families Appreciate Radio.

Farm families owning radio sets use the business aids extended by the nation's broadcasters; they appreciate—how profoundly few can realize—the widening of cultural and social horizons made possible by the genius of electrical science.

Literally thousands of letters coming to the department bring home to us the fact that, through radio, a new heaven is working in rural America. Farm families testify that the radio "brought church services to our home." "Helped out in the back country," "made it possible for us to hear Presidents speak and opera stars sing," "taught us a number of new wrinkles," "brought relaxation to us," "made farm life more pleasant."

What the results will be in the way of a higher level of culture I am not bold enough to predict. Necessarily there will be developed closer ties of unity and of interest among the different sections of the nation. These are intangible values, values which cannot be listed or tabulated, values none the less real.

Western City Has Law to Help Radio Listeners

An ordinance has been passed by the city council of Sacramento, Cal., prohibiting the operation of devices, appliances, and equipment which interferes with radio broadcasting reception between 2 p. m. and 11 p. m., with the exception of machines used by doctors and of licensed radio stations and the operation of public utilities.

PLACEMENT OF AERIAL.

An outdoor aerial should, whenever possible, be strung in an open space away from nearby objects, such as trees, buildings and other wires, particularly those that run parallel with the aerial. Anything of a nature that will absorb radio signals will take away just so much energy from the aerial.

TO BROADCAST WAR PLAY.

The British Broadcasting company announces that it will broadcast "Journey's End," the British war play, on Armistice day, in the evening.

SWEDEN CLAIMS MOST SETS PER 1,000 CITIZENS

STOCKHOLM.—Sweden leads the world today in the number of receiving sets in proportion to its population, according to a recent survey completed here. The latest statistics show that there are 412,115 sets to about 6,000,000 inhabitants, or 67.5 per each thousand.

Dr. Per Lindberg, one of Sweden's leading theatrical directors, who recently joined the Stockholm station as dramatic instructor and manager, is credited by experts here as having introduced new ideas in programs. This month Dr. Lindberg presented every Saturday a dramatic sketch called "the comedy of the week," in which actors and actresses present in a playlet the most important happenings at home and abroad.

Another spirited series of entertainment consists of dramatic tales from each country covering various national traits and customs.

LONDON-EGYPT RADIO TELEPHONE SERVICE PLANNED

The Egyptian ministry of communications has submitted to the council of ministers a note embodying the draft of an agreement to be concluded between the Egyptian government and the Marconi company for the establishment of a wireless telephone service between Cairo and London, the U. S. department of commerce was informed by the commercial attaché, Charles E. Dickerson Jr., at Cairo.

The full text of the statement follows:

The draft fixes the communication fee at about $25 for three minutes and $7.50 for each extra minute. The royalty to be given to the Egyptian government will be equivalent to the royalty to be paid to the British government on condition that it should not be less than 50 cents a minute. Teh draft agreement allows the Marconi company to extend, in future, wireless telephone communication between Egypt and other capitals of Europe.

Chicago Radio Show Opens in Coliseum Tomorrow

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR WINTER SEASON

Many New Features on Schedule.

With the broadcast of the world series and the first big football games W-G-N opened what assuredly will be the most brilliant season in the station's history.

Henry Selinger, general manager and musical director of W-G-N, stated yesterday that the presentations planned for the coming season will be unrivaled in an American studio.

Gaston du Moulin, director of the W-G-N symphony orchestra, has made an extensive study of musical presentations for the radio and is ready with the best in orchestral music. He has learned to take full advantage of the tone perspective possibilities of the new W-G-N studios, assuring accurate and colorful reproduction at the receiver.

Goldkette Ready with Hits.

Jean Goldkette employs a staff of alert, jazz conscious arrangers, which includes Victor Young, prominent orchestrator and violin virtuoso; Ken Davis and Bill Huxley of piano fame. They with Jean have scoured the 1930 musical shows appearing, or to appear in New York, in search of the hits of the coming season. They have already made a few choice selections, and are now at work on the orchestrations. The brass and saxophone sections have been reinforced.

Carleton Coon and Joe Sanders have returned to their winter quarters at the Blackhawk restaurant. Joe has a few new tunes appearing which promise to be, in the vernacular, wows.

Time on the air for Coon-Sanders Nighthawks has been increased in response to thousands of requests. The Saturday midnight show, the Knights of the Bath, has a new master of ceremonies, Bob Elson. The Knights of the Bath is one of the few "call up" request programs remaining in a city which used to be full of them.

Love Plans Choral Groups.

Mark Love, vocal director of W-G-N and newly appointed acoustician, plans the organization of several new choral groups. Mr. Love is one of the most prominent singers of oratorio music in America and has had years of experience with radio work.

An innovation in the presentation of opera is expected to mature this season. Famous operas will be reduced to musical dramas, written in the continuity department of W-G-N, so that the story will be completely told independently of the acting and singing. As the famous arias are reached a competent group of chorusters and the finest soloists available will sing them.

In these operas Mark Love, as acoustician, will play a vital part. The duties of the acoustician are to balance the volume of independent parts of a program emanating from different

MAID OF HONOR

Miss Irma Glen, staff artist of station WENR, will preside over the radio show as maid of honor. She will be the official hostess throughout the sessions of the exhibition.

RADIO'S HISTORY TO BE SHOWN AT EXPOSITION

Story Is Dramatized for Visitors.

The story of radio's rise from the time the first wireless signals flashed across the Atlantic until today when it is regarded as one of the master instruments of the ages will be dramatized before the eyes of visitors in the special $100,000 radio pageant of progress section of the Chicago radio show which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow.

The radio pageant is without parallel in its completeness, range of material, technical scope, and historic appeal. Nothing is missing—photoradio, television, high speed wireless, ship-to-shore broadcasting, railroad and airplane apparatus. There are models and miniatures of entire installations, complete in every detail—apartment houses, high powered trans-Atlantic stations with towers, aerials, transmitting and receiving buildings, all reproduced with the fidelity of the originals.

Pictorial History.

Accompanying each exhibit is a complete pictorial history of the subject, photographs taken of high spots in its development from the crude things of earlier days to present day technical excellence.

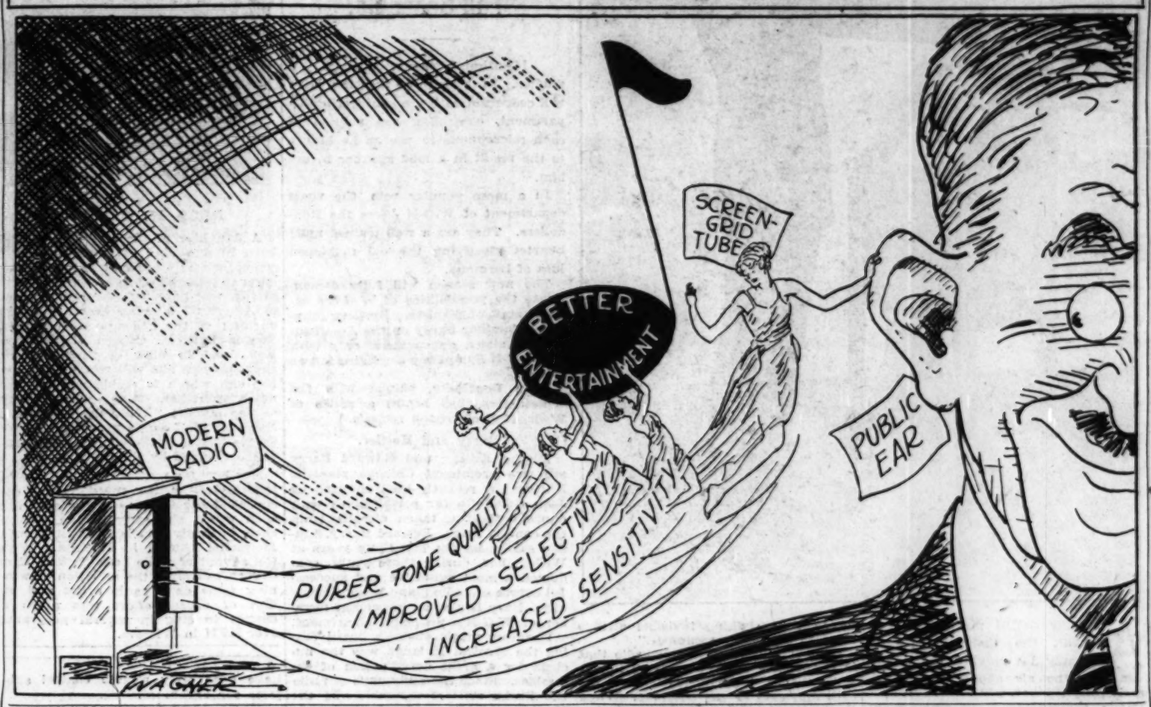
The exhibit has been many months in preparation and material has been gathered when necessary to round out one collection or another from England, France, Germany, and other foreign countries.

Marconi's First Equipment.

In the exhibit there is a Baden-Powell kite, associated in the minds of every one who knows radio with the carrying aloft of the aerial at St. John's, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12, 1901, when Marconi first succeeded in trapping a trans-Atlantic wireless signal. Also to be seen is an exact replica of the apparatus on which the famous inventor first heard the three-dot signal, the letter "S," sent from Poldhu, England, while the Baden-Powell kite plunged about aloft. They were the three dots which changed a world.

Compared to modern radio apparatus the Marconi apparatus as exhibited at the Chicago radio show is so crude that it is sure to amaze spectators. Helped by no regeneration or amplifiers, and without even a thought of a loud speaker, Marconi heard England.

ACHIEVEMENT



Illinois-Michigan Game on W-G-N Next Saturday

Next Saturday, W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the homecoming game at Champaign, where Illinois meets the Michigan eleven from Ann Arbor, with Quin Ryar at the michrophone. The week following the Illinois-Northwestern game at Evanston goes on the air.

AIR AND RADIO LAWS TO COME BEFORE PARLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—[U.P.]—In this picturesque city overlooking the great "Father of Waters" from the commanding Chickasaw bluffs the American Bar association will meet in its 152d annual national convention Oct. 23-26.

More than 5,000 members are expected to convene within a stone's throw of where Gen. Andrew Jackson opened his first law office here just 11 years after the bar association was organized in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1777.

Three principal topics for discussion are included on the program for the convention. They are aviation laws, revision of radio laws, and bar entrance requirements.

DAMROSCH TO START NEW CLASSES OVER W-G-N ON FRIDAY

Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, presents another of his series of radio classes in musical appreciation through W-G-N and a coast to coast network of stations connected with the National Broadcasting company, next Friday at 10 a. m.

These programs are part of a series of educational programs designed to be included in the musical curriculum of schools. Through them a complete symphony orchestra, augmented by the genius of Mr. Damrosch, can be brought to the classrooms of elementary schools, high schools and universities all over the country.

ADVERTISING ON RADIO NETWORKS DOUBLES IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Advertising over radio chains has nearly doubled during the last year, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of census of the department of commerce.

During the first seven months of 1928 advertisers spent $5,133,000 for facilities over the Columbia and N. B. C. chains. During the same seven months of 1929 they spent $9,974,000, representing an increase of over $4,500,000.

Advance information coming from Los Angeles is that Clara Bow's next picture will be called "Station S-E-X." Is it radio or what?

MILLION DOLLAR DISPLAY, LAST WORD IN ART

Sets Are in Beautiful Cabinets.

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

With the finest display of radio creations ever brought together under one roof Chicago's eighth annual radio show—a million dollar exposition this year—opens tomorrow in the Coliseum. And until the doors close next Sunday night at 11 o'clock on the latest offerings of nearly 300 exhibitors, Chicago remains the capital of the ether-minded world.

Every inch of available space in the Coliseum, including the main building, mezzanine balconies, and north and south ballrooms will be occupied in presenting the latest in radio styles to crowds that will be record breaking, if early fall sales are a reliable index to the season's radio interest.

Show visitors will be impressed with the fact that the radio industry has suddenly grown up. It has had a steady, measured stride hitherto unknown. Each of Chicago's previous expositions revealed products with revolutionary features unheard of at the preceding show. Last year saw a general introduction of the all electric receivers, the flowering of console or cabinet sets, and dynamic speakers.

The Screen Grid Tube.

This year brings a further perfection of these features and with them a definite and secure place in the radio sun for the screen grid tube.

The tube, it is claimed, has a capacity for increasing the circuit's sensitivity, sharpening tuning, producing added volume and enhancing the tonal quality. And tonal qualities, one learns, are what sell radios this year.

Few demand long distance tuning any more. All of the well known types will bring in plenty of fine programs. Fine cabinets—and they are finer than ever this year at somewhat reduced prices—help to sell the radio. They are likely to attract the eye, but the ear is the final arbiter. If the old set would give as fine a tone as the new ones many potential customers would not buy this year. Further improvement in speakers has helped radio in this major achievement of the year—the acquisition of the rich, clear voice of maturity.

Million Dollar Display Is Last Word in Art.

The Radio Phonograph.

Of course, there are other features that will attract buyers. A remote control by which a set may be tuned from any part of the house, several devices for automatic tuning, including a visual tuning meter. Many of the new all electric sets are radio phonographs. This sort of set appears to have staged something of a comeback. If you are pleased with a certain radio selection you buy it for the phonograph and play it over; if it's a dull day for radio, you choose your own music.

With approximately 75 per cent of radios purchased, or at least chosen, by women, console cabinets and built-in speakers are more popular than ever. Women look at a radio not only as an instrument for producing music and entertainment but also as a piece of furniture. Hence manufacturers are striving for cabinets that will satisfy the most exacting tastes. In speaking of their latest designs they employ such phrases as "old English," "pilasters of diamond matched oriental walnut plywood," "Carpathian elm arched doors," "Gothic motif," "exterior of Jacobean beauty," and "Charles II. motif."

Set for Every Purse.

This year there appears to be a set for almost every pocket. A general tendency on the part of most manufacturers to get into the low priced field is manifest. Here and there prices have been cut in half. With almost every offering one is sure to get much greater value per dollar than in any year since broadcasting began. Many console sets are priced from slightly more than $100 to $300, though one may spend considerably more.

In addition to the hundreds of receiving sets on exhibition visitors will find many late developments from radio laboratories and broadcast features to interest them. The RCA-Alexanderson system of television, though still in the laboratory stage, will be exhibited for the first time in Chicago and for the first time outside of New York City. A continuous demonstration of this new picture-radio will be under the direction of Austin Rahe of New York. Stars of the stage, screen, radio and distinguished persons in business and professional life will appear before the televisor, and arrangements have been made so that the spectators can see them in person and on the television screen at the same time.

W-G-N to Broadcast.

W-G-N and other powerful Chicago stations will broadcast programs from the huge Crystal studio in the Coliseum.

For the first time in the history of the Chicago radio show colorful broadcasts, originating here, will be put on the air by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia broadcasting system.

The new musical instrument, theremin, operated entirely by radio waves, will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago.

In the radio pageant of progress visitors may examine historic pieces of equipment used in the days of wireless infancy nearly thirty years ago.

Radio dealers who will come from all over the midcontinent region are looking forward to a banner year. A 50 per cent increase in business over the 1928-1929 season is predicted for them. Last year 2,000,000 sets were sold in the United States. If sales continue at the present pace it is estimated that 10,000,000 sets will be in use in the country by next June.

Chicago's radio show is sponsored by the Radio Manufacturers' association. G. Clayton Irwin Jr. is general manager of the show and U. J. Herrmann is managing director.

RADIO SET OF FUTURE WILL BE HEARD, NOT SEEN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Remote tuning and volume control are expected to constitute the next era of broadcast development.

Experts predict the radio wired home, with the receiving set or sets located in basement or attic and controlled from loud speaker outlets in various parts of the house by means of remote tuning and volume controls.

Two or more receiving sets will provide a multiplicity of simultaneous programs.

Just as the ornate parlor stove of a past generation disappeared into the basement and made way for radiators and registers in piping heat to all parts of the house, so must the radio set eventually be heard but not seen in all parts of the home, it is said.

STOP

HUM use ARCTURUS BLUE A-C long life TUBES

MYSTERIOUS MUSIC

A MYSTERIOUS musical instrument, the theremin, played simply by moving the hands in the air above a polished mahogany cabinet, will receive its first public demonstration in Chicago at the radio show, opening tomorrow.

Theremin has no keyboard, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids for manipulation, and there is nothing but atmosphere between the player and the instrument itself.

One hand controls the tone and the other the volume, the position of each hand in relation to the theremin determining the tones produced. As described by Hubert S. Conover, 'cellist of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, one of the few attending a private demonstration of the theremin, "Music is produced as though the hands were striking invisible strings of some celestial instrument."

Of course, it's mysterious radio that is responsible for the seeming impossibility that takes place before the eyes and ears of the observer. When the human hand is brought into a sensitive electrical field, surrounding one of the slender rods protuding from the theremin, the field is so affected that audio frequency notes, or sound, are produced, louder or softer as the position of the hand is changed. These are amplified and passed through a loud speaker. The position of the other hand with reference to a second rod or antenna determines the volume, in gradations down to the faintest whisper.

Theremin is the invention of a young Russian scientist, Prof. Leon Theremin.

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR RECORD SEASON

Many New Features on Fall Schedule.

studios. In order to do this, Mr. Love will coöperate with the engineering department, controling the volume of each microphone in use as he listens to the result in a loud speaker before him.

In a more popular vein the vocal department of W-G-N offers the Rondoliers. They are a well trained male quartet glorifying the old fashioned idea of harmony.

The new season will fully demonstrate the possibilities of W-G-N's capable staff of pianists. Herbert Johnson, a familiar figure on the American concert stage, appears not only with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra but as soloist.

Leon Denditsky, pianist with the Tonecasters, has begun a series of Wednesday afternoon recitals.

Barry and Kottler.

Mischa Kottler and Edward Barry are two prominent Chicago pianists. Kottler has recently been engaged by Jean Goldkette for performance with dance orchestra, taken directly from the concert stage. Edward Barry, Sunday soloist for the last three years at W-G-N, has, during those years, conducted a most extensive and successful course of radio piano lessons annually. Bary is also an important member of W-G-N's program department.

Chamber music such as heard during the Musical Melange was the nucleus for a great organization of ensembles. Since the early days of radio the Drake concert ensemble and the Blackstone string quintet have been outstanding as string ensembles on the air. However, these ensembles have bene erely remote control subjects for broadcast.

Studio ensembles of woodwind, brass and string will appear almost nightly during the 1930 season at W-G-N. Novel combinations, of flute, oboe, and clarinet will be regularly announced.

The Tonecasters are a string trio now heard daily during the morning and afternoon programs. Armond Bieseret, violinist, directs Leon Benditsky and Leon Lichtenfeld, who play cello and piano with the trio.

W-G-N Players Ready.

Harry W. Spingold announces an extensive répertoire for the W-G-N Players for the coming season. He and Jean Conover, playwright, have selected a large number of classics to be reconstructed for radio presentation. As soon as the present series of dramatizations of Prohibition Killings is completed, the season will be open.

Among the new items of studio equipment to augment the presentation of programs are four new pianos. The studios have been completed. Attempts made to perfect a system of reproducing sound perspective have been astoundingly successful.

Among the finest of the long list of new features at W-G-N is to be a program known as "Chicagoland." It will begin next Sunday. In the preparation of this program, Edward Barry of the program and continuity department, coöperates with Alfred G. Wathall, eminent composer and member of the arranging staff of W-G-N. Mr. Barry has made extensive studies of Chicago's history in preparation of the announcements. Mr. Wathall has arranged a number of reminiscent melodies and has made several actual compositions for the programs.

Sports events, Christmas services, prize fights, the most brilliant of the operatic and concert stars, and a host of other broadcasts will make W-G-N's season exceptionally brilliant.

RADIO QUEEN

LELA M. OSBORN.

A daughter of the Kansas prairies, born in a village of fewer than 100 people, whose pioneer ancestors helped carry civilization into the western plains, will be crowned "radio queen of America" Monday evening at the opening of the Chicago Radio show. She is Lela M. Osborn of Wichita, Kas., and in view of thousands of show visitors she will receive the loving cup which is emblematic of her newly won title. Miss Osborn's essay on the subject "What My Radio Set Means to Me" was awarded first prize by the judges in the annual essay contest conducted by the radio show.

Her love for music was undoubtedly inherited from her mother, who encouraged her in her early efforts and with whom she sang in the church choir in Healy and later in St. Paul's Methodist church in Wichita. With the advent of radio broadcasting Miss Osborn conceived the ambition of winning fame as a radio artist and by dint of ardent effort was given a chance to sing in several programs over KFH in Wichita.

COMMERCIAL USE OF TELEVISION BIGGEST BARRIER

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the commerce year book for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting upon the television circuit outdoor scenes was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

MAN MADE STATIC CAN BE QUELLED, 200 EXPERTS FIND

Correction of Troubles Usually Simple.

Have you a little static in your home? If so, don't worry too much, because the best engineering minds of the radio and electrical industries are combined to help you get rid of it!

Elimination of unnecessary noises that mar good radio reception has become a serious problem, not only for radio set owners and broadcasting stations, but also for manufacturers of radio receivers.

The problem became particularly acute for the radio manufacturing industry when the public at large blamed the set for giving audibility to all sorts of noises that had no connection whatever with entertainment.

The set itself, of course, is not responsible, and it is to inform set owners that many of these noises can be eliminated that the Radio Manufacturers' association published a book on radio interferences — "Home-Made Static and How to Avoid It."

There are two major types of interference, the book relates—natural and "man-made." Natural static, caused by lightning and other atmospheric disturbances, cannot be eliminated, although it can be reduced.

Static Can Be Reduced.

"Man-made static," however, being caused by man, can be eliminated by man. It usually comes from faulty electrical appliances located in or near the home that contains the noisy radio set.

To aid harassed set owners in finding and eradicating interference, the association enlisted the aid of more than 200 leading radio and electrical engineers. Under the supervision of H. B. Richmond these engineers reported their fullest knowledge and latest information as to the causes of static and the procedure necessary to find and eradicate them. The [illegible] of their reports, in condensed form, is given here:

The actual correction of the condition causing the interference is usually a simple matter. The most important step in eliminating or reducing interference is to trace it to a definite point or device.

The means for accomplishing this are not always within the province of the radio set owner and the course must be pursued as follows:

1. If your radio set is of the type which uses an antenna system (aerial and ground) the wire connecting to aerial and the wire connecting to ground should be removed from their respective binding posts and a small piece of wire substituted. Connect this wire directly across the aerial and ground posts.

Such procedure then leaves the radio set effectively without an antenna system, which is the collector of energy for the set. The result is that any interference which is being picked up outside the radio set itself is reduced or eliminated when the collector system is removed.

If the case is such that the interference is reduced or eliminated you may decide immediately that it is from an outside cause and not due to your radio set.

I. If, however, the interference continues with equal volume, a careful analysis of the radio set should be made. [Any reputable radio service organization will make this examination for a reasonable fe].

Consult Power Company.

2. When it is decided that the noise is due to outside causes and your local radio service organization has carefully checked the source, if it is found due to electric light or transmission wires, you should call the local power company and ask for assistance in reducing or eliminating the interference.

3. When satisfied that the interference is not due to electric light or transmission lines, and the set itself is free from internal noises, proceed carefully to check all lights, sockets, switches and electrical appliances in the house.

Experience teaches that common sense and careful elimination of each probable interference producer will bring very satisfactory results.

Once the faulty equipment is located, the remedy is usually to connect a filter condenser of small capacity across the leads of the offending appliance. In 99 cases out of 100 this is found to be an effective solution.

RADIO AS CRIME DETERRENT IS SHOWN BY TESTS

Chicago Police Soon Will Have Own Station.

Radio as a crime deterrent by reason of its aid to the police in expediting the speedy apprehension of criminals, was emphasized recently by W. J. Zucker, Chicago radio manufacturer. He cited the fact that the police of Chicago, Detroit and other large cities have resorted successfully to the use of the wireless communication in combating the activities of holdup men, burglars and perpetuators of other major crimes.

Mr. Zucker, who has made an exhaustive study of the commercial and social potentialities of radio, said that since the Chicago police had been experimenting with radio, there were not only fewer crimes reported, but a greater number of arrests made in cases where crimes were committed.

Mr. Zucker praised Police Commissioner William F. Russell of the Chicago police department for his initiative in employing radio as an adjunct to his detective force. He predicted that the time was near at hand when the police of each metropolitan area would have its own broadcasting station in order to more efficiently fight crime.

Speedy Apprehension.

"The best way of fighting crime and discouraging the tendencies of those about to launch upon a criminal career, is to make an example of those who commit crimes," said Mr. Zucker. "This can only be accomplished by certain and swift punishment.

"The first step toward the punishment of a person who has committed a crime is the speedy apprehension of the guilty one and radio has given satisfactory evidence of its value in this regard.

"Radio has played more or less of a dramatic part in overtaking criminals on ships at sea while fleeing to a refuge in a foreign land. However, it is only since the police authorities of some of our larger cities have introduced the radio in its daily fight with criminals that the real possibilities of its use in this connection have been realized.

"Commissioner Russell of the Chicago police department was one of the first to appreciate the value of radio as an adjunct to his crime fighting forces. His judgment has already been confirmed by reduction in the number of crimes reported and by an increase in the number of arrests for crimes committed.

High Powered Autos.

Commissioner Russell realized that the advent of the high powered motor car and its employment by hold up men had increased the number of major crimes and at the same time lessened the ability of the police to cope with them. He introduced high powered squad cars into his department and even with this innovation found that his forces were handicapped. When crimes were being committed his fleet of squad cars were cruising the city and because of the department's lack of a means of immediate communication with them were unable to advise them promptly upon receipt of crime reports.

"All police squad cars which patrolled the street of Chicago were radio equipped. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, operating radio station, W-G-N, worked in conjunction with police headquarters and made it possible for police commanders to be within instant communication reach of all squad cars. "As soon as a report of a robbery or any other major crime was received, police headquarters immediately relayed it over a special wire to the broadcasting station which in turn sent out warnings over the air to the members of squad cars cruising the street. All available details such as the description of those wanted in connection with the crime were disseminated in this manner."

The system was so successful that the police department applied for a short wave license and soon is to have its own broadcasting station. It will operate on a frequency not heard on ordinary receiving sets.

CHICAGO OPERA TO GO ON AIR 13 NIGHTS THIS YEAR

Thirteen of the most famous operas from the pens of master composers as interpreted by the star artists of the famous Chicago Civic Opera company during its 1929-'30 season will be made available to listeners throughout the United States, it saw revealed in plans announced for their broadcast by the National Broadcasting company. The series will open Saturday night, Nov. 9.

What is said by engineers to be the most elaborate and complete radio "pick-up" in the United States is being installed in Chicago's new $20,000,000 opera to be used in making this series of broadcasts as mechanically perfect as engineers can devise.

More than $18,000 will be spent on the equipment. It will include twelve of the latest type condenser microphones and complete amplifying and control equipment in duplicate to insure the listener the most faithful reproduction of every tonal variation without interruption while he sits in his own home.

The beauty and pageant of the opera will be portrayed this year by an announcer who is an eyewitness, since the new equipment will allow full view of the stage from the announcer's box, whereas before the announcer was back stage and could describe the scene only from script.

Fifty-three singers and conductors are included in the roster of artists for the 1929-'30 season who will be heard in the series of thirteen weekly broadcasts, beginning Nov. 9 at 9 o'clock and each Saturday night thereafter over an N. B. C. network.

GREAT SALES INCREASE.

Members of the Radio Manufacturers' association are reported last year to have sold $585,000,000 worth of radio products, compared with only $50,000,000 in 1923. One concern this year expects to do $110,000,000 worth of business.

TELEVISION'S FIRST SHOWING HERE

Television will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago at the radio show. Stars of the stage, screen and radio, as well as distinguished figures in the business world, will appear before the televisor. R. D. Kell, assistant to Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, the inventor of the system to be exhibited, is pictured demonstrating television above.

TRIBUNE WRITERS TO TALK DURING WOMEN'S HOUR

Style Show Feature of Exposition.

Women of Chicago and the middle west will not be slighted at the radio show. According to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the show, an hour's program will be presented at the exposition every day except Sunday, devoted entirely to the things dear to women.

Appearing every afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock will be women famous for their expert knowledge of women's problems and interests. The program will be widely varied from day to day, and will range in nature from a lecture on the care of babies with live babies in charge of nurses present, by Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, chairman of the medical committee of the Illinois Masonic hospital, to a discussion of the intimate affairs of the heart.

Tribune Writers to Speak.

The program has been carefully arranged to contain something of value for all women and will present among others Sally Joy Brown and Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The management has secured a feature of unusual interest for the afternoon of the opening day of the exhibit when a forty-five minute style show will be presented in which a wide selection of woman's apparel will be shown on living models. This feature of the program will be repeated on the afternoon of Wednesday when a second style show will be held in which a complete exhibit of sport clothes and clothes for street wear with all accessories will be given.

To Talk About Poor.

Feature writers on Chicago metropolitan newspapers will have important parts in the program, speaking on subjects in which they have been especially interested in writing for their readers.

Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will give a talk Friday afternoon on table decorations, which will be supplemented by an actual demonstration of the arrangement of tables for various occasions, using china and crystal from Tatman's and linen from Marshall Field & Co. On Tuesday afternoon Sally Joy Brown, also of THE TRIBUNE, will tell of her experiences with Chicago's poor and needy in connection with the philanthropic work carried on by her paper.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE TO HAVE RADIO PROGRAMS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[U. P.]—The radio programs of the National League of Women Voters will be resumed in January, according to an announcement of that organization.

It is planned to include discussions of major developments in politics and particularly economic trends and their influence on government. Foreign affairs, the tariff, President Hoover's appointments and other political problems will also be discussed on the series which is expected to continue for the first five months of 1930.

A large network of the National Broadcasting company will be used to distribute the weekly feature, which will be known as "Voters' Service." Similar programs were broadcast during the 1928 campaign and during the first six months of this year.

The radio committee of the league includes Miss Katharine Ludington of New York, chairman; Mrs. Casper Whitney and Mrs. Henry R. Hayes of New York, and Mrs. Arthur Ringland of Washington.

OLYMPIA RADIO SHOW AMAZES BRITISH PUBLIC

Television Exhibition Attracts Attention.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON. -- Seven years after 2LO gave the British public its first chance to listen in the full fledged nature of radio is attested by the most complete and best arranged national radio exhibition which England has yet seen. The displays at the great Olympia exhibition manifest a technical surety that is surprising in an industry so young.

That radio really has entered into the evolutionary period is indicated by the fact that no radical departures are to be observed in the present show. The direction of progress has been pretty well mapped out, and though there are many improvements over last year's models, they are in the direction of an orderly development of which the future is already comprehended.

Perhaps the most interesting exhibits are the television demonstrations. The television exhibits are conducted without accompanying sound broadcasts, because of the difficulty of finding two wireless waves to permit of simultaneous broadcasting of light and sound.

The reception of programs is a feature in the present exhibit. A receiving station is connected with twenty-four soundproof booths where the programs picked up by the common receiver are heard on various types of sets, thus providing an easy method of comparison

One of the noticeable features this year is the almost complete disappearance of the battery set, which was still much in evidence at the last show. Practically all the British outfits are now operated on house current. A few have been made to employ direct current, but the majority are for alternating current, and the latter seem to be generally more satisfactory.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

THERE are some famously identified radio hours that go along much the same year after year. And we have often wondered whether these programs are famous because they have certain famous announcers, or whether these announcers are famous because they were assigned to announce these programs. To us it is like our boyhood curiosity about the old Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore drive. We could never figure out whether it was pointed out to hundreds of thousands of visitors to the city because it was a famous old mansion or whether it was a famous mansion because it had been pointed out to so many people.

OF ALL the thousands of songs that are published annually, and broadcast by the radio, only thirty-two on an average become popular to earn big money for their sponsors.

SOME DAY our national ceremonies and sports events will be staged at hours of the day which will fit the needs of the broadcasters. Of course, the radio audience pays nothing for its privilege, in contrast to the spectators who have paid admission fees to be present, as at a world series game; but in cases where it will cause no inconvenience to the people actually present, the time schedule should be arranged so that the maximum radio audience may lend their ears to it.

A great consideration for the radio audience was shown by the presiding judge when we were broadcasting the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] from the hills of Tennessee in the summer of 1925. He would courteously wait in his chambers every morning until our engineers would assure us that the long lines over the mountains and all the other apparatus were hooked up and ready for the show to open. He knew, of course, of the hundreds of thousands of listeners who were expecting to be in on the first rap of the gavel and he would delay the convening of court out of deference to them.

DURING the Democratic convention at Houston last year the smart committeemen arranged to hold their whoopie sessions—when the keynote and the nominating speeches would be made—during the evening, when the uncountable mass of radio listeners could be in attendance. Sessions conducted during the daytime could not catch a fraction of the listeners who would cup their ears to the radio horn in the evening; and the larger the radio audience was, the greater would be the prospective votes the orators were striving to win.

World series baseball games are something else again. Last week a contributor to "The Voice of the People" on the editorial page advanced the suggestion that the broadcast of each afternoon's game be recorded on phonograph disks and then put out over the air again in the evening, for the benefit of the masses whose occupations do not permit them to steal any time off in the afternoon for radio listening.

As a coincidence, the radio audience has received quite a break in the matter of the championship fights. Since radio broadcasting came along to high popular favor in the last decade, all of the heavyweight title bouts have happened to be held at night, after working hours. Do you recall the great fights of fifteen or so years ago were held in the afternoon—Johnson and Jeffries at Reno, Johnson and Willard at Havana, Dempsey and Willard at Toledo, and Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby, Mont.

Next year, we hope, the world series can be held early enough to avoid interference with the regular football season. Last Saturday, at Madison, we were forced to stand by until the middle of the second quarter of the Wisconsin and Northwestern game for the end of the baseball game in Philly, while the football fans were phoning wildly and begging for the promised broadcast of the gridiron contest. A newspaper can cover every field of news, but a radio station, unfortunately, can cover only one thing at a time.

The advertisers on the chains have the same difficulty with the four hour difference in time across the United States. An hour long program, going on in New York City at eight in the evening, which is an excellent radio hour, reaches the Pacific coast audience at five, when the number of listeners is only a fraction of the eight o'clock audience. A program, to cover the country most completely, should go on the air over one of the chains at ten o'clock in New York, which would make it nine o'clock central time, eight o'clock Rocky mountain time, and seven on the Pacific coast.

RADIO WEATHER REPORTS LESSEN FISHING PERILS

Broadcasts Also Report Where Schools Are.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The hazardous life of a fisherman on the bleak coasts of New England and Newfoundland has become a great deal less dangerous recently with the establishment of a special broadcasting of weather information for fishing boats at Gloucester, Mass.

During the last half century the number of accidents to fishing vessels at sea caused by storms has been stupendous, according to Rear Admiral Andrews, commandant of the first naval district, Boston.

"The annals of the fishing towns from Machias, Me., to New London, Conn., are filled with sad stories of ships and men lost at sea," he reports, "or the disappearance of ships and crews after each storm. The people safe on land have been slow to recognize the peril of these mariners, but the establishment of station WHDH at Gloucester marks an epoch during which it may be confidently expected that these maritime disasters will be reduced to a minimum."

Only 5 Per Cent Without Radios.

Although at present only between 10 and 15 per cent of the 800 fishing vessels which operate out of New England ports are equipped with radio apparatus for receiving and transmitting, from 70 to 75 per cent are equipped with small broadcasting receivers and only 5 per cent [small craft] have no means of reception whatever. Moreover, these operate close to the shore.

Station WEEI of Boston has also been giving a special ocean broadcast for fishermen at the request of Admiral Andrews, but this information is more of a general nature and is not as valuable as the specially prepared weather data which are carried by WHDH.

This double service not only insures that all fishermen receive information regarding the weather at least twice daily, but it is so broadcast that the lobster fishermen at home may, through their receiving sets, obtain weather information which is of inestimable value to them in their work.

Keeps Fishermen Informed.

This service not only aids the fishermen far off the coast of New England but keeps every fisherman informed of the weather conditions, whether he fish far offshore for hake, halibut, haddock, pollack, cod, cusk, or mackerel, or comparatively close inshore for lobsters and other shellfish.

It is a distinct advance in the method of protection for the vast fishing industry of New England, which has proven such a source of wealth for the last 300 years.

Not only does this service protect the fishermen but it also notifies them of where they may obtain bait, the ports where the fish are most urgently needed, and where the highest prices prevail.

Tells Where Fish Are.

It also tells them where the schools of various fish are at the present time, since it is intended that large vessels which are fitted with radios capable of sending messages will inform station WHDH of the location of the fish, and this station in turn will broadcast it by voice to the smaller vessels which are fitted with receiving sets.

Fishermen far at sea on the Grand banks or on Georges banks no longer are cut off from urgent news from their loved ones at home, and such news will form a part of the broadcast from this station.

EDISON, HOOVER, FORD ON W-G-N TOMORROW NIGHT

World-Wide Climax to Light Jubilee.

An international broadcast without precedent, featuring talks by President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, and Henry Ford, is announced by the NBC as a world-wide climax of the Golden Jubilee of Light, Monday night, Oct. 21. W-G-N will broadcast the program, which comes at 6:30 p. m. central standard time.

It will be Science's night on the air. The ceremony is intended as a scientific world's tribute to the inventor of the electric light and will be staged with all ingeniousness engineers can evolve. The NBC networks, coast to coast, will be linked with short wave transmitters to relay the details to listeners throughout the nation.

A Tribute to Edison.

Besides the response by the Wizard of Menlo Park, talks by President Hoover and Henry Ford will mark formal dedication of the Edison School of Technology, founded by Ford as a tribute to his friend Edison. The broadcast will originate in Dearborn, Mich., where Ford has reconstructed the original laboratory and machines used by Edison when he inverted electric light. Not only the old wooden laboratory but also the original lathes, work benches, and lamps are there as the nucleus for a new technical school.

Radio listeners will join the assemblage of world famous scientists at the closing minutes of Ford's dinner to Edison, at which Owen D. Young is toastmaster. A novelty will be music of 1879, year of Edison's invention, played by an old fashioned orchestra.

The notables will then visit the old laboratory, where Edison will make a duplicate of the original lamp from similar materials. Edison will work by the glaw of an oil lamp, as all other lights are turned off, and many cities throughout the country will dim their lights simultaneously.

Edison to Make Tests.

Graham McNamee will describe the scene as Edison tests the "newfangled contraption, a light which burns without gas or flame and is cheaper than oil." As old generators hum and lights of 1879 flare up, McNamee will give the radio signal to resume modern illumination in all cities participating. Edison will then cross the laboratory and play the reed organ he kept at the end of the room.

Short talks by world famous scientists, whose names are withheld, and a brief address by President Hoover will end the festivities. The climax of Light's Golden Jubilee will be on a full hour from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. eastern standard time, Oct. 21. Both WEAF and WJZ in New York will be linked in NBC's nation-wide hookup with short wave networks to other continents.

STATION STAFF OF KFI STUMPED BY TOUGH QUESTION

SAN FRANCISCO.—Recently a request was received at KFI which puzzled at first and afterward caused much amusement.

A piping, treble voice, evidently that of a child, called on the telephone:

"Say, mister, your station is playing too fast. How can I slow it down on my set?"

SCIENTISTS PROVE RADIO SIGNALS CAN PIERCE SOLID ROCK

Proof that radio waves can pierce solid rock seems to have been established conclusively by experiments in the Mammouth cave of Kentucky and in the Mount Royal tunnel in Montreal. Two scientists of the McGill university department of physics, Dr. A. S. Eve and Dr. D. A. Kays, have just reported the results.

In both tunnel and cave low frequency signals came in plainly, although their strength was not so great as in open air reception. In both tunnel and cave high frequency stations could not be tuned in. The report states that signals from distant radio stations were heard under 300 feet of sandstone and limestone. Precautions were taken to prevent signals from coming through passageways or through wiring.

SURVEY REVEALS BIG GROWTH OF RADIO RESEARCH

A recent survey of the leading radio manufacturing establishments reveals the growing importance of radio research. No longer is the radio industry content to have the designs set by one or two leaders, with the rest following suit. Rather, while the main principles may be set by one or two leaders, the various radio manufacturers are keen to work out their own individual ideas, with the result that there is sufficient competition in radio design to keep the industry forging ahead.

"This year's radio sets," states J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute, "display a delightful variety of ideas and designs, indicating the widespread growth of radio research."

RADIO TUBE NOW DOES DUTY AS ELEVATOR MAN

It takes an experienced operator to stop an elevator evenly at the various floor levels and even then they never always make perfect stops so that passengers do not have to "watch their step" getting on or off. That it takes the humble vacuum valve to do the job perfectly, year in and year out, is a fact that is little known to the radio public, versed as it is in the abilities of this magic tube for radio reception.

The use of vacuum tubes in the automatic leveling of elevator cars, in button controlled systems, depends on the characteristic of the increase of plate current when the tube is "in" or "out" of an oscillating condition.

BIGGEST STUDIO ON TOP WORLD'S LARGESTBUILDING

N. B. C. Picks Chicago for Finest Quarters.

Complete plans for erection and equipment of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, atop the largest building in the world, are announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company. The new Chicago studios of the company will be situated on the roof of the Merchandise Mart, in the heart of the city.

The most modern equipment for broadcasting will be installed in studios, offices and laboratories, and engineers have devised plans for meeting radio problems as far into the future as possible. More than 62,000 square feet of floor space will be required to house the various activities.

Opening Jan. 1, 1930.

Formal opening of the new quarters, tentatively planned for Jan. 1, 1930, will be a definite step in fulfillment of Mr. Aylesworth's prediction two years ago that Chicago is destined to become one of the greatest broadcasting centers of the world. The fact that the Chicago headquarters of the National Broadcasting company are to be more pretentious than those now in use in New York, Washington, and San Francisco is regarded as a significant recognition of the importance of Chicago's position in the broadcasting field.

In the new location special construction will eliminate many of the physical and mechanical limitations of the usual office building. The quarters have been designed and will be built under the direction of O. B. Hanson, manager of operations and engineering.

Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, designers of the Merchandise Mart, will represent the NBC in architectural design and supervise the construction.

The new quarters will open with six studios, fully equipped with the latest developments in radio apparatus. Wire lines and other facilities will be installed, permitting expansion to an unlimited number of studios.

Largest Studio in World.

Studio "A" will be the largest radio theater in the world. It will be seventy-five feet long, fifty-one feet wide, and with a twenty-six foot ceiling, giving a total floor space of 3,826 square feet, and a total content of 99,450 cubic feet. It would provide standing room for more than a thousand persons, it is estimated.

The studio will have a large number of innovations in equipment. Instead of the usual velvet or monks' cloth drapes utilized in the regulating of acoustical effects, it will be walled with adjustable narrow panels. It is believed to be the first installation of this sort ever attempted.

A great pipe organ and organ loft, specially adapted for radio presentations of varied character, will be installed. A raised stage, for use in productions permitting, the presence of an immediate audience, will occupy one end of the studio.

10,228 Feet Floor Space.

The other studios vary in floor size and ceiling height to meet various acoustical conditions. The total floor space devoted to the six broadcasting rooms will be 10,228 square feet, and total content will be 265,928 cubic feet.

Each studio will have a soundproof glass enclosed balcony to enable invited guests both to see the performance in the studio and hear it through loud speakers as the radio audience hears it.

All the studios except "F" will be on the nineteenth floor of the Mart, but will be two stories in height.

On the nineteenth floor will be the offices of the division engineer, plant and operating engineers, control boards, music library, musicians' rest rooms and lockers, reception rooms, announcers' rooms and lockers, artists' reception rooms, emergency first aid room, quarters for the library staff and engineering laboratory.

On the twentieth floor will be the office of the vice president in charge of the Chicago division, general office, agricultural department, program, press, sales and station relations departments, a conference room and studio "F." From observation rooms on the twentieth floor, visitors will be afforded a view of the performances in the studios.

Studios Without Windows.

The studios will be without windows [and, partially hermetically sealed for soundproof] the ventilation being regulated through modern equipment maintaining a constant flow of pure air at a regulated temperature, and with a uniform degree of humidity. With this system, temperature is automatically maintained, within a variation of two degrees Fahrenheit.

In the center of the main control room will be two main control boards, each thirty feet long. One will be used for amplifiers, relays and controls of studio equipment.

RADIO STOPPING DRIFT OF FARM FOLK TO CITIES

Makes Education at Home Possible.

WASHINGTON. — Radio has done more than anything else in the last four years to check the drift of farmers to the city, according to J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute here.

Figures from the department of agriculture show that in 1926 approximately 649,000 more people deserted the farm for the city than from city to the farm, while in 1928—the latest figures available—only 188,000 more people left the farm for the city than from the city to the farm.

The reasons for this drift to the city, according to a recent analysis made by the bureau of agricultural economics, are economic conditions, and leaving the farm in order to get better educational advantages for their children in the city.

"It is my candid belief," continued Smith, "that radio has gone a long way toward wiping out these two reasons for the rush to the city.

Get Educational Features.

"A more extensive use of broadcasting facilities by farming agencies, the department of agriculture and other organizations giving weather, crop and market reports, will assist the farmer in putting his business on a more efficient basis. Radio has, in deed, become an economic necessity on the farm today.

"Further, radio is relieving the farmer of the necessity of breaking up his occupation and moving to the city to give his children an education Broadcasting is bringing and in the future will bring even more educational features right to the farmer's fireside. Recognized and accredited high school and college courses are given on the air in some sections, and will undoubtedly be given more generally in the near future."

New Day for Farmer.

Radio is a boon to the farmer, his wife and children. It is bringing them advantages and pleasures never before enjoyed.

A new day for American agriculture is being ushered in, Smith declared, in commenting on the applications of the federal state marketing service of California for seven broadcast station licenses to be used in a state-wide market quotations service.

"There is no question but that radio can be effectively used by farm cooperative agencies in the scientific marketing and distribution of agricultural products," continued Smith.

"In using radio this way the farmer is applying modern business principles and practices to his work and it will undoubtedly help to improve his economic status.

"Hence radio is not only a source of entertainment and education on the farm but it has become an economic necessity."

Australia Convicts Its Unlicensed Listeners

Convictions recently have been obtained by the Australian government in the cases of 1,707 unlicensed broadcast listeners. New South Wales had the greatest number of convictions, 804. Penalties amounted to £3,121 and costs to £1,321 pounds. The license fee in Australia is $5.84.

Television Actress

Bonnie Blue, Chicago's first television actress, will entertain daily during the radio show. Visitors will see and hear her sing blue songs over television with sound. Miss Blue is a Chicago girl.

TINFOIL MAKES IDEAL APARTMENT "LEAD-IN" WIRE

Apartment dwellers and others who have unusually long aerials—so long in fact that reception is hindered—may be interested in a noval solution of the lead-in question. Incidentally, this idea gets around the need for drilling holes in window frames or walls.

Two large sheets of heavy copper or tin foil are obtained—perhaps 8 or 10 inches square. One is glued to the outside of the glass at the center of the window and the other exactly opposite, on the inside. The aerial lead wire is connected to the foil by picking up a corner and soldering. Inside, a wire from the foil leads to the antenna binding post of the set. The sheets of foil form a fairly large fixed condenser with glass insulation. Since the condenser is a "series" condenser, it is useful in cases of long aerials.

182 RADIO POLICE NOW.

There are now 182 government inspectors working under the supervisors, policing the ether and seeing that the broadcasting stations keep on their assigned wave channels.

STOCK TO OPEN CONCERT SERIES ON W-G-N TODAY

Symphony Orchestra Ready for Bow.

Dr. Frederick Stock and the world famous Chicago Symphony orchestra will be heard on the air for the first time this year today from 2 to 3 o'clock over W-G-N. The orchestra will broadcast each Sunday afternoon over a National Broadcasting company network.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the orchestra when they broadcast for the first time over a chain last year so delighted Dr. Stock that he decided to accept the invitation to give another series of concerts this season.

Acclaimed by music critics both in America and abroad as one of the finest musical organizations in the world, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has established a firm place in the hearts of American music lovers, and last year won nation-wide praise for their series of Sunday concerts under the same sponsorship.

Every modern broadcasting facility that engineers have devised will be used to make the reproduction of every note heard by the radio audience faithful to the finest degree. Dr. Stock has placed his personal approval on the perfectness of the broadcast and has stated that the radio does ample justice to his noted organization.

JUST TO PLEASE THE DIVA.

It was explained on the air recently that "O Promise Me," the hit in "Robin Hood," was written in the last minute to please a temperamental prima donna.

RADIO RELICS TO BE COLLECTED BY SMITHSONIAN

Government Agencies to Participate.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Radio's "hall of fame," now only a figurative something, is to become an actuality.

Within the Smithsonian institution in Washington there will be exhibited all of the available historical radio apparatus that can be collected, so that a graphic picture of the romance of radio may be depicted for posterity. The display will range from the first type of "spark gap" transmitter to the present water cooled tube circuits with their powerful signals.

Plans for the creation of a "radio museum" were discussed at a conference called by Capt. S. C. Hooper, chief of naval communications, and attended by representatives of other government departments and of a radio corporation which possesses a complete collection of historical radio apparatus. The conference unanimously agreed that there is a real need of the preservation of apparatus having historical significance, and steps immediately were taken to urge the Smithsonian institution to approve such a collection for display. Heads of all governmental departments and agencies likewise are being solicited to donate whatever radio equipment of an obsolete yet historical nature they have stored away.

Institution to Participate.

It was brought out by C. U. Mitman, curator of the Smithsonian institution, that the institution is anxious to obtain a historical exhibit of radio and will participate in any projects to procure the necessary equipment.

At the round table discussion, Capt. Hooper said that a large amount of radio apparatus of no value for service, but invaluable for historical purposes is being held at the navy yard in Washington, as well as at other navy yards and bases. Within a short time this material will be "junked" unless otherwise used. This statement served to reveal that at army depots throughout the country and at the United States bureau of standards equipment of a similar nature is lying about of practically no use.

Mr. Mitman explained, however, that under the law, historical apparatus or material held by any of the government departments cannot be loaned or given to agencies outside the government unless approved by the Smithsonian institution. Thereupon it was decided that the Smithsonian should be petitioned for the collection of this equipment and its arrangement for a suitable historical exhibit.

Inventors Still Alive.

The reason for the collection of such apparatus at this time is that many of the individuals who participated in the development in radio are still alive and available for the acquisition of authentic records of their inventions.

In its letter to the Smithsonian the conference, which was of an informal nature, asked that a formal committee consisting of representatives of the Smithsonian, departments of war, navy and commerce, Institute of Radio Engineers and three nongovernmental representatives be appointed for the "radio museum" collection. Mr. Mitman said that he believed the institution would be willing to sponsor the organization of the committee to carry through the collection of the apparatus.

HANDLING RADIO TUBES.

When changing tubes in the radio receiver always turn the set off. Failure to do so in many cases will burn out the tubes, due to the "rush" of current caused by the extraction of the tube.

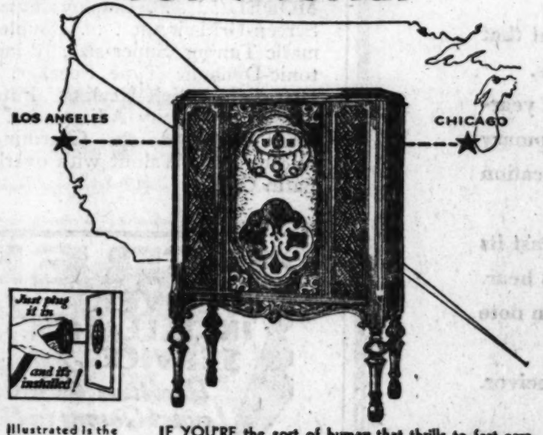
TELEVISION NOT YET PRACTICAL COMMERCIALLY

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the Commerce Yearbook for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting outdoor scenes on the television circuit was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

2000 MILES with only an ICE PICK for Aerial



Illustrated is the beautiful Concert Grand. The top is of four-way matched butt walnut and surmounts side panels of diamond grained oriental walnut, flanking a central panel of figured bird's-eye maple, the whole hand rubbed to a mirror-like polish. It contains the standard SILVER RADIO eight tube screen-grid chassis, electro-dynamic speaker, and screen collector.

Price absolutely complete, less tubes $173.00

Your dealer also has the Sheraton Lowboy at $160.00, and the Sheraton Highboy at $195.00.

IF YOU'RE the sort of human that thrills to fast cars and horses, that gets a big kick out of a 300-yard drive, or one of Babe's homers—then get ready for the biggest thrill of all from SILVER RADIO.

For SILVER RADIO is the one outstanding radio that does simply amazing things—like bringing to your living room programs two thousand miles away with only an ice-pick for aerial . . . like bringing in programs direct from Japan, Australia, and New Zealand, as SILVER RADIOS in the west do.

Because SILVER is that kind of a radio, your SILVER RADIO dealer is ready to make, in your presence, four of the most amazing tests you've ever witnessed—tests so stiff that you can pick without error the best radio. Ask your dealer to make the "Ice-Pick Test", the "Vanishing-Aerial Test", the "Hairpin Test", and the "Coin Test" . . . they'll show you the amazing difference between SILVER RADIO and all others.

SILVER RADIO—product of the manufacturer who introduced screen-grid radio to America in 1927—is guaranteed to get more programs without an aerial—it doesn't need any—than nine out of ten other radios will get with big interference-collecting outdoor aerials, and . . .

After all, why not have the best in your home, too? . . . tell your SILVER RADIO dealer you've "come to see his four amazing tests".

brings true tone realism to
NEW FADA RADIOS

MUSIC is simply audible vibrations. Controlled, they bring harmony. Uncontrolled, discord. Sounds simple, yet radio's greatest problem was to control these vibrations.

But today all this is ended . . . for Fada has at last achieved Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all radio vibrations . . . and with it has eliminated distortion, interference, rumbles, rain barrel tones and roars.

On a Fada every note, every shading of tone now comes to you exactly as broadcast . . . exquisitely true, surprisingly clear . . . a mirror-like reproduction of the artists themselves. For Vibra-Control is the long-sought secret of tone realism.

It would take a thousand words to explain this great achievement; but in ten minutes you can discover what Vibra-Control will mean to you. Hear it today . . . and get the thrill of radio reception stripped of mechanical noise.

Only Fada has Vibra-Control, priced from $99.50 to $675.00.

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

—in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence

Quite naturally some people discriminate in favor of excellence. Consequently, their choice of the new all-electric, screen grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

will come as a matter of course

IN THE HOUSES in which they live . . . the motor-cars which stand gleaming on their drives . . . the meals they serve in their dining-rooms . . . in short, in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence, a certain discrimination. These are people of good taste.

There is a radio receiver—the Eveready—which fits in with a life such as theirs, which fits in with a point of view demanding excellence in everything they own.

Its fidelity of reception is remarkable

Put it in a living-room and you have seats at a symphony concert . . . listen to it as you dine and you are transported to a table beside a polished square of dance floor in a smart restaurant . . . the excitement, the oratory, the color of a political campaign is yours without leaving your house . . . the President speaks to you as clearly as if you were present in Washington . . . this is the sort of reception you get—this is the sort of reception discriminating people demand—in the new Eveready Radio.

Its tone is full, round and agreeable. And because of the "weather-proof" principle incorporated in the new Eveready Radio the reception even on damp, humid nights is remarkably clear and free from distortion.

Its excellence is not a matter of months but many years

But if this were all people of good taste knew about the new Eveready Radio, they would hesitate to buy. Their whole point of view towards life requires that they also look for permanent, as well as momentary, excellence; that they look for the sort of perfection which comes with the ideal of precision building, an ideal which looks into the distant future as well as tomorrow.

So carefully, so precisely, is this fine instrument built that you may expect, not six months or a year of performance, but five, yes even ten years of satisfying reception. The large scientific organization which has expended years of research in making this radio receiver will add improvements, of course, as they are tested and tried out. That is taken for granted.

But the buyers of this radio receiver are not asked to consider mystifying technical terms, new accoutrements, devices and details comprehensible only to experts. Such things bore them. They know that whatever they buy is the best. Hence, they buy this radio.

Model 53, a larger console, $195 (less tubes)—Model 54, the de luxe console, $225 (less tubes), using the same perfected screen grid chassis. Pacific Coast prices slightly higher.

— mystifying technical terms bore them

You will want this remarkable radio receiver

And so, if you are a person who discriminates in favor of excellence, if your whole attitude towards life looks for effects, not causes, you will want the new Eveready Radio. That is why, when you see it, hear it, notice its beautiful cabinetwork, you will say, "Of course this is the instrument for my household."

LAFOUNT TELLS WAYS TO BETTER RADIO PROGRAMS

Must Give People What They Want.

BY HAROLD A. LAFOUNT.
[Radio Commissioner, Appointed from Zone Five.]

Any comprehensive plan for general improvement of radio programs in the United States necessarily resolves itself into a procedure whereby more persons will receive more of what they want, when they want it.

In order to accomplish any material degree of progress in its broadest sense, it is essential that the broadcast structure be considered as a whole, and that each unit fit into a general scheme of production and distribution, operating with conscious regard for its part in the scheme.

Our present radio structure comprises approximately six hundred units, functioning independently, and to some extent, competitively. There is no common denominator in practice, and little unity of purpose. Each station aims, in some degree, to give programs acceptable to its listeners, but in so doing most of them utterly disregard the availability and quality of such programs from other sources.

Measured by Public Reaction.

The question of what constitutes a desirable program is obviously one of individual prejudice, and opinion is of little value except in the mass. We are obliged to measure program values by public reaction, and to grade them by the response they evoke, giving due attention to the size of the potential audience.

Desirable programs have been established to fall into one of two types: first, those designed to be of unusual interest to a limited group or area; second, those which have been demonstrated to be of general interest or importance. Predominance of either type of program serves to identify a radio station.

On the above basis we are able to divide radio stations roughly into three classes:

The first group, fewer than a hundred in number, may be designated class A. By reason of availability of talent, unusual conditions of financing, connection with a network service, or combination of these factors, they consistently present programs of high quality and of general interest. These stations furnish our present standard of excellence in presentations designed for other than local consumption. They are able to broadcast the finest of music, by the best of artists, and to broadcast many features of uplifting and informative nature.

Constant Experimentation.

Undoubtedly the material that they put on the air is subject to much improvement. There is constant experimentation in the methods of presentation, and constant progress in the work of mechanical "pick-up" and transmission. Class A stations are naturally leaders in such improvement.

There is a rather sharp dividing line between the above mentioned group and those which we may designate class B. These are broadcasters whose supply of talent is limited, whose revenues are small, and who have not the advantages of network program services. In this class are several hundred stations struggling valiantly to give good programs. They deserve serious consideration in the measure that they play an integral part in the life of their communities. However, judged on the basis of the general interest value of their programs, they cannot be said to be at all comparable to those in class A.

A third class, which we may call class C, comprises a relatively small number of stations which devote much of their efforts to propaganda in behalf of religious, political, or social matters, or which are concerned with promoting a single business institution. From the standpoint of general interest their programs may be said to have a minimum of value, and in this discussion they may well be disregarded.

Ways Toward Improvement.

Two methods, not necessarily alternative, suggest themselves as essential to a comprehensive effort to improve broadcasting:

1. To raise the service value of class B stations to their communities.

2. To make class A programs available everywhere with such clarity and volume as to permit selection on a basis of desirability, rather than strength of signal.

Class B stations, for the most part, have neither money nor talent available for programs of general importance. Most of them would not fit economically into the present broadcast networks and are thereby prevented from transmitting programs emanating from centers where talent is more readily engaged. Progress in class B, it appears, will result from natural economic determination. The basis of radio financing now is advertising revenue, which in turn, has its prime requisite in listener interest. The listener is the foundation stone of the house.

If he is pleased with the program he is a potential purchaser of the products promoted in the program. If he is displeased, or is intrigued by a program elsewhere, he ceases to be a potential customer. Thus we have a logical cycle: Good programs, many listeners, pleased advertisers, more revenue. Or, conversely, poor programs, few listeners, unsatisfied advertisers, decreasing revenue.

It is apparent that class B stations cannot compete with class A stations in programs of widespread interest. It seems obvious that they should, therefore, give service to their listeners which they can do better than can those of class A. They can furnish specific service to specific communities, and justify their place in the general scheme. Those which are attuned to the spirit of their listeners, which present desirable material not otherwise available, are economically entitled to prosper. Those which fail to thus serve their listeners are likely to fall before the march of progress. It is the law of industrial "survival of the fittest."

The problem of better dissemination of class A programs at present involves possible engineering evolution and perhaps revolution. There is, of course, a fair coverage of the country through broadcasts of network programs, and those from a few other stations in metropolitan areas. Cleared channels have improved the reception considerably over that of a few years ago.

But there is still a large audience which is not able to receive important programs with volume sufficient to assure consistently high quality.

Federal Radio Board Faces Heavy Schedule

A heavy schedule of hearings this fall and early winter faces the federal radio commission. More than 400 cases have been docketed to be heard before Dec. 31, when the present term will expire. About one-half are applications for new stations. Most of the remainder are petitions for kilocycle changes and increase in power. There now are 609 broadcasting changes. When the commission was created there were 732.

50 FOOT ANTENNA.

An antenna 50 feet in length is sufficient to operate a very sensitive alternating current set.

Mysteries of Radio Studio Surprise to Mountaineer

DENVER.—A lean, weather beaten man with the peculiar stoop of the mountaineer, sauntered into KOA recently and asked to be shown through the station. The hostess first took him to the main studio where the larger instruments of the orchestra were placed. The xylophone took his eye. He walked all around it, examined the long sound chambers, felt the wooden slabs above them gingerly. At length he stood back in awe. "Well, I'll be!" he ejaculated. "So that's your broadcastin' machinery."

Unlicensed Listeners in Australia Are Convicted

The postal department of the Australian government has instituted a campaign against unlicenced radio listeners and has thus far convicted 1,707 listeners, according to a statement by the United States department of commerce.

What is Tri-toned Radio?*

Every musical instrument has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity, or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural overemphasis of any part of the scale.

"IT ISN'T RADIO...IT'S THE HUMAN VOICE"

Hear Kylectron

The revolutionary new method of sound reproduction . . . as sensational as the first tube set . . . the one new thing in radio this year

KYLECTRON is new in principle, new in design. It isn't an attachment, it isn't a tube, it isn't a "refinement." It is as different from ordinary methods of radio reproduction as the modern tube set is different from the old-fashioned crystal set.

Hear it . . . and you will have an entirely new conception of how perfect radio can be. Through Kylectron you hear everything exactly as it is broadcast. Kylectron changes nothing . . . adds nothing . . . takes away nothing . . . from the instrumental or vocal music that reaches the microphone in concert hall or studio. It reproduces everything just as a perfect mirror reflects an image. It is sensitive enough to reproduce a sigh; powerful enough to bring you the crash of a brass band without distortion; without "hum;" without mechanical sounds. Hear Kylectron . . . and you'll say as thousands have said: "Surely, science can go no further." Kylectron is offered today only in Courier and Peerless Radios . . . receivers which in themselves have everything you've always wanted.

Screen grid . . . certainly!

Courier and Peerless are screen grid radios. They use three screen grid tubes. In addition they have power detection, push-pull amplification, single dial tuning, light-socket operation, complete shielding; in short, they have everything that has been proved sound in radio engineering.

They are super-sensative. They get the distant stations so you can enjoy them. Their selectivity is sharp enough to cut through powerful local stations but not so sharp as to eliminate the side-band frequencies of a station which give the necessary "back-ground" to music and speech.

Hear these radios now!

Step into the Courier-Peerless dealer's store and listen to Kylectron, or arrange for a free home demonstration. Turn the tuning dial yourself. Set the volume control at a mere whisper and then bring the sound up until it fills the room. There's no distortion, no "hum," no mechanical sound. Just thrillingly delightful music . . . the kind of radio music you've been waiting for. Visit one of the stores tomorrow. There will be no obligation.

Courier Radio—$85 to $165
(without tubes)

Courier Radios are encased in console cabinets which are exquisite examples of the most expert designers, the finest craftmanship and the generous use of the world's finest woods. They are the kind of cabinets you'd expect to find only on extremely high priced sets. There are models with Kylectron or the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

Peerless Radio—$195 to $600
(without tubes)

It is impossible to build finer cabinets than those used to hold Peerless Radios. They are not merely "something to hold a radio" but exquisite pieces of furniture. Examine them carefully and you'll find nothing but the finest woods, nothing but the best in construction. Peerless Radios are made in models with Kylectron, or with the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

FIND USE FOR STATIC, ENEMY OF RADIO FANS

But Scientists Admit It Can't Be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After more than a decade of research, radio scientists have virtually admitted their inability to eliminate the devastating effects of static in the reception of broadcasting programs, but they are by no means through with their study. They have now begun to harness it for the benefit of mankind even though radio listeners gain nothing from the results of their experiments.

At this time of year, when the thoughts of the huge public of radio entertainment turn eagerly to visions of cold winter nights when reception is undisturbed by a jumble of noises that sound like a buzz saw in a box of automobile tools, such news is not so doleful as it might be at the beginning of summer. For the period from Oct 1 to March 15 is ordinarily considered the most favorable to receptibility.

But even in warm weather, the situation is not so serious as it might seem in view of the improvements that have been made in receivers and transmitters and the growing tendency to depend on local rather than distant stations for radio programs.

Admits Science Is Balked.

Dr. L. W. Austin, head of the laboratory for special radio transmission research at the United States Bureau of Standards, admitted, in answer to the question, that scientists are balked by static. So far as can be determined now, this bane of listeners will be with us always.

The chief reason for this is the distinct similarity between the mode of propagation of the static pulses and the radio signals, according to Dr. Austin, who is internationally recognized as one of the foremost authorities on static in the world. Then, too, static can not be eliminated because, like the weather, it is caused by atmospheric conditions which as yet are beyond the control of science.

"The most sensible solution to the problem, which Dr. Austin has been advocating for some time, is already being adopted, viz., the reliance on local stations, which may be in chain hookups, and the use of more powerful transmitters. Moreover, listeners are learning, he said, that often when the strength of the reception is diminished, the programs come in more clearly because the static is also made less noticeable.

Numerous Schemes Tried.

"All sorts of schemes have been tried to overcome static but without marked success. Among these has been the underground antennae, which the navy was inclined to believe, for a while during the world war, was superior to the overhead directive system. It was found later, however, that static in comparison with signal strength is almost as bad in the ground as it is in the air.

A fraud order was issued several months ago against an invention which, it was claimed, would eliminate static in radio reception by the underground method after the bureau of standards had declared its claims false.

Static, like the proverbial ill-wind, has some useful qualities, the contentions of disgruntled listeners to the contrary. And it is these good points that are now attracting radio scientists to further research.

Even though the experts themselves do not agree on the cause or causes of static, they are finding it valuable in the location of storms and consequently a contributor to the safety of life in the air and at sea.

Determines Storm Position.

In Europe, static is being employed to determine the position of storms, and to chart weather maps along aviation routes, and in America, experiments along these lines are just beginning. The United States navy has found that static can be used on the high seas to trace the course of hurricanes, thus enabling warships to dodge the storms. In the northwestern wooded areas of this country, static is being used to warn rangers of approaching forest fires by means of its weather forecasting proclivities.

The relationship between weather conditions and forest fires—those originating from natural causes—has been established. This relationship is so definite that the weather bureau issues forecasts of forest fire dangers based on the "complement of the humidity." Also, there is an apparent relationship between static and relative humidity; and on this hypothesis the major obstacle to radio reception is being harnessed in order to determine the amount of moisture in the atmosphere.

As forest fires take a toll of approximately $20,000,000 worth of timber and other property annually, the use of static in determining the amount of moisture in the air may compensate for some of the evils that the millions of listeners suffer.

Two Schools of Thought.

There are two schools of thought on the origin of static, according to Dr. Austin. One group holds that static for the most part is caused by lightning. Thus, even if there is no storm within a 1,000 miles of you, the static that troubles your receiver may come from a lightning discharge far away, mayhap the other side of the world. Their contention is that there is always lightning somewhere in the atmosphere and that the waves caused by the discharges are carried over the world.

The second school of experts admits that lightning is a prominent cause of static but contends that there are other electrical discharges, not visible to the eye, which are also to blame. For instance, the contact between two currents of air of different temperature may effect such a discharge. Static is worse in low pressure areas and in mountainous regions, Dr. Austin said.

Fading, which is often associated with static and often blamed on the same sources, is caused generally by the interference of radio waves and only rarely by atmospherics, according to Dr Austin, who was inclined to discount the interference of the waves that travel through the air with those that move along the earth as the cause of fading at great distances. It comes rather from two waves traveling by different paths which have been reflected by the upper atmosphere, he said.

STATION BUILT IN WORLD'S WORST RADIO CLIMATE

The country with the world's worst radio climate has finally bowed to the popularity of entertainment via the air. A station has been constructed in Colombia.

Being in the hottest corner of the Caribbean territory and with difficult natural conditions, Colombia has denied herself the privilege of local broadcasting until recently when a transmitter was built at Bogota with a studio installed at the Capitol for broadcasting Congressional proceedings and theater performances, according to word received by the U. S. department of commerce from James J. O'Neill, assistant trade commissioner.

Colombia becomes the 69th broadcasting country, and the station brings the total in foreign countries to 609. United States stations total 612.

Radio Sets Reach Public Through Varied Sources

An interesting sidelight on radio merchandising is contained in the diverse channels by which radio equipment makes its way to the consumer. Reports show sales by firms and individuals giving their principal lines of business as that of poultry raiser, harness shop, funeral director, court reporter, baby chick hatchery, poolroom, optometrists, insecticide dealer, patent medicine dealer and what not.

RADIO ENGINEERS NAME HEISING INSTITUTE HEAD

Inventor, Research Expert Is Nominated.

Raymond A. Heising, well known radio engineer, has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers for 1930 by the board of direction of the institute.

Mr. Heising is engineer on the technical staff of the Bell telephone laboratories located in New York. He has a long record of study and achievement in the radio field. After receiving his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1914 he joined the research department of the Western Electric company—incorporated some years ago with Bell telephone laboratories. He participated in the long distance radio telephone experiments of 1915 and developed and operated the transmitting sets for the Montauk-to-Wilmington experiments and for those carried on between Arlington and San Francisco, Honolulu, and Paris.

Aided in War Research.

During the war he was a member of the subcommittee on "wireless communication between aircraft" of the national research council. Many of his investigations at this time were with radio telephony for airplanes, sub chasers, and other military units.

After the war he took part in the development of the ship to shore radio telephone, and later in the development of the long wave trans-Atlantic radio telephone circuit. For the last four or five years he has been investigating short wave phenomena and carrying on fundamental research in connection with the recently completed short wave radio systems.

Seventy Patents to Credit.

Mr. Heising has published many technical and scientific articles in the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and in the Physical Review, and has over seventy patents to his credit and others pending. In 1921 he was awarded the Morris Liebman Memorial prize by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Other members nominated are: Vice president, Col. A. G. Lee, staff engineer in charge of radio, engineering department, general postoffice, London, England.

For managers: John V. L. Hogan, past president, consulting engineer, New York City; Robert H. Marriott, past president and consulting engineer, New York City.

DR. LEE DE FOREST, inventor of the radio tube and the "Father of Radio."

All radio tubes are made under his patents

But only DE FOREST AUDIONS include his latest discoveries. The first radio tube was invented by Dr. Lee De Forest. Today—every radio tube, no matter what its name is made under De Forest owned patents.

Radio tubes may look alike but that is where the comparison ends.

The latest improvements in tube design and construction made by Dr. De Forest and the engineers in his laboratories are incorporated in De Forest Audions.

Before you select tubes for your radio, insist on a comparative tone-test with De Forest Audions. Any De Forest dealer will gladly make it.

HYDE FINDS RADIO NEW LEAVEN OF RURAL AMERICA

Breaks Down Isolation of Former Days.

BY ARTHUR M. HYDE.
[Secretary of Agriculture.]

WASHINGTON.—Agriculture needs radio. it carries to the most remote farm social values, aesthetic values and business information. It overleaps the barriers of space and breaks down isolation.

More than any other group in the United States, our farm people depend upon radio in their business and in their home life. "Radio belongs to farmers," said an official of the big broadcasting systems recently. He went on to explain his remark in this wise:

"The business man gets reports of his markets from a ticker. Until radio came along the farmer was without similar comparable information on markets. The urban family can easily attend church services led by the great divines, hear the music of famous choirs, symphony orchestras, opera companies; until the advent of radio the farm family had scant opportunity to share these inspirations.

"Spectacular and historical events, such as the inauguration of presidents and direct contact with the leaders of thought and action, are carried by radio to the most isolated farm homes.

"Lacking radio, the rural population even with the telephone and good roads would still be close to that condition of isolation and loneliness which was described and decried a quarter of a century ago in the report of President Roosevelt's country life commission."

Developing Business Service.

Our broadcasting experience in the department of agriculture has largely been confined to development of the business service of radio to the farm. The earliest broadcasting stations sent weather information—forecasts, warnings, etc.—in cooperation with the United States weather bureau, and crop and market news supplied by the bureau of agricultural economics. Later, the department established a radio service of timely information on production practices in agriculture and on scientific homemaking. Each year since the birth of broadcasting has seen a steady growth in the number of radio stations making these services available to the rural audience. At present 215 radio stations transmit weather reports obtained directly from the weather bureau; 114 stations broadcast crop and market news, some of them on schedules running up to four times per day; 163 stations send one or more of the eight programs of general farming and home making information supplied by the department; and a network of 39 stations associated with the National Broadcasting company provides at noontime a national farm and home hour program.

227 Stations Serve Farmer.

All told, with duplications eliminated, 227 of the 610 radio broadcasting stations in the United States cooperate with the federal department of agriculture in one or more ways to serve farmers and home makers. Included in the list are virtually all stations of one thousand watts or higher power. The time devoted to this specialized service would command, at commercial rates, much more than one million dollars a year. It is freely given to agriculture without cost except the expense of supplying speakers or facts.

This cooperation of broadcasters with the department of agriculture does not tell the whole story of radio service to rural America. Nineteen of the land grant colleges of the United States maintain their own radio stations. These are broadcasting from a maximum of forty-three to a minimum of three hours a week with a large proportion of their time devoted to programs of farm and home information. Of the 19, one is on a "cleared" channel, the remaining 18 on regional channels. Their power ranges from 10,000 to 250 watts.

Colleges Supply Speakers.

Land grant colleges in the remaining 27 states supply speakers and programs to commercial broadcasting stations, except in a few states which do not possess powerful transmitters. State boards of agriculture or bureaus of markets in some great agricultural states such as Missouri and Wisconsin operate their own broadcasting stations. In other states the boards or departments of agriculture have accepted the offer of commercial radio facilities.

National, state, and smaller units of the farm organizations maintain agriculture information and promotion programs through numerous stations. On occasion the national network systems send special agricultural broadcasts into every part of the country. Rural listeners will recall many of them, including the program of the Institute of Coöperation last July and the National 4-H club program arranged by the department of agriculture last June which brought the 700,000 farm boys and girls in this organization a message from Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Farm Families Appreciate Radio.

Farm families owning radio sets use the business aids extended by the nation's broadcasters; they appreciate—how profoundly few can realize—the widening of cultural and social horizons made possible by the genius of electrical science.

Literally thousands of letters coming to the department bring home to us the fact that, through radio, a new heaven is working in rural America. Farm families testify that the radio "brought church services to our home," "Helped out in the back country," "made it possible for us to hear Presidents speak and opera stars sing," "taught us a number of new wrinkles," "brought relaxation to us," "made farm life more pleasant."

What the results will be in the way of a higher level of culture I am not bold enough to predict. Necessarily there will be developed closer ties of unity and of interest among the different sections of the nation. These are intangible values, values which cannot be listed or tabulated, values none the less real.

Western City Has Law to Help Radio Listeners

An ordinance has been passed by the city council of Sacramento, Cal., prohibiting the operation of devices, appliances, and equipment which interferes with radio broadcasting reception between 2 p. m. and 11 p. m., with the exception of machines used by doctors and of licensed radio stations and the operation of public utilities.

PLACEMENT OF AERIAL.

An outdoor aerial should, whenever possible, be strung in an open space away from nearby objects, such as trees, buildings and other wires, particularly those that run parallel with the aerial. Anything of a nature that will absorb radio signals will take away just so much energy from the aerial.

TO BROADCAST WAR PLAY.

The British Broadcasting company announces that it will broadcast "Journey's End," the British war play, on Armistice day, in the evening.

SWEDEN CLAIMS MOST SETS PER 1,000 CITIZENS

STOCKHOLM.—Sweden leads the world today in the number of receiving sets in proportion to its population, according to a recent survey completed here. The latest statistics show that there are 412,115 sets to about 6,000,000 inhabitants, or 67.5 per each thousand.

Dr. Per Lindberg, one of Sweden's leading theatrical directors, who recently joined the Stockholm station as dramatic instructor and manager, is credited by experts here as having introduced new ideas in programs. This month Dr. Lindberg presented every Saturday a dramatic sketch called "the comedy of the week," in which actors and actresses present in a playlet the most important happenings at home and abroad.

Another spirited series of entertainment consists of dramatic tales from each country covering various national traits and customs.

Chicago Radio Show Opens in Coliseum Tomorrow

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR WINTER SEASON

Many New Features on Schedule.

With the broadcast of the world series and the first big football games W-G-N opened what assuredly will be the most brilliant season in the station's history.

Henry Selinger, general manager and musical director of W-G-N, stated yesterday that the presentations planned for the coming season will be survivaled in an American studio.

Gaston du Moulin, director of the W-G-N symphony orchestra, has made an extensive study of musical presentations for the radio and is ready with the best in orchestral music. He has learned to take full advantage of the tone perspective possibilities of the new W-G-N studios, assuring accurate and colorful reproduction at the receiver.

Goldkette Ready with Hits.

Jean Goldkette employs a staff of alert, jazz conscious arrangers, which includes Victor Young, prominent orchestrator and violin virtuoso; Ken Davis and Bill Huxley of piano fame. They with Jean have scoured the 1930 musical shows appearing, or to appear in New York, in search of the hits of the coming season. They have already made a few choice selections, and are now at work on the orchestrations. The brass and saxophone sections have been reinforced.

Carleton Coon and Joe Sanders have returned to their winter quarters at the Blackhawk restaurant. Joe has a few new tunes appearing which promise to be, in the vernacular, wows.

Time on the air for Coon-Sanders Nighthawks has been increased in response to thousands of requests. The Saturday midnight show, the Knights of the Bath, has a new master of ceremonies, Bob Elson. The Knights of the Bath is one of the few "call up" request programs remaining in a city which used to be full of them.

Love Plans Choral Groups.

Park Love, vocal director of W-G-N and newly appointed acoustician, plans the organization of several new choral groups. Mr. Love is one of the most prominent singers of oratorio music in America and has had years of experience with radio work.

An innovation in the presentation of opera is expected to mature this season. Famous operas will be reduced to musical dramas, written in the continuity department of W-G-N, so that the story will be completely told independently of the acting and singing. As the famous arias are reached a competent group of chorusters and the finest soloists available will sing them.

In these operas Mark Love, as acoustician, will play a vital part. The duties of the acoustician are to balance the volume of independent parts of a program emanating from different

RADIO'S HISTORY TO BE SHOWN AT EXPOSITION

Story Is Dramatized for Visitors.

The story of radio's rise from the time the first wireless signals flashed across the Atlantic until today when it is regarded as one of the master instruments of the ages will be dramatized before the eyes of visitors in the special $100,000 radio pageant of progress section of the Chicago radio show which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow.

The radio pageant is without parallel in its completeness, range of material, technical scope, and historic appeal. Nothing is missing—photoradio, television, high speed wireless, ship-to-shore broadcasting, railroad and airplane apparatus. There are models and miniatures of entire installations, complete in every detail—apartment houses, high powered trans-Atlantic stations with towers, aerials, transmitting and receiving buildings, all reproduced with the fidelity of the originals.

Pictorial History.

Accompanying each exhibit is a complete pictorial history of the subject, photographs taken of high spots in its development from the crude things of earlier days to present day technical excellence.

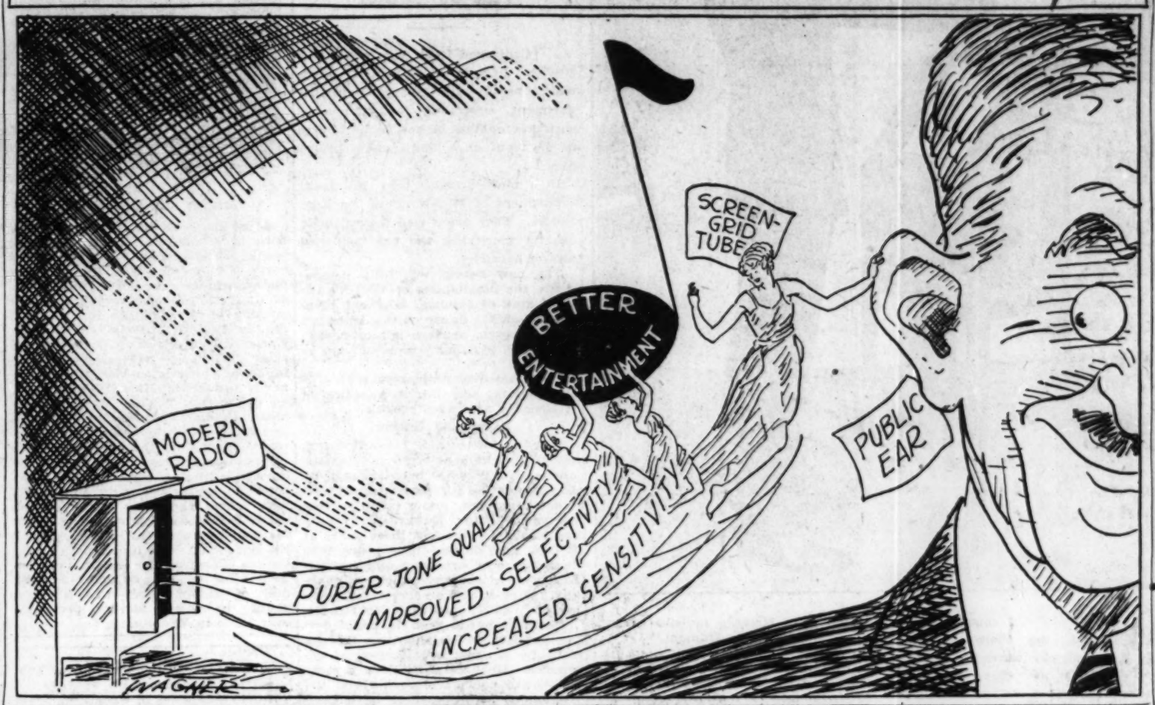
The exhibit has been many months in preparation and material has been gathered when necessary to round out one collection or another from England, France, Germany, and other foreign countries.

Marconi's First Equipment.

In the exhibit there is a Baden-Powell kite, associated in the minds of every one who knows radio with the carrying aloft of the aerial at St. John's, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12, 1901, when Marconi first succeeded in trapping a trans-Atlantic wireless signal. Also to be seen is an exact replica of the apparatus on which the famous inventor first heard the three-dot signal, the letter "S," sent from Poldhu, England, while the Baden-Powell kite plunged about aloft. They were the three dots which changed a world.

Compared to modern radio apparatus the Marconi apparatus as exhibited at the Chicago radio show is so crude that it is sure to amaze spectators. Helped by no regeneration or amplifiers, and without even a thought of a loud speaker, Marconi heard England.

ACHIEVEMENT



MILLION DOLLAR DISPLAY, LAST WORD IN ART

Sets Are in Beautiful Cabinets.

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

With the finest display of radio creations ever brought together under one roof Chicago's eighth annual radio show—a million dollar exposition this year—opens tomorrow in the Coliseum. And until the doors close next Sunday night at 11 o'clock on the latest offerings of nearly 300 exhibitors, Chicago remains the capital of the ether-minded world.

Every inch of available space in the Coliseum, including the main building, mezzanine balconies, and north and south ballrooms will be occupied in presenting the latest in radio styles to crowds that will be record breaking, if early fall sales are a reliable index to the season's radio interest.

Show visitors will be impressed with the fact that the radio industry has suddenly grown up. It has hit a steady, measured stride hitherto unknown. Each of Chicago's previous expositions revealed products with revolutionary features unheard of at the preceding show. Last year saw a general introduction of the all electric receivers, the flowering of console or cabinet sets, and dynamic speakers.

The Screen Grid Tube.

This year brings a further perfection of these features and with them a definite and secure place in the radio sun for the screen grid tube.

The tube, it is claimed, has a capacity for increasing the circuit's sensitivity, sharpening tuning, producing added volume and enhancing the tonal quality. And tonal qualities, one learns, are what sell radios this year.

Few demand long distance tuning any more. All of the well known types will bring in plenty of fine programs. Fine cabinets—and they are finer than ever this year at somewhat reduced prices—help to sell the radio. They are likely to attract the eye, but

Next Saturday, W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the homecoming game at Champaign, where Illinois meets the Michigan eleven from Ann Arbor, with Quin Ryan at the michrophone. The week following the Illinois-Northwestern game at Evanston goes on the air.

AIR AND RADIO LAWS TO COME BEFORE PARLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—[U.P.]—In this picturesque city overlooking the great "Father of Waters" from the commanding Chickasaw bluffs the American Bar association will meet in its 152d annual national convention Oct. 23-26.

More than 5,000 members are expected to convene within a stone's throw of where Gen. Andrew Jackson opened his first law office here just 11 years after the bar association was organized in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1777.

Three principal topics for discussion are included on the program for the convention. They are aviation laws, revision of radio laws, and bar entrance requirements.

DAMROSCH TO START NEW CLASSES OVER W-G-N ON FRIDAY

Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, presents another of his series of radio classes in musical appreciation through W-G-N and a coast to coast network of stations connected with the National Broadcasting company, next Friday at 10 a. m.

These programs are part of a series of educational programs designed to be included in the musical curriculum of schools. Through them a complete symphony orchestra, augmented by the genius of Mr. Damrosch, can be brought to the classrooms of elementary schools, high schools and universities all over the country.

ADVERTISING ON RADIO NETWORKS DOUBLES IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Advertising over radio chains has nearly doubled during the last year, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of census of the department of commerce.

During the first seven months of 1928 advertisers spent $5,133,000 for facilities over the Columbia and N. B. C. chains. During the same seven months of 1929 they spent $9,974,000, representing an increase of over $4,500,000.

STATION S-E-X WILL BE NEXT.

Advance information coming from Los Angeles is that Clara Bow's next picture will be called "Station S-E-X." Is it radio or what?

CHICAGO RADIO SHOW TO OPEN DOORS TOMORROW

Million Dollar Display Is Last Word in Art.

the ear is the final arbiter. If the old set would give as fine a tone as the new ones many potential customers would not buy this year. Further improvement in speakers has helped radio in this major achievement of the year—the acquisition of the rich, clear voice of maturity.

The Radio Phonograph.

Of course, there are other features that will attract buyers. A remote control by which a set may be tuned from any part of the house, several devices for automatic tuning, including a visual tuning meter. Many of the new all electric sets are radio phonographs. This sort of set appears to have staged something of a comeback. If you are pleased with a certain radio selection you buy it for the phonograph and play it over; if it's a dull day for radio, you choose your own music.

With approximately 75 per cent of radios purchased, or at least chosen, by women, console cabinets and built-in speakers are more popular than ever. Women look at a radio not only as an instrument for producing music and entertainment but also as a piece of furniture. Hence manufacturers are striving for cabinets that will satisfy the most exacting tastes. In speaking of their latest designs they employ such phrases as "old English," "pilasters of diamond matched oriental walnut plywood," "Carpathian elm arched doors," "Gothic motif," "exterior of Jacobean beauty," and "Charles II. motif."

Set for Every Purse.

This year there appears to be a set for almost every pocket. A general tendency on the part of most manufacturers to get into the low priced field is manifest. Here and there prices have been cut in half. With almost every offering one is sure to get much greater value per dollar than in any year since broadcasting began. Many console sets are priced from slightly more than $100 to $300, though one may spend considerably more.

In addition to the hundreds of receiving sets on exhibition visitors will find many late developments from radio laboratories and broadcast features to interest them. The RCA-Alexanderson system of television, though still in the laboratory stage, will be exhibited for the first time in Chicago and for the first time outside of New York City. A continuous demonstration of this new picture-radio will be under the direction of Austin Rahe of New York. Stars of the stage, screen, radio and distinguished persons in business and professional life will appear before the televisor, and arrangements have been made so that the spectators can see them in person and on the television screen at the same time.

W-G-N to Broadcast.

W-G-N and other powerful Chicago stations will broadcast programs from the huge Crystal studio in the Coliseum.

For the first time in the history of the Chicago radio show colorful broadcasts, originating here, will be put on the air by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia broadcasting system.

The new musical instrument, theremin, operated entirely by radio waves, will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago.

In the radio pageant of progress visitors may examine historic pieces of equipment used in the days of wireless infancy nearly thirty years ago.

Radio dealers who will come from all over the midcontinent region are looking forward to a banner year. A 50 per cent increase in business over the 1928-1929 season is predicted for them. Last year 2,000,000 sets were sold in the United States. If sales continue at the present pace it is estimated that 10,000,000 sets will be in use in the country by next June.

Chicago's radio show is sponsored by the Radio Manufacturers' association. G. Clayton Irwin Jr. is general manager of the show and U. J. Herrmann is managing director.

RADIO LEADERS WILL WELCOME GUESTS TO SHOW

For the first time during the eight years of radio shows in Chicago there is to be a reception committee at the forthcoming Chicago exhibit. It consists of seven of the leaders in the industry. Not only will they welcome distinguished guests but they will be on the alert constantly to see that the visitors' stay is made pleasant from the moment they enter the door. The committee consists of:

H. B. Richmond, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, Cambridge, Mass.; T. K. Webster, treasurer, and Henry Forster, vice president, of Chicago; Maj. Herbert H. Frost, director and former R. M. A. president, New York City; Capt. William Sparks, Jackson, Mich., vice president; Morris Metcalf, Springfield, Mass., vice president; and C. C. Colby, Boston, Mass., director and former R. M. A. president.

RADIO SET OF FUTURE WILL BE HEARD, NOT SEEN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Remote tuning and volume control are expected to constitute the next era of broadcast development.

Experts predict the radio wired home, with the receiving set or sets located in basement or attic and controlled from loud speaker outlets in various parts of the house by means of remote tuning and volume controls.

Two or more receiving sets will provide a multiplicity of simultaneous programs.

Just as the ornate parlor stove of a past generation disappeared into the basement and made way for radiators and registers in piping heat to all parts of the house, so must the radio set eventually be heard but not seen in all parts of the home, it is said.

MYSTERIOUS MUSIC

Theremin has no keyboard, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids for manipulation, and there is nothing but atmosphere between the player and the instrument itself.

One hand controls the tone and the other the volume, the position of each hand in relation to the theremin determining the tones produced. As described by Hubert S. Conover, 'cellist of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, one of the few attending a private demonstration of the theremin, "Music is produced as though the hands were striking invisible strings of some celestial instrument."

Of course, it's mysterious radio that is responsible for the seeming impossibility that takes place before the eyes and ears of the observer. When the human hand is brought into a sensitive electrical field, surrounding one of the slender rods protuding from the theremin, the field is so affected that audio frequency notes, or sound, are produced, louder or softer as the position of the hand is changed. These are amplified and passed through a loud speaker. The position of the other hand with reference to a second rod or antenna determines the volume, in gradations down to the faintest whisper.

Theremin is the invention of a young Russian scientist, Prof. Leon Theremin.

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR RECORD SEASON

Many New Features on Fall Schedule.

studios. In order to do this, Mr. Love will coöperate with the engineering department, controling the volume of each microphone in use as he listens to the result in a loud speaker before him.

In a more popular vein the vocal department of W-G-N offers the Rondoliers. They are a well trained male quartet glorifying the old fashioned idea of harmony.

The new season will fully demonstrate the possibilities of W-G-N's capable staff of pianists. Herbert Johnson, a familiar figure on the American concert stage, appears not only with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra but as soloist.

Leon Denditsky, pianist with the Tonecasters, has begun a series of Wednesday afternoon recitals.

Barry and Kottler.

Mischa Kottler and Edward Barry are two prominent Chicago pianists. Kottler has recently been engaged by Jean Goldkette for performance with dance orchestra, taken directly from the concert stage. Edward Barry, Sunday soloist for the last three years at W-G-N, has, during those years, conducted a most extensive and successful course of radio piano lessons annually. Bary is also an important member of W-G-N's program department.

Chamber music such as heard during the Musical Melange was the nucleus for a great organization of ensembles. Since the early days of radio the Drake concert ensemble and the Blackstone string quintet have been outstanding as string ensembles on the air. However, these ensembles have bene erely remote control subjects for broadcast.

Studio ensembles of woodwind, brass and string will appear almost nightly during the 1930 season at W-G-N. Novel combinations, of flute, oboe, and clarinet will be regularly announced.

The Tonecasters are a string trio now heard daily during the morning and afternoon programs. Armond Bieseret, violinist, directs Leon Benditsky and Leon Lichtenfeld, who play cello and piano with the trio.

W-G-N Players Ready.

Harry W. Spingold announces an extensive répertoire for the W-G-N Players for the coming season. He and Jean Conover, playwright, have selected a large number of classics to be reconstructed for radio presentation. As soon as the present series of dramatizations of Prohibition Killings is completed, the season will be open.

Among the new items of studio equipment to augment the presentation of programs are four new pianos. The studios have been completed. Attempts made to perfect a system of reproducing sound perspective have been astoundingly successful.

Among the finest of the long list of new features at W-G-N is to be a program known as "Chicagoland." It will begin next Sunday. In the preparation of this program, Edward Barry of the program and continuity department, coöperates with Alfred G. Wathall, eminent composer and member of the arranging staff of W-G-N. Mr. Barry has made extensive studies of Chicago's history in preparation of the announcements. Mr. Wathall has arranged a number of reminiscent melodies and has made several actual compositions for the programs.

Sports events, Christmas services, prize fights, the most brilliant of the operatic and concert stars, and a host of other broadcasts will make W-G-N's season exceptionally brilliant.

RADIO QUEEN

LELA M. OSBORN.

A daughter of the Kansas prairies, born in a village of fewer than 100 people, whose pioneer ancestors helped carry civilization into the western plains, will be crowned "radio queen of America" Monday evening at the opening of the Chicago Radio show. She is Lela M. Osborn of Wichita, Kas., and in view of thousands of show visitors she will receive the loving cup which is emblematic of her newly won title. Miss Osborn's essay on the subject "What My Radio Set Means to Me" was awarded first prize by the judges in the annual essay contest conducted by the radio show.

Her love for music was undoubtedly inherited from her mother, who encouraged her in her early efforts and with whom she sang in the church choir in Healy and later in St. Paul's Methodist church in Wichita. With the advent of radio broadcasting Miss Osborn conceived the ambition of winning fame as a radio artist and by dint of ardent effort was given a chance to sing in several programs over KFH in Wichita.

COMMERCIAL USE OF TELEVISION BIGGEST BARRIER

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the commerce year book for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting upon the television circuit outdoor scenes was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

MAN MADE STATIC CAN BE QUELLED, 200 EXPERTS FIND

Correction of Troubles Usually Simple.

Have you a little static in your home? If so, don't worry too much, because the best engineering minds of the radio and electrical industries are combined to help you get rid of it!

Elimination of unnecessary noises that mar good radio reception has become a serious problem, not only for radio set owners and broadcasting stations, but also for manufacturers of radio receivers.

The problem became particularly acute for the radio manufacturing industry when the public at large blamed the set for giving audibility to all sorts of noises that had no connection whatever with entertainment.

The set itself, of course, is not responsible, and it is to inform set owners that many of these noises can be eliminated that the Radio Manufacturers' association published a book on radio interferences — "Home-Made Static and How to Avoid It."

There are two major types of interference, the book relates—natural and "man-made." Natural static, caused by lightning and other atmospheric disturbances, cannot be eliminated, although it can be reduced.

Static Can Be Reduced.

"Man-made static," however, being caused by man, can be eliminated by man. It usually comes from faulty electrical appliances located in or near the home that contains the noisy radio set.

To aid harassed set owners in finding and eradicating interference, the association enlisted the aid of more than 200 leading radio and electrical engineers. Under the supervision of H. B. Richmond these engineers reported their fullest knowledge and latest information as to the causes of static and the procedure necessary to find and eradicate them. The gist of their reports, in condensed form, is given here:

The actual correction of the condition causing the interference is usually a simple matter. The most important step in eliminatting or reducing interference is to trace it to a definite point or device.

The means for accomplishing this are not always within the province of the radio set owner and the course must be pursued as follows:

1. If your radio set is of the type which uses an antenna system (aerial and ground) the wire connecting the aerial and the wire connecting the ground should be removed from their respective binding posts and a small piece of wire substituted. Connect this wire directly across the aerial and ground posts.

Such procedure then leaves the radio set effectively without an antenna system, which is the collector of energy for the set. The result is that any interference which is being picked up outside the radio set itself is reduced or eliminated when the collector system is removed.

If the case is such that the interference is reduced or eliminated you may decide immediately that it is from an outside cause and not due to your radio set.

I. If, however, the interference continues with equal volume, a careful analysis of the radio set should be made. [Any reputable radio service organization will make this examination for a reasonable fe].

Consult Power Company.

2. When it is decided that the noise is due to outside causes and your local radio service organization has carefully checked the source, if it is found due to electric light or transmission wires, you should call the local power company and ask for assistance in reducing or eliminating the interference.

3. When satisfied that the interference is not due to electric light or transmission lines, and the set itself is free from internal noises, proceed carefully to check all lights, sockets, switches and electrical appliances in the house.

Experience teaches that common sense and careful elimination of each probable interference producer will bring very satisfactory results.

Once the faulty equipment is located, the remedy is usually to connect a filter condenser of small capacity across the leads of the offending appliance. In 99 cases out of 100 this is found to be an effective solution.

Radio to Be Major Issue Next Session

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 19.—[Special.]—Radio legislation of vital importance to broadcasters and listeners-in alike, it now appears, will be one of the major issues of the next regular session of congress, scheduled to convene Dec. 2.

Present indications are that the life of the federal radio commission, which expires on Dec. 31, will be extended for another year pending completion of the senate interstate commerce committee's forthcoming investigation into the alleged "radio trust" and subsequent disposition of the Couzens bill to create a federal communications commission with jurisdiction over radio, telephone and telegraph systems, and power transmission.

Lively Fights Promised.

In addition lively squabbles are expected when attempts are made to repeal or modify the so-called Davis amendment to the 1927 radio law requiring equal distribution of radio broadcasting facilities among the states in proportion to population and also when attacks are leveled against division of the country into radio zones with sectional appointments of commissioners to represent them.

Senator C. C. Dill [Dem.; Wash.] and Representative W. H. White Jr. [Rep., Me.] have announced their intention to sponsor a bill to extend the life of the radio commission and both have expressed confidence that it will become law before Dec. 31 when the commission's authority as a licensing body would automatically expire and the commission would continue as an appellate group to review decisions of the department of commerce in the regulation of broadcasting.

Passage of the Couzens bill in the next session is generally conceded to be an impossibility in view of the senate committee's plan to investigate the alleged interlocking of radio, telegraph, telephone, cable and power companies as a basis for consideration of the proposal to abolish both the radio commission and water power commission and unify their powers in a single commission of five members to be appointed by the President.

"Hampers Commission."

Senator Dill who sponsored the Davis equitable distribution amendment in the senate indicated recently he will probably lead the fight for its repeal. When he appeared before the radio commission as voluntary counsel for station KWSC of Pullman, Wash., the senator asserted his belief that the amendment is unconstitutional "and hampers the commission tremendously."

"The whole cleared channel matter is a waste of radio facilities," he declared. "Personally, I do not think it constitutional to say that a great section like the west can have only as many stations as a little area up in New England."

Sen. Dill added that in advocating the Davis amendment when it came to the senate he was "compelled" by the same public sentiment which "forced the senate to accept it."

"I see no reason any longer to restrict the selection of members of the commission to any particular group of states," said Rep. White, discussing the proposal to abolish the limitation on the President in the appointment of radio commission members.

Problem of Geographic Needs.

"The problem of geographical needs with respect to radio has been met," he continued, "and there is no need of geographic distribution of members. A removal of restrictions will tend toward selection of the best available men for such a body."

Still another row centering in proposals to repeal the anti-monopoly provisions of the 1927 radio law is in prospect with the standing committee on radio law of the American Bar association and B. M. Webster, general counsel of the radio commission, on one side and Radio Protective association, a group of independent manufacturers, on the other.

The bar association committee and Mr. Webster are agreed that the provisions are unnecessary and the committee, which also denounced the Davis amendment, went so far in a recent report as to suggest that consolidation of wire and radio communication facilities should be permitted in order that American communication systems may keep pace with the British.

RADIO EXPERTS WILL LET SHOW VISITORS LISTEN TO RADIUM

All sorts of strange things happen in the great research laboratories of the country where men of science toil to discover more of the secrets of nature.

One of the impossibles, even to the research men, has now become the possible. It is the ability to hear the voice of radium. The ingenious device by which the feat is accomplished will be exhibited at the Chicago radio show and visitors may actually hear the continuous bombardment of the radium projectiles.

For many years science has been able to witness radium as it "talks."

MOTORIST USES RADIO RECEIPT FOR LICENSE

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—[U. P.]—A radio was more alluring than the necessary license for the operation of his automobile, Joseph Hosley confessed to police here recently.

When Joseph paid the $10 down on the radio, he decided to eat his cake and have it, too. So he pasted the radio receipt on the windshield of his car. The hoax proved a good substitute for a state auto license division receipt.

Joseph probably had more than one laugh at Milwaukee policemen, for his novel stunt began Jan. 1, and lasted until an alert traffic officer escorted him on a visit to a judge. The visit cost Joseph $10 and besides he must get a new auto license in a hurry.

Carrier Pigeon Dropped for Radio by U. S. Navy

All carrier pigeon activities of the United States Navy were abolished on Oct. 1 and the navy began sending all its messages by radio, it was announced recently by the navy department. Four hundred birds will be kept at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, and the naval station at Guam, but will not be used in regular message service. The Anacostia, D. C., naval air station lofts now have the greatest number of prize winning birds. "Jolly Tar," the station's star pigeon, won both the 500 mile and the 600 mile race. The station has furnished eight winners this year.

WHEN BATTERY WEARS OUT.

Inability to bring the specific gravity up to its original value by a normal amount of charging is an indication that the useful life of the battery is all over. After a certain length of time the active material on the plates becomes exhausted and nothing can be done to bring it back.

ADIO AS CRIME ETERRENT IS HOWN BY TESTS

adio as a crime deterrent by rea- of its aid to the police in expe- ing the speedy apprehension of ndicate, was emphasized recently by J. Zucker, Chicago radio manufac- er. He cited the fact that the ice of Chicago, Detroit and other e cities have resorted successful- to the use of the wireless communi- ion in combating the activities of key men, burglars and perpetua- s of other major crimes.

Mr. Zucker, who has made an ex- nsive study of the commercial and ial potentialities of radio, said that ere the Chicago police had been perimenting with radio, there were only fewer crimes reported, but greater number of arrests made in ces where crimes were committed. Mr. Zucker praised Police Commis- ioner William F. Russell of the Chi- o police department for his initia- ve in employing radio as an adjunct his detective force. He predicted at the time was near at hand when ry police of each metropolitan area uld have its own broadcasting sta- n in order to more efficiently fight me.

Speedy Apprehension.

"The best way of fighting crime discouraging the tendencies of e about to launch upon a criminal eer, is to make an example of se who commit crimes," said Mr. cker. "This can only be accom- shed by certain and swift punish- nt.

"The first step toward the punish- nt of a person who has committed crime is the speedy apprehension the guilty one and radio has given isfactory evidence of its value in s regard.

"Radio has played more or less of dramatic part in overtaking crimi- s on ships at sea while fleeing to refuge in a foreign land. How- er, it is only since the police author- s of some of our larger cities have troduced the radio in its daily fight ainst criminals that the real possibili- s of its use in this connection have en realized.

"Commissioner Russell of the Chi- o police department was one of the first to appreciate the value of dio as an adjunct to his crime fight- g forces. His judgment has already en confirmed by reduction in the mber of crimes reported and by increase in the number of arrests crimes committed.

High Powered Autos.

Commissioner Russell realized that th advent of the high powered motor r and its employment by hold up en had increased the number of jor crimes and at the same time reased the ability of the police to pe with them. He introduced high powered squad cars into his depart- nt and even with this innovation und that his forces were handi- pped. When crimes were being committed his fleet of squad cars re cruising the city and because of the department's lack of a means of mediate communication with them re unable to advise them promptly on receipt of crime reports.

"All police squad cars which pat- l the street of Chicago were dio equipped. THE CHICAGO TRIB- E, operating radio station, W-G-N, rated in conjunction with police adquarters and made it possible for ief commanders to be within in- ant communication reach of all uad cars. "As soon as a report of robbery or any other major crime as received, police headquarters im- diately relayed it over a special es to the broadcasting station which turn sent out warnings over the to the members of squad cars ruising the street. All available de- ils such as the description of those ested in connection with the crime re disseminated in this manner."

The system was so successful that he police department applied for a ort wave license and soon is to have s own broadcasting station. It will rate on a frequency not heard on dinary receiving sets.

CHICAGO OPERA TO GO ON AIR 13 NIGHTS THIS YEAR

Thirteen of the most famous operas from the pens of master composers and interpreted by the star artists of the famous Chicago Civic Opera com- pany during its 1929-'30 season will be made available to listeners throughout the United States, it saw revealed in plans announced for their broadcast by the National Broadcasting company. The series will open Saturday night, Nov. 9.

What is said by engineers to be the most elaborate and complete radio "pick-up" in the United States is now being installed in Chicago's new $20,- 000,000 opera to be used in making the series of broadcasts as mechan- ically perfect as engineers can devise. More than $15,000 will be spent on the equipment. It will include twelve of the latest type condenser micro- phones and complete amplifying and control equipment in duplicate to in- sure the listener the most faithful reproduction of every tonal variation without interruption while he sits in his own home.

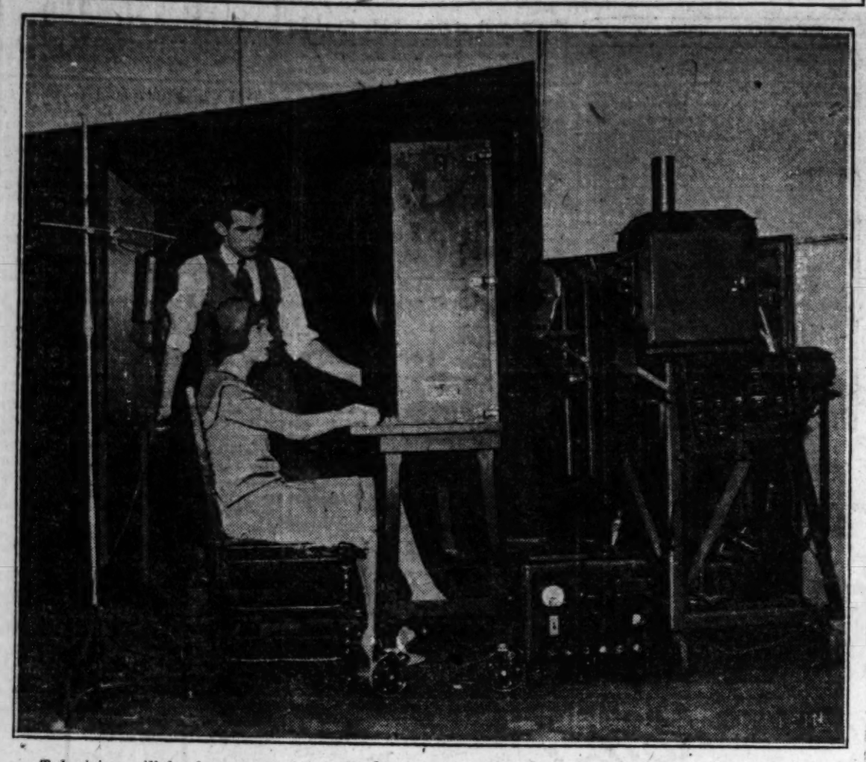
The beauty and pageant of the op- eras will be portrayed this year by an announcer who is an eyewitness, since the new equipment will allow full view of the stage from the announce- r's box, whereas before the announcer saw the back stage and could describe the scene only from script.

Forty-three singers and conductors are included in the roster of artists for the 1929-'30 season who will be heard in the series of thirteen weekly broad- casts, beginning Nov. 9 at 9 o'clock and each Saturday night thereafter over an N. B. C. network.

GREAT SALES INCREASE.

Members of the Radio Manufactur- ers' association are reported last year to have sold $585,000,000 worth of radio products, compared with only $430,000,000 in 1923. One concern this year expects to do $110,000,000 worth of business.

TELEVISION'S FIRST SHOWING HERE



Television will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago at the radio show. Stars of the stage, screen and radio, as well as distinguished figures in the business world, will appear before the televisor. R. D. Kell, assistant to Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, the inventor of the system to be exhibited, is pictured demonstrating television above.

TRIBUNE WRITERS TO TALK DURING WOMEN'S HOUR

Style Show Feature of Exposition.

Women of Chicago and the middle west will not be slighted at the radio show. According to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the show, an hour's program will be presented at the exposition every day except Sunday, devoted entirely to the things dear to women.

Appearing every afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock will be women famous for their expert knowledge of women's problems and interests. The program will be widely varied from day to day, and will range in nature from a lecture on the care of babies with live babies in charge of nurses present, by Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, chairman of the medical committee of the Illinois Masonic hospital, to a discussion of the intimate affairs of the heart.

Tribune Writers to Speak.

The program has been carefully arranged to contain something of value for all women and will present among others Sally Joy Brown and Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The management has secured a feature of unusual interest for the afternoon of the opening day of the exhibit when a forty-five minute style show will be presented in which a wide selection of woman's apparel will be shown on living models. This feature of the program will be repeated on the afternoon of Wednesday when a second style show will be held in which a complete exhibit of sport clothes and clothes for street wear with all accessories will be given.

To Talk About Poor.

Feature writers on Chicago metropolitan newspapers will have important parts in the program, speaking on subjects in which they have been especially interested in writing for their readers.

Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will give a talk Friday afternoon on table decorations, which will be supplemented by an actual demonstration of the arrangement of tables for various occasions, using china and crystal from Tiffman's and linen from Marshall Field & Co. On Tuesday afternoon Sally Joy Brown, also of THE TRIBUNE, will tell of her experiences with Chicago's poor and needy in connection with the philanthropic work carried on by her paper.

BILL DESIGNED TO PUT STOP TO RADIO LOTTERIES

A bill intended to put a stop to radio lotteries, which have been strongly criticized as giving an unfair advantage to radio over newspapers in the matter of advertising, has been introduced by Rep. Burton L. French, of Moscow, Idaho, as an amendment to the radio act of 1927.

The measure reads: "No person within the jurisdiction of the United States shall by means of radio communication announce, advertise, or conduct a lottery, gift enterprise, or similar scheme in whole or in part upon lot or chance, or announce or advertise any list or part thereof, of prizes drawn or awarded by means of any lottery, gift, enterprise, or similar scheme."

Newspapers are not permitted to use the mails to advertise or give publicity to any lottery scheme.

MILLS RESIGNS FROM SOCIETY OF COMPOSERS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—E. C. Mills, the leader in the successful flight to require radio broadcasters to pay a license to composers for the privilege of using copyrighted music in their programs, has tendered his resignation as chairman of the administrative committee of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers, and as chairman of the board of the Music Publishers' Protective association. He has served in both capacities for the last eleven years.

Mr. Mills said that he was going from his present work to a new connection in the music field, the exact nature of which he was not at the moment at liberty to discuss.

SHOW SPEAKER

SALLY JOY BROWN.

WOMEN VOTERS' LEAGUE TO HAVE RADIO PROGRAMS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—[U. P.]—The radio programs of the National League of Women Voters will be resumed in January, according to an announcement of that organization.

It is planned to include discussions of major developments in politics and particularly economic trends and their influence on government. Foreign affairs, the tariff, President Hoover's appointments and other political problems will also be discussed on the series which is expected to continue for the first five months of 1930.

A large network of the National Broadcasting company will be used to distribute the weekly feature, which will be known as "Voters' Service." Similar programs were broadcast during the 1928 campaign and during the first six months of this year.

The radio committee of the league includes Miss Katharine Ludington of New York, chaiman; Mrs. Casper Whitney and Mrs. Henry R. Hayes of New York, and Mrs. Arthur Ringland of Washington.

RADIO DIRECTS PLANE 15 MILES, BACK TO EARTH

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — Radio again proved its practicability in facilitating aerial navigation in foggy weather, the greatest hazard to aviation, when Lieut. James H. Doolittle took off from Mitchel field recently, blinded in a closed cockpit, flew a course of fifteen miles and landed within fifteen feet of his starting point, solely by means of instruments.

The tests were the culmination of a series of experiments being conducted under the direction of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for Aeronautics by Lieut. Doolittle, Lieut. Benjamin Kelsey, and Prof. William Brown of Massachusetts Institute of Tchnology. The tests have been in progress for the last three months, and last week's experiments were the first practical demonstration of blind flying.

While other sensitive aeronautical instruments played an important part in the experiments, the radio apparatus portrayed the leading rôle. As a result of the work of Prof. Brown, a new type of radio beacon was devel oped for the experiments, which, while only having a range of approximately twenty miles, is considerably more sensitive than the usual type now employed on the major air mail and transport routes.

When Lieut. Doolittle took off from Mitchel field he was inclosed in a hooded cockpit of a small biplane. As a precaution, Lieut. Kelsey flew at the front controls, but did not touch the instruments during the entire flight. As the plane took off, the pilot, blinded, flew directly into the wind, for a course of about five miles, following the direction of the radio beacon.

On the instrument board, a vibrating reed indicator told him how nearly he was following the course. As he veered to one side, one of the reeds vibrated more profusely than the other, and he steered until both were vibrating in synchronism.

At a point about five miles from the takeoff, Lieut. Doolittle turned about and returned over the field. As he drew closer the reeds oscillated with greater magnitude, and at the point the reeds stopped vibrating for an instant, indicating he was directly over the transmitter. Lieut. Doolittle then snapped a sensitive stop watch, in order to calculate distance, flew to a point about two miles beyond the field, reversed, and leveled off for a safe landing. A beacon marker indicated when he was over the edge of the field.

Both radio and aviation experts were well pleased with the success of the experiments.

SONG AND MOVIE MERGERS INVOLVE RADIO COPYRIGHT

May Break Down Music Royalty Barrier.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — [Special Correspondence.]—The latest twist in the complicated radio-movie-song publishers situation is the effect which the merging of several song publishers with companies which also operate broadcasting chains may have ultimately on the payment of royalty for popular copyrighted music by the broadcasters to the American Society of Composers.

With the announced merging of the Paramount and Warner Bros. interests, Paramount now controls the Harms group, formerly contracted to Warner Bros. And Paramount is interested in the Columbia Broadcasting system through a recent buy-in.

National Broadcasting company's song publishers' hookup is through the consolidation of Feist's and Carl Fischer, Inc., with Radio-Keith-Orpheum, both subsidiary holdings of the Radio Corporation of America. It seems the parent companies, namely, RCA and Paramount, are interested in affiliations with the song publishers primarily for movie productions, but at the same time one cannot overlook the fact that these parent companies are building up a counter weapon which might be used to break down the music royalty barrier, to which the broadcasters have been so much opposed.

Copyright Fight Bitter.

The fight between the American Society of Composers and the broadcasting stations has been a long and bitter one, with the society holding the upper hand until the present.

The broadcasters have recognized the right of the copyright owners to compensation for the music which they use and have expressed themselves as being willing to meet a standard schedule of rates. However, up to this time the society has not arranged such a schedule and is charging each broadcaster as it sees fit. The recent resignation of E. C. Mills to become the head of one of these music publishing companies concerned will not in any way, it is said, affect the policy of the American Society of Composers in its dealings with broadcasters.

May Freeze Out Society.

One commentator went so far as to say it is entirely possible that the big broadcasters, as a result of the recent mergers, will find themselves in a position to freeze out the American society by using only the music controlled by the holding companies, in addition to the classical selections for which the broadcasters have never had to pay for a large portion. Whether R. C. A. and Paramount interests would find it worth while to resort to this method of breaking up the present licensing arrangement is highly debatable.

It is the contention of those who see this loophole that, once the broadcasters broke away, the society would be forced to settle the long controversy by adopting a standard schedule of rates. Once the broadcasters decided to play their own music, to the exclusion of all other, it would place the society in a weak position when it came to the renewal of contracts. Naturally, the publishers would rush to the broadcasters with their contracts rather than to the society, if the latter was not able to have their numbers plugged over the air.

All Is Conjecture.

All this is nothing more than conjecture, since the broadcasters decline to discuss any aspects of the situation. However, this is the first loophole which has been found through which the broadcasters may escape what they term exorbitant royalties.

The Composers' society and the Universal Broadcasting company in Philadelphia are just now engaged in a controversy which may have some bearing on the final settlement of this question. The broadcasting station has refused to renew its license with the society because the latter tried to increase the rate and has filed a suit against the society, in the meantime continuing to use all music without the required license. The society has announced that, following the granting of an injunction to the Universal Broadcasting company, it will carry the fight to the Supreme court of Pennsylvania.

Fight Has Bearing.

The brief filed by the composers recently in answer to the charge by U. B. C. that the license fees for use of copyright music were exorbitant and were still going up, states that "each of the proprietors of these copyrights is entitled to enjoy a legally protected monopoly." That is what a copyright or a patent right is.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

THERE are some famously identified radio hours that go along much the same year after year. And we have often wondered whether these programs are famous because they have certain famous announcers, or whether these announcers are famous because they were assigned to announce these programs. To us it is like our boyhood curiosity about the old Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore drive. We could never figure out whether it was pointed out to hundreds of thousands of visitors to the city because it was a famous old mansion or whether it was a famous mansion because it had been pointed out to so many people.

OF ALL the thousands of songs that are published annually, and broadcast by the radio, only thirty-two on an average become popular to earn big money for their sponsors.

SOME DAY our national ceremonies and sports events will be staged at hours of the day which will fit the needs of the broadcasters. Of course, the radio audience pays nothing for its privilege, in contrast to the spectators who have paid admission fees to be present, as at a world series game; but in cases where it will cause no inconvenience to the people actually present, the time schedule should be arranged so that the maximum radio audience may lend their ears to it.

A great consideration for the radio audience was shown by the presiding judge when we were broadcasting the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] from the hills of Tennessee in the summer of 1925. He would courteously wait in his chambers every morning until our engineers would assure us that the long lines over the mountains and all the other apparatus were hooked up and ready for the show to open. He knew, of course, of the hundreds of thousands of listeners who were expecting to be in on the first rap of the gavel and he would delay the convening of court out of deference to them.

DURING the Democratic convention at Houston last year the smart committeemen arranged to hold their whoopie sessions—when the keynote and the nominating speeches would be made—during the evening, when the uncountable mass of radio listeners could be in attendance. Sessions conducted during the daytime could not catch a fraction of the listeners who would cup their ears to the radio horn in the evening; and the larger the radio audience was, the greater would be the prospective votes the orators were striving to win.

World series baseball games are something else again. Last week a contributor to "The Voice of the People" on the editorial page advanced the suggestion that the broadcast of each afternoon's game be recorded on phonograph disks and then put out over the air again in the evening, for the benefit of the masses whose occupations do not permit them to steal any time off in the afternoon for radio listening.

As a coincidence, the radio audience has received quite a break in the matter of the championship fights. Since radio broadcasting came along to high popular favor in the last decade, all of the heavyweight title bouts have happened to be held at night, after working hours. Do you recall the great fights of fifteen or so years ago were held in the afternoon—Johnson and Jeffries at Reno, Johnson and Willard at Havana, Dempsey and Willard at Toledo, and Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby, Mont.

Next year, we hope, the world series can be held early enough to avoid interference with the regular football season. Last Saturday, at Madison, we were forced to stand by until the middle of the second quarter of the Wisconsin and Northwestern game for the end of the baseball game in Philly, while the football fans were phoning wildly and begging for the promised broadcast of the gridiron contest. A newspaper can cover every field of news, but a radio station, unfortunately, can cover only one thing at a time.

The advertisers on the chains have the same difficulty with the four hour difference in time across the United States. An hour long program, going on in New York City at eight in the evening, which is an excellent radio hour, reaches the Pacific coast audience at five, when the number of listeners is only a fraction of the eight o'clock audience. A program, to cover the country most completely, should go on the air over one of the chains at ten o'clock in New York, which would make it nine o'clock central time, eight o'clock Rocky mountain time, and seven on the Pacific coast.

A SPORTS announcer is ever open to suspicion of being partial or prejudiced in his reports, particularly if he praises a visiting team in any way. Radio listeners, some of them, are always scenting for evidence, of a partial tone in the announcer's voice. Candidly, we can not remember ever being consciously partial toward either or any of the contestants in a football or baseball game or a prize fight or horse race, but we do appreciate good play and snappy action and we try to interpret it and give credit where credit is due.

Ever since we hooked rides to the old parks on the west and south sides, we have been whooping supporters of the Chicago Cub team and the Chicago White Sox. Nevertheless, fifteen minutes before the opening of the first game of the world series here last week, we gave it as our firm opinion that the Athletics would win four out of five. Needless to say, the boys about us gave us the razz and a few listeners wrote to accuse us of disloyalty. We quote from one, from Milwaukee: "I had always thought you a good thoroughbred Irishman until today, before the opening game, when you predicted that the A's would win four out of the first five games. Where is all that loyalty you paraded so strong all summer? Where is all that confidence that fairly oozed from you?"

Listeners are funny. They make the announcer timid about remarking that any player is shining in certain kinds of play or that one team is showing superiority in certain fields. O, well!

HERE'S TO the new radio season!

WANTED

A Chief Radio Engineer

A Big Opportunity—
For a Big Man—
With a Big Corporation—

A large Radio Manufacturer, located in Chicago, is ready to talk business with a high grade Radio Engineer—a man capable of assuming complete charge of our laboratory work. It's a big job for a big man.

The man we have in mind has a background of experience with big producers. He is capable of designing a high grade radio set, practical for large production. He appreciates the value and the necessity for production schedules, and has the ability to adhere to them. He is accustomed to keeping in constant touch with the latest radio developments and capable of incorporating these developments into the circuit he designs.

He must be aggressive, steady, and not subject to temperamental lapses—a man physically, mentally and morally able to stand the strain of this type of work.

The man we are after is no doubt already employed—and perhaps satisfactorily so. But he will appreciate that this is an unusual offer, and he will consider it for the greater opportunities it affords.

This is a big job and pays a salary that should attract the best talent. All correspondence will be held in strictest confidence. Applications giving fullest information should be made at once.

TERRELL TELLS OF PROGRESS IN RADIO BROADCAST

U. S. Chief Traces 15 Years' Growth.

BY WILLIAM D. TERRELL.
(Chief of the Radio Division, Department of Commerce.)

As early as 1914 phonograph records of music were broadcast from a radio station in New York City. The purpose of transmitting [illegible] was to test different types of hydrogen arc radiotelephone transmitters. It was much easier to use phonograph records than it was for the experimenter to talk or sing into the microphone for long periods of time during a test, and the phonograph record provided the most efficient and easily obtained method of modulation.

At that time no one had any idea of the future possibilities of broadcasting entertainment. The few receiving sets in use on land were owned by government departments, commercial radio companies and amateurs. It was not until the fall of 1921 that the possibilities of radio broadcasting were fully realized which resulted in a demand for radio broadcasting station licenses. The first of these licenses was issued to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Wave Lengths Set.

The first problem to be solved was to find a suitable wave length, or frequency, for the purpose. Ships were using 300, 450 and 600 meters, but as the 300 meter wave length was rarely used it was decided to put the broadcasting service on 360 meters to avoid interference with ship communication. A little later 485 meters was designated as the wave length upon which agricultural information and marketing reports would be broadcast.

If a station varied its frequency as much as ten kilocycles in those days no one was seriously inconvenienced, as the receiving sets were not very selective and wide variations reduced the heterodyne whistle which comes from the simultaneous operation of stations on or about the same frequency.

In March, 1923, the second national radio conference was called by Mr. Hoover, secretary of commerce. At this conference it was recommended that more channels be given to radio broadcasting and that ship stations be shifted to other positions. This resulted in the adoption of the present system of 10 kilocycle separation between broadcasting stations. After this it became necessary for transmitting stations to give greater care to maintaining their frequencies and our radio manufacturers to give more attention to selectivity in building radio receiving sets.

Frequency Stability Sought.

From that date until 1927 efforts were being directed toward improving frequency stability, which finally resulted in a great many stations adopting the method of crystal control.

During this period the radio division of the department of commerce was developing means for checking the frequency of stations from the offices of the supervisors of radio instead of measuring the wave lengths by the use of wavemeters taken to the stations, as had been the custom for many years.

In 1927 congress provided a special appropriation for the purpose of purchasing more precise monitoring or frequency checking apparatus for use by the radio division, but as there was no apparatus suitable for this purpose on the market it was necessary to have specially designed apparatus manufactured so that measurements could be made showing variations of a few cycles rather than a few hundred cycles, which was the limit of precision of some of the apparatus in use at that time. This new apparatus is now being delivered and installed.

There are ten sets to be in the offices of the supervisors of radio distributed as follows: Boston, New York, Baltimore, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Detroit, Chicago and St. Paul. Six portable sets are to be used on test cars assigned to Baltimore, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Detroit and Kansas City. It is planned to have additional installations at Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Hawaii and Alaska and on two additional test cars to be assigned to Seattle and Boston.

Checks Station Accuracy.

The most important unit of this monitoring system is to be an installation about six miles from Grand Island, Neb., where a fifty acre site of land has been procured and contract has been awarded for the erection of a building to be used exclusively for this purpose.

This station is to be known as the constant frequency monitoring station and will serve as a check on the accuracy of all of the other stations, while its accuracy will be based upon the national standard at the bureau of standards.

From this station it is expected that frequencies of all of the principal stations in the United States and the principal stations of other countries can be checked.

The measuring apparatus to be installed at this station will be of such design that it will be capable of making measurements of an accuracy of one part in one million. Three types of receivers are to be installed at this station, two of which cover the frequencies from 100 to 30,000 kilocycles and the third covers from 10 to 100 kilocycles, using both loops and antenna and having extreme selectivity and sensitivity. The arrangement of the receivers permits simultaneous use at all times. Each receiver is to be in a shielded booth.

Special Antenna System.

All power supplies, although generated on the premises, are to be filtered and shielded. The standards and receivers will be operated entirely from storage batteries, all provided in duplicate and charged by means of small motor generators through a suitable distribution system connected to the main power plant. A special antenna system, in conformity with the latest developments in this line, is to be erected.

The station is to be built around a room having 2,000 square feet of floor space, in which will be installed all of the standard equipment and receivers. In addition to this large room there will be rooms which can be used for dormitories, kitchen, workshop, office, storage batteries, motor generators and switchboards. An adjacent building will provide garage space and power plant. Every effort is being made to have the station complete in itself so that twenty-four hours a day service will be insured throughout the year.

Official Record Kept.

An official record of the monitoring work, or frequency checking, has been maintained during the last year. This record shows the advantage of carrying on work of this character. During the earlier measurements many stations varied as much as from five kilocycles to forty-eight kilocycles. Today few of them vary more than 500 cycles, and a great many of them are maintaining their frequencies within 100 cycles. During a period of seven and one-half months 22,450 measurements of broadcasting stations were made. When the new equipment is in operation the checking will not be limited to broadcasting stations, but will include stations above and below the broadcasting band and a force of men will be assigned to this work exclusively.

While the measuring of frequencies of the broadcasting stations is perhaps of greatest interest to the public, the measurement of the higher frequencies will be of extreme importance to the communication services, where the frequencies are rapidly coming into use for international communications, point-to-point communication in this country, air service, amateurs, and government services.

Check Foreign Station.

As many of these short wave stations are far-reaching in their effect it is anticipated that considerable time must be given to checking stations in foreign countries which may be causing interference with our international short wave stations.

This branch of the inspection work of the radio division of the department of commerce is just developing. It is anticipated that it will be one of the most important fields of activity and should prove of great benefit to the public.

Interference caused by the simultaneous operation of stations on the same frequency and interference caused by the operation of various types of electrical devices will continue to be a source of annoyance, but the remedy for this does not rest with the radio inspection service.

SHAW ASKS 4 BILLIONS.

George Bernard Shaw, noted British dramatist, when asked recently by a radio director to state the sum for which he would write a drama for radio use, cabled a reply: "Four billion dollars might be sufficient, but that is not a contract."

EDISON, HOOVER, FORD ON W-G-N TOMORROW NIGHT

World-Wide Climax to Light Jubilee.

An international broadcast without precedent, featuring talks by President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, and Henry Ford, is announced by the NBC as a world-wide climax of the Golden Jubilee of Light, Monday night, Oct. 21. W-G-N will broadcast the program, which comes at 6:30 p. m. central standard time.

It will be Science's night on the air. The ceremony is intended as a scientific world's tribute to the inventor of the electric light and will be staged with all ingeniousness engineers can evolve. The NBC networks, coast to coast, will be linked with short wave transmitters to relay the details to listeners throughout the nation.

A Tribute to Edison.

Besides the response by the Wizard of Menlo Park, talks by President Hoover and Henry Ford will mark formal dedication of the Edison School of Technology, founded by Ford as a tribute to his friend Edison. The broadcast will originate in Dearborn, Mich., where Ford has reconstructed the original laboratory and machines used by Edison when he invented electric light. Not only the old wooden laboratory but also the original lathes, work benches, and lamps are there as the nucleus for a new technical school.

Radio listeners will join the assemblage of world famous [illegible] the closing minutes of Ford's [illegible] to Edison, at which Owen D. Young is toastmaster. A novelty will be music of 1879, year of Edison's [illegible] tion, played by an old fashioned [illegible] chestra.

The notables will then visit the laboratory, where Edison will [illegible] duplicate of the original lamp [illegible] similar materials. Edison will [illegible] by the glaw of an oil lamp, [illegible] other lights are turned off, and [illegible] cities throughout the country will [illegible] their lights simultaneously.

Edison to Make Tests.

Graham McNamee will describe [illegible] scene as Edison tests the "new [illegible] contraption, a light which burns [illegible] out gas or flame and is cheaper [illegible] oil." As old generators hum [illegible] lights of 1879 flare up, McNamee [illegible] give the radio signal to resume [illegible] ern illumination in all cities [illegible] pating. Edison will then cross [illegible] laboratory and play the reed organ [illegible] kept at the end of the room.

Short talks by world famous [illegible] tists, whose names are withheld [illegible] a brief address by President Hoover will end the festivities. The [illegible] of Light's Golden Jubilee will be [illegible] full hour from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. [illegible] ern standard time, Oct. 21. [illegible] WEAF and WJZ in New York will be linked in NBC's nation-wide hookup with short wave networks to [illegible] continents.

STATION STAFF OF KFI STUMPED BY TOUGH QUESTION

SAN FRANCISCO.—Recently a request was received at KFI which puzzled at first and afterward caused much amusement.

A piping, treble voice, evidently that of a child, called on the telephone:

"Say, mister, your station is playing too fast. How can I slow it down on my set?"

BIGGEST STUDIO ON TOP WORLD'S LARGEST BUILDING

N. B. C. Picks Chicago for Finest Quarters.

Complete plans for erection and equipment of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, atop the largest building in the world, are announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company. The new Chicago studios of the company will be situated on the roof of the Merchandise Mart, in the heart of the city.

The most modern equipment for broadcasting will be installed in studios, offices and laboratories, and engineers have devised plans for meeting radio problems as far into the future as possible. More than 62,000 square feet of floor space will be required to house the various activities.

Opening Jan. 1, 1930.

Formal opening of the new quarters, tentatively planned for Jan. 1, 1930, will be a definite step in fulfillment of Mr. Aylesworth's prediction two years ago that Chicago is destined to become one of the greatest broadcasting centers of the world. The fact that the Chicago headquarters of the National Broadcasting company are to be more pretentious than those now in use in New York, Washington, and San Francisco is regarded as a significant recognition of the importance of Chicago's position in the broadcasting field.

In the new location special construction will eliminate many of the physical and mechanical limitations of the usual office building. The quarters have been designed and will be built under the direction of O. B. Hanson, manager of operations and engineering.

Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, designers of the Merchandise Mart, will represent the NBC in architectural design and supervise the construction.

The new quarters will open with six studios, fully equipped with the latest developments in radio apparatus. Wire lines and other facilities will be installed, permitting expansion to an unlimited number of studios.

Largest Studio in World.

Studio "A" will be the largest radio theater in the world. It will be seventy-five feet long, fifty-one feet wide, and with a twenty-six foot ceiling, giving a total floor space of 3,820 square feet, and a total content of 99,450 cubic feet. It would provide standing room for more than a thousand persons, it is estimated.

The studio will have a large number of innovations in equipment. Instead of the usual velvet or monks' cloth drapes utilized in the regulating of acoustical effects, it will be walled with adjustable narrow panels. It is believed to be the first installation of this sort ever attempted.

A great pipe organ and organ loft, specially adapted for radio presentations of varied character, will be installed. A raised stage, for use in productions permitting the presence of an immediate audience, will occupy one end of the studio.

10,228 Feet Floor Space.

The other studios vary in floor size and ceiling height to meet various acoustical conditions. The total floor space devoted to the six broadcasting rooms will be 10,228 square feet, and total content will be 265,928 cubic feet.

Each studio will have a soundproof glass enclosed balcony to enable invited guests both to see the performance in the studio and hear it through loud speakers as the radio audience hears it.

All the studios except "F" will be on the nineteenth floor of the Mart, but will be two stories in height.

On the nineteenth floor will be the offices of the division engineer, plant and operating engineers, control boards, music library, musicians' rest rooms and lockers, reception rooms, announcers' rooms and lockers, artists' reception rooms, emergency first aid room, quarters for the library staff and engineering laboratory.

On the twentieth floor will be the office of the vice president in charge of the Chicago division, general office, agricultural department, program, press, sales and station relations departments, a conference room and studio "F." From observation rooms on the twentieth floor, visitors will be afforded a view of the performances in the studios.

Studios Without Windows.

The studios will be without windows [and partially hermetically sealed for soundproof] the ventilation being regulated through modern equipment maintaining a constant flow of pure air at a regulated temperature, and with a uniform degree of humidity. With this system, temperature is automatically maintained, within a variation of two degrees Fahrenheit.

In the center of the main control room will be two main control boards, each thirty feet long. One will be used for amplifiers, relays and controls of studio equipment.

RADIO STOPPING DRIFT OF FARM FOLK TO CITIES

Makes Education at Home Possible.

WASHINGTON. — Radio has done more than anything else in the last four years to check the drift of farmers to the city, according to J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute here.

Figures from the department of agriculture show that in 1926 approximately 649,000 more people deserted the farm for the city than from city to the farm, while in 1928—the latest figures available—only 188,000 more people left the farm for the city than from the city to the farm.

The reasons for this drift to the city, according to a recent analysis made by the bureau of agricultural economics, are economic conditions, and leaving the farm in order to get better educational advantages for their children in the city.

"It is my candid belief," continued Smith, "that radio has gone a long way toward wiping out these two reasons for the rush to the city.

Get Educational Features.

"A more extensive use of broadcasting facilities by farming agencies, the department of agriculture and other organizations giving weather, crop and market reports, will assist the farmer in putting his business on a more efficient basis. Radio has, in deed, become an economic necessity on the farm today.

"Further, radio is relieving the farmer of the necessity of breaking up his occupation and moving to the city to give his children an education Broadcasting is bringing and in the future will bring even more educational features right to the farmer's fireside. Recognized and accredited high school and college courses are given on the air in some sections, and will undoubtedly be given more generally in the near future."

New Day for Farmer.

Radio is a boon to the farmer, his wife and children. It is bringing them advantages and pleasures never before enjoyed.

A new day for American agriculture is being ushered in, Smith declared, in commenting on the applications of the federal state marketing service of California for seven broadcast station licenses to be used in a state-wide market quotations service.

"There is no question but that radio can be effectively used by farm cooperative agencies in the scientific marketing and distribution of agricultural products," continued Smith.

"In using radio this way the farmer is applying modern business principles and practices to his work and it will undoubtedly help to improve his economic status.

"Hence radio is not only a source of entertainment and education on the farm but it has become an economic necessity."

Australia Convicts Its Unlicensed Listeners

Convictions recently have been obtained by the Australian government in the cases of 1,707 unlicensed broadcast listeners. New South Wales had the greatest number of convictions, 804. Penalties amounted to £3,121 and costs to £1,321 pounds. The license fee in Australia is $5.84.

Television Actress

Bonnie Blue, Chicago's first television actress, will entertain daily during the radio show. Visitors will see and hear her sing blue songs over television with sound. Miss Blue is a Chicago girl.

TINFOIL MAKES IDEAL APARTMENT "LEAD-IN" WIRE

Apartment dwellers and others who have unusually long aerials—so long in fact that reception is hindered—may be interested in a noval solution of the lead-in question. Incidentally, this idea gets around the need for drilling holes in window frames or walls.

Two large sheets of heavy copper or tin foil are obtained—perhaps 8 or 10 inches squard. One is glued to the outside of the glass at the center of the window and the other exactly opposite, on the inside. The aerial lead wire is connected to the foil by picking up a corner and soldering. Inside, a wire from the foil leads to the antenna binding post of the set. The sheets of foil form a fairly large fixed condenser with glass insulation. Since the condenser is a "series" condenser, it is useful in cases of long aerials.

182 RADIO POLICE NOW.

There are now 182 government inspectors working under the supervisors, policing the ether and seeing that the broadcasting stations keep on their assigned wave channels.

STOCK TO OPEN CONCERT SERIES ON W-G-N TODAY

Symphony Orchestra Ready for Bow.

Dr. Frederick Stock and the world famous Chicago Symphony orchestra will be heard on the air for the first time this year today from 2 to 3 o'clock over W-G-N. The orchestra will broadcast each Sunday afternoon over a National Broadcasting company network.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the orchestra when they broadcast for the first time over a chain last year so delighted Dr. Stock that he decided to accept the invitation to give another series of concerts this season.

Acclaimed by music critics both in America and abroad as one of the finest musical organizations in the world, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has established a firm place in the hearts of American music lovers, and last year won nation-wide praise for their series of Sunday concerts under the same sponsorship.

Every modern broadcasting facility that engineers have devised will be used to make the reproduction of every note heard by the radio audience faithful to the finest degree. Dr. Stock has placed his personal approval on the perfectness of the broadcast and has stated that the radio does ample justice to his noted organization.

JUST TO PLEASE THE DIVA.

It was explained on the air recently that "O Promise Me," the hit in "Robin Hood," was written in the last minute to please a temperamental prima donna.

RADIO RELICS TO BE COLLECTED BY SMITHSONIAN

Government Agencies to Participate.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Radio's "hall of fame," now only a figurative something, is to become an actuality.

Within the Smithsonian institution in Washington there will be exhibited all of the available historical radio apparatus that can be collected, so that a graphic picture of the romance of radio may be depicted for posterity. The display will range from the first type of "spark gap" transmitter to the present water cooled tube circuits with their powerful signals.

Plans for the creation of a "radio museum" were discussed at a conference called by Capt. S. C. Hooper, chief of naval communications, and attended by representatives of other government departments and of a radio corporation which possesses a complete collection of historical radio apparatus. The conference unanimously agreed that there is a real need of the preservation of apparatus having historical significance, and steps immediately were taken to urge the Smithsonian institution to approve such a collection for display. Heads of all governmental departments and agencies likewise are being solicited to donate whatever radio equipment of an obsolete yet historical nature they have stored away.

Institution to Participate.

It was brought out by C. U. Mitman, curator of the Smithsonian institution, that the institution is anxious to obtain a historical exhibit of radio and will participate in any projects to procure the necessary equipment.

At the round table discussion, Capt. Hooper said that a large amount of radio apparatus of no value for service, but invaluable for historical purposes is being held at the navy yard in Washington, as well as at other navy yards and bases. Within a short time this material will be "junked" unless otherwise used. This statement served to reveal that at army depots throughout the country and at the United States bureau of standards equipment of a similar nature is lying about of practically no use.

Mr. Mitman explained, however, that under the law, historical apparatus or material held by any of the government departments cannot be loaned or given to agencies outside the government unless approved by the Smithsonian insutution. Thereupon it was decided that the Smithsonian should be petitioned for the collection of this equipment and its arrangement for a suitable historical exhibit.

Inventors Still Alive.

The reason for the collection of such apparatus at this time is that many of the individuals who participated in the development in radio are still alive and available for the acquisition of authentic records of their inventions.

In its letter to the Smithsonian the conference, which was of an informal nature, asked that a formal committee consisting of representatives of the Smithsonian, departments of war, navy and commerce, Institute of Radio Engineers and three nongovernmental representatives be appointed for the "radio museum" collection. Mr. Mitman said that he believed the institution would be willing to sponsor the organization of the committee to carry through the collection of the apparatus.

Illustrated is the beautiful Concert Grand. The top is of four-way matched butt walnut and surmounts side panels of diamond grained oriental walnut, flanking a central panel of figured bird's-eye maple, the whole hand rubbed to a mirror-like polish. It contains the standard SILVER RADIO eight tube screen-grid chassis, electro-dynamic speaker, and screen collector.

Price absolutely complete, less tubes, $173.00

Your dealer also has the Sheraton Lowboy at $140.00, and the Sheraton Highboy at $195.00.

IF YOU'RE the sort of human that thrills to fast cars and horses, that gets a big kick out of a 300-yard drive, or one of Babe's homers—then get ready for the biggest thrill of all from SILVER RADIO.

For SILVER RADIO is the one outstanding radio that does simply amazing things—like bringing to your living room programs two thousand miles away with only an ice-pick for aerial . . . like bringing in programs direct from Japan, Australia, and New Zealand, as SILVER RADIOS in the west do.

Because SILVER is that kind of a radio, your SILVER RADIO dealer is ready to make, in your presence, four of the most amazing tests you've ever witnessed—tests so stiff that you can pick without error the best radio. Ask your dealer to make the "Ice-Pick Test" the "Vanishing-Aerial Test", the "Hairpin Test", and the "Coin Test" . . . they'll show you the amazing difference between SILVER RADIO and all others.

SILVER RADIO—product of the manufacturer who introduced screen-grid radio to America in 1927—is guaranteed to get more programs without an aerial—it doesn't need any—than nine out of ten other radios will get with big interference-collecting outdoor aerials, and . . .

After all, why not have the best in your home, too? . . . tell your SILVER RADIO dealer you've "come to see his four amazing tests".

VIBRA-CONTROL
brings true tone realism to
NEW FADA RADIOS

MUSIC is simply audible vibrations. Controlled, they bring harmony. Uncontrolled, discord. Sounds simple, yet radio's greatest problem was to control these vibrations.

But today all this is ended . . . for Fada has at last achieved Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all radio vibrations . . . and with it has eliminated distortion, interference, rumbles, rain barrel tones and roars.

On a Fada every note, every shading of tone now comes to you exactly as broadcast . . . exquisitely true, surprisingly clear . . . a mirror-like reproduction of the artists themselves. For Vibra-Control is the long-sought secret of tone realism.

It would take a thousand words to explain this great achievement; but in ten minutes you can discover what Vibra-Control will mean to you. Hear it today . . . and get the thrill of radio reception stripped of mechanical noise.

Only Fada has Vibra-Control, priced from $99.50 to $675.00.

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

—in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence

Quite naturally some people discriminate in favor of excellence. Consequently, their choice of the new all-electric, screen grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

will come as a matter of course

IN THE HOUSES in which they live . . . the motor-cars which stand gleaming on their drives . . . the meals they serve in their dining-rooms . . . in short, in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence, a certain discrimination. These are people of good taste.

There is a radio receiver—the Eveready—which fits in with a life such as theirs, which fits in with a point of view demanding excellence in everything they own.

Its fidelity of reception is remarkable

Put it in a living-room and you have seats at a symphony concert . . . listen to it as you dine and you are transported to a table beside a polished square of dance floor in a smart restaurant . . . the excitement, the oratory, the color of a political campaign is yours without leaving your house . . . the President speaks to you as clearly as if you were present in Washington . . . this is the sort of reception you get—this is the sort of reception discriminating people demand—in the new Eveready Radio.

Its tone is full, round and agreeable. And because of the "weather-proof" principle incorporated in the new Eveready Radio the reception even on damp, humid nights is remarkably clear and free from distortion.

Its excellence is not a matter of months but many years

But if this were all people of good taste knew about the new Eveready Radio, they would hesitate to buy. Their whole point of view towards life requires that they also look for permanent, as well as momentary, excellence; that they look for the sort of perfection which comes with the ideal of precision building, an ideal which looks into the distant future as well as tomorrow.

So carefully, so precisely, is this fine instrument built that you may expect, not six months or a year of performance, but five, yes even ten years of satisfying reception. The large scientific organization which has expended years of research in making this radio receiver will add improvements, of course, as they are tested and tried out. That is taken for granted.

But the buyers of this radio receiver are not asked to consider mystifying technical terms, new accoutrements, devices and details comprehensible only to experts. Such things bore them. They know that whatever they buy is the best. Hence, they buy this radio.

EVEREADY SCREEN GRID CONSOLE MODEL 52, $157.50 (LESS TUBES)

Model 53, a larger console, $195 (less tubes)—Model 54, the de luxe console, $225 (less tubes), using the same perfected screen grid chassis. Pacific Coast prices slightly higher.

— mystifying technical terms bore them

You will want this remarkable radio receiver

And so, if you are a person who discriminates in favor of excellence, if your whole attitude towards life looks for effects, not causes, you will want the new Eveready Radio. That is why, when you see it, hear it, notice its beautiful cabinetwork, you will say, "Of course this is the instrument for my household."

LAFOUNT TELLS WAYS TO BETTER RADIO PROGRAMS

Must Give People What They Want.

BY HAROLD A. LAFOUNT.
[Radio Commissioner, Appointed from Zone Five.]

Any comprehensive plan for general improvement of radio programs in the United States necessarily resolves itself into a procedure whereby more persons will receive more of what they want, when they want it.

In order to accomplish any material degree of progress in its broadest sense, it is essential that the broadcast structure be considered as a whole, and that each unit fit into a general scheme of production and distribution, operating with conscious regard for its part in the scheme.

Our present radio structure comprises approximately six hundred units, functioning independently, and to some extent, competitively. There is no common denominator in practice, and little unity of purpose. Each station aims, in some degree, to give programs acceptable to its listeners, but in so doing most of them utterly disregard the availability and quality of such programs from other sources.

Measured by Public Reaction.

The question of what constitutes a desirable program is obviously one of individual prejudice, and opinion is of little value except in the mass. We are obliged to measure program values by public reaction, and to grade them by the response they evoke, giving due attention to the size of the potential audience.

Desirable programs have been established to fall into one of two types: first, those designed to be of unusual interest to a limited group or area; second, those which have been demonstrated to be of general interest or importance. Predominance of either type of program serves to identify a radio station.

On the above basis we are able to divide radio stations roughly into three classes:

The first group, fewer than a hundred in number, may be designated class A. By reason of availability of talent, unusual conditions of financing, connection with a network service, or combination of these factors, they consistently present programs of high quality and of general interest. These stations furnish our present standard of excellence in presentations designed for other than local consumption. They are able to broadcast the finest of music, by the best of artists, and to broadcast many features of uplifting and informative nature.

Constant Experimentation.

Undoubtedly the material that they put on the air is subject to much improvement. There is constant experimentation in the methods of presentation, and constant progress in the work of mechanical "pick-up" and transmission. Class A stations are naturally leaders in such improvement.

There is a rather sharp dividing line between the above mentioned group and those which we may designate class B. These are broadcasters whose supply of talent is limited, whose revenues are small, and who have not the advantages of network program services. In this class are several hundred stations struggling valiantly to give good programs. They deserve serious consideration in the measure that they play an integral part in the life of their communities. However, judged on the basis of the general interest value of their programs, they cannot be said to be at all comparable to those in class A.

A third class, which we may call class C, comprises a relatively small number of stations which devote much of their efforts to propaganda in behalf of religious, political, or social matters, or which are concerned with promoting a single business institution. From the standpoint of general interest their programs may be said to have a minimum of value, and in this discussion they may well be disregarded.

Ways Toward Improvement.

Two methods, not necessarily alternative, suggest themselves as essential to a comprehensive effort to improve broadcasting:

1. To raise the service value of class B stations to their communities.

2. To make class A programs available everywhere with such clarity and volume as to permit selection on a basis of desirability, rather than strength of signal.

Class B stations, for the most part, have neither money nor talent available for programs of general importance. Most of them would not fit economically into the present broadcast networks and are thereby prevented from transmitting programs emanating from centers where talent is more readily engaged. Progress in class B, it appears, will result from natural economic determination. The basis of radio financing now is advertising revenue, which in turn, has its prime requisite in listener interest. The listener is the foundation stone of the house.

If he is pleased with the program he is a potential purchaser of the products promoted in the program. If he is displeased, or is intrigued by a program elsewhere, he ceases to be a potential customer. Thus we have a logical cycle: Good programs, many listeners, pleased advertisers, more revenue. Or, conversely, poor programs, few listeners, unsatisfied advertisers, decreasing revenue.

It is apparent that class B stations cannot compete with class A stations in programs of widespread interest. It seems obvious that they should, therefore, give service to their listeners which they can do better than can those of class A. They can furnish specific service to specific communities, and justify their place in the general scheme. Those which are attuned to the spirit of their listeners, which present desirable material not otherwise available, are economically entitled to prosper. Those which fail to thus serve their listeners are likely to fall before the march of progress. It is the law of industrial "survival of the fittest."

The problem of better dissemination of class A programs at present involves possible engineering evolution and perhaps revolution. There is, of course, a fair coverage of the country through broadcasts of network programs, and those from a few other stations in metropolitan areas. Cleared channels have improved the reception considerably over that of a few years ago.

But there is still a large audience which is not able to receive important programs with volume sufficient to assure consistently high quality.

SCIENTISTS PROVE RADIO SIGNALS CAN PIERCE SOLID ROCK

Proof that radio waves can pierce solid rock seems to have been established conclusively by experiments in the Mammouth cave of Kentucky and in the Mount Royal tunnel in Montreal. Two scientists of the McGill university department of physics, Dr. A. S. Eve and Dr. D. A. Kays, have just reported the results.

In both tunnel and cave low frequency signals came in plainly, although their strength was not so great as in open air reception. In both tunnel and cave high frequency stations could not be tuned in. The report states that signals from distant radio stations were heard under 300 feet of sandstone and limestone. Precautions were taken to prevent signals from coming through passageways or through wiring.

RADIO TUBE NOW DOES DUTY AS ELEVATOR MAN

It takes an experienced operator to stop an elevator evenly at the various floor levels and even then they never always make perfect stops so that passengers do not have to "watch their step" getting on or off. That it takes the humble vacuum valve to do the job perfectly, year in and year out, is a fact that is little known to the radio public, versed as it is in the abilities of this magic tube for radio reception.

The use of vacuum tubes in the automatic leveling of elevator cars, in button controlled systems, depends on the characteristic of the increase of plate current when the tube is "in" or "out" of an oscillating condition. Coils and vanes concealed at the floor levels stop the normal oscillation of the tubes and sensitive relays in the circuit slow up the car and stop it accurately at the floor levels.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical instrument has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity, or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural overemphasis of any part of the scale.

"IT ISN'T RADIO...IT'S THE HUMAN VOICE"

Hear Kylectron

The revolutionary new method of sound reproduction . . . as sensational as the first tube set . . . the one new thing in radio this year

KYLECTRON is new in principle, new in design. It isn't an attachment, it isn't a tube, it isn't a "refinement." It is as different from ordinary methods of radio reproduction as the modern tube set is different from the old-fashioned crystal set.

Hear it . . . and you will have an entirely new conception of how perfect radio can be. Through Kylectron you hear everything exactly as it is broadcast. Kylectron changes nothing . . . adds nothing . . . takes away nothing . . . from the instrumental or vocal music that reaches the microphone in concert hall or studio. It reproduces everything just as a perfect mirror reflects an image. It is sensitive enough to reproduce a sigh; powerful enough to bring you the crash of a brass band without distortion; without "hum;" without mechanical sounds. Hear Kylectron . . . and you'll say as thousands have said: "Surely, science can go no further." Kylectron is offered today only in Courier and Peerless Radios . . . receivers which in themselves have everything you've always wanted.

Screen grid . . . certainly!

Courier and Peerless are screen grid radios. They use three screen grid tubes. In addition they have power detection, push-pull amplification, single dial tuning, light-socket operation, complete shielding; in short, they have everything that has been proved sound in radio engineering.

They are super-sensative. They get the distant stations so you can enjoy them. Their selectivity is sharp enough to cut through powerful local stations but not so sharp as to eliminate the side-band frequencies of a station which give the necessary "back-ground" to music and speech.

Hear these radios now!

Step into the Courier-Peerless dealer's store and listen to Kylectron, or arrange for a free home demonstration. Turn the tuning dial yourself. Set the volume control at a mere whisper and then bring the sound up until it fills the room. There's no distortion, no "hum," no mechanical sound. Just thrillingly delightful music . . . the kind of radio music you've been waiting for. Visit one of the stores tomorrow. There will be no obligation.

Courier Radio—$85 to $165
(without tubes)

Courier Radios are encased in console cabinets which are exquisite examples of the most expert designers, the finest craftmanship and the generous use of the world's finest woods. They are the kind of cabinets you'd expect to find only on extremely high priced sets. There are models with Kylectron or the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

Peerless Radio—$195 to $600
(without tubes)

It is impossible to build finer cabinets than those used to hold Peerless Radios. They are not merely "something to hold a radio" but exquisite pieces of furniture. Examine them carefully and you'll find nothing but the finest woods, nothing but the best in construction. Peerless Radios are made in models with Kylectron, or with the famous Peerless dynamic reproducers.

FIND USE FOR STATIC, ENEMY OF RADIO FANS

But Scientists Admit It Can't Be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After more than a decade of research, radio scientists have virtually admitted their inability to eliminate the devastating effects of static in the reception of broadcasting programs, but they are by no means through with their study. They have now begun to harness it for the benefit of mankind even though radio listeners gain nothing from the results of their experiments.

At this time of year, when the thoughts of the huge public of radio entertainment turn eagerly to visions of cold winter nights when reception is undisturbed by a jumble of noises that sound like a buzz saw in a box of automobile tools, such news is not so cheerful as it might be at the beginning of summer. For the period from Oct. 1 to March 15 is ordinarily considered the most favorable to receptibility.

But even in warm weather, the situation is not so serious as it might seem in view of the improvements that have been made in receivers and transmitters and the growing tendency to depend on local rather than distant stations for radio programs.

Admits Science Is Balked.

Dr. L. W. Austin, head of the laboratory for special radio transmission research at the United States Bureau of Standards, admitted, in answer to the question, that scientists are balked by static. So far as can be determined now, this bane of listeners will be with us always.

The chief reason for this is the distinct similarity between the mode of propagation of the static pulses and the radio signals, according to Dr. Austin, who is internationally recognized as one of the foremost authorities on static in the world. Then, too, static can not be eliminated because, like the weather, it is caused by atmospheric conditions which as yet are beyond the control of science.

The most sensible solution to the problem, which Dr. Austin has been advocating for some time, is already being adopted, viz., the reliance on local stations, which may be in chain hookups, and the use of more powerful transmitters. Moreover, listeners are learning, he said, that often when the strength of the reception is diminished, the programs come in more clearly because the static is also made less noticeable.

Numerous Schemes Tried.

All sorts of schemes have been tried to overcome static but without marked success. Among these has been the underground antennae, which the navy was inclined to believe, for a while during the world war, was superior to the overhead directive system. It was found later, however, that static in comparison with signal strength is almost as bad in the ground as it is in the air.

A fraud order was issued several months ago against an invention which, it was claimed, would eliminate static in radio reception by the underground method after the bureau of standards had declared its claims false.

Static, like the proverbial ill-wind, has some useful qualities, the contentions of disgruntled listeners to the contrary. And it is these good points that are now attracting radio scientists to further research.

Even though the experts themselves do not agree on the cause or causes of static, they are finding it valuable in the location of storms and consequently a contributor to the safety of life in the air and at sea.

Determines Storm Position.

In Europe, static is being employed to determine the position of storms, and to chart weather maps along aviation routes, and in America, experiments along these lines are just beginning. The United States navy has found that static can be used on the high seas to trace the course of hurricanes, thus enabling warships to dodge the storms. In the northwestern wooded areas of this country, static is being used to warn rangers of approaching forest fires by means of its weather forecasting proclivities.

The relationship between weather conditions and forest fires—those originating from natural causes—has been established. This relationship is so definite that the weather bureau issues forecasts of forest fire dangers based on the "complement of the humidity." Also, there is an apparent relationship between static and relative humidity; and on this hypothesis the major obstacle to radio reception is being harnessed in order to determine the amount of moisture in the atmosphere.

As forest fires take a toll of approximately $20,000,000 worth of timber and other property annually, the use of static in determining the amount of moisture in the air may compensate for some of the evils that the millions of listeners suffer.

Two Schools of Thought.

There are two schools of thought on the origin of static, according to Dr. Austin. One group holds that static for the most part is caused by lightning. Thus, even if there is no storm within a 1,000 miles of you, the static that troubles your receiver may come from a lightning discharge far away, mayhap the other side of the world. Their contention is that there is always lightning somewhere in the atmosphere and that the waves caused by the discharges are carried over the world.

The second school of experts admits that lightning is a prominent cause of static but contends that there are other electrical discharges, not visible to the eye, which are also to blame. For instance, the contact between two currents of air of different temperature may effect such a discharge. Static is worse in low pressure areas and in mountainous regions, Dr. Austin said.

Fading, which is often associated with static and often blamed on the same sources, is caused generally by the interference of radio waves and only rarely by atmospherics, according to Dr. Austin, who was inclined to discount the interference of the waves that travel through the air with those that move along the earth as the cause of fading at great distances. It comes rather from two waves traveling by different paths which have been reflected by the upper atmosphere, he said.

TELEVISION NOT YET PRACTICAL COMMERCIALLY

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the Commerce Yearbook for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting outdoor scenes on the television circuit was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

Radio Sets Reach Public Through Varied Sources

An interesting sidelight on radio merchandising is contained in the diverse channels by which radio equipment makes its way to the consumer. Reports show sales by firms and individuals giving their principal lines of business as that of poultry raiser, harness shop, funeral director, court reporter, baby chick hatchery, poolroom, optometrists, insecticide dealer, patent medicine dealer and what not.

HANDLING RADIO TUBES.

When changing tubes in the radio receiver always turn the set off. Failure to do so in many cases will burn out the tubes, due to the "rush" of current caused by the extraction of the tube.

NOMINATED

Raymond A. Heising, who has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

RADIO ENGINEERS NAME HEISING INSTITUTE HEAD

Inventor, Research Expert Is Nominated.

Raymond A. Heising, well known radio engineer, has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers for 1930 by the board of direction of the institute.

Mr. Heising is engineer on the technical staff of the Bell telephone laboratories located in New York. He has a long record of study and achievement in the radio field. After receiving his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1914 he joined the research department of the Western Electric company—incorporated some years ago with Bell telephone laboratories. He participated in the long distance radio telephone experiments of 1915 and developed and operated the transmitting sets for the Montauk-to-Wilmington experiments and for those carried on between Arlington and San Francisco, Honolulu, and Paris.

Aided in War Research.

During the war he was a member of the subcommittee on "wireless communication between aircraft" of the national research council. Many of his investigations at this time were with radio telephony for airplanes, sub chasers, and other military units.

After the war he took part in the development of the ship to shore radio telephone, and later in the development of the long wave trans-Atlantic radio telephone circuit. For the last four or five years he has been investigating short wave phenomena and carrying on fundamental research in connection with the recently completed short wave radio systems.

Seventy Patents to Credit.

Mr. Heising has published many technical and scientific articles in the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and in the Physical Review, and has over seventy patents to his credit and others pending. In 1921 he was awarded the Morris Liebman Memorial prize by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Other members nominated are: Vice president, Col. A. G. Lee, staff engineer in charge of radio, engineering department, general postoffice, London, England.

For managers: John V. L. Hogan, past president, consulting engineer, New York City: Robert H. Marriott, past president and consulting engineer, New York City.

FEDERAL COMMISSION SEEKS TO CUT DOWN CHAIN DUPLICATIONS

An attempt to prevent duplication of chain radio programs on the listeners' dials is being made by the federal radio commission in a survey of broadcasters on cleared channels who use chain programs at night.

Copies of a questionnaire, designed by W. J. Clearman at the instigation of Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, asks fourteen questions. The information, obtained from fifty odd stations, will be used "to assist the commission in its work of assigning frequencies to broadcasting stations in such a way as to provide the satisfactory reception of desirable programs without unnecessary duplication, interference and waste."

Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, recently hurled charges of favoritism to chain systems as against independent stations at the radio commission, and complained of the commission's continual postponement of putting into effect general order No. 43, which would limit the operation of stations on cleared channels broadcasting the same programs to transmitters 300 miles apart. This order has been delayed upon five different occasions, the latest effective date being set for Dec. 31.

STATION BUILT IN WORLD'S WORST RADIO CLIMATE

The country with the world's worst radio climate has finally bowed to the popularity of entertainment via the air. A station has been constructed in Colombia.

Being in the hottest corner of the Caribbean territory and with difficult natural conditions, Colombia has denied herself the privilege of local broadcasting until recently when a transmitter was built at Bogota with a studio installed at the Capitol for broadcasting Congressional proceedings and theater performances, according to word received by the U. S. department of commerce from James J. O'Neill, assistant trade commissioner.

Colombia becomes the 69th broadcasting country, and the station brings the total in foreign countries to 609. United States stations total 612.

Unlicensed Listeners in Australia Are Convicted

The postal department of the Australian government has instituted a campaign against unlicenced radio listeners and has thus far convicted 1,707 listeners, according to a statement by the United States department of commerce.

There are 1,289,000 listeners in Australia, according to the department, and the license fee amounts to $5.84 a set.

HYDE FINDS RADIO NEW LEAVEN OF RURAL AMERICA

Breaks Down Isolation of Former Days.

BY ARTHUR M. HYDE.
[Secretary of Agriculture.]

WASHINGTON.—Agriculture needs radio. It carries to the most remote farm social values, aesthetic values and business information. It overleaps the barriers of space and breaks down isolation.

More than any other group in the United States, our farm people depend upon radio in their business and in their home life. "Radio belongs to farmers" said an official of the big broadcasting systems recently. He went on to explain his remark in this wise:

"The business man gets reports of his markets from a ticker. Until radio came along the farmer was without similar comparable information on markets. The urban family can easily attend church services led by the great divines, hear the music of famous choirs, symphony orchestras, opera companies; until the advent of radio the farm family had scant opportunity to share these inspirations.

"Spectacular and historical events, such as the inauguration of presidents and direct contact with the leaders of thought and action, are carried by radio to the most isolated farm homes.

"Lacking radio, the rural population even with the telephone and good roads would still be close to that condition of isolation and loneliness which was described and decried a quarter of a century ago in the report of President Roosevelt's country life commission."

Developing Business Service.

Our broadcasting experience in the department of agriculture has largely been confined to development of the business service of radio to the farm. The earliest broadcasting stations sent weather information—forecasts, warnings, etc.—in coöperation with the United States weather bureau, and crop and market news supplied by the bureau of agricultural economics. Later, the department established a radio service of timely information on production practices in agriculture and on scientific homemaking. Each year since the birth of broadcasting has seen a steady growth in the number of radio stations making these services available to the rural audience. At present 215 radio stations transmit weather reports obtained directly from the weather bureau; 114 stations broadcast crop and market news, some of them on schedules running up to fourteen periods daily; 163 stations send one or more of the eight programs of general farming and home making information supplied by the department; and a network of 39 stations associated with the National Broadcasting company provides at noontime a national farm and home hour program.

297 Stations Serve Farmer.

All told, with duplications eliminated, 297 of the 610 radio broadcasting stations in the United States cooperate with the federal department of agriculture in one or more ways to serve farmers and home makers. Included in the list are virtually all stations of one thousand watts or higher power. The time devoted to this specialized service would command, at commercial rates, much more than one million dollars a year. It is freely given to agriculture without cost except the expense of supplying speakers or facts.

This coöperation of broadcasters with the department of agriculture does not tell the whole story of radio service to rural America. Nineteen of the land grant colleges of the United States maintain their own radio stations. These are broadcasting from a maximum of forty-three to a minimum of three hours a week with a large proportion of their time devoted to programs of farm and home information. Of the 19, one is on a "cleared" channel, the remaining 18 on regional channels. Their power ranges from 10,000 to 250 watts.

Colleges Supply Speakers.

Land grant colleges in the remaining 27 states supply speakers and programs to commercial broadcasting stations, except in a few states which do not possess powerful transmitters. State boards of agriculture or bureaus of markets in some great agricultural states such as Missouri and Wisconsin operate their own broadcasting stations. In other states the boards or departments of agriculture have accepted the offer of commercial radio facilities.

National, state, and smaller units of the farm organizations maintain agriculture information and promotion programs through numerous stations. On occasion the national network systems send special agricultural broadcasts into every part of the country. Rural listeners will recall many of them, including the program of the Institute of Coöperation last July and the National 4-H club program arranged by the department of agriculture last June which brought the 100,000 farm boys and girls in this organization a message from Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Farm Families Appreciate Radio.

Farm families owning radio sets use the business aids extended by the nation's broadcasters; they appreciate—how profoundly few can realize—the widening of cultural and social horizons made possible by the genius of electrical science.

Literally thousands of letters coming to the department bring home to us the fact that, through radio, a new heaven is working in rural America. Farm families testify that the radio "brought church services to our home." "Helped out in the back country," "made it possible for us to hear Presidents speak and opera stars sing," "taught us a number of new wrinkles," "brought relaxation to us," "made farm life more pleasant."

What the results will be in the way of a higher level of culture I am not bold enough to predict. Necessarily there will be developed closer ties of unity and of interest among the different sections of the nation. These are intangible values, values which cannot be listed or tabulated, values none the less real.

Western City Has Law to Help Radio Listeners

An ordinance has been passed by the city council of Sacramento, Cal., prohibiting the operation of devices, appliances, and equipment which interferes with radio broadcasting reception between 2 p. m. and 11 p. m., with the exception of machines used by doctors and of licensed radio stations and the operation of public utilities.

PLACEMENT OF AERIAL.

An outdoor aerial should, whenever possible, be strung in an open space away from nearby objects, such as trees, buildings and other wires, particularly those that run parallel with the aerial. Anything of a nature that will absorb radio signals will take away just so much energy from the aerial.

TO BROADCAST WAR PLAY.

The British Broadcasting company announces that it will broadcast "Journey's End," the British war play, on Armistice day, in the evening.

SURVEY REVEALS FIFTH OF RADIO SETS ON FARMS

With farm families owning more than one-fifth of all the receiving sets in use in the United States, radio has become one of the most important modern factors in stemming mass desertion of the nation's farms by the younger generation, it is disclosed in a survey recently made public here.

"Farmers constitute the largest single group of radio families in the United States, with 20.10 per cent owning receiving sets," declares Richard E. Smiley, whose company conducted the survey.

"Radio on the farm had added the essential dash of zest to rural life that tends to keep the young folks down on the farm amused as well as cognizant of happenings in all parts of the world.

"The middle west is slightly behind New England and the mid-Atlantic states as far as the ratio of radio sets to families is concerned. Our survey showed that 43.85 per cent of the families in New England and 43.75 per cent of the families in the mid-Atlantic states have receivers, while but 38.96 per cent of the families in the midwestern states east of Mississippi and 26.33 per cent of the families of the midwestern states west of the Mississippi have sets."

Per cent of families by population having radio receivers, Mr. Smiley declares, is as follows: Large cities, 37.16 per cent; smaller cities, 41.17 per cent; rural towns, 31.78 per cent, and farms, 28.81 per cent. Of the estimated 10,500,000 homes in the United States having radio receivers only about 3,000,000 have electric light power operated sets, he declared.

NAVY GIVES BREMEN AID.

The United States naval radio station in New York handles communications and weather reports for the mail plane catapulted from the S. S. Bremen. Two way communication was established recently on 500 kilocycles nine minutes after the plane took to the air at a distance of approximately 200 miles.

HEARD ACROSS PACIFIC.

The time signals broadcast by the naval radio station, NAA, at Arlington, Va., have been picked up by the S.S. Atlas on the Pacific until two days out from Shanghai.

Chicago Radio Show Opens in Coliseum Tomorrow

W-G-N IS READY WITH PLANS FOR WINTER SEASON

Many New Features on Schedule.

With the broadcast of the world series and the first big football games W-G-N opened what assuredly will be the most brilliant season in the station's history.

Henry Selinger, general manager and musical director of W-G-N, stated yesterday that the presentations planned for the coming season will be unrivaled in an American studio.

Gaston du Moulin, director of the W-G-N symphony orchestra, has made an extensive study of musical presentations for the radio and is ready with the best in orchestral music. He has learned to take full advantage of the tone perspective possibilities of the new W-G-N studios, assuring accurate and colorful reproduction at the receiver.

Goldkette Ready with Hits.

Jean Goldkette employs a staff of alert, jazz conscious arrangers, which includes Victor Young, prominent orchestrator and violin virtuoso; Ken Davis and Bill Huxley of piano fame. They with Jean have scoured the 1930 musical shows appearing, or to appear in New York, in search of the hits of the coming season. They have already made a few choice selections, and are now at work on the orchestrations. The brass and saxophone sections have been reinforced.

Carleton Coon and Joe Sanders have returned to their winter quarters at the Blackhawk restaurant. Joe has a few new tunes appearing which promise to be, in the vernacular, wows.

Time on the air for Coon-Sanders Nighthawks has been increased in response to thousands of requests. The Saturday midnight show, the Knights of the Bath, has a new master of ceremonies, Bob Elson. The Knights of the Bath is one of the few "call up" request programs remaining in a city which used to be full of them.

Love Plans Choral Groups.

Mark Love, vocal director of W-G-N and newly appointed acoustician, plans the organization of several new choral groups. Mr. Love is one of the most prominent singers of oratorio music in America and has had years of experience with radio work.

An innovation in the presentation of opera is expected to mature this season. Famous operas will be reduced to musical dramas, written in the continuity department of W-G-N, so that the story will be completely told independently of the acting and singing. As the famous arias are reached a competent group of chorusters and the finest soloists available will sing them.

In these operas Mark Love, as acoustician, will play a vital part. The duties of the acoustician are to balance the volume of independent parts of a program emanating from different

MAID OF HONOR

Miss Irma Glen, staff artist of station WENR, will preside over the radio show as maid of honor. She will be the official hostess throughout the sessions of the exhibition.

RADIO'S HISTORY TO BE SHOWN AT EXPOSITION

Story Is Dramatized for Visitors.

The story of radio's rise from the time the first wireless signals flashed across the Atlantic until today when it is regarded as one of the master instruments of the ages will be dramatized before the eyes of visitors in the special $100,000 radio pageant of progress section of the Chicago radio show which opens in the Coliseum tomorrow.

The radio pageant is without parallel in its completeness, range of material, technical scope, and historic appeal. Nothing is missing—photoradio, television, high speed wireless, ship-to-shore broadcasting, railroad and airplane apparatus. There are models and miniatures of entire installations, complete in every detail—apartment houses, high powered trans-Atlantic stations with towers, aerials, transmitting and receiving buildings, all reproduced with the fidelity of the originals.

Pictorial History.

Accompanying each exhibit is a complete pictorial history of the subject, photographs taken of high spots in its development from the crude things of earlier days to present day technical excellence.

The exhibit has been many months in preparation and material has been gathered when necessary to round out one collection or another from England, France, Germany, and other foreign countries.

Marconi's First Equipment.

In the exhibit there is a Baden-Powell kite, associated in the minds of every one who knows radio with the carrying aloft of the aerial at St. John's, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12, 1901, when Marconi first succeeded in trapping a trans-Atlantic wireless signal. Also to be seen is an exact replica of the apparatus on which the famous inventor first heard the three-dot signal, the letter "S," sent from Poldhu, England, while the Baden-Powell kite plunged about aloft. They were the three dots which changed a world.

Compared to modern radio apparatus the Marconi apparatus as exhibited at the Chicago radio show is so crude that it is sure to amaze spectators. Helped by no regeneration or amplifiers, and without even a thought of a loud speaker, Marconi heard England.

Illinois-Michigan Game on W-G-N Next Saturday

Next Saturday, W-G-N, the CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, will broadcast the homecoming game at Champaign, where Illinois meets the Michigan eleven from Ann Arbor, with Quin Ryan at the michrophone. The week following the Illinois-Northwestern game at Evanston goes on the air.

AIR AND RADIO LAWS TO COME BEFORE PARLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—[U.P.]—In this picturesque city overlooking the great "Father of Waters" from the commanding Chickasaw bluffs the American Bar association will meet in its 152d annual national convention Oct. 23-26.

More than 5,000 members are expected to convene within a stone's throw of where Gen. Andrew Jackson opened his first law office here just 11 years after the bar association was organized in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1777.

Three principal topics for discussion are included on the program for the convention. They are aviation laws, revision of radio laws, and bar entrance requirements.

DAMROSCH TO START NEW CLASSES OVER W-G-N ON FRIDAY

Walter Damrosch, dean of American conductors, presents another of his series of radio classes in musical appreciation through W-G-N and a coast to coast network of stations connected with the National Broadcasting company next Friday at 10 a. m.

These programs are part of a series of educational programs designed to be included in the musical curriculum of schools. Through them a complete symphony orchestra, augmented by the genius of Mr. Damrosch, can be brought to the classrooms of elementary schools, high schools and universities all over the country.

ADVERTISING ON RADIO NETWORKS DOUBLES IN YEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Advertising over radio chains has nearly doubled during the last year, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of census of the department of commerce.

During the first seven months of 1928 advertisers spent $5,133,000 for facilities over the Columbia and N. B. C. chains. During the same seven months of 1929 they spent $9,974,000, representing an increase of over $4,500,000.

STATION S-E-X WILL BE NEXT.

Advance information coming from Los Angeles is that Clara Bow's next picture will be called "Station S-E-X." Is it radio or what?

MILLION DOLLAR DISPLAY, LAST WORD IN ART

Sets Are in Beautiful Cabinets.

BY LORENZ WOLTERS.

With the finest display of radio creations ever brought together under one roof Chicago's eighth annual radio show—a million dollar exposition this year—opens tomorrow in the Coliseum. And until the doors close next Sunday night at 11 o'clock on the latest offerings of nearly 300 exhibitors, Chicago remains the capital of the ether-minded world.

Every inch of available space in the Coliseum, including the main building, mezzanine balconies, and north and south ballrooms will be occupied in presenting the latest in radio styles to crowds that will be record breaking, if early fall sales are a reliable index to the season's radio interest.

Show visitors will be impressed with the fact that the radio industry has suddenly grown up. It has hit a steady, measured stride hitherto unknown. Each of Chicago's previous expositions revealed products with revolutionary features unheard of at the preceding show. Last year saw a general introduction of the all electric receivers, the flowering of console or cabinet sets, and dynamic speakers.

The Screen Grid Tube.

This year brings a further perfection of these features and with them a definite and secure place in the radio sun for the screen grid tube.

The tube, it is claimed, has a capacity for increasing the circuit's sensitivity, sharpening tuning, producing added volume and enhancing the tonal quality. And tonal qualities, one learns, are what sell radios this year.

Few demand long distance tuning any more. All of the well known types will bring in plenty of fine programs. Fine cabinets—and they are finer than ever this year at somewhat reduced prices—help to sell the radio. They are likely to attract the eye, but

FAMOUS FOR ITS CATHEDRAL TONE

CHICAGO RADIO SHOW TO OPEN DOORS TOMORROW

Million Dollar Display Is Last Word in Art.

the ear is the final arbiter. If the old set would give as fine a tone as the new ones many potential customers would not buy this year. Further improvement in speakers has helped radio in this major achievement of the year—the acquisition of the rich, clear voice of maturity.

The Radio Phonograph.

Of course, there are other features that will attract buyers. A remote control by which a set may be tuned from any part of the house, several devices for automatic tuning, including a visual tuning meter. Many of the new all electric sets are radio phonographs. This sort of set appears to have staged something of a comeback. If you are pleased with a certain radio selection you buy it for the phonograph and play it over; if it's a dull day for radio, you choose your own music.

With approximately 75 per cent of radios purchased, or at least chosen, by women, console cabinets and built-in speakers are more popular than ever. Women look at a radio not only as an instrument for producing music and entertainment but also as a piece of furniture. Hence manufacturers are striving for cabinets that will satisfy the most exacting tastes. In speaking of their latest designs they employ such phrases as "old English," "pilasters of diamond matched oriental walnut plywood," "Carpathian elm arched doors," "Gothic motif," "exterior of Jacobean beauty," and "Charles II. motif."

Set for Every Purse.

This year there appears to be a set for almost every pocket. A general tendency on the part of most manufacturers to get into the low priced field is manifest. Here and there prices have been cut in half. With almost every offering one is sure to get much greater value per dollar than in any year since broadcasting began. Many console sets are priced from slightly more than $100 to $360, though one may spend considerably more.

In addition to the hundreds of receiving sets on exhibition visitors will find many late developments from radio laboratories and broadcast features to interest them. The RCA-Alexanderson system of television, though still in the laboratory stage, will be exhibited for the first time in Chicago and for the first time outside of New York City. A continuous demonstration of this new picture-radio will be under the direction of Austin Rahe of New York. Stars of the stage, screen, radio and distinguished persons in business and professional life will appear before the televisor, and arrangements have been made so that the spectators can see them in person and on the television screen at the same time.

W-G-N to Broadcast.

W-G-N and other powerful Chicago stations will broadcast programs from the huge Crystal studio in the Coliseum.

For the first time in the history of the Chicago radio show colorful broadcasts, originating here, will be put on the air by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia broadcasting system.

The new musical instrument, theremin, operated entirely by radio waves, will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago.

In the radio pageant of progress visitors may examine historic pieces of equipment used in the days of wireless infancy nearly thirty years ago.

Radio dealers who will come from all over the midcontinent region are looking forward to a banner year. A 50 per cent increase in business over the 1928-1929 season is predicted for them. Last year 2,000,000 sets were sold in the United States. If sales continue at the present pace it is estimated that 10,000,000 sets will be in use in the country by next June.

Chicago's radio show is sponsored by the Radio Manufacturers' association. G. Clayton Irwin Jr. is general manager of the show and U. J. Herrmann is managing director.

RADIO LEADERS WILL WELCOME GUESTS TO SHOW

For the first time during the eight years of radio shows in Chicago there is to be a reception committee at the forthcoming Chicago exhibit. It consists of seven of the leaders in the industry. Not only will they welcome distinguished guests but they will be on the alert constantly to see that the visitors' stay is made pleasant from the moment they enter the door. The committee consists of:

H. B. Richmond, president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, Cambridge, Mass.; T. K. Webster, treasurer, and Henry Forster, vice president, of Chicago; Maj. Herbert H. Frost, director and former R. M. A. president, New York City; Capt. William Sparks, Jackson, Mich., vice president; Morris Metcalf, Springfield, Mass., vice president; and C. C. Colby, Boston, Mass., director and former R. M. A. president.

RADIO SET OF FUTURE WILL BE HEARD, NOT SEEN

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Remote tuning and volume control are expected to constitute the next era of broadcast development.

Experts predict the radio wired home, with the receiving set or sets located in basement or attic and controlled from loud speaker outlets in various parts of the house by means of remote tuning and volume controls.

Two or more receiving sets will provide a multiplicity of simultaneous programs.

Just as the ornate parlor stove of a past generation disappeared into the basement and made way for radiators and registers in piping heat to all parts of the house, so must the radio set eventually be heard but not seen in all parts of the home, it is said.

MYSTERIOUS MUSIC

Theremin has no keyboard, strings, reeds or other mechanical aids for manipulation, and there is nothing but atmosphere between the player and the instrument itself.

One hand controls the tone and the other the volume, the position of each hand in relation to the theremin determining the tones produced. As described by Hubert S. Conover, 'cellist of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, one of the few attending a private demonstration of the theremin, "Music is produced as though the hands were striking invisible strings of some celestial instrument."

Of course, it's mysterious radio that is responsible for the seeming impossibility that takes place before the eyes and ears of the observer. When the human hand is brought into a sensitive electrical field, surrounding one of the slender rods protuding from the theremin, the field is so affected that audio frequency notes, or sound, are produced, louder or softer as the position of the hand is changed. These are amplified and passed through a loud speaker. The position of the other hand with reference to a second rod or antenna determines the volume, in gradations down to the faintest whisper.

Theremin is the invention of a young Russian scientist, Prof. Leon Theremin.

Carrier Pigeon Dropped for Radio by U. S. Navy

All carrier pigeon activities of the United States Navy were abolished on Oct. 1 and the navy began sending all its messages by radio, it was announced recently by the navy department. Four hundred birds will be kept at the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station, and the naval station at Guam, but will not be used in regular message service. The Anacostia, D. C., naval air station lofts now have the greatest number of prize winning birds. "Jolly Tar," the station's star pigeon, won both the 500 mile and the 600 mile race. The station has furnished eight winners this year.

studios. In order to do this, Mr. Love will coöperate with the engineering department, controlling the volume of each microphone in use as he listens to the result in a loud speaker before him.

In a more popular vein the vocal department of W-G-N offers the Rondoliers. They are a well trained male quartet glorifying the old fashioned idea of harmony.

The new season will fully demonstrate the possibilities of W-G-N's capable staff of pianists. Herbert Johnson, a familiar figure on the American concert stage, appears not only with the W-G-N Symphony orchestra but as soloist.

Leon Denditsky, pianist with the Tonecasters, has begun a series of Wednesday afternoon recitals.

Barry and Kottler.

Mischa Kottler and Edward Barry are two prominent Chicago pianists. Kottler has recently been engaged by Jean Goldkette for performance with dance orchestra, taken directly from the concert stage. Edward Barry, Sunday soloist for the last three years at W-G-N, has, during those years, conducted a most extensive and successful course of radio piano lessons annually. Bary is also an important member of W-G-N's program department.

Chamber music such as heard during the Musical Melange was the nucleus for a great organization of ensembles. Since the early days of radio the Drake concert ensemble and the Blackstone string quintet have been outstanding as string ensembles on the air. However, these ensembles have bene erely remote control subjects for broadcast.

Studio ensembles of woodwind, brass and string will appear almost nightly during the 1930 season at W-G-N. Novel combinations, of flute, oboe, and clarinet will be regularly announced.

The Tonecasters are a string trio now heard daily during the morning and afternoon programs. Armond Bieseret, violinist, directs Leon Benditsky and Leon Lichtenfeld, who play cello and piano with the trio.

W-G-N Players Ready.

Harry W. Spingold announces an extensive repertoire for the W-G-N Players for the coming season. He and Jean Conover, playwright, have selected a large number of classics to be reconstructed for radio presentation. As soon as the present series of dramatizations of Prohibition Killings is completed, the season will be open.

Among the new items of studio equipment to augment the presentation of programs are four new pianos. The studios have been completed. Attempts made to perfect a system of reproducing sound perspective have been astoundingly successful.

Among the finest of the long list of new features at W-G-N is to be a program known as "Chicagoland." It will begin next Sunday. In the preparation of this program, Edward Barry of the program and continuity department, coöperates with Alfred G. Wathall, eminent composer and member of the arranging staff of W-G-N. Mr. Barry has made extensive studies of Chicago's history in preparation of the announcements. Mr. Wathall has arranged a number of reminiscent melodies and has made several actual compositions for the programs.

Sports events, Christmas services, prize fights, the most brilliant of the operatic and concert stars, and a host of other broadcasts will make W-G-N's season exceptionally brilliant.

RADIO QUEEN

LELA M. OSBORN.

A daughter of the Kansas prairies born in a village of fewer than 100 people, whose pioneer ancestors helped carry civilization into the western plains, will be crowned "radio queen of America" Monday evening at the opening of the Chicago Radio show. She is Lela M. Osborn of Wichita, Kas., and in view of thousands of show visitors she will receive the loving cup which is emblematic of her newly won title. Miss Osborn's essay on the subject "What My Radio Set Means to Me" was awarded first prize by the judges in the annual essay contest conducted by the radio show.

Her love for music was undoubtedly inherited from her mother, who encouraged her in her early efforts and with whom she sang in the church choir in Healy and later in St. Paul's Methodist church in Wichita. With the advent of radio broadcasting Miss Osborn conceived the ambition of winning fame as a radio artist and by dint of ardent effort was given a chance to sing in several programs over KFH in Wichita.

COMMERCIAL USE OF TELEVISION BIGGEST BARRIER

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the commerce year book for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting upon the television circuit outdoor scenes was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

MOTORIST USES RADIO RECEIPT FOR LICENSE

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—[U. P.]—A radio was more alluring than the necessary license for the operation of his automobile, Joseph Hosley confessed to police here recently.

When Joseph paid the $10 down on the radio, he decided to eat his cake and have it, too. So he pasted the radio receipt on the windshield of his car. The hoax proved a good substitute for a state auto license division receipt.

Joseph probably had more than one laugh at Milwaukee policemen, for his novel stunt began Jan. 1, and lasted until an alert traffic officer escorted him on a visit to a judge. The visit cost Joseph $10 and besides he must get a new auto license in a hurry.

RADIO EXPERTS WILL LET SHOW VISITORS LISTEN TO RADIUM

All sorts of strange things happen in the great research laboratories of the country where men of science toil to discover more of the secrets of nature.

One of the impossibles, even to the research men, has now become the possible. It is the ability to hear the voice of radium. The ingenious device by which the feat is accomplished will be exhibited at the Chicago radio show and visitors may actually hear the continuous bombardment of the radium projectiles.

For many years science has been able to witness radium as it "talks"

The Only True Test of Radio Performance Ever Conceived

Every Brunswick Dealer will demonstrate the NEW Brunswick Radio as no other set has been demonstrated.

He will literally take you to Station WABC, New York City, and there put on a special broadcast for you—let you listen to the artists before their work goes on the air. You will then hear the same broadcast as it is received through the NEW Brunswick Radio.

This is the only sound method of comparing radio performance. And only Brunswick can utilize it.

RADIO AS CRIME DETERRENT IS SHOWN BY TESTS

Chicago Police Soon Will Have Own Station.

Radio as a crime deterrent by reason of its aid to the police in expediting the speedy apprehension of criminals, was emphasized recently by W. J. Zucker, Chicago radio manufacturer. He cited the fact that the police of Chicago, Detroit and other large cities have resorted successfully to the use of the wireless communication in combating the activities of holdup men, burglars and perpetuators of other major crimes.

Mr. Zucker, who has made an exhaustive study of the commercial and social potentialities of radio, said that since the Chicago police had been experimenting with radio, there were not only fewer crimes reported, but a greater number of arrests made in cases where crimes were committed.

Mr. Zucker praised Police Commissioner William F. Russell of the Chicago police department for his initiative in employing radio as an adjunct to his detective force. He predicted that the time was near at hand when the police of each metropolitan area would have its own broadcasting station in order to more efficiently fight crime.

Speedy Apprehension.

"The best way of fighting crime and discouraging the tendencies of those about to launch upon a criminal career, is to make an example of those who commit crimes," said Mr. Zucker. "This can only be accomplished by certain and swift punishment.

"The first step toward the punishment of a person who has committed a crime is the speedy apprehension of the guilty one and radio has given satisfactory evidence of its value in this regard.

"Radio has played more or less of a dramatic part in overtaking criminals on ships at sea while fleeing to a refuge in a foreign land. However, it is only since the police authorities of some of our larger cities have introduced the radio in its daily fight with criminals that the real possibilities of its use in this connection have been realized.

"Commissioner Russell of the Chicago police department was one of the first to appreciate the value of radio as an adjunct to his crime fighting forces. His judgment has already been confirmed by reduction in the number of crimes reported and by an increase in the number of arrests for crimes committed.

High Powered Autos.

Commissioner Russell realized that the advent of the high powered motor car and its employment by hold up men had increased the number of major crimes and at the same time lessened the ability of the police to cope with them. He introduced high powered squad cars into his department and even with this innovation found that his forces were handicapped. When crimes were being committed his fleet of squad cars were cruising the city and because of the department's lack of a means of immediate communication with them were unable to advise them promptly upon receipt of crime reports.

"All police squad cars which patrolled the street of Chicago were radio equipped. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, operating radio station, W-G-N, worked in conjunction with police headquarters and made it possible for police commanders to be within instant communication reach of all squad cars. "As soon as a report of a robbery or any other major crime was received, police headquarters immediately relayed it over a special wire to the broadcasting station which in turn sent out warnings over the air to the members of squad cars cruising the street. All available details such as the description of those wanted in connection with the crime were disseminated in this manner."

The system was so successful that the police department applied for a short wave license and soon is to have its own broadcasting station. It will operate on a frequency not heard on ordinary receiving sets.

Federal Radio Board Faces Heavy Schedule

A heavy schedule of hearings this fall and early winter faces the federal radio commission. More than 400 cases have been docketed to be heard before Dec. 31, when the present term will expire. About one-half are applications for new stations. Most of the remainder are petitions for kilocycle changes and increase in power. There now are 609 broadcasting changes. When the commission was created there were 732.

TELEVISION'S FIRST SHOWING HERE

Television will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago at the radio show. Stars of the stage, screen and radio, as well as distinguished figures in the business world, will appear before the televisor. R. D. Kell, assistant to Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, the inventor of the system to be exhibited, is pictured demonstrating television above.

TRIBUNE WRITERS TO TALK DURING WOMEN'S HOUR

Style Show Feature of Exposition.

Women of Chicago and the middle west will not be slighted at the radio show. According to G. Clayton Irwin Jr., general manager of the show, an hour's program will be presented at the exposition every day except Sunday, devoted entirely to the things dear to women.

Appearing every afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock will be women famous for their expert knowledge of women's problems and interests. The program will be widely varied from day to day, and will range in nature from a lecture on the care of babies with live babies in charge of nurses present, by Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, chairman of the medical committee of the Illinois Masonic hospital, to a discussion of the intimate affairs of the heart.

Tribune Writers to Speak.

The program has been carefully arranged to contain something of value for all women and will present among others Sally Joy Brown and Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The management has secured a feature of unusual interest for the afternoon of the opening day of the exhibit when a forty-five minute style show will be presented in which a wide selection of woman's apparel will be shown on living models. This feature of the program will be repeated on the afternoon of Wednesday when a second style show will be held in which a complete exhibit of sport clothes and clothes for street wear with all accessories will be given.

To Talk About Poor.

Feature writers on Chicago metropolitan newspapers will have important parts in the program, speaking on subjects in which they have been especially interested in writing for their readers.

Sally Lunn of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE will give a talk Friday afternoon on table decorations, which will be supplemented by an actual demonstration of the arrangement of tables for various occasions, using china and crystal from Tatman's and linen from Marshall Field & Co. On Tuesday afternoon Sally Joy Brown, also of THE TRIBUNE, will tell of her experiences with Chicago's poor and needy in connection with the philanthropic work carried on by her paper.

GREAT SALES INCREASE.

Members of the Radio Manufacturers' association are reported last year to have sold $585,000,000 worth of radio products, compared with only $32,000,000 in 1923. One concern this year expects to do $110,000,000 worth of business.

CHICAGO OPERA TO GO ON AIR 13 NIGHTS THIS YEAR

Thirteen of the most famous operas from the pens of master composers as interpreted by the star artists of the famous Chicago Civic Opera company during its 1929-'30 season will be made available to listeners throughout the United States, it saw revealed in plans announced for their broadcast by the National Broadcasting company. The series will open Saturday night, Nov. 9.

What is said by engineers to be the most elaborate and complete radio "pick-up" in the United States is being installed in Chicago's new $20,000,000 opera to be used in making this series of broadcasts as mechanically perfect as engineers can devise.

More than $18,000 will be spent on the equipment. It will include twelve of the latest type condenser microphones and complete amplifying and control equipment in duplicate to insure the listener the most faithful reproduction of every tonal variation without interruption while he sits in his own home.

RADIO DIRECTS PLANE 15 MILES, BACK TO EARTH

NEW YORK. — [Special.] — Radio again proved its practicability in facilitating aerial navigation in foggy weather, the greatest hazard to aviation, when Lieut. James H. Doolittle took off from Mitchel field recently, blinded in a closed cockpit, flew a course of fifteen miles and landed within fifteen feet of his starting point, solely by means of instruments.

The tests were the culmination of a series of experiments being conducted under the direction of the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for Aeronautics by Lieut. Doolittle, Lieut. Benjamin Kelsey, and Prof. William Brown of Massachusetts Institute of Tchnology. The tests have been in progress for the last three months, and last week's experiments were the first practical demonstration of blind flying.

While other sensitive aeronautical instruments played an important part in the experiments, the radio apparatus portrayed the leading role. As a result of the work of Prof. Brown, a new type of radio beacon was developed for the experiments, which, while only having a range of approximately twenty miles, is considerably more sensitive than the usual type now employed on the major air mail and transport routes.

When Lieut. Doolittle took off from Mitchel field he was inclosed in a hooded cockpit of a small biplane. As a precaution, Lieut. Kelsey flew at the front controls, but did not touch the instruments during the entire flight. As the plane took off, the pilot, blinded, flew directly into the wind, for a course of about five miles, following the direction of the radio beacon.

On the instrument board, a vibrating reed indicator told him how nearly he was following the course. As he veered to one side, one of the reeds vibrated more profusely than the other, and he steered until both were vibrating in synchronism.

At a point about five miles from the takeoff, Lieut. Doolittle turned about and returned over the field. As he drew closer the reeds oscillated with greater magnitude, and at the point the reeds stopped vibrating for an instant, indicating he was directly over the transmitter. Lieut. Doolittle then snapped a sensitive stop watch, in order to calculate distance, flew to a point about two miles beyond the field, reversed, and leveled off for a safe landing. A beacon marker indicated when he was over the edge of the field.

Both radio and aviation experts were well pleased with the success of the experiments.

SONG AND MOVIE MERGERS INVOLVE RADIO COPYRIGHT

May Break Down Music Royalty Barrier.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — [Special Correspondence.]—The latest twist in the complicated radio-movie-song publishers situation is the effect which the merging of several song publishers with companies which also operate broadcasting chains may have ultimately on the payment of royalty for popular copyrighted music by the broadcasters to the American Society of Composers.

With the announced merging of the Paramount and Warner Bros. interests, Paramount now controls the Harms group, formerly contracted to Warner Bros. And Paramount is interested in the Columbia Broadcasting system through a recent buy-in.

National Broadcasting company's song publishers' hookup is through the consolidation of Feist's and Carl Fischer, Inc., with Radio-Keith-Orpheum, both subsidiary holdings of the Radio Corporation of America. It seems the parent companies, namely, RCA and Paramount, are interested in affiliations with the song publishers primarily for movie productions, but at the same time one cannot overlook the fact that these parent companies are building up a counter weapon which might be used to break down the music royalty barrier, to which the broadcasters have been so much opposed.

Copyright Fight Bitter.

The fight between the American Society of Composers and the broadcasting stations has been a long and bitter one, with the society holding the upper hand until the present.

The broadcasters have recognized the right of the copyright owners to compensation for the music which they use and have expressed themselves as being willing to meet a standard schedule of rates. However, up to this time the society has not arranged such a schedule and is charging each broadcaster as it sees fit. The recent resignation of E. C. Mills to become the head of one of these music publishing companies concerned will not in any way, it is said, affect the policy of the American Society of Composers in its dealings with broadcasters.

May Freeze Out Society.

One commentator went so far as to say it is entirely possible that the big broadcasters, as a result of the recent mergers, will find themselves in a position to freeze out the American society by using only the music controlled by the holding companies, in addition to the classical selections for which the broadcasters have never had to pay for a large portion. Whether R. C. A. and Paramount interests would find it worth while to resort to this method of breaking up the present licensing arrangement is highly debatable.

It is the contention of those who see this loophole that, once the broadcasters broke away, the society would be forced to settle the long controversy by adopting a standard schedule of rates. Once the broadcasters decided to play their own music, to the exclusion of all other, it would place the society in a weak position when it came to the renewal of contracts. Naturally, the publishers would rush to the broadcasters with their contracts rather than to the society, if the latter was not able to have their numbers plugged over the air.

All Is Conjecture.

All this is nothing more than conjecture, since the broadcasters decline to discuss any aspects of the situation. However, this is the first loophole which has been found through which the broadcasters may escape what they term exorbitant royalties.

The Composers' society and the Universal Broadcasting company in Philadelphia are just now engaged in a controversy which may have some bearing on the final settlement of this question. The broadcasting station has refused to renew its license with the society because the latter tried to increase the rate and has filed a suit against the society, in the meantime continuing to use all music without the required license. The society has announced that, following the granting of an injunction to the Universal Broadcasting company, it will carry the fight to the Supreme court of Pennsylvania.

Fight Has Bearing.

The brief filed by the composers recently in answer to the charge by U. B. C. that the license fees for use of copyright music were exorbitant and were still going up, states that "each of the proprietors of these copyrights is entitled to enjoy a legally protected monopoly." That is what a copyright or a patent right is.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

THERE are some famously identified radio hours that go along much the same year after year. And we have often wondered whether these programs are famous because they have certain famous announcers, or whether these announcers are famous because they were assigned to announce these programs. To us it is like our boyhood curiosity about the old Potter Palmer mansion on Lake Shore drive. We could never figure out whether it was pointed out to hundreds of thousands of visitors to the city because it was a famous old mansion or whether it was a famous mansion because it had been pointed out to so many people.

OF ALL the thousands of songs that are published annually, and broadcast by the radio, only thirty-two on an average become popular to earn big money for their sponsors.

SOME DAY our national ceremonies and sports events will be staged at hours of the day which will fit the needs of the broadcasters. Of course, the radio audience pays nothing for its privilege, in contrast to the spectators who have paid admission fees to be present, as at a world series game; but in cases where it will cause no inconvenience to the people actually present, the time schedule should be arranged so that the maximum radio audience may lend their ears to it.

A great consideration for the radio audience was shown by the presiding judge when we were broadcasting the Scopes evolution trial [the "monkey trial"] from the hills of Tennessee, in the summer of 1925. He would courteously wait in his chambers every morning until our engineers would assure us that the long lines over the mountains and all the other apparatus were hooked up and ready for the show to open. He knew, of course, of the hundreds of thousands of listeners who were expecting to be in on the first rap of the gavel and he would delay the convening of court out of deference to them.

DURING the Democratic convention at Houston last year the smart committeemen arranged to hold their whoopie sessions—when the keynote and the nominating speeches would be made—during the evening, when the uncountable mass of radio listeners could be in attendance. Sessions conducted during the daytime could not catch a fraction of the listeners who would cup their ears to the radio horn in the evening; and the larger the radio audience was, the greater would be the prospective votes the orators were striving to win.

World series baseball games are something else again. Last week a contributer to "The Voice of the People" on the editorial page advanced the suggestion that the broadcast of each afternoon's game be recorded on phonograph disks and then put out over the air again in the evening, for the benefit of the masses whose occupations do not permit them to steal any time off in the afternoon for radio listening.

As a coincidence, the radio audience has received quite a break in the matter of the championship fights. Since radio broadcasting came along, to high popular favor in the last decade, all of the heavyweight title bouts have happened to be held at night, after working hours. Do you recall the great fights of fifteen or so years ago were held in the afternoon—Johnson and Jeffries at Reno, Johnson and Willard at Havana, Dempsey and Willard at Toledo, and Dempsey and Gibbons at Shelby, Mont.

Next year, we hope, the world series can be held early enough to avoid interference with the regular football season. Last Saturday, at Madison, we were forced to stand by until the middle of the second quarter of the Wisconsin and Northwestern game for the end of the baseball game in Philly, while the football fans were pleading wildly and begging for the promised broadcast of the grittron contest. A newspaper can cover every field of news, but a radio station, unfortunately, can cover only one thing at a time.

The advertisers on the chains have the same difficulty with the four hour difference in time across the United States. An hour long program going on in New York City at eight in the evening, which is an excellent radio hour, reaches the Pacific coast audience at five, when the number of listeners is only a fraction of the eight o'clock audience. A program, to cover the country most completely, should go on the air over one of the chains at ten o'clock in New York, which would make it nine o'clock central time, eight o'clock Rocky mountain time, and seven on the Pacific coast.

A SPORTS announcer is ever open to suspicion of being partial or prejudiced in his reports, particularly if he praises a visiting team in any way. Radio listeners, some of them, are always scenting for evidence, of a partial tone in the announcer's voice. Candidly, we cannot remember ever being consciously partial toward either or any of the contestants in a football or baseball game or a prize fight or horse race, but we do appreciate good play and snappy action and we try to interpret it and give credit where credit is due.

Ever since we hooked rides to the old parks on the west and south sides, we have been whooping supporters of the Chicago Cub team and the Chicago White Sox. Nevertheless, fifteen minutes before the opening of the first game of the world series here last week, we gave it as our firm opinion that the Athletics would win four out of five. Needless to say, the boys about us gave us the razz and a few listeners wrote to accuse us of disloyalty. We quote from one, from Milwaukee: "I had always thought you a good thoroughbred Irishman until today, before the opening game, when you predicted that the A's would win four out of the first five games. Where is all that loyalty you paraded so strong all summer? Where is all that confidence that fairly oozed from you?"

Listeners are funny. They make the announcer timid about remarking that any player is shining in certain kinds of play or that one team is showing superiority in certain fields. O, well!

TERRELL TELLS OF PROGRESS IN RADIO BROADCAST

U. S. Chief Traces 15 Years' Growth.

BY WILLIAM D. TERRELL.
(Chief of the Radio Division, Department of Commerce.)

As early as 1914 phonograph records of music were broadcast from a radio station in New York City. The purpose of transmitting music was to test different types of hydrogen arc radiotelephone transmitters. It was much easier to use phonograph records than it was for the experimenter to talk or sing into the microphone for long periods of time during a test, and the phonograph record provided the most efficient and easily obtained method of modulation.

At that time no one had any idea of the future possibilities of broadcasting entertainment. The few receiving sets in use on land were owned by government departments, commercial radio companies and amateurs. It was not until the fall of 1921 that the possibilities of radio broadcasting were fully realized which resulted in a demand for radio broadcasting station licenses. The first of these licenses was issued to the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Wave Lengths Set.

The first problem to be solved was to find a suitable wave length, or frequency, for the purpose. Ships were using 300, 450 and 600 meters, but as the 300 meter wave length was rarely used it was decided to put the broadcasting service on 360 meters to avoid interference with ship communication. A little later 485 meters was designated as the wave length upon which agricultural information and marketing reports would be broadcast.

If a station varied its frequency as much as ten kilocycles in those days no one was seriously inconvenienced, as the receiving sets were not very selective and wide variations reduced the heterodyne whistle which comes from the simultaneous operation of stations on or about the same frequency.

In March, 1923, the second national radio conference was called by Mr. Hoover, secretary of commerce. At this conference it was recommended that more channels be given to radio broadcasting and that ship stations be shifted to other positions. This resulted in the adoption of the present system of 10 kilocycle separation between broadcasting stations. After this it became necessary for transmitting stations to give greater care to maintaining their frequencies and our radio manufacturers to give more attention to selectivity in building radio receiving sets.

Frequency Stability Sought.

From that date until 1927 efforts were being directed toward improving frequency stability, which finally resulted in a great many stations adopting the method of crystal control.

During this period the radio division of the department of commerce was developing means for checking the frequency of stations from the offices of the supervisors of radio instead of measuring the wave lengths by the use of wavemeters taken to the stations, as had been the custom for many years.

In 1927 congress provided a special appropriation for the purpose of purchasing more precise monitoring or frequency checking apparatus for use by the radio division, but as there was no apparatus suitable for this purpose on the market it was necessary to have specially designed apparatus manufactured so that measurements could be made showing variations of a few cycles rather than a few hundred cycles, which was the limit of precision of some of the apparatus in use at that time. This new apparatus is now being delivered and installed.

There are ten sets to be in the offices of the supervisors of radio distributed as follows: Boston, New York, Baltimore, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Detroit, Chicago and St. Paul. Six portable sets are to be used on test cars assigned to Baltimore, Atlanta, Dallas, San Francisco, Detroit and Kansas City. It is planned to have additional installations at Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, Kansas City, Hawaii and Alaska and on two additional test cars to be assigned to Seattle and Boston.

Checks Station Accuracy.

The most important unit of this monitoring system is to be an installation about six miles from Grand Island, Neb., where a fifty acre site of land has been procured and contract has been awarded for the erection of a building to be used exclusively for this purpose.

This station is to be known as the constant frequency monitoring station and will serve as a check on the accuracy of all of the other stations, while its accuracy will be based upon the national standard at the bureau of standards.

From this station it is expected that frequencies of all of the principal stations in the United States and the principal stations of other countries can be checked.

The measuring apparatus to be installed at this station will be of such design that it will be capable of making measurements of an accuracy of one part in one million. Three types of receivers are to be installed at this station, two of which cover the frequencies from 100 to 30,000 kilocycles and the third covers from 10 to 100 kilocycles, using both loops and antenna and having extreme selectivity and sensitivity. The arrangement of the receivers permits simultaneous use at all times. Each receiver is to be in a shielded booth.

Special Antenna System.

All power supplies, although generated on the premises, are to be filtered and shielded. The standards and receivers will be operated entirely from storage batteries, all provided in duplicate and charged by means of small motor generators through a suitable distribution system connected to the main power plant. A special antenna system, in conformity with the latest developments in this line, is to be erected.

The station is to be built around a room having 2,000 square feet of floor space, in which will be installed all of the standard equipment and receivers. In addition to this large room there will be rooms which can be used for dormitories, kitchen, workshop, office, storage batteries, motor generators and switchboards. An adjacent building will provide garage space and power plant. Every effort is being made to have the station complete in itself so that twenty-four hours a day service will be insured throughout the year.

Official Record Kept.

An official record of the monitoring work, or frequency checking, has been maintained during the last year. This record shows the advantage of carrying on work of this character. During the earlier measurements many stations varied as much as from five kilocycles to forty-eight kilocycles. Today few of them vary more than 500 cycles, and a great many of them are maintaining their frequencies within 100 cycles. During a period of seven and one-half months 22,450 measurements of broadcasting stations were made. When the new equipment is in operation the checking will not be limited to broadcasting stations, but will include stations above and below the broadcasting band and a force of men will be assigned to this work exclusively.

While the measuring of frequencies of the broadcasting stations is perhaps of greatest interest to the public, the measurement of the higher frequencies will be of extreme importance to the communication services, where the frequencies are rapidly coming into use for international communications, point-to-point communication in this country, air service, amateurs, and government services.

Check Foreign Station.

As many of these short wave stations are far-reaching in their effect it is anticipated that considerable time must be given to checking stations in foreign countries which may be causing interference with our international short wave stations.

This branch of the inspection work of the radio division of the department of commerce is just developing. It is anticipated that it will be one of the most important fields of activity and should prove of great benefit to the public.

Interference caused by the simultaneous operation of stations on the same frequency and interference caused by the operation of various types of electrical devices will continue to be a source of annoyance, but the remedy for this does not rest with the radio inspection service.

SHAW ASKS 4 BILLIONS.

George Bernard Shaw, noted British dramatist, when asked recently by a radio director to state the sum for which he would write a drama for radio use, cabled a reply: "Four billion dollars might be sufficient, but that is not a contract."

EDISON, HOOVER, FORD ON W-G-N TOMORROW NIGHT

An international broadcast without precedent, featuring talks by President Hoover, Thomas A. Edison, and Henry Ford, is announced by the NBC as a world-wide climax of the Golden Jubilee of Light, Monday night, Oct. 21. W-G-N will broadcast the program, which comes at 6:30 p. m. central standard time.

It will be Science's night on the air. The ceremony is intended as a scientific world's tribute to the inventor of the electric light and will be staged with all ingeniousness engineers can evolve. The NBC networks, coast to coast, will be linked with short wave transmitters to relay the details to listeners throughout the nation.

Besides the response by the Wizard of Menlo Park, talks by President Hoover and Henry Ford will mark formal dedication of the Edison School of Technology, founded by Ford as a tribute to his friend Edison. The broadcast will originate in Dearborn, Mich., where Ford has reconstructed the original laboratory and machines used by Edison when he invented electric light. Not only the old wooden bench, the closing minutes of Ford's d... laboratory but also the original lathes, to Edison, at which Owen D. Y... work benches, and lamps are there as is toastmaster. BIGGEST STUDIO ON TOP WORLD'S LARGEST BUILDING

N. B. C. Picks Chicago for Finest Quarters.

Complete plans for erection and equipment of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, atop the largest building in the world, are announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting company. The new Chicago studios of the company will be situated on the roof of the Merchandise Mart, in the heart of the city.

The most modern equipment for broadcasting will be installed in studios, offices and laboratories, and engineers have devised plans for meeting radio problems as far into the future as possible. More than 62,000 square feet of floor space will be required to house the various activities.

Opening Jan. 1, 1930.

Formal opening of the new quarters, tentatively planned for Jan. 1, 1930, will be a definite step in fulfillment of Mr. Aylesworth's prediction two years ago that Chicago is destined to become one of the greatest broadcasting centers of the world. The fact that the Chicago headquarters of the National Broadcasting company are to be more pretentious than those now in use in New York, Washington, and San Francisco is regarded as a significant recognition of the importance of Chicago's position in the broadcasting field.

In the new location special construction will eliminate many of the physical and mechanical limitations of the usual office building. The quarters have been designed and will be built under the direction of O. B. Hanson, manager of operations and engineering.

Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, designers of the Merchandise Mart, will represent the NBC in architectural design and supervise the construction.

The new quarters will open with six studios, fully equipped with the latest developments in radio apparatus. Wire lines and other facilities will be installed, permitting expansion to an unlimited number of studios.

Largest Studio in World.

Studio "A" will be the largest radio theater in the world. It will be seventy-five feet long, fifty-one feet wide, and with a twenty-six foot ceiling, giving a total floor space of 3,820 square feet, and a total content of 99,450 cubic feet. It would provide standing room for more than a thousand persons, it is estimated.

The studio will have a large number of innovations in equipment. Instead of the usual velvet or monks' cloth drapes utilized in the regulating of acoustical effects, it will be walled with adjustable narrow panels. It is believed to be the first installation of this sort ever attempted.

A great pipe organ and organ loft, specially adapted for radio presentations of varied character, will be installed. A raised stage, for use in productions permitting the presence of an immediate audience, will occupy one end of the studio.

10,228 Feet Floor Space.

The other studios vary in floor size and ceiling height to meet various acoustical conditions. The total floor space devoted to the six broadcasting rooms will be 10,228 square feet, and total content will be 265,928 cubic feet.

Each studio will have a soundproof glass enclosed balcony to enable invited guests both to see the performance in the studio and hear it through loud speakers as the radio audience hears it.

All the studios except "F" will be on the nineteenth floor of the Mart, but will be two stories in height.

On the nineteenth floor will be the offices of the division engineer, plant and operating engineers, control boards, music library, musicians' rest rooms and lockers, reception rooms, announcers' rooms and lockers, artists' reception rooms, emergency first aid room, quarters for the library staff and engineering laboratory.

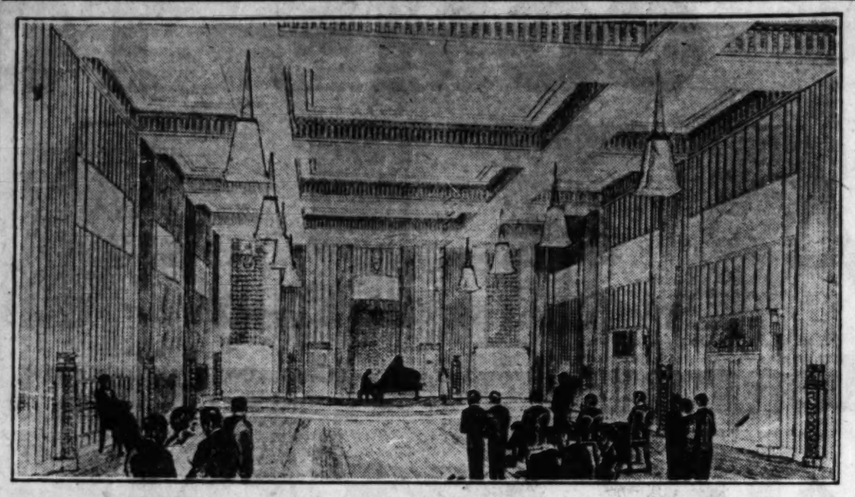
On the twentieth floor will be the office of the vice president in charge of the Chicago division, general office, agricultural department, program, press, sales and station relations departments, a conference room and studio "F." From observation rooms on the twentieth floor, visitors will be afforded a view of the performances in the studios.

Studios Without Windows.

The studios will be without windows [and partially hermetically sealed for soundproof] the ventilation being regulated through modern equipment maintaining a constant flow of pure air at a regulated temperature, and with a uniform degree of humidity. With this system, temperature is automatically maintained, within a variation of two degrees Fahrenheit.

In the center of the main control room will be two main control boards, each thirty feet long. One will be used for amplifiers, relays and controls of studio equipment.

CHICAGO TO GET BIGGEST STUDIOS



An architect's drawing of one of the studios of the world's most pretentious broadcasting quarters, soon to be built by the National Broadcasting company atop the world's largest building, the new Chicago Merchandise Mart.

RADIO STOPPING DRIFT OF FARM FOLK TO CITIES

Makes Education at Home Possible.

WASHINGTON. — Radio has done more than anything else in the last four years to check the drift of farmers to the city, according to J. E. Smith, president of the National Radio institute here.

Figures from the department of agriculture show that in 1926 approximately 649,000 more people deserted the farm for the city than from city to the farm, while in 1928—the latest figures available—only 188,000 more people left the farm for the city than from the city to the farm.

The reasons for this drift to the city, according to a recent analysis made by the bureau of agricultural economics, are economic conditions, and leaving the farm in order to get better educational advantages for their children in the city.

"It is my candid belief," continued Smith, "that radio has gone a long way toward wiping out these two reasons for the rush to the city.

Get Educational Features.

"A more extensive use of broadcasting facilities by farming agencies, the department of agriculture and other organizations giving weather, crop and market reports, will assist the farmer in putting his business on a more efficient basis. Radio has, indeed, become an economic necessity on the farm today.

"Further, radio is relieving the farmer of the necessity of breaking up his occupation and moving to the city to give his children an education. Broadcasting is bringing and in the future will bring even more educational features right to the farmer's fireside. Recognized and accredited high school and college courses are given on the air in some sections, and will undoubtedly be given more generally in the near future."

New Day for Farmer.

Radio is a boon to the farmer, his wife and children. It is bringing them advantages and pleasures never before enjoyed.

A new day for American agriculture is being ushered in, Smith declared, in commenting on the applications of the federal state marketing service of California for seven broadcast station licenses to be used in a state-wide market quotations service.

"There is no question but that radio can be effectively used by farm cooperative agencies in the scientific marketing and distribution of agricultural products," continued Smith.

"In using radio this way the farmer is applying modern business principles and practices to his work and it will undoubtedly help to improve his economic status.

"Hence radio is not only a source of entertainment and education on the farm but it has become an economic necessity."

Australia Convicts Its Unlicensed Listeners

Convictions recently have been obtained by the Australian government in the cases of 1,707 unlicensed broadcast listeners. New South Wales had the greatest number of convictions, 804. Penalties amounted to £3,121 and costs to £1,321 pounds. The license fee in Australia is $5.84.

Television Actress

Bonnie Blue, Chicago's first television actress, will entertain daily during the radio show. Visitors will see and hear her sing blue songs over television with sound. Miss Blue is a Chicago girl.

TINFOIL MAKES IDEAL APARTMENT "LEAD-IN" WIRE

Apartment dwellers and others who have unusually long aerials—so long in fact that reception is hindered—may be interested in a noval solution of the lead-in question. Incidentally, this idea gets around the need for drilling holes in window frames or walls.

Two large sheets of heavy copper or tin foil are obtained—perhaps 8 or 10 inches square. One is glued to the outside of the glass at the center of the window and the other exactly opposite, on the inside. The aerial lead wire is connected to the foil by picking up a corner and soldering. Inside, a wire from the foil leads to the antenna binding post of the set. The sheets of foil form a fairly large fixed condenser with glass insulation. Since the condenser is a "series" condenser, it is useful in cases of long aerials.

182 RADIO POLICE NOW.

There are now 182 government inspectors working under the supervisors, policing the ether and seeing that the broadcasting stations keep on their assigned wave channels.

STOCK TO OPEN CONCERT SERIES ON W-G-N TODAY

Symphony Orchestra Ready for Bow.

Dr. Frederick Stock and the world famous Chicago Symphony orchestra will be heard on the air for the first time this year today from 2 to 3 o'clock over W-G-N. The orchestra will broadcast each Sunday afternoon over a National Broadcasting company network.

The enthusiastic reception accorded the orchestra when they broadcast for the first time over a chain last year so delighted Dr. Stock that he decided to accept the invitation to give another series of concerts this season.

Acclaimed by music critics both in America and abroad as one of the finest musical organizations in the world, the Chicago Symphony orchestra has established a firm place in the hearts of American music lovers, and last year won nation-wide praise for their series of Sunday concerts under the same sponsorship.

Every modern broadcasting facility that engineers have devised will be used to make the reproduction of every note heard by the radio audience faithful to the finest degree. Dr. Stock has placed his personal approval on the perfectness of the broadcast and has stated that the radio does ample justice to his noted organization.

JUST TO PLEASE THE DIVA.

It was explained on the air recently that "O Promise Me," the hit in "Robin Hood," was written in the last minute to please a temperamental prima donna.

RADIO RELICS TO BE COLLECTED BY SMITHSONIAN

Government Agencies to Participate.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Radio's "hall of fame," now only a figurative something, is to become an actuality.

Within the Smithsonian institution in Washington there will be exhibited all of the available historical radio apparatus that can be collected, so that a graphic picture of the romance of radio may be depicted for posterity. The display will range from the first type of "spark gap" transmitter to the present water cooled tube circuits with their powerful signals.

Plans for the creation of a "radio museum" were discussed at a conference called by Capt. S. C. Hooper, chief of naval communications, and attended by representatives of other government departments and of a radio corporation which possesses a complete collection of historical radio apparatus. The conference unanimously agreed that there is a real need of the preservation of apparatus having historical significance, and steps immediately were taken to urge the Smithsonian institution to approve such a collection for display. Heads of all governmental departments and agencies likewise are being solicited to donate whatever radio equipment of an obsolete yet historical nature they have stored away.

Institution to Participate.

It was brought out by C. U. Mitman, curator of the Smithsonian institution, that the institution is anxious to obtain a historical exhibit of radio and will participate in any projects to procure the necessary equipment.

At the round table discussion, Capt. Hooper said that a large amount of radio apparatus of no value for service, but invaluable for historical purposes is being held at the navy yard in Washington, as well as at other navy yards and bases. Within a short time this material will be "junked" unless otherwise used. This statement served to reveal that at army depots throughout the country and at the United States bureau of standards equipment of a similar nature is lying about of practically no use.

Mr. Mitman explained, however, that under the law, historical apparatus or material held by any of the government departments cannot be loaned or given to agencies outside the government unless approved by the Smithsonian institution. Thereupon it was decided that the Smithsonian should be petitioned for the collection of this equipment and its arrangement for a suitable historical exhibit.

Inventors Still Alive.

The reason for the collection of such apparatus at this time is that many of the individuals who participated in the development in radio are still alive and available for the acquisition of authentic records of their inventions.

In its letter to the Smithsonian the conference, which was of an informal nature, asked that a formal committee consisting of representatives of the Smithsonian, departments of war, navy and commerce, Institute of Radio Engineers and three nongovernmental representatives be appointed for the "radio museum" collection. Mr. Mitman said that he believed the institution would be willing to sponsor the organization of the committee to carry through the collection of the apparatus.

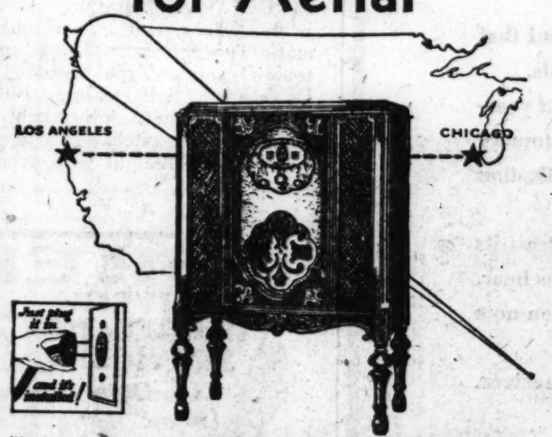
2000 MILES with only an ICE PICK for Aerial



Illustrated is the beautiful Concert Grand. The top is of four-way matched butt walnut and surrounds side panels of diamond grained oriental walnut, flanking a central panel of figured bird's-eye maple, the whole hand rubbed to a mirror-like polish. It contains the standard SILVER RADIO eight tube screen-grid chassis, electro-dynamic speaker, and screen collector.

Price absolutely complete, less only tubes $173.00

Your dealer also has the Sheraton Lowboy at $160.00, and the Sheraton Highboy at $195.00.

IF YOU'RE the sort of human that thrills to fast cars and horses, that gets a big kick out of a 300-yard drive, or one of Babe's homers—then get ready for the biggest thrill of all from SILVER RADIO.

For SILVER RADIO is the one outstanding radio that does simply amazing things—like bringing to your living room programs two thousand miles away with only an ice-pick for aerial . . . like bringing in programs direct from Japan, Australia, and New Zealand, as SILVER RADIOS in the west do.

Because SILVER is that kind of a radio, your SILVER RADIO dealer is ready to make, in your presence, four of the most amazing tests you've ever witnessed—tests so stiff that you can pick without error the best radio. Ask your dealer to make the "Ice-Pick Test" the "Vanishing-Aerial Test", the "Hairpin Test", and the "Coin Test" . . . they'll show you the amazing difference between SILVER RADIO and all others.

SILVER RADIO—product of the manufacturer who introduced screen-grid radio to America in 1927—is guaranteed to get more programs without an aerial—it doesn't need any—then nine out of ten other radios will get with big interference-collecting outdoor aerials, and . . .

After all, why not have the best in your home, too? . . . tell your SILVER RADIO dealer you've "come to see his four amazing tests".

1 This is how a note looks uncontrolled: see the tangled after-tones.

2 This is how it appears when vibrations are completely controlled: clean-cut, clear.

VIBRA-CONTROL brings true tone realism to NEW FADA RADIOS

MUSIC is simply audible vibrations. Controlled, they bring harmony. Uncontrolled, discord. Sounds simple, yet radio's greatest problem was to control these vibrations.

But today all this is ended . . . for Fada has at last achieved Vibra-Control . . . the complete control of all radio vibrations . . . and with it has eliminated distortion, interference, rumbles, rain barrel tones and roars.

On a Fada every note, every shading of tone now comes to you exactly as broadcast . . . exquisitely true, surprisingly clear . . . a mirror-like reproduction of the artists themselves. For Vibra-Control is the long-sought secret of tone realism.

It would take a thousand words to explain this great achievement; but in ten minutes you can discover what Vibra-Control will mean to you. Hear it today . . . and get the thrill of radio reception stripped of mechanical noise.

Only Fada has Vibra-Control, priced from $99.50 to $675.00.

THE CHOICE OF THE EXPERTS

—In all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence

Quite naturally some people discriminate in favor of excellence. Consequently, their choice of the new all-electric, screen grid

Eveready Radio

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

will come as a matter of course

IN THE HOUSES in which they live . . . the motor-cars which stand gleaming on their drives . . . the meals they serve in their dining-rooms . . . in short, in all their material possessions their friends discern a certain excellence, a certain discrimination. These are people of good taste.

There is a radio receiver—the Eveready—which fits in with a life such as theirs, which fits in with a point of view demanding excellence in everything they own.

Its fidelity of reception is remarkable

Put it in a living-room and you have seats at a symphony concert . . . listen to it as you dine and you are transported to a table beside a polished square of dance floor in a smart restaurant . . . the excitement, the oratory, the color of a political campaign is yours without leaving your house . . . the President speaks to you as clearly as if you were present in Washington . . . this is the sort of reception you get—this is the sort of reception discriminating people demand—in the new Eveready Radio.

Its tone is full, round and agreeable. And because of the "weather-proof" principle incorporated in the new Eveready Radio the reception even on damp, humid nights is remarkably clear and free from distortion.

Its excellence is not a matter of months but many years

But if this were all people of good taste knew about the new Eveready Radio, they would hesitate to buy. Their whole point of view towards life requires that they also look for permanent, as well as momentary, excellence; that they look for the sort of perfection which comes with the ideal of precision building, an ideal which looks into the distant future as well as tomorrow.

So carefully, so precisely, is this fine instrument built that you may expect, not six months or a year of performance, but five, yes even ten years of satisfying reception. The large scientific organization which has expended years of research in making this radio receiver will add improvements, of course, as they are tested and tried out. That is taken for granted.

But the buyers of this radio receiver are not asked to consider mystifying technical terms, new accoutrements, devices and details comprehensible only to experts. Such things bore them. They know that whatever they buy is the best. Hence, they buy this radio.

—her point of view demands excellence in everything she owns

EVEREADY SCREEN GRID CONSOLE MODEL 52, $157.50 (LESS TUBES)

Model 53, a larger console, $195 (less tubes)—Model 54, the de luxe console, $225 (less tubes), using the same perfected screen grid chassis. Pacific Coast prices slightly higher.

—mystifying technical terms bore them

You will want this remarkable radio receiver

And so, if you are a person who discriminates in favor of excellence, if your whole attitude towards life looks for effects, not causes, you will want the new Eveready Radio. That is why, when you see it, hear it, notice its beautiful cabinetwork, you will say, "Of course this is the instrument for my household."

LAFOUNT TELLS WAYS TO BETTER RADIO PROGRAMS

Must Give People What They Want.

BY HAROLD A. LAFOUNT.
[Radio Commissioner, Appointed from Zone Five.]

Any comprehensive plan for general improvement of radio programs in the United States necessarily resolves itself into a procedure whereby more persons will receive more of what they want, when they want it.

In order to accomplish any material degree of progress in its broadest sense, it is essential that the broadcast structure be considered as a whole, and that each unit fit into a general scheme of production and distribution, operating with conscious regard for its part in the scheme.

Our present radio structure comprises approximately six hundred units, functioning independently, and to some extent, competitively. There is no common denominator in practice, and little unity of purpose. Each station aims, in some degree, to give programs acceptable to its listeners, but in so doing most of them utterly disregard the availability and quality of such programs from other sources.

Measured by Public Reaction.

The question of what constitutes a desirable program is obviously one of individual prejudice, and opinion is of little value except in the mass. We are obliged to measure program values by public reaction, and to grade them by the response they evoke, giving due attention to the size of the potential audience.

Desirable programs have been established to fall into one of two types: first, those designed to be of unusual interest to a limited group or area; second, those which have been demonstrated to be of general interest or importance. Predominance of either type of program serves to identify a radio station."

On the above basis we are able to divide radio stations roughly into three classes:

The first group, fewer than a hundred in number, may be designated class A. By reason of availability of talent, unusual conditions of financing, connection with a network service, or combination of these factors, they consistently present programs of high quality and of general interest. These stations furnish our present standard of excellence in presentations designed for other than local consumption. They are able to broadcast the finest of music, by the best of artists, and to broadcast many features of uplifting and informative nature.

Constant Experimentation.

Undoubtedly the material that they put on the air is subject to much improvement. There is constant experimentation in the methods of presentation, and constant progress in the work of mechanical "pick-up" and transmission. Class A stations are naturally leaders in such improvement.

There is a rather sharp dividing line between the above mentioned group and those which we may designate class B. These are broadcasters whose supply of talent is limited, whose revenues are small, and who have not the advantages of network program services. In this class are several hundred stations struggling valiantly to give good programs. They deserve serious consideration in the measure that they play an integral part in the life of their communities. However, judged on the basis of the general interest value of their programs, they cannot be said to be at all comparable to those in class A.

A third class, which we may call class C, comprises a relatively small number of stations which devote much of their efforts to propaganda in behalf of religious, political, or social matters, or which are concerned with promoting a single business institution. From the standpoint of general interest their programs may be said to have a minimum of value, and in this discussion they may well be disregarded.

Ways Toward Improvement.

Two methods, not necessarily alternative, suggest themselves as essential to a comprehensive effort to improve broadcasting:

1. To raise the service value of class B stations to their communities.

2. To make class A programs available everywhere with such clarity and volume as to permit selection on a basis of desirability, rather than strength of signal.

Class B stations, for the most part, have neither money nor talent available for programs of general importance. Most of them would not fit economically into the present broadcast networks and are thereby prevented from transmitting programs emanating from centers where talent is more readily engaged. Progress in class B, it appears, will result from natural economic determination. The basis of radio financing now is advertising revenue, which in turn, has its prime requisite in listener interest. The listener is the foundation stone of the house.

If he is pleased with the program he is a potential purchaser of the products promoted in the program. If he is displeased, or is intrigued by a program elsewhere, he ceases to be a potential customer. Thus we have a logical cycle: Good programs, many listeners, pleased advertisers, more revenue. Or, conversely, poor programs, few listeners, unsatisfied advertisers, decreasing revenue.

It is apparent that class B stations cannot compete with class A stations in programs of widespread interest. It seems obvious that they should, therefore, give service to their listeners which they can do better than can those of class A. They can furnish specific service to specific communities, and justify their place in the general scheme. Those which are attuned to the spirit of their listeners, which present desirable material not otherwise available, are economically entitled to prosper. Those which fail to thus serve their listeners are likely to fall before the march of progress. It is the law of industrial "survival of the fittest."

The problem of better dissemination of class A programs at present involves possible engineering evolution and perhaps revolution. There is, of course, a fair coverage of the country through broadcasts of network programs, and those from a few other stations in metropolitan areas. Cleared channels have improved the reception considerably over that of a few years ago.

But there is still a large audience which is not able to receive important programs with volume sufficient to assure consistently high quality.

SCIENTISTS PROVE RADIO SIGNALS CAN PIERCE SOLID ROCK

Proof that radio waves can pierce solid rock seems to have been established conclusively by experiments in the Mammouth cave of Kentucky and in the Mount Royal tunnel in Montreal. Two scientists of the McGill university department of physics, Dr. A. S. Eve and Dr. D. A. Kays, have just reported the results.

In both tunnel and cave low frequency signals came in plainly, although their strength was not so great as in open air reception. In both tunnel and cave high frequency stations could not be tuned in. The report states that signals from distant radio stations were heard under 300 feet of sandstone and limestone. Precautions were taken to prevent signals from coming through passageways or through wiring.

RADIO TUBE NOW DOES DUTY AS ELEVATOR MAN

It takes an experienced operator to stop an elevator evenly at the various floor levels and even then they never always make perfect stops so that passengers do not have to "watch their step" getting on or off. That it takes the humble vacuum valve to do the job perfectly, year in and year out, is a fact that is little known to the radio public, versed as it is in the abilities of this magic tube for radio reception.

The use of vacuum tubes in the automatic leveling of elevator cars, in button controlled systems, depends on the characteristic of the increase of plate current when the tube is "in" or "out" of an oscillating condition. Coils and vanes concealed at the floor levels stop the normal oscillation of the tubes and sensitive relays in the circuit slow up the car and stop it accurately at the floor levels.

LONDON-EGYPT RADIO TELEPHONE SERVICE PLANNED

The Egyptian ministry of communications has submitted to the council of ministers a note embodying the draft of an agreement to be concluded between the Egyptian government and the Marconi company for the establishment of a wireless telephone service between Cairo and London, the U. S. department of commerce was informed by the commercial attaché, Charles E. Dickerson Jr., at Cairo.

The full text of the statement follows:

The draft fixes the communication fee at about $25 for three minutes and $7.50 for each extra minute. The royalty to be given to the Egyptian government will be equivalent to the royalty to be paid to the British government on condition that it should not be less than 50 cents a minute. Teh draft agreement allows the Marconi company to extend, in future, wireless telephone communication between Egypt and other capitals of Europe.

Russian Broadcasts from Moving Balloon

NEW YORK.—The description of the arrival of the Graf Zeppelin, given orally direct from an airplane, recalls the talk given several months ago from a balloon over Moscow, says F. A. D. Andrea, radio expert. An engineer installed a transmitter in the balloon and communication with land stations was established at a height of 13,000 feet. Two way communication was maintained continuously for two days and two nights, which was picked up by Odessa, Vladivostok, Minsk and Leningrad.

ANNUAL COST OF RADIO SET POWER IS $10,000,000

Figures $3.93 for Each Electric Receiver.

Current operated radio receiving sets were worth $10,000,000 in revenue to the electric light and power companies of the country during the last year, it is estimated by the National Electric Light association, which has just completed a survey of the load and revenue factors of the different household appliances.

Although the radio set is still comparatively new as an electric appliance, the revenue from current used by it last year was exceeded only by the returns from electric flatirons and ironing machines, refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and ranges, and the rapid spread of the electric set bids fair to bring it among the very heaviest users of current within a year or two.

2,565,000 Electric Sets.

Scaling down all estimates of the number of electric sets in use, so as to allow for duplication in all other counts, the association figures that approximately 2,565,000 were in regular service last year, using an average of 60 kilowatt hours of current at an average cost of 6.55 cents per kilowatt hour, making a total cost for current of $10,080,000 for the year, or an average of $3.93 for each set.

A decided increase in the revenue from this source is anticipated by power officials, who point out that the number of sets in use last year represented less than 10 per cent of the number of homes wired for electricity, figured at 28,808,000.

Seventh in Rank.

Even at that, it is declared, radio sets last year were the seventh most popular of electrical appliances, the number in use being exceeded only by flatirons, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, fans, toasters and percolators. In point of current consumption, the radio set was exceeded only by ranges, refrigerators, ironing machines, oil burners and flatirons, but the consumption by these latter appliances is induced by a rate approximately only half of the regular current rate, through the provision of reduced charges for current used for power, while radio sets take the regular rate charged against current for lighting.

WHEN BATTERY WEARS OUT.

Inability to bring the specific gravity up to its original value by a normal amount of charging is an indication that the useful life of the battery is all over. After a certain length of time the active material on the plates becomes exhausted and nothing can be done to bring it back.

*What is Tri-toned Radio?

Every musical instrument has three distinct characteristics: 1. Pitch, by which we distinguish the note as being high or low; 2. Intensity, or loudness; and, 3. Tone, or character by which we distinguish the sound of one musical instrument from another. In Grebe Radio you have reproduction that gives you perfect blending of all three characteristics without unnatural overemphasis of any part of the scale.

"IT ISN'T RADIO...IT'S THE HUMAN VOICE"

Hear Kylectron

The revolutionary new method of sound reproduction... as sensational as the first tube set...the one new thing in radio this year

KYLECTRON is new in principle, new in design. It isn't an attachment, it isn't a tube, it isn't a "refinement." It is as different from ordinary methods of radio reproduction as the modern tube set is different from the old-fashioned crystal set.

Hear it . . . and you will have an entirely new conception of how perfect radio can be. Through Kylectron you hear everything exactly as it is broadcast. Kylectron changes nothing . . . adds nothing . . . takes away nothing . . . from the instrumental or vocal music that reaches the microphone in concert hall or studio. It reproduces everything just as a perfect mirror reflects an image. It is sensitive enough to reproduce a sigh; powerful enough to bring you the crash of a brass band without distortion; without "hum;" without mechanical sounds. Hear Kylectron . . . and you'll say as thousands have said: "Surely, science can go no further." Kylectron is offered today only in Courier and Peerless Radios . . . receivers which in themselves have everything you've always wanted.

Screen grid . . . certainly!

Courier and Peerless are screen grid radios. They use three screen grid tubes. In addition they have power detection, push-pull amplification, single dial tuning, light-socket operation, complete shielding; in short, they have everything that has been proved sound in radio engineering.

They are super-sensative. They get the distant stations so you can enjoy them. Their selectivity is sharp enough to cut through powerful local stations but not so sharp as to eliminate the side-band frequencies of a station which give the necessary "back-ground" to music and speech.

Hear these radios now!

Step into the Courier-Peerless dealer's store and listen to Kylectron, or arrange for a free home demonstration. Turn the tuning dial yourself. Set the volume control at a mere whisper and then bring the sound up until it fills the room. There's no distortion, no "hum," no mechanical sound. Just thrillingly delightful music . . . the kind of radio music you've been waiting for. Visit one of the stores tomorrow. There will be no obligation.

Courier Radio—$85 to $165

But Scientists Admit It Can't Be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After more than a decade of research, radio scientists have virtually admitted their inability to eliminate the devastating effects of static in the reception of broadcasting programs, but they are by no means through with their study. They have now begun to harness it for the benefit of mankind even though radio listeners gain nothing from the results of their experiments.

At this time of year, when the thoughts of the huge public of radio entertainment turn eagerly to visions of cold winter nights when reception is undisturbed by a jumble of noises that sound like a buzz saw in a box of automobile tools, such news is not so doleful as it might be at the beginning of summer. For the period from Oct. 1 to March 15 is ordinarily considered the most favorable to receptibility.

But even in warm weather, the situation is not so serious as it might seem in view of the improvements that have been made in receivers and transmitters and the growing tendency to depend on local rather than distant stations for radio programs.

Admits Science Is Balked.

Dr. L. W. Austin, head of the laboratory for special radio transmission research at the United States Bureau of Standards, admitted, in answer to the question, that scientists are balked by static. So far as can be determined now, this bane of listeners will be with us always.

The chief reason for this is the distinct similarity between the mode of propagation of the static pulses and the radio signals, according to Dr. Austin, who is internationally recognized as one of the foremost authorities on static in the world. Then, too, static can not be eliminated because, like the weather, it is caused by atmospheric conditions which as yet are beyond the control of science.

The most sensible solution to the problem, which Dr. Austin has been advocating for some time, is already being adopted, viz., the reliance on local stations, which may be in chain hookups, and the use of more powerful transmitters. Moreover, listeners are learning, he said, that often when the strength of the reception is diminished, the programs come in more clearly because the static is also made less noticeable.

Numerous Schemes Tried.

All sorts of schemes have been tried to overcome static but without marked success. Among these has been the underground antennae, which the navy was inclined to believe, for a while during the world war, was superior to the overhead directive system. It was found later, however, that static in comparison with signal strength is almost as bad in the ground as it is in the air.

A fraud order was issued several months ago against an invention which, it was claimed, would eliminate static in radio reception by the underground method after the bureau of standards had declared its claims false.

Static, like the proverbial ill-wind, has some useful qualities, the contentions of disgruntled listeners to the contrary. And it is these good points that are now attracting radio scientists to further research.

Even though the experts themselves do not agree on the cause or causes of static, they are finding it valuable in the location of storms and consequently a contributor to the safety of life in the air and at sea.

Determines Storm Position.

In Europe, static is being employed to determine the position of storms, and to chart weather maps along aviation routes, and in America, experiments along these lines are just beginning. The United States navy has found that static can be used on the high seas to trace the course of hurricanes, thus enabling warships to dodge the storms. In the northwestern wooded areas of this country, static is being used to warn rangers of approaching forest fires by means of its weather forecasting proclivities.

The relationship between weather conditions and forest fires—those originating from natural causes—has been established. This relationship is so definite that the weather bureau issues forecasts of forest fire dangers based on the "complement of the humidity." Also, there is an apparent relationship between static and relative humidity; and on this hypothesis the major obstacle to radio reception is being harnessed in order to determine the amount of moisture in the atmosphere.

As forest fires take a toll of approximately $20,000,000 worth of timber and other property annually, the use of static in determining the amount of moisture in the air may compensate for some of the evils that the millions of listeners suffer.

Two Schools of Thought.

There are two schools of thought on the origin of static, according to Dr. Austin. One group holds that static for the most part is caused by lightning. Thus, even if there is no storm within a 1,000 miles of you, the static that troubles your receiver may come from a lightning discharge far away, mayhap the other side of the world. Their contention is that there is always lightning somewhere in the atmosphere and that the waves caused by the discharges are carried over the world.

The second school of experts admits that lightning is a prominent cause of static but contends that there are other electrical discharges, not visible to the eye, which are also to blame. For instance, the contact between two currents of air of different temperature may effect such a discharge. Static is worse in low pressure areas and in mountainous regions, Dr. Austin said.

Fading, which is often associated with static and often blamed on the same sources, is caused generally by the interference of radio waves and only rarely by atmospherics, according to Dr. Austin, who was inclined to discount the interference of the waves that travel through the air with those that move along the earth as the cause of fading at great distances. It comes rather from two waves traveling by different paths which have been reflected by the upper atmosphere, he said.

Radio Sets Reach Public Through Varied Sources

An interesting sidelight on radio merchandising is contained in the diverse channels by which radio equipment makes its way to the consumer. Reports show sales by firms and individuals giving their principal lines of business as that of poultry raiser, harness shop, funeral director, court reporter, baby chick hatchery, poolroom, optometrists, insecticide dealer, patent medicine dealer and what not.

Raymond A. Heising, who has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

RADIO ENGINEERS NAME HEISING INSTITUTE HEAD

Inventor, Research Expert Is Nominated.

Raymond A. Heising, well known radio engineer, has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers for 1930 by the board of direction of the institute.

Mr. Heising is engineer on the technical staff of the Bell telephone laboratories located in New York. He has a long record of study and achievement in the radio field. After receiving his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1914 he joined the research department of the Western Electric company—incorporated some years ago with Bell telephone laboratories. He participated in the long distance radio telephone experiments of 1915 and developed and operated the transmitting sets for the Montauk-to-Wilmington experiments and for those carried on between Arlington and San Francisco, Honolulu, and Paris.

Aided in War Research.

During the war he was a member of the subcommittee on "wireless communication between aircraft" of the national research council. Many of his investigations at this time were with radio telephony for airplanes, sub chasers, and other military units.

After the war he took part in the development of the ship to shore radio telephone, and later in the development of the long wave trans-Atlantic radio telephone circuit. For the last four or five years he has been investigating short wave phenomena and carrying on fundamental research in connection with the recently completed short wave radio systems.

Seventy Patents to Credit.

Mr. Heising has published many technical and scientific articles in the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and in the Physical Review, and has over seventy patents to his credit and others pending. In 1921 he was awarded the Morris Liebman Memorial prize by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Other members nominated are: Vice president, Col. A. G. Lee, staff engineer in charge of radio, engineering department, general postoffice, London, England.

For managers: John V. L. Hogan, past president, consulting engineer, New York City; Robert H. Marriott, past president and consulting engineer, New York City.

HANDLING RADIO TUBES.

When changing tubes in the radio receiver always turn the set off. Failure to do so in many cases will burn out the tubes, due to the "rush" of current caused by the extraction of the tube.

FEDERAL COMMISSION SEEKS TO CUT DOWN CHAIN DUPLICATIONS

An attempt to prevent duplication of chain radio programs on the listeners' dials is being made by the federal radio commission in a survey of broadcasters on cleared channels who use chain programs at night.

Copies of a questionnaire, designed by W. J. Clearman at the instigation of Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, asks fourteen questions. The information, obtained from fifty odd stations, will be used "to assist the commission in its work of assigning frequencies to broadcasting stations in such a way as to provide the satisfactory reception of desirable programs without unnecessary duplication, interference and waste."

Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, recently hurled charges of favoritism to chain systems as against independent stations at the radio commission, and complained of the commission's continual postponement of putting into effect general order No. 43, which would limit the operation of stations on cleared channels broadcasting the same programs to transmitters 300 miles apart. This order has been delayed upon five different occasions, the latest effective date being set for Dec. 31.

STATION BUILT IN WORLD'S WORST RADIO CLIMATE

The country with the world's worst radio climate has finally bowed to the popularity of entertainment via the air. A station has been constructed in Colombia.

Being in the hottest corner of the Caribbean territory and with difficult natural conditions, Colombia has denied herself the privilege of local broadcasting until recently when a transmitter was built at Bogota with a studio installed at the Capitol for broadcasting Congressional proceedings and theater performances, according to word received by the U. S. department of commerce from James J. O'Neill, assistant trade commissioner.

Colombia becomes the 69th broadcasting country, and the station brings the total in foreign countries to 609. United States stations total 612.

TELEVISION NOT YET PRACTICAL COMMERCIALLY

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the Commerce Yearbook for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting outdoor scenes on the television circuit was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

RADIO ENGINEERS NAME HEISING INSTITUTE HEAD

Inventor, Research Expert Is Nominated.

Raymond A. Heising, well known radio engineer, has been nominated for president of the Institute of Radio Engineers for 1930 by the board of direction of the institute.

Mr. Heising is engineer on the technical staff of the Bell telephone laboratories located in New York. He has a long record of study and achievement in the radio field. After receiving his M. S. degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1914 he joined the research department of the Western Electric company—incorporated some years ago with Bell telephone laboratories. He participated in the long distance radio telephone experiments of 1915 and developed and operated the transmitting sets for the Montauk-to-Wilmington experiments and for those carried on between Arlington and San Francisco, Honolulu, and Paris.

Aided in War Research.

During the war he was a member of the subcommittee on "wireless communication between aircraft" of the national research council. Many of his investigations at this time were with radio telephony for airplanes, sub chasers, and other military units.

After the war he took part in the development of the ship to shore radio telephone, and later in the development of the long wave trans-Atlantic radio telephone circuit. For the last four or five years he has been investigating short wave phenomena and carrying on fundamental research in connection with the recently completed short wave radio systems.

Seventy Patents to Credit.

Mr. Heising has published many technical and scientific articles in the Journal of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and in the Physical Review, and has over seventy patents to his credit and others pending. In 1921 he was awarded the Morris Liebman Memorial prize by the Institute of Radio Engineers.

Other members nominated are: Vice president, Col. A. G. Lee, staff engineer in charge of radio, engineering department, general postoffice, London, England.

For managers: John V. L. Hogan, past president, consulting engineer, New York City; Robert H. Marriott, past president and consulting engineer, New York City.

HANDLING RADIO TUBES.

When changing tubes in the radio receiver always turn the set off. Failure to do so in many cases will burn out the tubes, due to the "rush" of current caused by the extraction of the tube.

FEDERAL COMMISSION SEEKS TO CUT DOWN CHAIN DUPLICATIONS

An attempt to prevent duplication of chain radio programs on the listeners' dials is being made by the federal radio commission in a survey of broadcasters on cleared channels who use chain programs at night.

Copies of a questionnaire, designed by W. J. Clearman at the instigation of Commissioner Harold A. Lafount, asks fourteen questions. The information, obtained from fifty odd stations, will be used "to assist the commission in its work of assigning frequencies to broadcasting stations in such a way as to provide the satisfactory reception of desirable programs without unnecessary duplication, interference and waste."

Senator C. C. Dill of Washington, recently hurled charges of favoritism to chain systems as against independent stations at the radio commission, and complained of the commission's continual postponement of putting into effect general order No. 43, which would limit the operation of stations on cleared channels broadcasting the same programs to transmitters 300 miles apart. This order has been delayed upon five different occasions, the latest effective date being set for Dec. 31.

STATION BUILT IN WORLD'S WORST RADIO CLIMATE

The country with the world's worst radio climate has finally bowed to the popularity of entertainment via the air. A station has been constructed in Colombia.

Being in the hottest corner of the Caribbean territory and with difficult natural conditions, Colombia has denied herself the privilege of local broadcasting until recently when a transmitter was built at Bogota with a studio installed at the Capitol for broadcasting Congressional proceedings and theater performances, according to word received by the U. S. department of commerce from James J. O'Neill, assistant trade commissioner.

Colombia becomes the 69th broadcasting country, and the station brings the total in foreign countries to 609. United States stations total 612.

TELEVISION NOT YET PRACTICAL COMMERCIALLY

The problem of commercial practicability is proving to be one of the barriers most difficult to surmount in the development of television, it is indicated in a review of radio development of the last year in the Commerce Yearbook for 1929, just published by the department of commerce.

Television, it is pointed out, was first demonstrated in the Bell laboratories in 1927, and last year a new transmitting device capable of putting outdoor scenes on the television circuit was developed, but how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

LOOK

"... but Mary, why take a chance with an ordinary set—why not get a Kolster? We can buy one now for $175!"

"Really?"

"Why, of course! Haven't you heard? The demand for Kolsters has been so tremendous, the Company is offering a new model at only $175!"

"Well, that settles that problem!"

HYDE FINDS RADIO NEW LEAVEN OF RURAL AMERICA

Breaks Down Isolation of Former Days.

BY ARTHUR M. HYDE.
[Secretary of Agriculture.]

WASHINGTON.—Agriculture needs radio. It carries to the most remote farm social values, aesthetic values and business information. It overleaps the barriers of space and breaks down isolation.

More than any other group in the United States, our farm people depend upon radio in their business and in their home life. "Radio belongs to farmers" said an official of the big broadcasting systems recently. He went on to explain his remark in this way:

"The business man gets reports of the markets from a ticker. Until radio came along the farmer was without similar comparable information on markets. The urban family can easily attend church services led by the great divines, hear the music of famous choirs, symphony orchestras, opera companies; until the advent of radio the farm family had scant opportunity to share these inspirations. Spectacular and historical events, such as the inauguration of presidents and direct contact with the leaders of thought and action, are carried by radio to the most isolated farm home.

"Lacking radio, the rural population even with the telephone and good roads would still be close to that condition of isolation and loneliness which was described and decried a quarter of a century ago in the report of President Roosevelt's country life commission."

Developing Business Service.

Our broadcasting experience in the department of agriculture has largely been confined to development of the business service of radio to the farm. The earliest broadcasting stations sent weather information—forecasts, warnings, etc.—in coöperation with the United States weather bureau, and crop and market news supplied by the bureau of agricultural economics. Later, the department established a radio service of timely information on production practices in agriculture and on scientific homemaking. Each year since the birth of broadcasting has seen a steady growth in the number of radio stations making these services available to the rural audience. At present 215 radio stations transmit weather reports obtained directly from the weather bureau; 114 stations broadcast crop and market news, some of them on schedules running up to four periods daily; 163 stations send one or more of the eight programs of general farming and home making information supplied by the department; and a network of 39 stations associated with the National Broadcasting company provides at noontime a national farm and home hour program.

197 Stations Serve Farmer.

All told, 197 of the 610 radio broadcasting stations in the United States cooperate with the federal department of agriculture in one or more ways to serve farmers and home makers. Included in the list are virtually all stations of one thousand watts or higher power. The time devoted to this special service would command, at commercial rates, much more than one million dollars a year. It is freely given to agriculture without cost except the expense of supplying speakers or facts.

This coöperation of broadcasters with the department of agriculture does not tell the whole story of radio service to rural America. Nineteen of the land grant colleges of the United States maintain their own radio stations. These are broadcasting from a maximum of forty-three to a minimum of three hours a week with a large proportion of their time devoted to programs of farm and home information. Of the 19, one is on a "shared" channel, the remaining 18 on regional channels. Their power ranges from 10,000 to 250 watts.

Colleges Supply Speakers.

Land grant colleges in the remaining 27 states supply speakers and programs to commercial broadcasting stations, except in a few states which do not possess powerful transmitters. State boards of agriculture or bureaus of markets in some great agricultural states such as Missouri and Wisconsin operate their own broadcasting stations. In other states the boards or departments of agriculture have accepted the offer of commercial radio facilities.

National, state, and smaller units of the farm organizations maintain agriculture information and promotion programs through numerous stations. On occasion the national network systems send special agricultural broadcasts into every part of the country. Rural listeners will recall many of them, including the program of the Institute of Coöperation last July and the National 4-H club program arranged by the department of agriculture last June which brought the 1,000 farm boys and girls in this organization a message from Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Farm Families Appreciate Radio.

Farm families owning radio sets use the business aids extended by the nation's broadcasters; they appreciate—how profoundly few can realize—the widening of cultural and social horizons made possible by the genius of electrical science.

Already thousands of letters coming to the department bring home to us the fact that, through radio, a new culture is working in rural America. Farm families testify that the radio has brought church services to our homes." "Helped out in the back country." "made it possible for us to hear Presidents speak and opera stars sing." "taught us a number of new pastimes." "brought relaxation to us," "made farm life more pleasant."

What the results will be in the way of a higher level of culture I am not bold enough to predict. Necessarily there will be developed closer ties of sympathy and of interest among the different sections of the nation. These are intangible values, values which cannot be listed or tabulated, values which the less real.

You here behold Stewart-Warner's new masterpiece in radio performance and console cabinet.

Noted furniture designers and craftsmen developed this design.

It encloses the new Stewart-Warner Radio introducing an utterly new type of radio reproduction.

This new Stewart-Warner enables you to hear the delicate shades of musical feeling formerly audible only to the trained artistic ear. You hear your favorite songs rendered with multiplied appeal.

We worked 5 years to gain these new effects. We perfected a new way of controlling outside noise and interference that brings in every program amidst a perfect hush of quiet.

See this great improvement in radio. Hear its powerful volume on distant stations without sacrifice of sensitivity. Step into your nearest radio store and ask to hear "The Set with the Punch."

INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS

My September 15th advertisement in these columns secured thirteen Engineers who were very satisfactory, but right now, due to an enormous increase in business secured by ten salesmen in my Chicago and New York offices, I need twenty industrial engineers at once to take care of my requirements.

My business is to reduce manufacturing costs through installing wage incentive plans, production control methods, improved layouts, better mechanical and handling methods, etc. That means I am particularly interested in considering written applications from men who have had previous professional engineering experience.

Qualifications necessary: Several years' industrial experience in production control methods and labor incentives, and particularly adept at selling your ideas to the man on the machine. Mechanically inclined and willing to travel anywhere in the United States and Canada. Initiative to develop plans to fit the particular conditions instead of following a cut and dried system. Age between 30 and 40 years, and neat appearance. You must have a fine reputation that will stand investigation.

Write a special delivery letter to Mark P. Seirsdale, General Manager of Service, at 2600 North Shore-av., Chicago, outlining in detail your experience and companies you have been employed by. All information will be kept confidential. Two days after you mail letter phone Hollycourt 3000 for interview appointment.

WANTED—MALE HELP.

A1 SALESMEN.

One Hundred Thousand Sales actually made the first few weeks we were in business. Over one hundred men made $25 to $100 each the first day they worked.

A World's record in selling and money making.

Men willing to work who want to joint the fastest growing, biggest money making organization in America—this is for you!

We just started in business last July. We had six different articles to sell direct to the consumer. Of one article we had one hundred thousand units to start. It sold so fast right from the start we never started in on any of the other lines.

One hundred of the first men who went to work made $25 or more the first day they worked. Some of them made during the first thirty days, as high as $150 a day.

We immediately got busy with the biggest manufacturers in America, whose products entered into this merchandise.

We have already contracted for material for five hundred thousand units, to be delivered between now and January 1st. We expect to shortly contract for an additional million units for 1929 delivery.

Following are the actual earnings a day of twenty-six men in Chicago alone in just two days, one month after we started in business:

Mr. R.	$38.80	Mr. M.	$39.00
Mr. B.	20.40	Mr. S.	61.20
Mr. O.	30.60	Mr. T.	40.80
Mr. R.	21.00	Mr. C.	81.60
Mr. M.	20.40	Mr. C.	72.00
Mr. D.	24.40	Mr. M.	24.40
Mr. G.	38.50	Mr. C.	21.20
Mr. P.	18.40	Mr. R.	18.40
Mr. F.	42.80	Mr. S.	31.20
Mr. B.	18.40	Mr. C.	30.60
Mr. G.	18.40	Mr. C.	27.20
Mr. B.	42.40	Mr. E.	34.50
Mr. W.	76.40	Mr. S.	54.00

The merchandise we are selling is, we believe, the most attractive and most appealing of anything ever offered in direct selling.

The merchandise we are selling now is a big improvement over what we started in with.

IT HAS THE BIGGEST EYE VALUE BY FAR OF ANYTHING YOU HAVE EVER SEEN.

We will get out still finer merchandise and bigger values before Christmas. We will get out other wonderful sellers in the same line January 1st.

All of our business is done through direct salesmen. We do not sell through stores. This month we have already spent approximately five thousand dollars in national advertising.

We give exclusive territory only when a reasonable sales quota is made by organizations or men. All over the country organized men in large territories and salesmen in small territories are making these quotas almost over night and getting exclusive franchises.

Write or wire immediately for full details and take full advantage of the Christmas season. Suite 256-278, 35 E. Wacker-dr.

BEAUTY LUXURY

Men who, by experience and training, are able to choose expertly, have chosen 3520-30 Sheridan-road as their permanent home as residents of co-operative home apts.

Of course owning a home is a luxury. Only a select few can afford such, in a great city.

The co-operative apt. home principle makes such a luxury even more luxurious, because it makes it possible to have your home in the most coveted and convenient location possible; where stability and permanency of value can be assured by fixed surroundings.

And, too, it affords the luxury of service not available in any other type of home.

In no other home where a like investment is involved is it possible to acquire so much or to operate it for so little.

The home instinct is strong in well-poised, serious minded, cultured, progressive people. The co-operative home apt. is the result of progressive thought, developed to meet a modern need.

Apt. homes (which have heretofore been under tenant rental) are being made available at 3320-30 Sheridan-rd., perhaps the most desirable location in Chicago for a home. The beauty of the view which unfolds to the eye from these spacious living rooms is indescribable, and it is fixed for a lifetime.

A home anywhere cannot be enjoyed or possessed without expense of upkeep, fuel, light, gas, refrigeration, repair, insurance, depreciation, taxes, paint, etc.

People of affluence, who can easily defray the entire investment, will find here a home of prestige, where stability and permanency of value are fixed by the very nature of the surroundings. Should you desire to be more fully informed as to how you, too, may become an owner, come in and talk with an owner, whose experience affords practical insight into its workings.

It is best to make an appointment. Telephone Bittersweet 3722, ask for Mr. Woodward.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS

Sometimes an opportunity sometimes a convenience, sometimes a necessity prompts a Chicago home owner to obtain a second mortgage on his home.

The cost of money borrowed for a necessity should be no greater than the cost of money borrowed for convenience or for opportunity.

We would never encourage a home owner to obtain funds on his home for use in a speculative venture, but there it is convenient or necessary or where there is an opportunity to use funds for a constructive purpose it is sometimes advisable to borrow on a second mortgage.

When there is need and when the time comes the average home owner does not know where to go.

Whatever the need, Personal Loan & Savings Bank, acting as agent for a substantial loan fund, has money to loan on second mortgages and is prepared to offer to home owners whereby they can arrange for a second mortgage at a reasonable cost and upon convenient terms.

We make loans for a period of one to three years, with interest not in excess of 6½% per annum and a commission of 3½% for one year, 6% for two years, and 8% for three years, and the monthly payments must be as low as 2% plus accrued interest each month.

The entire plan developed by Personal Loan & Savings Bank as agent for the handling of second mortgages is a good one to meet the requirements of the home owner of this vicinity. We will be glad to have you come in and find out all about the proposition which we are offering in this direction.

CADILLAC, 1927, 314, 5 PASS. SEDAN. This car is coming into our possession in almost new condition mechanically. Its appearance is 100%, the body of the de luxe type, and much equipment is included, such as trunk rack, 6 disc wheels, 6 excellent tires, cowl lights, Lorraine spotlight, fender wells, etc. Guaranteed mechanically. $1,875.

1928 PACKARD 5 PASS. SEDAN, 5-26 series and although in service a little more than a year has actually seen only 7,194 miles of service. This is a fact which can be easily verified. Has heater, cowl lights, side mounts, 6 excellent tires. Guaranteed mechanically. $1,275 takes it today.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT STRAIGHT 8. Current model, 1929, 5 pass. sedan, 4 door, on their 121 inch wheelbase chassis. Car used only 3,619 miles, in no way can it be distinguished from a new car of this model. Radiator, lamps and other metal parts full chromium plated. Guaranteed by us. Come in and inspect it; you will find it impossible to duplicate at $1,550.

GRAHAM-PAIGE 827, 5 PASS. SEDAN. This is a 1929 straight 8 Graham-Paige and the first of this model we have had to offer from our Used Car Department. It was used 8,350 miles by a sales executive of this company and kept in new car condition at all times. Is equipped with 6 wire wheels, trunk rack, 1 shot lubrication system, side mounts, etc. Guaranteed mechanically. This low figure nets you a very handsome saving. $1,775.

PACKARD SIX, 1927, 5 PASS. SEDAN. Series 4-26. A beautiful car in all respects and 100% mechanically. The finish, upholstery and all details are as you would have them and the equipment is most complete. We have it at a price that is way below its true value and we believe it will sell to the first person who sees and rides in it. $975.

1928 BUICK BROUGHAM. This is their 4 door 5 passenger, with de luxe type body, and a model conceded by many to be the best ever built. The paint is without blemish the interior exactly like new, and there is little or no wear on the tires. Everything on it in the way of equipment. Guaranteed. $875.

HUPMOBILE CENTURY EIGHT. Here's a 1928 4 pass. Victoria Coupe that has been an extremely popular model. It is the custom built de luxe body type, equipped with 6 wire wheels and 6 excellent tires, and is in the pink of condition mechanically and physically. We urge any one interested to come in early because of this low figure. $930.

STEARNS-KNIGHT STRAIGHT EIGHT. A sport sedan, 1928 model, that has seen but little service and the kind of a car that should appeal strongly to the lover of the Knight type motor. It's a straight 8 and quite snappy in appearance and performance. It was so well kept every inch of its 6,420 miles that its condition would lead you to believe it had never been driven a mile. The price is only $1,550.

PAIGE, 1928 STRAIGHT EIGHT. One of those 5 passenger sedans with the 4 speed transmission such as is being used on the Graham-Paige. A real advance in engineering. The paint is Cobalt Blue and in splendid condition. All details are perfect and the tires most excellent. It is in the necessary condition to carry our mechanical guarantee. $750.
